Petronella

By DREW SHERRARD

©, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service

PETRONELLA slipped noiselessly out through the street door. A moment she stood, every sense alert, listening. Voices inside; they had not missed her, escape was possible.

There had been a brief April shower an hour before, and as she hurried across the lawn and through a gap in the hedge, her slim, silky legs were spattered and her velvet-shod feet soaked through. How she hated wet feet!—all manner of discomfort for that matter—but she hurried on, trusting to an innate sense of direction to guide her out of this strange neighborhood. She had come here in a cab, with Roger Maybury, but that was out of the question now. She must go alone, and by devious ways and unfrequented streets. She could not risk the brilliant streets downtown, conspicuous in her dew-drenched loveliness.

From the first she had known she could never be happy at Mrs. Warley's. Roger, whose mother had befriended Mrs. Warley during her lifetime, and who had himself with characteristic kindness financed her when she set up her select little boarding establishment, had thought it just the place for Petronella. But Mrs. Warley, though the soul of kindness, was incapable of understanding how Petronella felt about the whole thing. She never suspected that Petronella had spent her three days at Pleasant Cottage restlessly trying to evolve some plan to get away to Roger. And then, at the last, there had been no plan at all, simply overwhelming impulse. Petronella was going to Roger to stake everything on the attempt to make him see things as she did.

Roger Maybury was perhaps a strange person to have influenced her so. A bachelor, no longer very young, wealthy enough, socially desirable, just what was his attraction for Petronella? Probably she was first drawn to him because of the way he spoke to her, indulgently, whimsically, as if she had been a child. She wasted no time in reasoning why, she had quite simply known that he was her man, that she belonged to him.

One night when she had been out with her young companions she had seen him, and slipping away from them, she had followed him home. He had been kind, but firm. He had not let her in. Instead, he had invented some excuse for going out himself, and then he had taken her back to her friends and left her.

She exulted voicelessly as she pattered along the wet pavement. Strange, sinister purlieus, a bedraggled woman holding out a detaining hand; a man, starting up out of shadows; saying words. A clock boomed twelve, and suddenly she felt a little stabbing thrill at its familiar tone. The clock on Roger's street!

A policeman came around a corner toward her. She shrank back into the protecting shadow between two houses. A wooden gate marked "Tradesman," yielded to her slight push, and she darted inside to crouch breathlessly till the heavy tread passed by.

She dared not face the street again. She stole around back of the house and crossed back yards till she reached the place she sought. She looked up at the house, dark, solid, respectable, at the third-story window of Roger's room, at ivy on the walls. She put a foot upon its twisted trunk, and in another moment her lithe body was drawing itself up the leafy ladder, up to Roger.

The ledge gained, she looked down and, in the instant of that downward glance, almost lost her hold. She cried out involuntarily. Inside the dimly moonlit room, she saw Roger rise from bed, reach for a bathrobe and come cautiously toward the window.

"Petronella!"

Disregarding his outstretched hand she crept over the sill and jumped lightly down to the floor. He pressed a light switch. She curled up in a cushioned chair and regarded him through half-closed lids.

"Petronella, is this the way to act? Don't you know you are making it d—d difficult for me?"

What were words? She knew better ways than words for working her will with this man. Slipping down she crossed the room with delicate, almost mincing steps. Going up close to him she leaned herself against him, making little soft sounds of happiness and love. He stood it for a minute then caught her up to him, pressing her slender body against his breast. Petronella laid a velvet cheek against the satisfying roughness of his bathrobe, and breathed a little happy sigh.

"Petronella, you win," he said. "You infernal little black-and-white alley cat, you're mine for keeps! Let this whole club howl their heads off. I'll be eternally blistered if I let any house committee make me send you back to old Warley and her cat boarding house! I'll resign first!"

Petronella kneaded her claws delicately into his bathrobe and purred like a tea kettle. Somehow she knew that she would sleep that night in the cushioned chair and that in the morning there would be a saucer of cream for her in the floor of Roger's bathroom.

"M-m-m-rahr!" said Petronella.

Smart Fashions for Immediate Wear

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FEELING the urge, are you, which, ever at the dawn of a season, takes possession of the style-minded, to be off with the old and on with the new? Be encouraged, ye who are about to enter on a "what-to-wear" quest, for we promise you thrilling discoveries for those who seek new clothes for autumn-winter, year 1933.

A most exciting "find" for early fall wear is the satin suit or ensemble which is sure to make you look slender beyond your fondest hopes. We are illustrating a stunning black satin model in the picture herewith. It is just such as behooves every woman to consider who aspires to be clad in the latest or rather should we say the earliest so far as initiating the new season is concerned. The dress is made with cap sleeves and it has a back-and-front yoke of white satin. Bias cut and graceful flare distinguish the skirt and please to notice the snug tight fit—most of the skirts are that way in the newer styles.

The three-quarter length matching coat is the very quintessence of chic, its full long sleeves with inset sections above the elbow being obviously "new." Satin is also used for the jaunty beret. Which is the same as saying that milliners are going to be in for a busy season since headgear made of the same material as the dress or coat is said to be going over in a big way for fall.

And then there are the new dotted satins, how striking they are! It is safe to guess that you will covet an outfit fashioned of such at first sight. There are also in the showing some very attractive dotted woolens. Choose either and you will be making no mistake. The model pictured happens to be satin. The blouse reverses the order of colors in that the background is white, dotted with black. Left you might think it a pointed-fox boa which milady is wearing with her modish satin ensemble we hasten to inform you that her jacket is made outstanding with one of the new shoulder arrangements such as certain leading designers are sponsoring this season. It may also interest you to know that quantities of monkey fur are likewise worked into odd epaulets and other novel shoulder trimmings. The swagger little "pill-box" turban of self-dotted-satin is one of the newest of the new.

Supposing you have a navy blue suit, or perhaps dress, which you long to freshen up a bit so as to carry through the first weeks of the autumn season—here's how! Scout about town, you won't have to go far, for all the smart shops and specialty departments are displaying them—it's the "sets" which include scarf and gloves made of some one or other of the new novelty fabrics to which we have reference. The picture below in the group gives you the idea. 'Nuff said!

If you happen to prefer a neckpiece and gloves of velvet or satin for dressier occasions you will have no difficulty in finding most any sort you want, for these made-of-fabric sets are being featured in every conceivable weave.

The navy blue hat which tops this intriguing outfit has a fashionable peak which found its inspiration in the harlequin hat which has played during the years so important a role in fantastic dress to many an admiring audience.

BLACK SATIN VOGUE EXTENDS TO HATS

Black satin's vogue for fall wear is extended to hats in the newest displays of fall millinery. Latest models in the smarter shops show a wide variety. The very wide-brimmed hats for dressier occasions are most often found with a flat crown, some of the new models measuring only an inch or two in depth. Their round, wide brims are an irresistible temptation to any brisk breeze.

High-crowned hats are plentiful also, some of them with fairly good-sized brims, but most of these are decorated with a cluster of flowers at the base to soften the harsher lines.

An attractive model is of black velvet with a brim which dips over the right eye. At this point at the base of the crown is a huge bunch of pink and purple violets.

The younger things seem more likely to revel in the small brimless models. Berets that have more versatility and can be pulled into all sorts of odd angles already are giving proof of greater popularity.

Fabrics of Our Childhood Come Back as Favorites

Dimity, dotted swiss, muslin, all the old fabrics of our childhood, return proudly as favorites of the new sartorial season, and are worn by the smartest women.

A simple dimity dress with very smart accessories is grand for town wear.

A most attractive frock is done in red and white dimity in a tiny check design. It has short full sleeves, a self-bow and tiny buttons down the bodice.

Fur Fabric Fashions

Fabrics resembling astrakhan and Persian lamb are among the favorite trimmings for new wool dresses designed to be worn without coats on early fall days.

HAIR ORNAMENTS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Paris is sponsoring the discreet rhinestone hair ornament. The one which poses on the exquisitely coiffed head of the pretty young lady pictured is in leaf design. Evening headdresses which suggest a return to favor of formal jewelry have also been noted at many high functions, such as, for instance, a Juliet cap of silver lace mesh with a band of pearls, also a coronet done in gold wire with sprays of crystal leaves. Which is only the beginning of the program so fashion seers tell us.

Prints for Evening

There's a real old-fashioned flavor in some of the new evening gown materials . . . printed satin, printed velvet in particular. Developed into gowns with a last-century look, they can add much to the charm of the wardrobe.

Menus for Leisurely Meal

Wide Variety of Delicious Dishes Resourceful Hostess Can Command for the Late Breakfast That Will Please Guests and Household.

What might be called a combination breakfast and lunch meal should appeal to the hostess seeking something new for the entertainment of guests and the pleasure of her household. The suggestions offered, it will be noted, involve very little trouble in their preparation.

One of the nicest ways of entertaining in summer as well as in winter is that combination meal served at noon on a Sunday or a holiday, at which we may give our guests those savory dishes which are usually associated with breakfast.

Almost every one likes these dishes particularly well, but in this busy life we are not likely to have the leisure to enjoy a heavy breakfast early in the morning during the week even if we have the "big breakfast" habit.

When I see menus of former days which include steaks, creamed potatoes, several kinds of hot bread and possibly porridge, as an ordinary breakfast meal plan, I wonder that a former generation was not generally obese. I still visit occasionally an old-fashioned household where breakfasts like these are not unknown and I can enjoy them as a guest at leisure if I am not expected to eat a full-sized lunch as well.

One of my friends has made a great reputation for herself because of the well-cooked Scotch oatmeal which she serves, with plenty of cream, after the fruit course. She then gives us broiled ham cut very thin and cooked very crisp at the edges, popovers—tall and golden brown—and her special kumquat marmalade.

At another breakfast not long ago we began with tomato juice cocktails. The next course was kidney stew with corn griddle cakes for which both honey and maple sirup had been provided. Another hostess serves breakfasts in buffet style. She has bowls of berries and several kinds of cereal from which the guests may help themselves. One of her specialties for the main course is poached eggs served on toast over which hot rich milk is poured. These eggs are always served in a soup dish and you may have more hot milk if you like. Bacon crisply broiled, or fried liver with bacon, are other meats particularly liked for breakfast.

I must not forget to mention frizzled beef, although when I met a reader recently she told me that she was sure it was my favorite dish because I mentioned it so often. She was almost right at that. With frizzled beef or any other creamed meat, either griddle cakes or waffles go particularly well. You may eat them first to accompany the meat and then finish up with sirup, honey or jam. Sweet rolls, cinnamon buns or coffee cake are always well liked at meals of this sort, but there must be, of course, toast or unsweetened rolls served as well.

With any of the broiled or fried meats there is nothing better than creamed potatoes. I particularly like the type sometimes known as "stewed" and sometimes known as "hashed in cream." I am afraid I have mentioned this almost as often as I have frizzled beef, but I have a letter from a reader who asks me to print a recipe for them, so I shall hope that some of the rest of you will be interested in it. By the way, you may dress up these potatoes a little by adding minced onion, pimento or even green peppers.

While sausages, excepting frankfurters, are not at the height of their season just now, you can get very good ones in cans, so that you may use them if you like. Pork chops with apple rings or fried apples are sometimes featured at breakfast, and I like that eastern Pennsylvania custom of serving fried tomatoes with a creamy gravy. Hot muffins or biscuits are always appreciated, as are hot breads at a meal of this sort and, of course, you will have a liberal quantity of fresh, sparkling coffee.

Spoon Bread.

¼ cup cornmeal
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 teaspoon baking powder

Scald the milk and remove from the fire. Stir in the cornmeal gradually and cool slightly. Add the salt, the egg yolk, the baking powder and the stiffly beaten white of the egg. Pour into a greased earthen baking dish and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) until brown. Serve with meat and cream gravy.

Stewed Potatoes.

3 tablespoons butter
3 cups diced potatoes
2 cups milk (part cream)
Salt
Pepper

Melt butter in a frying pan, add the potatoes and seasonings, and stir over the fire until the fat is absorbed. Add the milk and cook slowly from 25 to 30 minutes. More milk may be added if needed.

Ham Griddle Cakes.

2 cups soft crumbs
1 cup scalded milk
1 cup minced cooked ham
2 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons melted shortening
Salt and pepper

Mix ingredients in order given. Drop from spoon on hot greased griddle and brown on both sides.

I'm a stenographer — but I help in the kitchen at home and I've discovered a thing or two about soaps. I find that Fels-Naptha loosens grease quicker. When I'm through, the dishes and pans fairly shine. And my hands are out of water so fast, that they don't get red. Mother now swears by Fels-Naptha, too. She uses it for the family wash and says it's so much easier to keep the clothes white and sweet-smelling.

It's true—the greasiest dirt hustles right out when you use Fels-Naptha Soap. It has two—for Fels-Naptha holds a special grease-loosener. Lots of naptha in addition to good golden soap. That means extra help—a better job—and less work for you.

CHILDREN'S STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

JERRY MAKES HIS WALLS STOUT

To make success of any plan
Each one must do the best he can.
If then the plan does not succeed
To blame himself he has no need.

NEVER in his life had Jerry Muskrat been happier than he was as he toiled to build that new house. He was far happier than when he had nothing to do but play about, as had been the case all summer. He got tired. Of course. But it was the healthy kind of tiredness that meant sound sleep when he crept into his bed in his castle in the bank of the Laughing Brook. And each day there was the splendid feeling that what he had done counted for something; that there had been no waste of time.

So Jerry Muskrat was happy, and because he was happy he talked, and because there was no one near to talk to, he talked to himself. He had just cut the roots of a bulrush and was resting for a moment before taking the whole plant over to use in building his new house. "It was hard work gettting this plant up by the roots," said he, "and that was because the roots were well fastened to the ground. Whatever is well rooted is hard to move. Think it over, Jerry. Just think it over. The flood that swept away your house last spring didn't sweep away the bulrushes or the trees along the bank of the Laughing Brook. That was because they were so well rooted. The foundations of your house are its roots so to speak. Just keep that in mind, Jerry, and see that the foundation walls are broad and stout."

Jerry chuckled at the funny notion of calling the foundations of his house roots. Then he swam over to use that bulrush in the foundation of his house. Remembering how his old house had been swept away, Jerry spent a great deal of time and attention on the foundations of his new house. The bits of sod he had dug up and the mud he had taken from his tunnels and cellar were good as far as they went, but Jerry was too good a builder not to know that if he used nothing else his foundation would be weak. So he brought roots and bits of sticks and the stalks of rushes and these he worked into his foundation walls with the mud and the bits of sod.

And he made these walls broad and stout and went over and over them to make sure there were no weak places in them. So gradually the walls rose until when Jerry stood on them only his feet were in the water. By the end of another night he could sit on them without so much as wetting his feet. All the hard work under water was finished. There was still a lot of hard work to be done, but it would be pleasanter and therefore easier than the work already done.

So Jerry sat on the foundation walls of his new house and was happy and dreamed dreams of how he would build the finest house that ever a muskrat built, a house so fine that even his big cousin, Paddy the Beaver, would be envious of him. And dreaming his fine dreams under the twinkling stars Jerry forgot the one thing that none of the little people of the Green Forest or the Green Meadows or the Laughing Brook or the Smiling Pool or the Old Orchard ever should forget for a wee, wee minute—to watch out for danger.

And this was quite as Hooty the Owl had hoped it would be when he had first discovered what Jerry Muskrat was doing there in the Smiling Pool.

GRAPHIC GOLF

USING DRIVER THROUGH THE FAIRWAY

THERE has been little dissension with the larger and heavier ball that is now in official use. In fact most golfers are more than pleased with it. For one thing it sets up better on the fairway and offers a larger broadside to hit at. There is no necessity to slam into the ball to make it rise with a rather straight club as was often the case with the smaller ball. In fact its ease of elevation has led Bobby Jones to resort to the use of his driver under certain situations through the fairway. When the ball presents a fairly good lie and a long shot into the wind or a far second is desired, Jones uses his driver with no sense of undue risk. Although the average golfer might hesitate to follow Jones' example, the new ball has at least made brassie and spoon shots simpler.

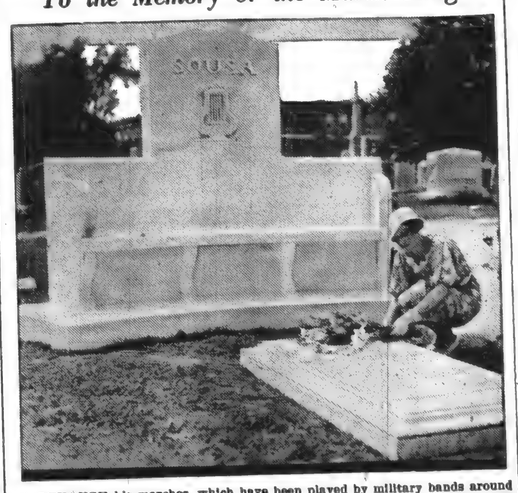
To the Memory of the March King



ALTHOUGH his marches, which have been played by military bands around the world, will never let him be forgotten, John Philip Sousa, the great "march king" who died March 6, 1932, will be kept alive in the memory of the nation through this handsome memorial just completed in the Congressional cemetery, Washington, where he is buried.

PRICES

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THINGS have come down, some certain things,
And, thank the Lord,
The things most good;
But folly still the old price brings,
We can't afford,
And never could.
The price of midnight joy is health
(Who squanders sleep
Will have to pay),
And that's the universal wealth
That people keep
Or throw away.

Some things are high: the price of sin
Remains the same,
Good times or bad,
But heaven's easier to win,
An honest name
May still be had.
If less of gold means more of worth,
More trying for
True happiness,
Perhaps this is a richer earth,
And we have more
Who now have less.

BANANA DESSERTS

THE banana is one of our most popular and well liked fruits, one we can always find in our markets and it deserves a chapter all for itself.

Banana Bavarois.

Scald one cupful of milk in a double boiler. Stir in two teaspoonfuls of gelatin previously soaked in two tablespoonfuls of cold water. Add one cupful of sugar and when cold and it commences to set stir in one cupful of banana pulp and one cupful of whipped cream. Pour into a mold and place on ice to set.

Banana Bread Pudding.

Take three slices of bread or three rolls, break into small pieces. Pour over this two cupfuls of milk, one-half cupful of sugar, four bananas sliced, stir in lightly two beaten egg whites and bake for half an hour. Serve hot with a sauce using the two egg yolks beaten well, one-fourth of a cupful of sugar and a cupful of boiling milk; stir and flavor, then serve hot. A little lemon juice and rind may be used for the flavoring.

Banana and Coconut Dessert.

Cut four bananas into four pieces, place in a buttered pan and sprinkle with three teaspoonfuls of lemond juice. Beat an egg white until stiff, add three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Add one-half cupful of shredded coconut, put a tablespoonful of this meringue on each section of banana. Bake until brown. Serve with whipped cream.

Banana Fluff.

Cut one-half pound of fresh marshmallows into small pieces. Whip one cupful of heavy cream, add one teaspoonful of vanilla, one-half cupful of sugar, a bit of salt, stir in the marshmallows, one cupful of broken nutmeats (less may be used), and one cupful of banana pulp finely mashed. Serve with crushed strawberries, or over ice cream of any flavor.

Living Conditions of Fish

Different species of fish require different sets of living conditions. Some species dwell in the deep water, coming to the shallows to spawn, others live in marginal shoals, rarely if ever going to deeper parts of the lake. Some prefer mud bottoms, others sand, and still others, marl. The history of an inland lake is a succession of fish habitats, determined principally by vegetation, soil, and conditions due to depth.

Mannish Fall Cloche

This mannish cloche has its crown manipulated to give the effect of two padded rolls running from back to front.

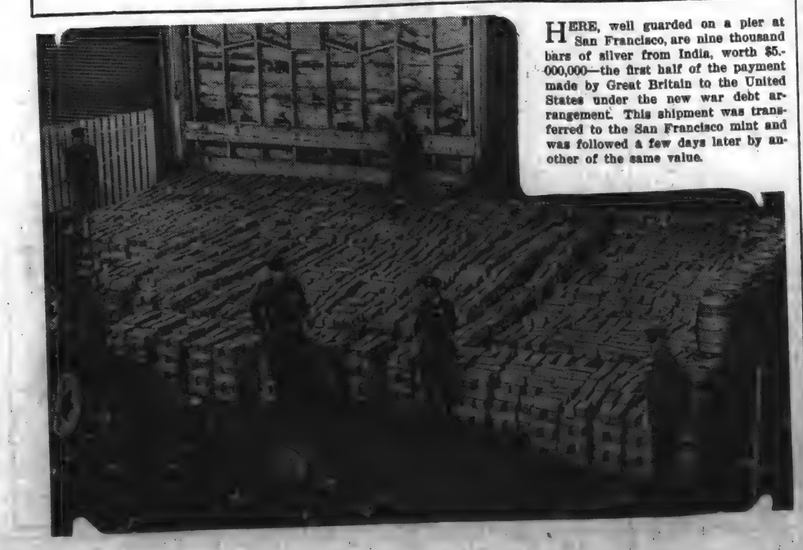
England Pays Debt in Silver From India



HERE, well guarded on a pier at San Francisco, are nine thousand bars of silver from India, worth $5,000,000—the first half of the payment made by Great Britain to the United States under the new war debt arrangement. This shipment was transferred to the San Francisco mint and was followed a few days later by another of the same value.

DESCRIBES FARM ADJUSTMENT PLAN

Agricultural College President Says Federal Program Seeks to Coordinate Production with Reduced Exports

The Federal farm adjustment program is partly guided by the belief that exports of agricultural commodities will not soon recover its volume of five or ten years ago, in the opinion of F. D. Farrell, President Kansas Agricultural College, writing in the August issue of the American Bankers Association Journal.

"Nobody knows whether the farm adjustment program will succeed," writes Mr. Farrell "Its sponsors describe it frankly as an experiment. It seeks to socialize agriculture at least to the extent that farmers, in what is believed to be the public interest, will restrain their production activities and that processors, distributors and consumers will contribute something toward paying farmers for exercising this restraint. The adjustment programs definitely are based on the fact that prices are determined primarily by supply and demand. They also are based on the assumption that the export business in agricultural commodities will not soon return to its volume of five or ten years ago.

Dependence on Public Support

"The plan offers wheat prices insurance for 1933, 1934 and 1935, for the domestically consumed portion of the wheat crop. The insured price is to be sufficiently high to give the domestically consumed portion of the wheat crop pre-war purchasing power. If the plan is as effective as its sponsors hope it will be, the reduction in supply may influence wheat prices so that the entire wheat crop will have pre-war purchasing power.

"If the adjustment program succeeds, its launching probably will mark the end of an era of extreme individualism in agriculture in the United States," says Mr. Farrell.

"Recent fundamental changes led Secretary Wallace to say, 'What we really have to do is to change the whole psychology of the people of the United States.' This is a large order. It involves the whole program of farm adjustment as well as the larger national economic program, of which farm adjustment is a part. If the people decline to participate in the program to the extent necessary to give the experiment a fair trial, we shall never know whether farm adjustment as now proposed would have succeeded or not if it had been given a fair trial."

BANKERS PREPARE FARM FINANCE BOOK

Tells Bankers and Farmers What to Consider in Making Sound Loans

A book on "Making Farm Investments Safe" has been prepared by the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association, summarizing material published by it during the past ten years. It presents a compendium of scientific facts, practice and experience in farming, with timely and helpful suggestions to serve as a reference and guide in the daily routine of banking and farming. From it practical workers in these fields can obtain an idea as to what extent and in what manner farm loans should be limited by soil erosion, weeds, plant diseases, rodents and fire hazards, etc.

The book also indicates how much is added to the security of a farm loan by the farmer who keeps accounts and practices good business methods, as well as the extent to which loans are safeguarded by crop rotation, production of legumes, judicious use of commercial fertilizers, the use of quality seed and the providing of home grown feeds.

Another section sets forth the precautions that should be exercised by both the banker and farmer when negotiating loans to increase or improve dairy production, or beef, sheep, swine or poultry production, as well as what factors should be considered in the economic marketing of products and the way efficiency in production affects efficiency in marketing. Many other everyday details of farm life that have a practical financial significance are treated in the book. A particular important section deals with experience with farm leases and another with directed farm credit.

Banks Make Best Record in R. F. C. Loans Repayments.

Among the loans of $3,819,000,000 made by the Federal Government through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the highest percentage of repayments, official reports show, has been made by the banks, indicating the return of stability as the chief unsettling element of public fear has been lifted from them.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has authorized cash advances, fully secured by sound collateral, to 6,278 banks since it began operations in February, 1933, and made actual disbursements to them in the amount of $1,221,878,000. Of this amount, however, $545,078,000, or over 44 per cent, has been repaid to the banks. All other classes of borrowers combined have repaid about 16 per cent of their loans.

VOL. XLVII | ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 14, 1933 | NUMBER 37

WRITES NEWS CONCERNING OLD SETTLER'S DAY

Auburn, Ind.
Sept. 7, 1933.

Dear Mr. Editor:—

As President of the DeKalb County Old Settlers' Association I would like to pass some information along to the readers of your excellent publication.

At the meeting last year seven hundred badges were provided for the Old Settlers and the supply was exhausted before all had registered.

This year we have provided one thousand beautiful badges, with log cabin picture, and want to pin all of them on old settlers of the county.

Many ladies and some gentlemen are sensitive about their ages so we are instructing the ladies who will have charge of the registration this year to simply accept the statement of the old settlers that they have lived at least forty years in his county, although they would be pleased to jot down the ages of all who are willing to give them.

We will make two lists this year—one of those who have lived in DeKalb County seventy-five (75) years, who will be known as "Pioneers," and the other list will contain the names of those who have lived in the county forty (40) years, and these will be known as "Old Settlers," but the same badge will be given to both classes.

It is planned to give a prize to the man registering who has lived longest in the county and another prize to the woman who has lived longest in the county, and for the purpose of determining the winners of these prizes, it will be necessary to have the dates when these very old pioneers came to the county, or their birth dates if they were born here.

Saturday, October 7th., the last day of the DeKalb County Free Fall Fair, has been designated to honor the Old Settlers of the county and as a "Home-Coming" day for all the people who have ever lived in DeKalb County.

A great parade of agricultural and fraternal floats and all of the live stock on exhibition during the fair will be a special feature of the day, and will be held in the forenoon, likely beginning about 10 o'clock.

Registration of old settlers will begin at 9 o'clock and after Noon there will be music in honor of the occasion, and throughout the day there will be free acts on the court square and on nearby streets, with bands and drum corps galore, and winding up on Saturday evening in a blaze of glory and including the drawing of the Auburn automobile as one of the features of the fair.

Those who were present at the fair and old settlers' meeting last year will need no assurance that they will be well entertained and at no cost whatever unless they care to visit some of the special tent shows.

For the big parade on Saturday prizes will be given for Agricultural floats, $15 for first prize, $10 for second prize and $5 for third prize.

And for fraternal floats, entered by either male or female organizations, and including lodges, patriotic and service organizations, young ladies sororities, church societies, school organizations, etc., from any part of the county, a first prize of $15 will be awarded for the best float, $10 for second prize and $5 for third prize.

Every loyal DeKalb County organization is urged to enter a float in this great parade, for the honor and glory of DeKalb County, if for no other reason.

Please keep in mind that this is a DeKalb County affair and the people of Auburn are the hosts and furnishing free entertainment for everybody.

And the "Home-Coming" feature should be kept in mind—here and then you will have a chance to meet "The Friends Of Auld Lang Syne"—the friends of your youth who have wandered away into distant lands and who are coming back for this day to greet their old friends.

Let us give "the glad hand" to neighbors and friends and make this "Old Settlers" and "Home-Coming" day the very happiest day of the year, a "milestone" along Life's pathway, and a day to be remembered for many years.

As a token of our respect and our high regard for the pioneers who have made this county, it is suggested that the younger generations cheerfully concede the seats on the court house square to the pioneers for this day.

Very kindly,
A. L. KUHLMAN,
President.

WEDDING REVEALED BY AUBURN COUPLE

Miss Julia Duncan and Henry Shook Have Been Married For Over a Year

Cards were mailed on Thursday announcing the marriage of Henry Shook, deputy coroner of DeKalb county and Miss Julia Duncan, of 407 East Seventh St., secretary to H. L. McKenney of the Auburn schools and one of the popular young women of Auburn.

The marriage took place on September 3, 1932, at Richmond, Ind., with the Rev. Frank A. Dressel, pastor of the Lutheran Church of Richmond, as the officiating clergyman. The marriage had been kept secret until the announcements were sent out Thursday.

Mr. Shook is employed as a salesman for the Gerig Furniture Corp. of Auburn. He is a son of Dr. Benjamin O. Shook, county coroner, and wife of Spencerville. He was graduated from the Spencerville high school with the class of 1924 and from the University of Illinois in 1930. Mr. Shook is a member of Delta Chi and of the Masonic fraternity.

Mrs. Shook was graduated from the Auburn high school with the class of 1926 and shortly afterwards assumed her present duties in the office of the superintendent of schools. While in high school she was the star center of the girls basket ball team. She is a member of the Sigma Beta sorority. Mrs. Shook will retain her position as secretary to the superintendent.

Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Shook took an extensive trip to Cincinnati, Ohio and Southern Indiana.

NEWVILLE WIFE GRANTED DIVORCE

Augusta Belts of Newville, was granted a divorce from Orval Belts in the DeKalb circuit court Saturday and her maiden name, Augusta Cole, was restored.

The plaintiff testified that her husband did not work and failed to support her. She stated also that he struck her. They were married September 27, 1929, and separated December 15, 1931.

Attorney H. C. Metzger represented the plaintiff. The defendant did not appear and the state was represented by Prosecuting Attorney R. W. Sharpless.

TO SELECT COUNTY CONTROL COMMITTEE

A letter just received by County Agent Myers from State Headquarters of the Wheat Allotment Act should be of intereat to wheat growers in DeKalb County as it corrects a misunderstanding in regard as to what was meant by the statement "Applications should be in by September 9th." This does not mean that a grower cannot sign after that date. Growers can come in as late as the allotment committee will allow. It was meant by "September 9th" that to vote for County Directors, applications should be in by that time.

All County Control Boards should be elected by September 16th. All township meetings will be held Thursday evening, September 1. There will be one meeting in each township on that date and every wheat grower in that township that has signed an application before the deadline, September 9th will be notified and is urged to attend the meeting and vote for the men that he wants to represent him.

All County Directors will meet in the County Agent's office Friday evening, September 17th and elect the County Control Committee.

Welding, auto repairing, oils and gasoline at Hankey's Garage.

The Ladies Aid Society of the M. P. Church wil meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. George Walter, north of St. Joe. The will be sewing and the ladies are requested to meet at 1 o'clock instead of the usual time. Please bring your thimbles.

Mrs. A. H. Fabianske was in charge of the Sunday evening service at the Lutheran Church. The principal feature was "The Lost Word" from "The Blue Flower" by Henry Van Dyke given in a very impressive and dramatic manner by Mrs. Fabianske. Special music was rendered by a quartette composed of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Staman and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hull with Mrs. Cora Curie as accompanist.

ST. JOE BOY WRITES FROM CALIFORNIA

Floyd Meiser, who has made his home here with his grandmother, Mrs. J. R. Knisely, writes interestingly of camp life in California.

Co. 522 C. C. C.
Big Pine Flats
Fawnskin, Calif., Sept. 2, 1933

To the Editor,
St. Joe News, St. Joe, Ind.

Dear Editor:

"In answer to your request made through my grandmother I am writing to tell some of the conditions in the C. C. C. Camps.

"I was first located at Santa Ana Cone Camp, which is on the bank of the dry Santa Ana River. While there I worked as a carpenter and electrician. After three weeks there the camp was broken up to be transfered to various camps at higher altitudes. All the colored boys were transfered to Santa Ana Cone the weather there was too hot for white boys.

"I was transfered to Big Pine Flats, which is the flat top of a mountain 6,823 feet above sea level and in the heart of a pine forest. It is really a beautiful place here. We have fair weather with a rain about every two or three weeks. The days are warm and the nights are cool. One can really sleep here. The air is rather thin compared to Indiana and we have no noise except that made in camp.

"Our company has mbuilt three roads leading from Big Pine Flats to Fawnskin, Arrowhead Lake and Coxey Ranger Station. We have also constructed two public camp grounds and two water conservation projects.

"The camp at Big Pine Flats consists of 25 tents, one mess hall and kitchen, one shower house, one blacksmith shop, one powder house, and numerous other units to make the camp up to date in every way. The camp is equipped with a fleet of trucks, two large catapillar tractors, one air compressor and all kinds of hand tools. We also have two radios, a piano and a telephone. The only modern convenience we lack is electric lights. The camp has running water throughout and cooking is done on an oil burner.

"We have a base ball team that has won all five games they have played. We also have volley ball teams but have not played an outside game as yet but will have one soon. The first road we built here was all done by pick and shovel but the other two we did mostly by machinery, that is by a bulldozer and grader.

"The boys who do not sign up for six more months will be sent home the last of September or the 20th of October. That is according to an official message received by the Major yesterday. The food at the camp is very good but some of the fellows can always find something to "pick" about.

"Trusting you will be able to use this letter in The Newa, I remain,

Yours truly,
Floyd Meiser.

If its news, give it to us.

George Strong is preparing to build a new barn 40x64. Orla Baker and Ford Jackson have the contract.

TITHE A RELIC OF OTHER DAYS

But Is Recognized as Property by English Law.

The recent revolt of 10,000 farmers in southern England to resist the payment of tithes directs attention to this form of taxation, which has from time to time been the cause of considerable agitation in that country. More than a year ago reports came from a Sussex town to the effect that angry farmers had attacked a bailiff who attempted to seize sheep belonging to a neighbor who had failed to meet his tithe payments due the Church of England. In the present situation, auctioneers who have tried to sell the property of farmers who owe tithes have met with as little success as the auctioneers in foreclosure sales in parts of our own Mid-West.

Tithe payments are a relic of ancient days, when persons were called upon to pay one-tenth of the produce of all land and labor to the support of the church. They were stabilized in England in 1925 by an act of parliament, which laid down a fixed schedule of payments. Since then, however, the prices of live stock and agricultural produce have dropped by about 50 per cent.

The tithe probably originated in a tribute levied by a conqueror or ruler upon his subjects, and perhaps the custom of dedicating a tenth of the spoils of war to the gods led to the religious extension of the term.

Before the Eighth century payment of tithes was enjoined by ecclesiastical writers and church councils, but the earliest authentic example of a law of the state enforcing payment is probably that in the Capitularies of Charlemagne.

In England the earliest example of legal recognition of tithes is believed to be a decree of a synod in 786. The church received tithes in the Middle Ages, but trouble arose under the reign of Henry VIII. When this monarch raided the monasteries he transferred their tithe privileges to his friends. The tithe is property, and if the government abolished it or even amended it in principle, it is argued, it would then have to reform all property laws. So the tithe question is one of parliament's knottiest problems.

As to High-Style Fall Millinery

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT'S time for a new hat—something that will supply a note of autumn chic to one's midseason costumes. Well, if you are asking it's either velvet or satin for your "first" chapeau. That is if you do not choose one of the new stitched wool crepes or a wide-brimmed felt.

Perhaps the way the new crowns have of maneuvering into high peaks is the most outstanding gesture of smartest autumn headgear. Some of the toques and turbans have the funniest little topknot arrangements fancy can picture.

The draped velvet toque sketched to the left at the top in the picture illustrates the new spiral peaked movement perfectly. With a bright little feather thrust through its topmost point this chic fall model is about as pert and gay as the milliner's magic touch can make it.

From high peaks to low back-to-front gliding lines is a far cry, but it goes to show how very versatile are the incoming hat fashions.

The little boat-shaped hat sketched to the right at the top reveals a disposition on the part of designers to create oblong silhouettes with shallow crowns. They make it a point to stress interesting eyeline effects as they dip these boatlike models over the brow. Note the cluster of wee ostrich tips. Which is just one way of telling you of the importance of feather trims for fall and winter. Not only are hats trimmed with all sorts of sprightly quills and graceful ostrich, but feathers adorn the costume throughout, little capelets and neckwear items made of them being especially good this season.

Especially noteworthy is the cunning hat with a veil which is sketched in the center. The distinctive thing about it is that it follows along Chinese lines. It belongs to the peaked-crown class as you see. There is another type hat which is very similar to the Chinese model as shown here. We refer to the "pill-box" turbans which certainly look the part—little flat round affairs just the shape of a pill-box. You have to be young and good looking and be a past master in the art of knowing how to wear hats to "carry" this style effectively. They demand a little veil to soften their lines.

The three artist-sketches below also bespeak important fashion trends. To the left a voguish "set" is illustrated, for you must know that hat-and-cape ensembles are going to be "all the style" during the coming months. The hat is draped, emphasizing a tendency which is widely followed in the new showings. That is the drape mounts high at the back descending to a smartly-posed eyebrow effect. The little sailor in the center is made entirely of pasted feathers, which again is a reminder of the tremendous vogue promised for all sorts of feathery fashions. The almond or boat-shaped hat to the right again emphasizes the smartness of flat elongated silhouettes. Then too this model is made of a very new stitched woolen fabric which has a slightly fuzzy surface just the thing for immediate wear.

And now about the trio of models which were photographed and here reproduced in order to illustrate "last word" millinery fashions. Black satin elaborately worked with black rat-tail braid describes the charming toque at the center top. Wide-brimmed cape lines are very much in the style picture for fall. The one to the left is stitche' black satin with white satin ribbon. The huge capeline to the right is of black velvet and it has a gay beaded band.

GRAY SUEDE SHOES FOR AUTUMN WEAR

Rivaling the conventional browns and blacks are the new gray suede or kid oxfords and sandals for wear with early fall clothes.

Much gray is promised in street and sportswear this season, and gray accessories promise to be more popular than ever. Gray shoes have already made their appearance with dark blue or black street frocks, and light-colored sports clothes this summer.

The new shades for fall are varied. There is gun gray, flint, and brownish taupe which blends with many shades. Gray shoes will be worn with dark coats trimmed with gray fur, and they also look smart with black, navy, and certain shades of brown.

Hosiery with a slightly gray cast is being shown to take the place of the clear beige and sun-tan shades of the summer. Taupe, which may be worn with black or brown, and beige with a gray rather than a yellow cast, are popular colors. These are more attractive than hosiery in a pure gray shade.

Capes and Fur Waistcoats in Worth's Fall Showing

Hedgehog velvet, a new fabric—black velvet interwoven with white hair—was introduced by the famous house of Worth at its fall and winter fashion show.

Fur waistcoats under velvet quilted satin suits also were displayed.

Favorite furs were Alaskan seal, salongor, wolf, black fox and panther.

Flowered petticoats were shown for evening. Bows were seen at belt, neck and shoulder. Short removable capes were offered to cover bare backs.

Gowns were multicolored, with shoes to match. Gloves were worn at elbow or shoulder length.

Plush Revived

Plush, favorite of family album days, is in fall fashion's album. In its modern version it has a long and sometimes even shaggy pile.

LET'S CROCHET

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Even if you have never crocheted before when you see such clever costume accessories done in crochet as those shown in this picture, you will be wanting to acquire the art. An easy matter it would be, for this attractive and novel accessory group consisting of surplice revers drawn about the waist with a wide belt, a cunning beret and flared cuffs on the gloves is done in the simplest sort of stitch. The entire combination is crocheted of mercerized crochet cotton which is to be had in a range of superb fall colorings. These crochet details are wonderfully effective on the heavy crash linen frocks the vogue for which is continuing on into the autumn days.

A Word for Big Hats

Don't neglect the new big hats. They will be worn for everything from sports to informal evening occasions.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

SPELLING

EVERY term a certain number of children fail in spelling. Usually children have little difficulty with this subject, so when the occasional child fails, he gets little sympathy.

"What? A low mark in spelling? Now, there's no excuse for that. You get a high mark in arithmetic and that is hard for anybody, but you get a low mark in spelling when all you have to do is study. Now you just go and get that book and I'll hear you spell every word in it."

That is exactly the way "NOT" to teach spelling. Spelling is a written exercise.

What we need spelling for is to be able to write our communications so some one can read and understand them. That means we have to spell and write accurately. Most of us do. What's the matter with the few who don't?

Sometimes it is poor vision. Sometimes it is defective hearing. Sometimes it is a lack of co-ordination between nerves and muscles that makes accurate writing difficult and poor spelling easy. Sometimes it is a lack in the memory. You know we have different departments of memory, and if the department that deals with remembering symbols or sounds is not functioning, we don't spell. Not ever. Usually the school psychologists can give the reason for the difficulty. Often it is nothing more serious than the use of the wrong methods.

You can't teach a child to spell accurately by dictating lists of words to him and listening while he spells them aloud. He may spell every one of them correctly and the next day, when he has to write them in class, he gets them wrong 90 per cent. You wouldn't expect him to be able to make a cake on demand merely because he could recite the recipe perfectly, would you?

Let the slow speller write each word slowly and say each letter aloud as he makes it. Let him write each word twice, no more. Give him a few words and let them be related either in sound or in content. Then turn over the paper and dictate them and let him write them. Correct them and let him write those he missed just once and repeat each letter aloud as he makes it. If he doesn't improve in spelling by this method, take him to the eye man. If he can't find the trouble, go to the ear man. If he fails, try the psychologist.

Don't make him write words more than three times. Twice is plenty. Don't ask him to spell orally and expect him to write correctly. Don't give him too many words at one time. Few children fail in spelling if they get half a chance. When they do, there's a good reason.

THE IDEALISTS

ONCE in a lifetime each one of us is an idealist. Few come through in the vision. Yet that period of idealism is precious and the adolescents who express it must be encouraged to hold on and fight and win. Adult disillusionment ought not to extend to blighting youthful idealism and enthusiasm.

It is always stimulating to an adult to hear a youthful crusader talking. He sits back, a smile in his eyes, nods his head and says, "Yes, yes. Once I felt like that." That crusading youth turns to him and asks in surprise, "Aren't you that way now?" So simple, so clear, does the vision strike upon the mind of youth.

What will the old man, the master, say? Is he that way now? The old fire stirs. Maybe he is. At least he hopes so, and certainly he hopes that his fiery one, this strong spirit untouched by the drabness, the sordidness of life, unwearied by any struggle, touched by a vision of hope and beauty may succeed where he failed. If he is really an old master, he says so. Only the shoddy failures try to drown the fires of youth.

It seems to me that we have been drowning idealism in our Youth rather than fanning it into flame. "They are too young to know. They would misunderstand." What is it they would misunderstand? Our failing? Our feebleness? Our compromises with the Vision? It seems that way to me.

And when Youth breaks into flame and threatens the security and peace of our snuggeries, how fast we are to squelch him.

We will have to be more careful of our Youth. We need its idealism and its crusading spirit. We need to set the standards higher and train our Youth to regard them with respectful and admiring eyes. We will have to shape our course a bit more according to the vision that once animated our souls so that when Youth asks, "Are you not that way now?" we can say with some vestige of truth and courage, "Yes. Still that way and ready to lend you a hand toward keeping you that way."

Youth loves truth. Youth loves candor, fair play, good sportsmanship. Youth regards honor and knows loyalty. Youth has a vision, an ideal and rushes gallantly to its salvation. Are we that way? Teacher, preacher, father, mother, old master, are you that way? Youth calls to you for the good word. Are you ready?

HE'D LOST MILLIONS

The girl was very rich, and he was just a poor young man. She liked him, but that was all, and he was well aware of the fact. One evening he grew somewhat tender and at last he said: "You are rich, aren't you, Ethel?"

"Yes. Dick. Dad says I'm worth two million dollars, if things turn out as it now looks."

"Will you marry me, Ethel?" he asked.

"Oh, no, Dick, I couldn't do that," she replied.

"I knew you wouldn't."

"Then why did you ask me?"

"I just wanted to be able to say that I had lost two million dollars."

But Just Where?

The class had been instructed to write an essay on winter. Before they began, the teacher gave them a few hints, and among other things he suggested that they might introduce a short paragraph on migration.

One child's attempt read as follows. "In winter it is very cold. Many old people die in winter and many birds also go to a warmer climate."

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

Washington.—The farm aid program with respect to wheat now has entered its second phase. It is facing its real test at this time, just as the cotton program faced a real test when the farmers were asked to plow under their growing crop, which has succeeded insofar as gaining the support of the cotton planters is concerned. Secretary Wallace is asking the wheat growers to reduce their acreage for next year's crop, 15 per cent below their average in recent years. It is now distinctly up to them, therefore, if they want to go on through with the allotment plan for which there has been much agitation in congress during the last six or eight years. Contracts are being sent around for the farmers to sign and agree to go through with the plan to boost the price of wheat by controlling the production.

Farm Aid Faces Test

Accompanying this development in our strictly nationalistic program, however, is another of international character. I refer to the agreements recently reached at London whereby a step has been taken to deal with the wheat problem by concert of nations. It can have far more influence than can our program at home if it succeeds, but Washington observers seem to have their fingers crossed until they see some movements abroad indicative of complete sincerity on the part of some of the nations that have signed the London agreement.

The conference at London placed several significant elements into written form. A general understanding was worked out—and signed—that:

The major wheat importing and exporting countries of the world face the facts of the world wheat problem and agree on a program of action to seek to correct them.

The exporting nations agree to control exports and to adjust production so as to help eliminate the excessive carryovers of wheat.

The wheat importing countries agree to cease further efforts to expand production within their own countries and agree to a policy of gradually removing tariffs and trade barriers as world wheat prices rise.

The countries participating in the conference will establish a joint committee to watch the working out of the plan in its various steps. This committee will meet from time to time and will be responsible for seeing that additional steps are properly taken.

So we have an agreement among all of the nations on a start, and we have our own program well under way. The international understanding is long on promises, and to my way of thinking will be a long while in fulfillment. Our own program, whatever its merit be, is proceeding along quite different and quite definite lines and if the theory be right is dependent for its success upon those who grow the wheat and not upon whims of international politicians and jealousies between nations.

There are so many "ifs" in the international agreement which, after all, hinges upon what the nations themselves do. If all of the signatory nations perform and try to adjust production downward, such as the United States has started to do, and remove tariffs and quotas and other trade barriers, then it is considered as possible that something may come of the conference understanding. But those whom I mentioned as having their fingers crossed are asking whether, for instance, Australia, or the Argentine or Canada, will enforce production control. And, if they don't, then what? Also, what about the situation if Italy, which now has a tariff of $1.07 (gold) on imported wheat, doesn't cut off some of that amount? Statesmen may sit in a conference and fix things up in a big way, and later their governments have a way of forgetting just what the agreements were, or else find loopholes in them.

Many "Ifs in Pact

I had a letter from one of my readers in central Kansas, asking whether I thought the London agreement would have any effect on the wheat situation this year. My reply was that it would have none and could have none, and I might have added the further thought of my own that it probably never will have much effect, because it is unlikely there will be the necessary concessions by all concerned. If all of the participating nations entered into an international arrangement wholeheartedly, wheat production and wheat prices could be stabilized. There remains, however, that ever recurring "if."

To get back to the domestic plan: Secretary Wallace's decision to cut the acreage 15 per cent next year brings up several questions. Fifteen per cent of what, for example? Let me quote George Farrell, of the agricultural adjustment administration, so there can be a definite statement:

"In many western counties, where drought has prevailed during the last three years, three-year averages are not representative of farmers' production. These counties have favored using county average yields and individual farmers' acreages as the basis for farm allotments. Other growers, however, whose yields are higher than the average and who are able to attest their production, feel that the county average plan discriminates against them.

"To meet this situation, we have presented to wheat growers a combination plan which is expected to insure determination of fair allotments to all farmers.

"The combination plan provides that in each county, where the combination plan is used, the total production of farmers who submit authentic records with their applications for allotments, will be subtracted from the total production of the county as shown on the official figures in the department of agriculture. Allotments for farmers who do not have proved records will be calculated on the basis of the average yield for the county, less the proved production."

The net result of this all is that farmers can claim their benefit payments on the basis of actual production on their individual farms for the last three, four and five years, if they are able to supply records showing what that production was. This can be done even if the county committee decides to use average county yields and the average acreages of growers as the basis upon which the 15 per cent reduction is to be calculated.

Benefit Payments

This arrangement applies only to the 1934 crop. There may be more or less than the 15 per cent reduction ordered in the fall of 1934 which will affect the 1935 crop.

On the basis of a theoretically complete sign-up of the farmers and a 15 per cent reduction, there would be approximately 9,600,000 acres now in wheat that would not be planted for harvest next summer. On the same theoretical base of average production, the reduction in wheat grown would be about 124,000,000 bushels.

With wheat prices about where they are now, the income from the current wheat crop is calculated at about $325,000,000, which is something of a gain over the 1932 return on wheat, which has been figured at $177,000,000. But if the wheat reduction program goes over, the farmers this fall will receive something in addition to the prices for this year's crop. They are due to receive cash from the processing tax. The Department of Agriculture has figured the tax will yield something like $120,000,000, and so the total return this year may be as large as $450,000,000.

Some weeks ago, I reported in these columns that the patronage dam had broken and that plum picking for office holders was going on full speed ahead. That was true. It has gone out full speed ahead, but if one may judge from the enormous amount of grumbling, the patronage flood has not gone in that direction that old line Democrats, or many of them, would like to have it go. Indeed, President Roosevelt's appointments have not been pleasing to the bulk of his loyal supporters.

I can report now that things have come to such a pass that between 26 and 30—no one will say just how many—senators have signed a petition asking Mr. Roosevelt to be a little more regular about his appointments. It is not certain that the petition, one of these round robin affairs, ever was sent to the White House, nor is it certain it ever will go to the President if it has not been given to him yet. Nevertheless, it is significant. It shows the feeling.

The truth about the matter is that some old line Democrats, men whose word has been Democratic law for years, are growing nervous over the potentialities in the Roosevelt course. Deep down in their souls, they fear that Mr. Roosevelt is engaged in building up a "Roosevelt party" as distinguished from the Democratic party. They point out that he has played ball with the Norris-LaFollette-Johnson wing of the Republicans, that he has named such men as Secretary Woodin, to the treasury, after Mr. Woodin has spent years in the Republican fold, and Secretary Ickes to the Department of the Interior, after Mr. Ickes had attained absolutely no prominence at all in any partisan way except as a Progressive Republican, and that he has disregarded party recommendations in dozens of cases only to pick men and women who might just as easily be called Republicans as Democrats.

Old Liners Worried

The depression conditions hit the ice cream business last year, but the consumption of butter and evaporated milk moved higher according to final figures for 1932 that have just been compiled by the Department of Agriculture. It was quite natural, the experts told me, that there should have been a falling off of ice cream, because a good many thousands of people just did not have the money to buy it. If they had money, they bought the usual amount of butter and evaporated milk, along with the regular supply of milk, but ice cream was in the luxury class. At least, that is the explanation given for the decline in the manufacture of ice cream from 206,239,000 gallons in 1931 to 160,138,000 gallons in 1932.

WORDS OF LOVE COME EASY NOW

Modern Youth Writes Its Own Ardent Missives.

It is hardly surprising that General Pershing's men fighting in France should have used letters that were not strictly of their own composition. That is what the fathers of many of them had done in their own youth.

In the year 1880 there was copyrighted in the United States a large volume entitled "Gaskell's Compendium of Forms." It was just that, aiming to tell anybody how to do anything that could be put on paper. A section of the work is devoted to letters of love and courtship. The forms presented would scarcely be called ardent 'y the sob-sister of today assigned to cover divorce proceedings. "Dear Sir" is frequently used in the salutation of a love letter from a lady. A gentleman who declares his love begins right off with "Miss Carrie White." There is not even "To" or "For" in front of the "Miss."

There comes to mind a scene in the back room of a tavern in a college town. At the table is seated a callow freshman, who has decided that the light of his young life must be addressed in verse. Opposite him is an upper class editor of the college magazine. He is reputed to be able to find words that rhyme. For a price fixed at three mugs of ale he turns out a poem. The freshman thrills at being a party to a literary courtship.

Those days are vanishing. Boys and girls are not as far removed from one another as they used to be. And parents, who have found themselves obliged to give in on "dates"—single, double and blind, are much relieved when their offspring devote hours to writing letters. To be sure, the stamps cost something, but the expense is trifling when compared with some of the outlays that youth expects.

Those who rummage in the attics 50 years from now will find love letters that are really worthy of the name. Every postman lugs them daily in his pack. The young people have much to talk over and the superior training given by the modern school encourages real self-expression.—Boston Globe.

POINTED QUESTION

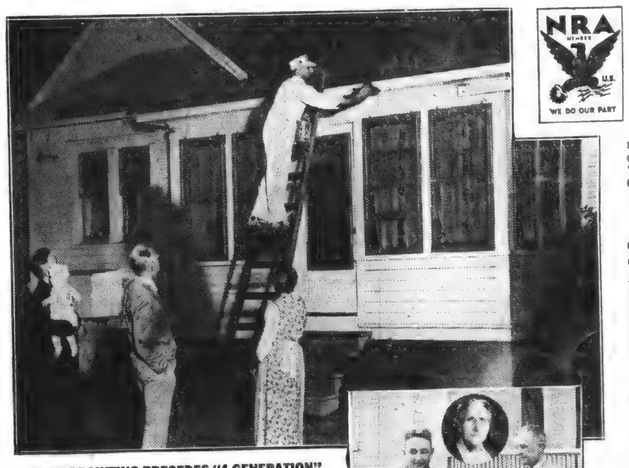
A young mother was suffering with a cold and fearing that little Bobby might catch it, said:

"Don't hug me, Bobby; you might catch my cold."

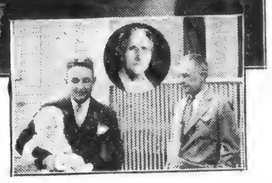
The little fellow was thoughtful a few minutes and replied, "Who did you hug, mother?"—Exchange.

PAINTING REVIVAL GRIPS NATION!

"SHERWIN-WILLIAMS FOR ME" IS SLOGAN



NEWS PHOTO FLASHES FROM EVERY WALK OF LIFE BRISTLE WITH INTEREST. Unpainted—neglected for years—America has finally awakened to the need of paint. In every section of the country—in every walk of life—painting is the order of this new day. And Sherwin-Williams Paints, famous for quality and low cost, lead the way in the nation's biggest painting revival. Renoviz—protect—save—with Sherwin-Williams quality paint this Fall. Don't let Winter rot and rust do further damage to unprotected wood and metal. See your local Sherwin-Williams "Paint Headquarters" at once. Write for a free copy of the new S-W "Home Decorator." The Sherwin-Williams Co., 605 Canal Road, Cleveland, Ohio.



NIGHT PAINTING PRECEDES "4 GENERATION" PARTY. Essexville, Mich. (R. R. No. 1)—With the aid of motor car headlights, painter works far into night to finish painting the "wee bit hoose" of Mrs. A. MacDonald, 87 years of age, in time for the gathering of the clan. The occasion is Grandma MacDonald's birthday party for her youngest great granddaughter—6 months old. Four generations of MacDonalds were represented. Sherwin-Williams Paint, the preferred brand of the MacDonalds for many years, was used on this job.

COW CALLER SOUCIE CATCHES "FEVER." Manteno, Ill.—Celebrities in all walks of life are catching the painting fever. Mr. Treffle Soucie, 75 years old, seven times a champion cow caller, still brings 'em in from half a mile away—without a megaphone. He's painting his barn with S-W Commonwealth Barn Red—a "quality" champion, too.

"SHERWIN-WILLIAMS FOR ME!" Indianapolis, Ind.—A typical scene in leading department and Sherwin-Williams dealer stores everywhere as "back-to-the-paint-brush" movement gains speed.

NEW YORK ARCHITECT DOES MASTERPIECE IN PAINT. New York City, N. Y.—Mr. Perry M. Duncan, winner of the coveted Winchester Fellowship at Yale University, has produced exquisite room effects in his beautiful new Bronxville home with Sherwin-Williams quality paints. Mr. Duncan says "I found the Sherwin-Williams book 'The Home Decorator' a valuable source for suggestions in planning exteriors and interiors of homes."

TINIEST MAN GETS HUGE OFFER! Chicago, Ill.—Mr. Elmer St. Aubin, world's smallest man, contemplates an offer of $500 to paint huge Sherwin-Williams spectacular sign with S-W Kem Finishes. This mammoth sign faces "A Century of Progress" and the Illinois Central Railway right-of-way, at 24th St. and the Outer Drive, Chicago. SEPTEMBER

The waving goldenrod, the colorful aster, the recurring tinkle of the school bell—the hurried packing of trunks for the lad and lassie off to college—the month of completions and new beginnings, such is the month of September. Harvest in the making and the winter preparations are the accompaniments of this month. What have we failed to do this past summer that we should have done, and what must we set our hands to do now, that will lighten the load during the coming colder months.

In many cases incomes have been curtailed necessitating a change of plans for the winter. In many homes plans are being laid to revive some of the old manual arts from an economic necessity and as an outlet for aesthetics. Quilts and comforts will be designed, the knitting needles polished and here and there the wheel anl loom will be active. City dwellers knowing little of the joy of hand creation will still toil and struggle, striving for supremacy where supremacy will mean the least, living in a world close to the stark realities but blinded to the most of it.

STAY ON THE FARM

W. P. McGuire, editor of the Southside Virginia News, Petersburg, Virginia, has a proposal that deserves wide attention. It is simple and it is important,. And the crux of it is: Why not keep farm boys on farms?

In pursuing his proposal, he asks 27 pregnant questions concerning the trend of young men away from the farm and possible ways of reversing its direction. It is certainly abvious that boys who have been reared on farms and have been intimately associated with the craft of agriculture since infancy, are best equipped to make the farmers of tomorrow. And it is equally true that these boys have been marching to the cities in armies, for a great many years, impelled by the hope of making their fortune in a life of which they know little or nothing.

In the years following the war, this away-from-the-farm drift added hundreds of thousands of boys to the urban population. And when the depression came, it was an important factor in causing the worst unemployment situation in our history. Most of the boys had never learned any trade especially well—they took any old job they could find, and it was usually of a sort requiring little skill or no training or aptitude. They were the first to be let out when production slowed. They are likely to be the last taken back.

We have appropriated millions for agricultural relief and created great federal organizations to administer it. Certainly it would be worthwhile, as Editor McGuire says, to go to the root of the farm problem and give part of the money and effort to evolving a plan to enable young men to stay on the farm and become self-supporting citizens. Doing this would prevent overpopulation of urban centers, tend to mitigate employment problems and, as Mr. McGuire says, fits in perfectly with the Administration's aim to provide a solid economic foundation for our country.

VOL. XLVII — ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 21, 1933 — NUMBER 38

B. & O. PAYMENT TO AID DEKALB COUNTY

Railroad Sends Check for Spring Installment of Taxes and Penalty of $712.96

The financial stringency of several taxing units of DeKalb county will be somewhat relieved by the payment of the spring installment of taxes by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad.

Those to especially benefit will be Garrett city and schools, Keyser, Jackson, Concord and Newville townships, but Union and Spencer townships, Altona and St. Joe will also get a proportionate share. The amount of the tax paid was $23,765.45, plus $712.96 penalty.

Had the tax been paid during the spring taxpaying period it would have been distributed to the taxing units in June. Now, however, it is not scheduled for distribution until December. Under the circumstances, it is likely that most of the units will call upon the county treasury for advance payments.

In considering the budgets of the taxing units, the county tax adjustment board, which began its session at the court house Monday, will take into account the money made available to the various units by the Baltimore & Ohio payment and it will probably be a factor in bringing about some reduction in levies. The officials of the units were faced with an unexpected shortage in their funds by the non-payment by the railroad company and had to consider this in making their levies for 1934.

The adjustment board organized by selecting John Zimmerman of Auburn, as chairman. The study of budgets started at once, but it was not until afternoon that hearings of local taxing officials was begun. The first to appear was Sherman Meek, trustee of Newville township. It was decided to confer with all the township trustees first and then to talk with the city, town and school officials.

Mr. Zimmerman had prepared a table showing the amount expected to be received by each taxing unit from the state from the proceeds of the gross income, excise and intangibles taxes. These figures were not all available to the officials when they prepared their budgets and it is probable that some reductions in levies will follow.

BOWMAN BARN BURNS

The long wished for showers arrived several times during the past week, practically each day brought forth a lovely shower. On Saturday night more force accompanied the rain, lightning and thunder galore.

The Frank Bowman barn east of town, or better known as the Frank Scholes farm, was struck by lightning early in the evening, and was completely destroyed.

Several tons of hay, farm machinery belonging to O. E. Inlow and Paul Carpenter were burned including a loader, rake, corn planter, cultivator, besides other small things.

No help was called as the barn was on fire completely soon after the crash.

Transformers were burned out in all directions from St. Joe.

Cattle Knocked Down

Seventeen head of Jersey cattle at the George Hart farm were knocked down, when an electric current followed the milking line into his barn. The cattle were in the stanchions eating, and were completely knocked down by the shock. Some laid for an hour before getting up. They all seem to be free from any serious effects.

WHEAT GROWERS ATTENTION

Those of Concord Township who have not signed the farm allotment wheat contract but who may wish to do so will come to the residence of Hary Kees, Saturday evening, September 23, when they may sign the necessary agreement. This is the final appeal.

STEREOPTICON SLIDE PROGRAM

The Spencerville Methodist Church will begin a series of novel Sunday evening services next Sunday night with the use of Stereopticon Slides.

These slides are made under the auspices of the Central office of the Methodist Church and are made available to local churches anywhere.

Next Sunday's slides deal with the Pioneer Days of our country and illustrate the bravery and courage of the men who were determined that religion must have a high place in the development of our country. The tale of the carrying forward of the Gospel of Christ is indeed a thrilling one. Rev. Howard Brown will carry on a series of running comments as the slides are shown.

780 scholars are enrolled in the Hicksville school of which number 207 are in high school.

Mrs. Cecil Metcalf, of Auburn, spent all day Friday in the Marie Goldsmith home, enjoying a visit.

Mrs. Margaret Hull left Friday for her home in Ohio, expecting to return here later this fall to spend the winter with J. C. Hull and wife.

The clam digging season being over Walter Gee and Walter Cook pulled tent last week and are at home. The boys report quite a profitable season.

William H. Randall Suddenly Passes Away Sunday Morning

Without Warning-Joking with Wife-Had Come Down Stairs Feeling As Usual

Funeral Services Tuesday Afternoon

At 5:40 o'clock in the morning Sunday, September 17, 1933, Almighty God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to call to his eternal rest William Henry Randall, age 64 years, 11 months and 1 day, second son of Milton and Hannah Randall, born October 16, 1868, two miles west of Butler. His early life was spent at Waterloo.

On June 23, 1892 he was united in marriage to Sarah Jane Pinchon to which three children were born.

November 1, 1898 he moved to St. Joe, where he engaged in tubular well work, which work he followed throughout his life.

In 1900 he professed faith in his Redeemer and affiliated with St. Mark's Lutheran Church, being a faithful member throughout the remainder of his life.

His life was an open book whose pages were unsoiled by unchristian or unsympathetic acts. His family has lost a loving, thoughtful and self-sacrificing husband and father. The community has lost a citizen and a friend who was ever ready and willing to work for the welfare and betterment of mankind.

He was preceded in death by a son and daughter, who died in infancy, father, mother, three brothers, two sisters and one grandson. He leaves to mourn, his wife, Sarah Jane, one son, Harry, E. and his wife, Helen, one granddaughter, Marion, of Chicago and two grandsons, Wiliam and Waldo, of Hicksville, Ohio, two brothers, Frank, of Waterloo and Fred, of Helmer, three sisters, Mrs. Mary Richmondt, of Pittsburgh, Pa., Mrs. Susie Myrtle, of Berwyn, Ilinois, and Mrs. Beulah Beard, of Waterloo, Indiana, and a host of other relatives and friends.

The funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Lutheran Church with Rev. A. H. Fabianske, officiating. Burial in Riverside Cemetery. Mrs. E. R. Kinsey and Son in charge.

OLDEST PIONEER TO BE GIVEN PRIZE

Auburn, Ind., Sept. 16, 1933.

Dear Mr. Editor:—

I have just selected the prizes which are to be given to the oldest pioneers — longest residents of DeKalb County—who register at the Old Settlers' meeting in Auburn, on Saturday, October 7th.

The pioneer man who has lived longest in DeKalb County and who registers, with the year of his coming to the county, and if possible the definite date, will be presented with a fine lounging sweater coat, and the pioneer lady who has lived longest in the county will be presented with a beautiful leather hand bag, with the compliments of the merchants of Auburn and the congratulations of the Old Settlers' Association.

And the very old pioneers especially should be sure to give dates of their coming to the county, so the ladies in charge of the registration can determine who are entitled to the prizes. Winners will be determined not before 2 o'clock P. M. and possibly as late as 2:30 P. M. If several came during the same year, it will likely require month and day to determine the winners.

Very truly,
A. L. KUHLMAN,
President.

WHEAT ALLOTMENT COMMITTEE FORMED

Hary Shull, of Near Auburn, Elected President at Meeting Friday Night

Harry M. Shull, of Union township, was elected president of the DeKalb County Wheat Allotment committee at a meeting of township directors Friday night in the office of the county agent in Auburn. All of the fifteen townships in the county were represented.

Harry Kees, of St. Joe, was named vice president; Harold Wise, of Keyser township, secretary, and Lester Casebeer, of Stafford township, treasurer. Mr. Shull, Clyde Hart, of Spencer-township and Arthur Loutzenhouser, of Franklin township, were selected as the county board of control.

Members of the board of directors are Mr. Shull, James Fusselman of Grant township; Forrest Hixon of Butler township; Harold Wise of Keyser township; Ora Norris of Richland township; Orlo Deetz of Fairfield township; Arthur Loutzenheiser of Franklin township; C. H. Hinkle of Troy township; Lester Casebeer of Stafford township; Darrell Carpenter of Wilmington township; Jesse Hetrick of Jackson township; Harry Kees of Concord township; Clyde Hart of Spencer township; Mark Murphy of Newville township, and William Brecbill of Smithfield township.

Each member of the county board of directors is the chairman of his township committee. The county committee will meet on September 25 to start the work of reviewing the applications sent in from each township. Thus far about 437 farmers have signed applications for the reduction of wheat acerage in DeKalb county.

Members of township committees are as follows:

Butler—Forest A. Hixon, Garrett, chairman, Cleo Houser, La-Otto and Manford Ober, Garrett.

Keyser—Harold Wise, Auburn, chairman, James Rugman, Auburn and AlbertTrovinger, Auburn.

FARMING THE FARMER

As far back as old timers can remember, selfishly inclined promoters have attempted to use the adversities of farmers as a stepping stone to attain riches. Of course, not all who display an interest in the farmer are prompted in their actions by self-interest. Some have a genuine desire to be of assistance, although most outsiders may probably expect to make something out of what they do.

One type of farmer aid has been to organize marketing associations. In many cases a substantial part of the membership fees required for entrance into such groups has gone to the organizers. High pressure oratory has been used as the motive power.

Much has been acomplished among farmers through co-operative effort, but when organizations have been formed under emotional influences, they have quite generally not "taken" from a permanent standpoint. Usually members have drifted away after it became apparent that the golden promises held out to them were not going to be fulfilled. Promoters have for a long time felt that some influence was needed to hold members and make them "stay put" after they have joined. It has been realized that farmers by the very nature of their business are for the most part independent thinkers. By practice they are individualists, accustomed to looking out for their own. In a large measure they are not co-operative-minded.

In the Hoover administration an attempt was made to aid the cause of co-operative marketing through the half billion dollar revolving fund provided in the Farm Board law. The intentions were good, the government no doubt wishing to be of genuine assistance to farmers. Yet this huge fund provided the incentive for promoters, both good and bad, to get into action.

During that administration, organization effort reached its zenith, and it was expected that the ability of the associations to borrow government money would help to hold the loyalty of the members. But the plan was not successful. The revolving fund was largely lost, and to a considerable extent association memberships disintegrated. While the law itself was backed by good intentions, selfish people outside of the administration and not under the control of the government tried to make money out of the plan.

Now we have a new administration, together with a new farm program, and it would not be strange if the same old crop promoters, not directly attached to farming or distribution, should pop up again with redoubled effort. It even appears that many otherwise well meaning people believe that farmers should be made to do things that they are not willing to do, that strong pressure should be applied to force all farmers into a unionized plan of operation by completely stifling independent methods used in the past.

Under the new plan bonuses are being given in return for acerage reduction and many other types of farmer aid are being brought into practice, the farmers being asked to agree to certain things in return for the arvantages they are receiving. The intention of the government has not been, of course, to put the selfish promoter in the saddle, but the high pressure boys rarely need a suggestion. They stand ever ready to spill the pretty phrases. They will not be living up to their past records if they now fail to get busy.

No doubt they will soon be telling the growers that it is the wish of the administration that all farmers join up, get together, and thus place themselves in a position to gain all of the advantages that the new order affords. Of course, they will also explain that co-operative effort means an outlay of money and that each individual farmer member must contribute his part in the shape of membership dues and other fees And there will be no way for the government to stop this sort of thing.

Of course, there wil be good organizers and bad organizers, and sometimes it may be difficult to distinguish between the two. Some will apply the steam of emotion, in spite of the fact that such influences rarely ever lead to permanent results, although quite effective in extracting a few dollars. Spellbinding pleas heretofore have done more to disgust farmers than anything else. Because of this promotion oratory it is fair to say that a substantial percentage of American farmers today believe that there is no merit in co-operative associations except for those who organize them. It is too bad that co-operation has been so greatly discredited by past methods. Many co-operatives have been very successful and have grown into important institutions. A majority, however, have fallen by the wayside because they were over-sold at the beginning. The vital thing is to keep the farmer sold by showing him continuous results. He cannot be held under pressure or force, even under the influence of "night riders." The average farmer is courageous and unafraid. Country people are accustomed to doing things their own way.

Even if the government consented to pay memberships in associations, thus placing professional organizers on "easy street," and even though each farmer member in an association were paid for joining, still memberships would not hold if satisfactory results were not forthcoming.

However, we are soon likely to see a campaign of organization work the like of which history has heretofore not recorded.

In The Pathfinder of recent date, Postmaster General Farley "predicts that liquor taxes (after repeal) alone will add from $800,000,000 to one billion dollars to government receipts a year."

This might appear, from a financial standpoint alone, as most desirable, until we stop to reflect from what source this revenue comes.

In the good (?) old pre-Volstead days, when workmen's wives met their husbands at the factory gate on pay day, in order that they get a portion of the earnings, before the corner saloon got it all, we see where the better part of the revenue comes from. The saloon has been extolled as the "poor man's club" by some; and, in a certain sense it is true. It was the means of clubbing out of its victims, all sense of respectability. When we consider the financial plight of the nation, this thing of sandbagging the workman, who, by far and large, constitutes the largest patronizing class of this nefarious institution, we fail to see any wisdom on the part of our solons who advocate the principle of robbing Peter in order to pay Paul.

Fred Donley of Coldwater, appeared in DeKalb circuit court, before Judge Endicott on charge of failing to pay child support. After hearing the evidence amount of payment was reduced to $6 per week, with a sentence of 1 to 7 years in Michigan City, suspended.

Albert Neuenschwander has sued Jay A. and Gladys Penland and Wm. Olinger in the DeKalb circuit court on a note dated December 17, 1931, and payable in sixty days on which there is a balance of $45. The demand is for $80. C. E. McClintock is the plaintiff's attorney.

Funeral services for William Pence, who died Sunday morning at 2 o'clock, at his home 1½ miles north of Concord, were held from the late home Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. O. B. Noren, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Auburn, officiated and burial was made at Fort Wayne. The deceased, 66 years of age, had been sick for three weeks since being stricken with paralysis.

A bountiful dinner was served in honor of Glen Freeburn's birthday on Sunday, September 17, at their home. It also being the birthday of Jean Ridgway. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Ridgway and family, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wineland, Mr. and Mrs. John Wineland, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. The First National bank of Hicksville, capitalized at $50,000 and with deposits of about $200,000, is in process of liquidation, as the result of M. M. Agler of Ohio City having taken charge for the comptroller of currency. Mr. Agler succeeds L. E. Griffin, who has had charge since March. Efforts to reorganize the bank were blocked by federal banking officials on the ground that no more than one national bank was justified. This fact, coupled with the slow collections since the conservator was appointed, left no alternative but liquidation.

The Lutheran Misionary Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Anna Dilley on this Thursday at 2 o'clock, Standard time. Try to be present, please; all the ladies of the church are invited.

NOW COMES STHE INCOME TAX TO BE PAID AGAIN

Governor May Use Both Force And Persuasion in October To Get Payments

A STATEHOUSE NEWSPAPER?

Rep. Jessup Declares That McNutt, for 1934 Campaign Reasons, Wants Taxpayer Soaked This Year

Indianapolis, Sept. 27.—Another red-letter day in Governor Paul V. McNutt's vast taxation program is scheduled to reach its fulfillment October 15, when Indiana taxpayers fork over the second quarterly installment on the new gross sales and income tax.

This time the administration plans to use both persuasion and force to see that the amount collected on July, August and September sales and incomes passes the $3,000,000 mark.

Persuasion will be used in the form of posters and road signs urging the taxpayers to settle to "help our schools." Governor McNutt and his tax administrator, Clarence A. Jackson, also plan to plead with the people through the medium of newspapers.

Force may be employed in the embodiment of "John Law." A plan to use local police forces in "urging" small taxpayers to pay is being considered. This plan has already been tried in Indianapolis in connection with Jackson's drive for store tax payment among the small stand-owners and merchants. The imposing figure of an Indianapolis policeman frightened numerous "little fellows" who, through inability to pay or through neglect, had failed to purchase their store license Jakson's field agents reported.

The possibility that the Governor may enter the newspaper field as a full-fledged publisher was foreseen here this week.

Two recent developments point to this conclusion:

1. Over the protests of organized labor, the Governor has spent $25,000 out of state funds on a mimeographing and printing plant which has been installed in the State House basement and upon which the Governor says the majority of state printing will be done. If his present plans are carried out the ultimate cost of this equipment may treble.

2. On the state pay roll the Governor has established a publicity mill, the personnel of which would out-number that of many metropolitan newspaper staffs. This group of former newspaper men is engaged in turning out propaganda for public consumption designed to show the Governor in a favorable light. To a staff of nine, the Governor recently added three more newspaper men and four stenographers.

New on the staff are Harry Templeton, forestry department; Blodgett Brennan, conservation department, and James R. Branson, relief commission, former Indianapolis city editor. Veterans are Pleas Greenlee and Wayne Coy, secretaries to the Governor; Marc Waggener, public works; Keith Johns, state tax board; Dudley Smith, public servie commission; Blythe Hendricks, state library; Frank Finney, auto license bureau; Dick Heller, Lieutenant-Governor's secretary, and William Book, welfare department, all former newspaper men. Coy, Johns, Brennan and Waggener have acquired stenographers.

Past administrations have found one publicity man ample, and even his duties were confined solely to the department of conservation.

But McNutt, by his very action of surrounding himself with a publicity staff of twelve newspaper men and four stenographers, to say nothing of installing an expensive printing plant in the State House, only lends credence to the opinion that he will publish a newspaper of his own which can be depended upon to reflect favorably upon himself and his administration.

Although the taxpayers of Indiana are paying for every word of propaganda now emanating from the State House, there is speculation as to whether they would be subscribers to McNutt's publication. Circulation, in the opinion of most observers, would be the Governor's only problem.

Wilfred Jessup, the man who wrote the Governor's reorganization law giving the state's chief executive the power of a Mussolini, told the Richmond school board at a budget hearing, that Governor Paul V. McNutt's expressed "interest" in tax rates and working balances is "purely a matter of politics."

Mr. Jessup, a Democrat, Wayne county's state representative, and one of McNutt's closest advisers during the 1933 session of the legislature, made the statement when the question of the school city's working balance was being considered last week. He is attorney for the Richmond school city.

He declared that the "interest" of the state administration in 1934 local tax rates was solely with the idea of having the local units build up large working balances at next year's budget making time, so that next year's levies would be much lower than those now being fixed.

This, Jessup pointed out, would prove splendid campaign material prior to the November election in 1934. Richmond, however, will ignore the Governor's scheme of "soaking the taxpayer this year at the expense of next" if Jessup has his way.

Considering the effect of this political strategy upon the Richmond schools, he declared that it was not the idea of the school board to be party to any such move to increase the levy for 1934 to build up a large working balance.

This is the second time within a month that Wayne county authorities have uncovered politics in Governor McNutt's "interest" in the welfare of the counties.

Township trustees there recently refused to comply with McNutt's order to match in advance every prospective dollar of Federal poor relief aid with a dollar of tax-raised money. They declared that the Governor was only seeking to create another "working balance" for political reasons. They also pointed out that McNutt's order could not be fulfilled legally due to an Indiana law prohibiting poor relief units from levying in advance. The attorney-general's office later was forced to sustain their opinion.

HIGHWAY EMPLOYING 5,000 UNEMPLOYED

More than 5,000 men selected from unemployment relief rolls throughout the state started to work for the state highway department Monday in a gigantic "pick-and-shovel" road improvement program.

The work, to be carried on as long as weather permits or until given projects are completed, will be financed with a special fund of $1,000,000 transferred from the state general fund to the highway department.

Intended to give immediate relief through the disbursement of the payrolls, the program is strictly a state-supported project, James D. Adams, highway department director, said Monday.

Virtually all the work, consisting of widening road shoulders and eliminating dangerous curves, will be done by hand. Machine work will be held to a minimum to provide the greatest amount of work possible for hand laborers.

LESS PUPILS ENROLLED IN DEKALB COUNTY SCHOOLS

Carl F. Stallman, DeKalb county superintendent of schools, after a compilation of the number of pupils in high schools and those in the elementary grade schools in the county under his jurisdiction, finds that there are twenty-three fewer pupils enrolled this year than last. The total enrollment at the start of the school term was 2,239. Last year the number was 2,262.

The total number of pupils under Mr. Stallman includes:

TEACHER'S TRAINING COURSE

The three churches in Spencer Township will unite in a series of classes for Sunday School teachers beginning this Friday evening at the Spencerville Methodist Church.

Each week Mr. Clyde Hart will teach the lesson for the following Sunday to the group of teachers exactly as he would to his own class.

Following this there will be a short round-table discussion of teaching methods led by the preachers of the township. Rev. Fabianske will lead this for the first meeting. This is not for teachers only but any who are interested are invited to attend.

GETS LICENSE

Locally, John C. Hull is the first to receive his state license, under the new law, arriving last Friday morning. The same is on display in his shop as in all other shops where license has been granted. Leslie Meek received his credentials on Monday of this week.

TURN IN CERTIFICATES

People holding Certificates of Deposits on the St. Joe Valley Bank are requested to deposit them with the representative in charge at the bank, by whom a receipt will be given. No dividends can be paid on certificates until they are in the hands of the department. Mr. Brandon is at the bank on Saturday of each week.

SELLS PROPERTY

J. R. Shilling has disposed of his property now occupied by his son, Cecil, to Arthur Guilford, proprietor of the Custom Canning Kitchen, of St. Joe. Mr. Guilford will remodel the buildings for canning purposes soon, expecting to take possession by November 1. Cecil will move into the Shilling property now occupied by Russell Griffin.

Big Pine Flats, Fawnskin, Cal.
Sept. 13, 1933.

Dear Grandma:

"Received your letted today, was glad to hear you are well.

We are still having nice weather, it hasn't rained for three weeks and is quite cool evenings and mornings now. It does not get very hot here in the day time either. We have been having some very nice moon light nights, too.

"I have been doing a lot of gadding around lately, I was in Los-Angeles and Hollywood, also San Pedro. I saw the Pacific Ocean and about 12 of the largest battle ships in the United States. I was also at the Los Angeles County Fair, and it was sure great, too. Lots of live stock and pretty floats, also lots of pretty girls. I can't tell it all in a letter but will remember it till I get home.

"Sunday I went to Pine Knot to Sunday School and got acquainted with a girl. She asked me over, so I went back Sunday afternoon. I have some friends at Pine Knot and stayed with them for supper. Sunday night they had ice cream and cake. I was there Labor Day also.

"It is not hard for me to get acquainted here in California, the people are not so stuck up as they are in the East. I also met a nice girl at Vista DeLaMon. She lives there all year. Most of the people of Pine Knot and the other lake towns go down in the valley cities in the fall, but a few of them stay here all winter.

"Yes we are going to move down in the valley about October the first. We are going to make paths through the brush to stop the forest fires, that are quite common in that country. We have not had a fire here yet. I think we have just been lucky, all the other camps have had at least one.

"I haven't another job in sight here so think I will come home when my time is up. Our gang does not belong to the N. R. A., but it is all over California. Yes, it is all right, President Roosevelt got it up so it is O. K.

"We have been having some good meetings both here at camp and at Pine Knot. I will tell more news when I get home.

"Well I must close and so good night, and write soon."

STATE OPPOSED TO PENALTY CHARGES ON UTILITY BILLS

The public service commission is definitely on record in favor of eliminating penalty charges of utilities on customers bills not paid by a certain date.

The commission refused the Northern Indiana Power company authority to charge a 10 per cent penalty on new rates for seven towns yesterday. It also denied the Washington municipal electric light plant the right to charge penalties.

Commissioners explained that they are opposed to penalty charges, usually 10 per cent if bills are not paid by the 15th of each month.

They said if the utilities wish to offer an inducement for prompt payment of bills, they should offer a discount.

It was reported that an order will be issued next week cancelling penalty authorizations on all utility rates in the state.

It so, a fight is expected. Several utilities, headed by John T. Beasley, Terre Haute, president of the Indiana Gas Utilities company, has asked the commission not to issue such an order until they were given a chance to plead legality of such an action.

Penalty rates have been wiped out in recent orders for new rates at Aurora and Kokomo. Such rates are "illegal and unlawful," the commission said in those orders.

NURSERY FOR BABIES AT AUBURN FAIR

The Red Cross County Nursing committee cordially invites mothers with infants to place their babies in the Red Cross Nursery. It is conducted in the building formerly occupied by the A. & P. Grocery, during the Auburn Free Fall Fair. The nursery will be open from 9:30 A. M. to 9:30 P. M. A graduate nurse will be in attendance at all times, and members of the nursery committee will assist her. 80 parents may feel it is perfectly safe to leave their infants. Infants with whooping cough, or any other cough, rash, or any suspicious breaking out will not be admitted. This will give the mothers an opportunity to enjoy the fair unhampered by their babies.

A First Aid Station will also be conducted at that time. A graduate nurse will be in charge at all times, and a physician will be called if needed for surgical or medical aid.

Mrs. Howard Steckley.
Chairman DeKalb County Red Cross Nursing Committee.

Uncle Henry

By TOM GIBBONS

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service

PAT SPENCER slowed the car to a stop and took a quick glance at the gray-haired old man beside her. The traffic light changed to green and she shifted gears and the car started forward. By the set of his shoulders and the lines around his mouth, Pat decided that Uncle Henry Spencer was not in a good mood.

Uncle Henry and his niece, Pat, were the last of the Spencer clan of Hillcrest. They lived in the big family mansion and Uncle Henry exerted all his stern influence to dominate the attractive, youthful Pat. She in turn tried to modernize him and make the home more cozy. As a result, they were more than often engaged in heated debates over trifles, which were mutually enjoyed by both.

"Uncle Henry, let's stop at the ball game—we're just in time." Pat looked at her watch. The crowds were lined up at the ticket windows.

"It isn't the ball game that you're interested in, young lady. It's just that good-for-nothing ball player, Hank Weddell."

"Why don't you like Hank? He makes a good salary, and he's a nice young fellow. Besides that he's been darned nice to me," Pat admitted.

"Humbug! A ball player—no better than an actor."

"Uncle Henry, I just happened to think, Hank won't be playing today. He pitched yesterday's game."

"All right, then we'll go in. I always liked ball games until that young fool turned me against them," Henry Spencer grunted.

As the usher showed them to their seats, Pat smiled to herself—as if the width of the ball diamond could separate Hank from her!

Watching the players warming up, Pat kept a keen watch, hoping to see Hank somewheres on the field.

"Oh, look! There's the home team coming out on the field," Pat announced to her uncle.

"Well, what do you want me to do? Stop them? Or give three cheers? That's what they get paid for, isn't it?"

After her uncle's sarcasm, Pat didn't attempt further conversation during eight innings. She watched the game in silence and after the eighth inning she looked at the score board with satisfaction. Two runs had been scored by the opponents to the three runs for the home team.

She was satisfied. It looked like a sure victory for Hillcrest. The pitcher had been throwing neat curves which had the opponents baffled. Three up and three out, then home, Pat figured. Now that the game was almost over, she was anxious to get home.

The crack of the bat against the ball caused Pat to drop her powder puff and take renewed interest in the game. The runner was rounding second, started to third, but decided he couldn't make it and returned to second. Pat watched the game intently and Uncle Henry was chewing another cigar vigorously.

"Another hit and we're done for!" Uncle Henry gasped, his eyes centered on the home plate.

"That's a pinch hitter coming in," Pat said rather excitedly. "They call him 'Home-Run Charlie.'"

"A home run right now will settle our hash." Uncle Henry's eyes were shining. "One man on base, no outs and a pinch hitter at bat. Wow, it looks bad for the Hillcrest nine!" he groaned.

A swift grounder dashed from the bat, the runner made first easily and the man at second advanced to third. The crowd roared. Pat was on the edge of the bench. They were changing pitchers and a man with a megaphone announced: "Hank Weddell now pitching for Hillcrest!"

Joan turned to her uncle. He immediately frowned suspiciously and chewed at his cigar.

Hank walked to the center of the diamond and dug down in the pitcher's mound with his spiked shoes. A few preliminary throws and he stood facing the man at bat. Three times his arm went up with that swinging motion and three times the umpire called: "Strike!"

Uncle Henry lost all his antagonism for the young pitcher and he joined the shouting in the stands. "Atta boy, Hank! Come on, kid! Give 'em some more! Just two more times like that! You can do it, old boy!" Uncle Henry kept up his cheering, oblivious of the happy Pat who watched him with evident amusement.

The next man up at bat swung at the first one, hit it up, the ball bounded in the air. Hank, like a flash, was under it. He was waiting for it and he caught it safely in his glove.

Uncle Henry turned to the man next to him, and with a broad smile said: "That young man's a friend of my niece's! He's a great ball player, isn't he?" And with that Uncle Henry sat back on the bench, well pleased with the world.

Again Hank Weddell put three swift strikes over the center of the plate, and the last man was out. A deafening roar went up from the stands.

Uncle Henry called to Pat as she dashed from her seat. He yelled at her loudly, more loudly than was necessary.

"Tell Hank Weddell we'll wait for him and drive him home!" Uncle Henry got to his feet and faced the awed crowd proudly.

"O. K. Uncle Henry. We'll meet you at the car!"

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

OLD MAN COYOTE'S MOUTH WATERS

SPLASH into the Smiling Pool fell Jerry Muskrat, and if ever there was a thankful Muskrat in all the Great World that one was Jerry. He didn't mind his torn coat at all. Indeed, he was thankful that it had torn. If it had held he would now be on his way to the stomach of Hooty the Owl. Despite his fright and the smart of the wounds made by Hooty's claws, Jerry couldn't help a feeble grin as he heard Hooty's scream of rage and disappointment.

Now, of all that had happened to Jerry Muskrat there had been a witness. A witness, you know, is one who sees whatever is going on. Jerry Muskrat didn't know that any one had seen what had happened to him. Hooty the Owl didn't know it. But all the time a pair of the keenest eyes on all the Green Meadows or in all the Green Forest had been watching. They were the eyes of Old Man Coyote.

There is very little goes on that Old Man Coyote doesn't know about. He had discovered what Jerry Muskrat was about, and more than one night he had been craftily stretched out back of the bulrushes at a place where he hoped Jerry would come for roots and climb out on the foundation walls of his new house and had watched him fall a-dreaming. He had even thought of trying to wade out and surprise Jerry, but had been too shrewd to try it. He knew he couldn't possibly do it without frightening Jerry.

Then he had seen Hooty the Owl drift like a shadow out across the Smiling Pool right over Jerry and clutch at him with great cruel claws. His crafty eyes snapped as he saw that Hooty had Jerry only by his coat and that he didn't have a good hold at that.

"He won't fly far that way," thought Old Man Coyote. "He'll come down to the ground to get a better hold just as soon as he is across the Smiling Pool, and when he does Old Man Coyote is going to be right there. It is very fortunate that I am on this side of the Smiling Pool instead of on the other. Hooty is going to pass right straight over me and he is flying so low that I believe if I jump suddenly I can snatch Jerry Muskrat right out of his claws."

A fierce yellow light leaped up in the eyes of Old Man Coyote, and his mouth began to water. He crouched very flat and very still on the bank of the Smiling Pool and watched Hooty the Owl draw nearer and nearer with helpless Jerry hanging from his claws. There wasn't a shadow of a doubt in the mind of Old Man Coyote that in one little minute more he would have a muskrat dinner.

And then, right then, when he was so absolutely sure, he saw Hooty lose his grip with one foot and Jerry began to struggle. It was on the tip of Old Man Coyote's tongue to cry "Hang on to him, Hooty! Hang on to him just a minute longer!" But, of course, he didn't do anything like that. Instead he held his breath and quivered all over and his mouth watered more than ever. It was plain to see that Hooty wasn't going to be able to hold on to Jerry Muskrat long, and if only he would drop him on dry land Old Man Coyote would ask no more.

And then right at the very edge of the Smiling Pool Jerry tore loose and fell. He was so near that Old Man Coyote could almost touch him by reaching out. Had the water been shallow there this story never would have been written. But it was deep. It was so deep that Old Man Coyote had to stay on the bank. Splash fell Jerry right in front of him, and as he leaned over the bank ready to grab Jerry if he came up the water was actually dashed in his face. But Jerry didn't come up. He dived deep down and swam to one of his private little tunnels in the bank and crept up this to the safety of a snug little room where there was soft grass.

And so Jerry never knew how near he came to falling from trouble into worse trouble, nor how Old Man Coyote's mouth had watered in vain, and two people instead of one had been disappointed in a dinner they had counted as already as good as theirs.

USE THAT LEFT

EMPLOYING the right hand and arm alone in the downswing robs the golfer not only of considerable force but also of a full use of a wider arc. With the left employed and the muscles of the back adding body force to the blow, a backhand swing of considerable strength can be utilized. One need only to experiment by using the right alone and see how ineffectively that member develops the speed of the clubhead. Coupled with the left side and arm, however, not only a forceful, speedy blow is developed but also considerable leverage caused by the action of the two combining to transmit force from the center of the body. This coordination results in greater length. Another feature of the backhand left is that it enables one to swing from the inside out, a stroke advocated by the pros as the one most conducive of success.

PASSING STRANGE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THIS life is something passing strange,
And full of change, yet passing change,
The minutes pass, the days, the years,
Joys pass, and yet so do our tears.
Yes, passing strange this life of ours,
But winters pass as well as flowers.
We pass through pain, we pass through strife,
Pass through it all, and pass through life.

Yet, passing by, we much can do
To pass the worst, in passing through;
Consider evil past and gone,
But, knowing kindness, pass it on.
Old friendships pass, yet you and I
May make new friends of passers-by.
When friendship passes, why revile?
Still pass the old friends with a smile.

This life is passing strange, we say;
Some even claim we pass away;
And yet the sun that passes west
Tomorrow passes yonder crest.
Some pass through life and think, no doubt,
Man passes through and passes out;
Yet life is but a passing phase,
And we pass on to brighter days.

SCHOOL LUNCHES

THIS is the time of the year when the children are back at school and the ceaseless round of lunches to put up begins. Active children burn up enormous amounts of energy during the day and must be amply provided with the proper fuel to keep their bodies in the best of health, to build good bodies and good minds.

Such foods as pie, rich cake, heavy meats and fried foods should be given rarely or not at all. After a lunch which gorges the stomach and is hard to digest, the child is dull and lazy the rest of the day. Such foods, too, are not well balanced, nor do they give the correct elements. Fresh fruits, salads, vegetables, milk, fruit juices such as orange or lemon not only supply sufficient nourishment with good whole wheat bread and butter, but supply the vitamins necessary for growth.

An apple, an orange, a pear, or, lacking the fresh fruits, a handful of figs, dates, prunes or raisins will give the child an appetite for the more substantial foods. They are the best known sources for the vitamin C which builds good bone and tooth structure.

The citrus fruits are richer in vitamins and keep the body in ideal condition. With plenty of milk and the heartier foods of cereals, bread and butter, fresh vegetables and a small amount of meat, the child should have normal weight and health.

How Striking Bargemen Block the River Seine

HERE'S one of the blockades that French bargemen set up across the River Seine near the juncture of that river and the Oise when they went on strike. Things looked pretty serious until somebody thought up the bright idea of giving the strikers a dose of cold water to dampen their ardor. Accordingly a flotilla of tugboats quietly approached the blockade and let fly a veritable cloudburst from high-pressure hoses. The bargemen surrendered.

CHANGE DESIRED

Bobby was very fond of reading. One day at the public library he took such a long time choosing a book his older sister grew impatient.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is the best laxative for everybody. Senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It has the average person's bowels as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drugstore, ready for use. Member N. R. A.

Style-Wise College Girl's Wardrobe

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

FOR enlightenment as to what is to be in the way of smart fashions, watch the style-wise college-going girl. She knows. It is almost uncanny the way these young sophisticates manage to wrest advance information from style centers almost before the public at large gets an inkling as to what's going on.

Which is why the going-away-to-school wardrobes of young moderns are so revealing as to future style trends. So, on the theory that what's chic for the college girl is chic for the rest of us, let's take a peep at some of the fashion choices which these school-faring enthusiasts are making for the coming autumn and winter.

Of course, the logical thing to begin with is practical daytime clothes, but we are so excited about the perfectly lovely formal we saw in a college-girl outfit we can't wait to tell about it. The fact that it is made of white bengaline is what intrigued our fancy. Which is the same as saying that the swankiest thing on the boards in the way of new fabric for party frocks is heavy ribbed silk. It is quite like the weave which was so fashionable in the long, long ago, and now it is "in" again.

In studying the trend of styles-collegiate comes now another thrill in that fashion bids fair to go Chinese. The simplicity of this oriental styling lends itself admirably to youthful effects. Take it in the matter of the new, little round tight turbans, with their close-up cuffs and their pert little peaks at the very tip-top of their crowns, they say "Chinese" at a glance. Tilted over placid young brows, they look delightfully school-girlish. The newest coats which are cut a la mandarin because of the absolute simplicity of their lines, also tune in perfectly with the picture of youth. These coats fasten authentically Chinese, in that one side is brought way over to the other to close either with buttons or some sort of a tricky metal contrivance. The little inch-high collars on these coats look properly prim.

Kimona sleeves are good style not only for coats, but for dresses as well. For a college-girl choice we would call attention to the stunning rough crepe frock on the girl seated in the picture. It is decidedly new because of its tunic blouse which has wide-at-the-armhole sleeves, the deep ridged silk crepe which fashions it and because it is in one of the notably voguish vibrant blues. The collar is black satin with Persian lamb border.

Every college lassie should have a tailored plaid wool day-time dress, now that plaids are a "last word" from Paris. The model pictured at the right to the top in this group is typically collegiate. The belt is green suede. However, the plaid story does not finish with gay woolens, for the most scrumptious plaid velvets have arrived. They are being made up into striking blouses—look wonderful with monotone velvet skirts.

Two fashion tips gleaned from the brown crepe dress with its orange-colored scarf (pictured to the left) is the mass shirring, which decorates the sleeves, the scarf and the belt, and the fact that the skirt is sheath-fitting according to latest fashion dictates. Glimpse the bracelets, for massive bracelets are necessary luxuries which college maidens simply must have.

Below is one of those swagger new soft felt hats which look like a man's fedora. Our college girls like them immensely.

TWO GOOD REASONS

"I didn't see you in church last night," said the parson who was noted for his very long sermons. "How's that?"

"Too wet," was the reply.

"But it's always dry inside," protested the parson.

"That's another reason," was the unkind retort.—Stray Stories.

STUDY AHEAD

A New York lawyer tells of a conversation that occurred in his presence between a bank president and his son who was about to leave for the West to engage in business on his own account.

Banker Father—Son, on this, the threshold of your business life, I desire to impress one thought upon your mind. Honesty, ever and always, is the policy that is best.

Son—Yes, father.

Banker Father—And, by the way, I would advise you to read up a little on corporation law. It will amaze you to discover how many things you can do in a business way and still be honest.—Border Cities Star.

No Inducement

"This watch, though so tiny, keeps perfect time," the clerk remarked.

"That doesn't make any difference," replied the man, "I'm buying it for my wife and correct time means nothing in her life. A wrist watch is just a bracelet to her."

"O. K., BIG CHIEF!"

Behold the effect of American films overseas! The other day an Ulster friend of St. John Irvine's asked a child to step out of the way.

"O. K. Big Chief!" said the child.

Writing in the London Observer, Mr. Irvine comments, "If the talkies are changing our tongue, heaven knows what they will change it to, but perhaps the new locutions will turn out, like many 'Americanisms,' to be old locutions that have been 'living in retirement.'"

Mr. Irvine continues, "Some professor may yet discover that 'O. K., Chief!' was first lisped by children dressed in wood, and who knows that Ethelred the Unready was not accustomed to remark, 'Hello, big boy!' or 'I get you, baby!' to his friends?"

Now read the statements which will guide you in what to say to win any one of the 488 big cash prizes!

What Is The Biggest Reason So Many Women Are Changing to OXYDOL?

1. "Because Oxydol's the one soap that soaks clothes clean and yet is really easy on them—and on your hands, too."
2. "Because I found Oxydol is even faster than the granulated soap I'd been using. My wash is 50% whiter, too."
3. "Oxydol's the only soap that will hold its suds in my machine straight through washing time."
4. "My pretty cotton and gingham dresses are washed clean in 15 minutes—and in more than 30 washings not one has faded."
5. "Oxydol is easier than bar soaps—faster than flakes—and never fades things like other granulated soaps will do."
6. "Quick, long-lasting suds that work fast in hard water—and won't harm colored things! At least, that's why I changed to Oxydol."

HOW would you like to open your mail box some morning and find a check for $1,000? Enough to put your child through school; to pay up your mortgage, and leave some over for a brand-new fur coat or a lovely rug, perhaps!

Well then, just write a few simple words telling us what you think is the biggest reason so many women are changing from other kinds of laundry soaps to Oxydol. You may win a thousand dollars in cash or any one of 487 other big cash prizes!

Five minutes at your desk may do this for you. For this is a new and simple and Amazingly Different kind of contest. You don't have to pore over the dictionary; you don't have to make up words; you don't have to wrack your brains for trick advertising slogans.

If you ever washed clothes, you have a perfect chance to win money in this contest. Writing, spelling, grammar are not important—as a matter of fact, they don't count at all! To win, just tell us in your own words what you think is the biggest reason for so many thousands of women discarding bar soaps, flakes, chips and old-style granulated soaps in favor of Oxydol! Here is a description of Oxydol that will help you.

What Oxydol Is—How It Works

Oxydol is a new-type granulated soap. The latest, improved scientific discovery of Procter & Gamble experts. It cuts washing time 25% to 40%. And thus saves hours of labor.

It works without back-breaking rubbing, without scrubbing. For it works by dissolving dirt.

It makes clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter than old ways. Yet it cannot fade or injure either fabric or color.

It is as kind to the hands as the finest toilet soap. For it is created by America's largest soap makers—the makers of gentle "Ivory."

What You Do To Win

Nothing could be simpler or easier than this Oxydol Soap Contest. You write your letter, telling why you think so many women are changing to Oxydol. Write one just as short, simple, and direct as the samples printed above. Then put the letter in an envelope with an Oxydol box top (or a reasonably exact facsimile thereof) on which you've written both your own and your grocer's name and address. Address the envelope to Oxydol, P. O. Box 1801, Cincinnati, O., and drop it in the mail box by October 14th. That's all there is to it. And you may win any one of the 488 Cash Prizes!

Enter Contest Now—Wash With Oxydol

Enter this $10,000 contest now. Remember, a housewife is the one who will win. Society women and college professors won't know how. A phrase written in lead pencil on tablet paper is just as good as one that's typewritten or on dollar stationery. So write without delay. You may win $1,000 in CASH. Or—one of 487 other CASH prizes.

And—you'll find in Oxydol a far easier, far safer and far surer way of getting perfect laundry results. When your wash is on the line and you see how fresh and white it looks, that alone will make you feel it's worth while asking for Oxydol every time!

BLACK FOUNDATION OF FALL WARDROBE

Deserting the bright colors of midsummer, the smart Parisienne has returned to her favorite black for morning, afternoon and evening. In a recent interview a French woman whose name is synonymous with chic on two continents, outlined a typical Paris wardrobe. For daytime, her choice is a lightweight black wool coat, cut with wide shoulders and trim fitted waistline. This she wears over a black sheer wool frock.

Her afternoon dresses include a yellow and black printed crepe, worn with black gloves and a small draped turban of black velvet. This she alternates with a black satin jacket suit, with white satin blouse.

For informal dining she wears a simple black crepe frock, whose long slender lines are accentuated by panels of pale blue at the sides.

New Back-Flare Coat Is Going to See Many Uses

The new back-flare coats which Molyneux of Paris is designing at the very moment are going to have a far-reaching effect on future styles. Made in silk or chiffon, they can be used for evening coats as well as for swagger sports coats, with gloves, hat and shoes to match. There is a yoke at the shoulders, beneath which gathers fall in full sway. The length of the coat is slightly shorter than three-quarters and the sleeves are straight and come to the wrist. There is no fastening unless it be a button or bow tie at the throat, the vest of the coat flopping open to show the dress underneath.

Plaid Taffeta Girdles

Plaid taffeta makes girdles on some of the most striking evening frocks this season. A white organdie dance frock with ruffles running from the hem to the knees is trimmed with a wide belt and long sash ends of blue, red and white taffeta ribbon.

SWISHING SKIRTS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Enter on the stage of fashion the lady with the swish-swish silken skirt which is floor length, yea, even trails about in sweeping lines. Formal winter fashions are just like that: This, because we have gone back to the Edwardian age so designs tell us, for our style inspiration. The handsome black taffeta dinner gown pictured is typical of the new movement.

Use Zippers on Cardigan to Replace Seven Buttons

Cardigan sweaters, jackets, sports shirts—all those wardrobe items which open all the way down the front—may now be found with zip fastenings. For, as you know, a slide fastener has been perfected which, when opened, may be separated at the bottom. And to operate one is certainly speedier than fastening the seven buttons which are the average number on a fall cardigan.

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Home Bureau met at the home of Ross Watt Friday afternoon, Sept. 15. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mary Krise. The opening song, "You Can Smile," was led by Laura Washler. The Home Economic Creed was read in concert. After which we had election of officers. The old officers were elected for another year. We then had roll call, the response being, "How Can I Make My Work Easier?"

Cora Curie read an interesting article on "This and That." "An Impressive Dream" was given by Anna Rickett. Daisy Keeler conducted a contest which proved to be enjoyable to all.

The hostsss, with her committee, Ida Herrick, Millie Shull, Anna Rickett and Minnie Ulm, served lunch consisting of watermelon and home made fudge.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Frank Richmond and Joan Harris enrolled in the tenth and eleventh grades on Monday of last week. Carma Jean Wilcox entered the seventh grade on Thursday. This brings our total enrollment to 267 for the first month of school.

Teachers and pupils are making plans for an exhibit at the Auburn Fair. In a principal's meeting held at the county superintendent's office it was announced that Friday, October 6 would be school day at the fair for the county schools. For this reason no pupils are being excused from school to attend other fairs.

Soft ball is proving to be quite popular with most of the boys in the junior and senior high schools. At intermissions also morning and evening the two diamonds are kept busy.

The Seniors held a class meeting at the noon hour on last Wednesday. Class jewelry will be purchased soon. Also a class party will be held at the home of the Senior president during the next school month.

The P. T. A. warm lunch committee assisted by several of the mothers continue to can food for the winter lunch service. Several families have made donations of tomatoes and other vegetables. The P. T. A. is planning to hold a Social and Supper at the school on Thursday evening, October 12. Proceeds from this event will be used to further the warm lunch program. Watch for later announcements and be sure to attend this event.

The annual report of the Inspection Division of the State Department of Public Instruction was filed on Wednesday of this week. When funds are available some attention must be given to the school library, home economics department, the concrete floors in the North building, the vocal music in the public schools and then we can hope to secure a commission on a continuous basis.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

Albert Moore was rushed to the Garrett hospital Tuesday afternoon and underwent an operation for appendicitis, and is reported as getting along fine. He had been working at the coal office steady, when the attack came. Merl Guilford is driving the truck in Albert's place.

UNEARNED INCOME

It is true beyond a doubt that many things come to us—unearned. In a world that abounds in purchasable happiness and beauty it is well to pause and consider these unearned gifts.

Have you ever watched shadows? Turn on the lights, raise the curtains high and see how the combination of moon-light and leaves make a plain yard or bare wall rare in design and beauty.

Autumn rains cover the sidewalks with blurred maple tiles and curious oriental designs. Sidewalks become things of beauty as well as conventionalized paths that take you where you are going.

Then there are faces that pass you on the street or on country roads. Not all of them are appealing, to be sure, but no two faces are alike In this very difference lies interest. How often you find yourself thinking—I'd like to know that person. I like that face.

Real companionship is rare and very satisfying. Often it comes to us—an unearned gift. The friend who understands our language, who laughs with us is curiously comforting. There is not too much real companionship in the world. When it comes to us, we feel warm and whole. We are better than ourselves—alone.

Then there are the pleasant little things of life that fall into our laps—the enjoyment and humor in unessential incongruities, music, hill-fires, nonsensical laughter, unexplored roads, books, curious situations that we find ourselves placed in—unwittingly.

The world is full of pleasures—unearned. The income is large if you will accept it.

PRIDE

Pride is a very important factor in the life of the individual and likewise of the life of the community. Women have always known the value of dressing up and appearing well if there is something to be accomplished. Men have found that it has great value in business and are employing it themselves and encouraging it in others.

Some communities have learned that it pays to put up a well-kept appearance. Some states even are experimenting with it. But what is needed in this land today is more pride in the "front" our properties put up. The cost of planting a tree, or trees, shrubs and flowers, keeping grass and weeds under control and exhibiting neat, orderly yards and roadways to the tourists, is small compared to the pride and satisfaction to be gained, to say nothing of the monetary value which is possible.

Not only a little beautifying is necessary, but the first step is to see that our streets are clean, free from flying papers and piles of junk. In general the travelled thoroughfares of a community should be as presentable as the "company living room." One large eastern city has beautiful suburbs with well-kept lawns, etc., but its down-town business district is so dirty that tourists who see it go away in dusgust without ever knowing that out a few miles is choice scenery.

Pride in appearance is a virtue and should be encouraged for the uplifting example as well as for the appearance presented to the stranger within our gates.

NEWVILLE MAN TO SERVE 1 TO 20 YEARS

Terry Traxler Pleads Guilty To Theft of Automobile From Holgate, Ohio, Doctor

Terry Traxler, of Newville, was sentenced in common pleas court of Henry county at Napoleon, O., to a term of one to twenty years in the Ohio state penitentiary for vehicle taking.

Traxler, who was arrested in July and has ever since been an inmate of the Henry county jail, entered a plea of guilty. Capt. H. C. Springer, of Butler, acted as his counsel. Traxler's wife, Luille, and their four children, ranging in age from five to nine, were in court when sentence was passed.

Two associates of Traxler, Everett "Red" Davis of Butler, and Olan Shank, of Columbia, O., formerly of Wilmington township, recently received sentences of ten to twenty-five years in the Ohio state prison upon their pleas of guilty in court in Bryan, O., to a charge of robbery with a gun.

Traxler and Davis served three years in prison in Nebraska for stealing an automobile. Shank has been in trouble numerous times before. Last July 17, Traxler stole a Ford V-8 coupe belonging to Dr. W. V. Stevens of Holgate, O., a veterinarian, from in front of Stevens' office. Davis and Shank followed Traxler in another car and warded off pursuers with guns. The car was later found in a swamp.

Connection of Traxler with the crime was learned through information given to officers by Shank and Davis. They were arrested after a criminal expedition in which they committed hold-ups at West Unity and Pioneer, O., and other points. After Traxler's arrest he insisted he was innocent and upon hearing on a fugitive warrant in Judge Endicott's court in Auburn he tried to establish an alibi, but he was positively identified by Dr. Stevens and others who saw him at Holgate. Thereupon the court ordered Traxler surrendered to the sheriff of Henry county.

FIND BONES OF BIG PREHISTORIC ANIMAL

Bones and teeth that no doubt belong to a great prehistoric animal were found late Friday on the right-of-way of federal highway 27 two miles south of Garrett.

The skeleton was not entirely uncovered, pending instructions from the state highway commission, but the workmen believe from what they saw that the animal was from 25 to 40 feet in length. Two teeth discovered measure 8 by 4 inches on top, with a length of 8½ inches. Two bones that were probably shoulder blades were found that are 6 feet in length and 10 inches in diameter. A jawbone that was uncovered is 2½ feet long.

The discovery was made by Paul Dunn and Wilson Foulk, of Garrett, who are state highway employes. They were trying to locate a tile drain that runs thru the peat moss beds, the purpose being to improve the drainage of the right-of-way. At a point 100 yards north of the P. C. C. & St. L. railroad and 80 feet east of the highway, the steel rod that was being used to penetrate the peat moss struck a hard object at a depth of about four feet. Thinking this was the tile, the workmen dug into the peat moss and found the teeth and bones.

Dunn and Foulk reported the discovery to their foreman, L. L. Searfoss of Garrett, who in turn informed Chas. E. Hyde of Waterloo, district highway superintendent, Mr. Hyde notified the state commission at Indianapolis.

It is believed the discovery will be of importance to the scientific world and that scientists will be sent to excavate the skeleton, as was done near Cromwell in Noble county a few years ago. The bones have probably been buried for thousands of years, but they are in fair condition and the tops of the teeth are very hard.

Highway employes were stationed to protect the skeleton from the curious and vandals until instructions are received from Indianapolis.

THE BIG PARADE AT THE FREE FALL FAIR

Auburn, Ind., Sept. 27, 1933.

Dear Mr. Editor:—

For the big parade on Old Settlers' Day, in Auburn, Saturday, October 7th., the agricultural floats will form in line on the north side of Seventh Street, east of the bridge, and headed westward, with the leading float opposite the Madden residence, ready to move promptly at 10:30 A. M., Standard Time.

The floats of lodges, young ladies sororities, church societies, school organizations, etc., will form on the East side of McClellan Street, headed north, with the leading float at the intersection with Seventh Street, and ready to follow the Agricultural floats.

This information is sent out to avoid confusion among the floats as they arrive.

And we would repeat the information that $60 in cash prizes will be awarded to floats, $30 in three prizes to Agricultural floats and the same amount to society floats.

Those who are planning to enter floats in this parade, in either class, are requested to inform the undersigned by mail or telephone.

Position in the column is not important, for the last float will get as much attention as the first.

Disinterested judges will have been selected to determine the prize-winning floats, men who are practically strangers in the county.

A. L. KUHLMAN,
Chief Marshal.

Restful Garden for World's Fair Throngs

Trees, shrubbery and varl-colored flower-beds, scattered along Lake Michigan lure thousands of visitors for restful moments at A Century of Progress, the Chicago World's Fair. The gardens pictured above are those in back of the Horticultural Building, one of the most visited spots in the Exposition grounds.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

The first month of school has ended and pupils in the first six or elementary grades will receive report cards on Wednesday evening of this week. Parents will please give these reports a careful inspection, sign the same and see that they are returned to the room teacher the following day. If your child is doing satisfactory work your signature on the card indicates that you have received the favorable report. If the grade in any subject is low encourage your child to do the very best he or she can to improve in this subject during succeeding months. Teachers will be glad to talk with you in such cases. Through co-operation the best results are obtained.

Report cards for the upper six or junior and senior high school grades will be issued on Wednesday evening of the sixth week of school or one week later. The semester for these upper grades is divided into three grading periods. The first of five weeks, the second is also five weeks and the third will be for a six week period.

We wish to call to the attention of parents that the attendance at school for the first two months of this year is a vastly important matter. The money received from the state levies will be distributed on the basis of average daily attendance in September and October. For that reason we must keep this average daily attendance as near one hundred per cent as possible or we lose financially.

Friday of this week is the day given throughout DeKalb County for school attendance of the Auburn Fair. The Concord Township Schools will have a school booth located on the stage in the Court House Assembly Room. The theme idea of this booth will be in keeping with the "N. R. A." School work entered for ribbon prizes will also be found in the court house assembly room.

On Friday afternoon at two o'clock a school parade of all DeKalb County pupils in attendance at the fair is scheduled. This parade will start from the Alumni Gymnasium and proceed North as far as the Ford Garage. School bands will lead their schools and this event promises to be of considered interest. If possible have your child in the Concord Township section of these marchers.

Nellie Hollinger of Stafford Township enrolled in the tenth year of our high school on Monday of last week.

FIRST PARENT TEACHER MEETING OF YEAR

Tuesday evening, October 12, is the date for the first P. T. A. meeting of this school year. This meeting will begin at 7:45 and will be held in the auditorium of the North School Building. All patrons of our schools are invited to attend. A program will be given and an opportunity of meeting the new teachers and renewing acquaintance with the other teachers is afforded. This meeting is primarily for parents and teachers. If boys and girls are to attend they must come with and be seated with their parents. Mr. H. K. Schondelmayer is the president of the P. T. A. this year.

TO PAVE ROAD ONE YET THIS FALL

The road committee that went to Indianapolis last week brought home encouraging news. State Road No. 1 is to be hard-surfaced from Butler north to the county line this fall.

The only possible hindrance that might slow up the project, will be the securing of the right-of-way, which we understand, is well under way already.

The road is to have federal aid and will be 80 feet wide.

No doubt the property owners along the route will see the benefit and give their co-operation in getting it thru as speedily as possible.—Butler Record-Herald.

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

In celebration of the birthday of Mrs. Fred Hart, a surprise party was held Friday evening by her daughter, Mrs. Elwood Hart, at the latter's home. During the evening games and stunts were enjoyed by everyone. A delightful luncheon was served at small tables at the conclusion of the games. The large birthday cake was decorated in pink. The honored guest was the recipient of many lovely gifts.

TAX RATE IN ST. JOE SEVERELY REDUCED

The reductions in tax levy for the year 1934 in St. Joe, as made by the county adjustment board will certainly play havoc with the local government.

Last week the board called for the books of the town to be presented and Derwood Ridgway, Clerk, was present to defend the budget, and they agreed that there was no excessive levy made for St. Joe. The Clerk showed that with th present levy, 15 cents, it was not quite adequate to meet the electric light expendiures.

When the final levy was passed by the county board the 40 cent rate was cut 16 cents, which means St. Joe will not have lights over 6 months, unless the rate asked for is sustained.

It is true that the town has sufficient money in the bank, but we cannot hope to get more than $400 paid on this according to authorities, duirng the remainder of 1933, and the balance, some time later.

The local officials fell that the cut in the rate was not justifiable under the conditions.

TYNDALL

William Sherman Tyndall, son of William C. and Mary E. Tyndall, was born December 11, 1864, at Spencerville, Indiana. He departed this life at his home in Spencerville on September 26, 1933, at the age of 68 years, 9 months and 15 days.

On December 25, 1889, he was moved on a farm one mile east of moved ona farm one mile east of Spencerville, where they lived for thirty years. To this union were born five children, three sons and two daughters.

In 1919, Mr. Tyndall moved with his family back to Spencerville where he spent the remainder of his life.

He served this community as rural mail marrier for twenty-seven years and was highly esteemed by all his patrons as well as by other friends and relatives.

He is survived by the wife, Minnie Tyndall, four children: Mark Tyndall, of Fort Wayne, Mrs. Beeks Erick of Spencerville, Walter Tyndall at home, Mrs. Leland Callaway of Spencerville; seven grandchildren, and many other relatives and friends, all of whom will miss his familiar greeting and his customary comings and goings about his daily tasks.

It is with a feeling of regret at his going and yet with a feeling of pride in a life of service to his kind that we pay to him today this tribute of our respect in passing.

The funeral was held from the M. E. Church, Spencerville, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with Rev. Howard Brown, officiating.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for their assistance and kindness shown us during our recent bereavement, and for the beautiful floral offerings.

SMALL HOPE FOR WILL'S HOPE

While flying over Hoover Dam on a recent air trip from Chicago to the Coast, Will Rogers dropped off his daily message to newspapers. One of his remarks was:

"Hope they don't irrigate more land so they can raise more things they can't sell, and will have to plow up more rows, kill more pigs to keep 'em from becomin' hogs."

Our politicians still talk glibly of pouring new millions into irrigation schemes to make more farms out of waste land and deserts, thus boosting over-production of agricultural crops, which another group of politicians will expect the taxpayers to pay for, to bring about farm relief.

HOLD PARTY

On last Thrsday evening at the Lutheran parsonage in Spencerville a most delightful Mothers and Daughters party was held.

The program included group singing and Waheka camp girls' numbers; illustrated songs by the Mesdames M. Sechler, Staman, and Pressler and Miss Louise Sechler; an amusing skit relating the true (?) experiences of the guests attending the Century of Progress by the Mesdames Shull, Buckingham and Thornton; a song by Mesdames J. Sechler, C. Curie, Shilling and Northrup; and a very inspiring address by Mrs. Elizabeth Mumma of Harlan. Mrs. Fabianske conducted a Round Table on problems of mothers and daughters. Refreshments were served and a most enjoyable and profitable evening came to an end.

WASHINGTON CURRENT COMMENT

The National Recovery Act came into being in a time of stress, and it was generally supposed that the Act would not survive the emergency out of which it arose. Its primary purpose was to give work to the unemployed, and it was regarded as a creature of the day, and soon to be outmoded. There seems, however, to be an undercurrent of opinion that somehow it may be extended to a wider scope of operation than originally planned, and that, perhaps in a revised or altered form, it may continue to function for an indefinite period. With industries committed to their several codes, new problems may arise, and their ultimate settlement may be projected far into the future. Those who have seen the N. R. A. put into operation may not have witnessed simply the bridging-over of a presently-confronting gulf. They may have been in at the very start on a far-reaching and enduring policy which will alter industrial history and work definite and permanent changes in the triangular relation involving the employer, the worker and the federal government.

Playing a lottery may not be morally reprehensible from the view point of the individual, and with the view point of the individual, this note has nothing to do, but the fact remains that lotteries are not favored by the law of the land. In that respect, things have changed in the United States. There was a time when something closely approaching a national lottery was not looked at askance, by the governing powers. In Germany, in France, and probably elsewhere, national lotteries still flourish. The United States may be in a hole temporarily, but the hole is not so deep that it has been necessary for us to try to gamble ourselves out of it.

The Department of Agriculture is concerning itself with efforts to stamp out advertising matter calculated to deceive. Viewed even in its most superficial aspect, this is well. There are few whose armor is so stout that it cannot be pierced somewhere by the misrepresentations of a carefully worded ad. The action of the Department goes further and indicates a state of mind that is not exposed at the surface or apparent at first glance. The old rule runs: Let the purchaser beware. Although a man cannot be expected to run down his own wares, there are signs that the ancient maxim is losing some of its force and no longer is regarded as veritable gospel. The conception is spreading that the buyer often, and perhaps generally, is not capable of extreme wariness in judging the product, and that, upon the other side of the transaction there is a responsibility of which the law will take cognizance.

The elephant is said to be afraid of a mouse, and the mouse does not know it. If debating societies were still in vogue, there would be a chance for an evening's entertainment in settling the question as to which of the pair is the worse off.

There seems to be no occasion for turning all the brains of the land loose on the cause of bad times. The credulous, those in search of easy money, and persons who incline to venture, will find interest in reading about a bottle cast by the sea on the coast of Mexico and containing a message setting forth the location of a mass of buried treasure. The Atlantic shore is well scarified by the plow marks of searchers for the gold that Captain Kidd is supposed to have deposited in the earth. Up to the present time the only reward derived is the exercise incident to the plowing. Yet those who are touched by the story from Mexico have no reason to feel ashamed. They may at least be assured that they have not thrown the hope of Youth entirely to the winds in middle age.

WHAT WILL COME NEXT?

This reply came back to a business house after a request for funds:

"It is impossible for me to send you a check. My present financial condition is due to the effects of federal laws, state laws, county laws, corporation laws, by-laws, brother-in-laws, mother-in-laws, and outlaws, that have been foisted upon an unsuspecting public. Through the various laws I have been held down, held up, walked on, sat on, flattened and squeezed until I do not know where I am, what I am and why I am.

"These laws compel me to pay a merchant's tax, capital stock tax, income tax, real estate tax, property tax, auto tax, gas tax, water tax, light tax, cigar tax, street tax, school tax, syntax, and carpet tax.

"I am suspected, expected, inspected, disrespected, examined, re-examined, until all I know is that I'm supplicated for money for every known need, desire, or hope of the human race, and because I refuse to fall and go out and beg, borrow, and steal money to give away, I am cussed and discussed, boycotted, talked to, talked about, lied to, lied about, held up, held down, and robbed until I am nearly ruined, so the only reason I am clinging to life is to see what the hell is coming next."

AGED SPENCERVILLE CITIZEN KILLED BY AUTO

Samuel M. Renn Almost Instantly Killed Wen Hit by Automobile on Pavement Near the Lutheran Parsonage

HE WAS RIDING HIS BICYCLE

Just Returning From the Fall Fair at Auburn–Was Getting Dark and Wheel Had No Lights

The funeral of Samuel M. Renn, aged 69, of Spencerville, was held Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the Lutheran Church in that town with Rev. A. H. Fabianske, officiating. Burial was made in the White City cemetery.

The deceased died 10 minutes after being struck by an automobile Saturday night at 6 o'clock. James Wilkes, 21, of Cedarville, was driving the car on his way to St. Joe.

Mr. Renn died as the result of a fractured skull. He was riding a bicycle without lights and was on the wrong side of the road, according to Dr. Ben Shook, the DeKalb county coroner. The accident occurred a short distance north of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Renn was thrown up on the hood of Wilkes' car and fell off on the right hand side. Mr. Wilkes told the coroner that he did not see the aged man until he was about ten feet from him. He swerved his car to avoid striking him but was too late.

The deceased, a bachelor and laborer, had been in Auburn on Saturday attending the fall fair. It is presumed he was on his way home from the Lutheran Church where he was janitor when the accident happened. He lived alone.

Mr. Renn is survived by three brothers, Reuben Renn, of Spencerville, Benjamin Renn, of Evarts, Mich., and Henry Renn, of Toledo, and two sisters, Mrs. Anna Houghton, of Auburn, and Miss Flora Renn, of Spencerville.

Dr. Shook, who conducted an inquest shortly after the accident, gave his verdict as accidental death.

Samuel was the son of John and Mary Renn and was born January 2, 1864 in Springfield township, Allen county, and passed away at the age of 69 years, 9 months and 5 days. When a mere boy he attended school at the Horn school and Sunday School at Springfield Center.

At the age of 21 he went out for himself, and since 1900 has lived in and about Spencerville.

Mr. Renn became a member of Springfield Center at about the age of 17 and transferred his membership to the St. Peter Evangelical Lutheran Church at Spencerville.

He was proud of his position as janitor of this church, a post he held since 1924. Here he worked loyally and faithfully.

He was the oldest of eleven children. His father, mother, three brothers and two sisters, have long since departed this life.

Tribute to Samuel M. Renn

When men live their convictions, humanity never fails to take note of their departure. The world admires men who dare to think, and say what they think. This was true of our departed brother. Mart, as he was generally spoken of in home circles, was a man of this type. Opportunity never fully crowned him with the chance to put into print or practice the many things he advocated in life as being worthy of notice or consideration, nevertheless he was firm in his belief that all men were entitled to a certain level of equality and privilege given to man from the great Creator at the beginning.

Mart lived in a humble home by the side of the road, striving to be a friend to man. His humble life of submissiveness to his simple calling in this life, has given him a place of reverence in the memories of Spencerville and vicinity. His willingness to play a common place role in the affairs of the community, is a characteristic that is always found in the lives of all great men—a disposition to serve in the face of severe criticism. He was ever guided by deep religious convictions that characterized sober and honest thinking. When he was prone to criticize his attack was made against faulty principles and not faulty personalities. His habits were temperate and honorable—a trait that should not be left unmentioned. Such men are too few to be unnoticed. He knew many good and useful things, but the absence of the powers of expression made his appeal to life seem eccentric and at times fantastic. Mart and his faithful bicycle will be missed in our town.

CHILD'S BODY FOUND IN CREEK

An effort is being made to find those responsible for depositing the body of a new born baby in a creek in Wilmington township. The discovery of the body was made Monday afternoon and it is believed it was placed in the water the previous night.

A son of Thomas Brunson and a boy named Kurth were on their way home from school when they observed the body in the creek near Keeler's gravel pit just north of Road 8 near the old Swineford farm. Sheriff John P. Hoff was notified and he and Chief of Police Chas. Davis of Auburn, and Deputy Coroner Henry Shook of Auburn, went to the scene.

The body was turned over to S. O. Devitt, trustee of Wilmington township, and he had it taken to the Phelps funeral home at Butler. It is being held there while the officers are trying to solve the mystery.

The child was prematurely born, possibly the result of an abortion. The dead body was probably tossed into the creek from the road. The water is two or three feet deep, but the body evidently became lodged and did not float very far down stream.

WHO MAY BELONG

There seems to be some misunderstanding each year as to who may become members of the Parent-Teacher Association.

Our aim, and desire is to have for members, all parents, all teachers, and every citizen of Concord township interested in the welfare and advancement of our public school system, and the school life of our boys and girls. The membership committee, composed of Mrs. Pluma Hamilton, Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick and Mr. Frank Curie, will be glad to take your membership at any time. If you are not a parent or teacher, you show, by becoming a member of the P. T. A. that you are a school-minded citizen, interested in our boys and girls, and as such we invite you to join us.

The following officers were re-elected at the close of the session: President, W. E. Bradley; secretary, L. T. Ripley; treasurer, J. A. Pettit.

SALESMEN CALL AT ST. JOE SATURDAY

Thirty-five salesmen of the G. E. Bursley & Co., wholesale grocers of Fort Wayne, were in town Saturday. They called at the Zonker store and extended greetings, looked over the newly decorated store and inspected the display window in which Bursley's flour is featured.

The men then went to the flour mill and gave it a once over and visited a short time with Mr. Gauntt. From here they went to Springport, Mich., where the company has a bean and grain elevator. They were to inspect the company's 300 acre apple orchard and potato fields.

APPLE HARVEST ON

Thirty-eight men and women are being employed at the Leighty orchard this year in the harvesting of the crop, which began last week. The filling of orders will begin today, and every person having placed an order will be notified by mail when to call. The crop is good this year and the demand is greater than previous years. Practically any variety you want can be supplied.

ST. JOE WILL HAVE AN ELECTION

It has been so long since St. Joe has had an election, that people will hardly know where they are expected to go to vote, but we are assured of an election this fall, as both the Independent and Citizen tickets have been placed in the field.

The result of the caucuses held follows:—

Citizens Ticket

Ward	Name	Term
1 —	Edward M. Storer	2-yrs.
2 —	Frank R. Bowman	4-yrs.
3 —	Willard L. Hurni	2-yrs.
Treasurer—	Wilbur Yeiser	2-yrs.
Clerk—	Roy Reidenbach	2-yrs.

Independent Ticket

Ward	Name	Term
1 —	Harry H. Kees	2-yrs.
2 —	C. R. Price	4-yrs.
3 —	M. C. Blue	2-yrs.
Treasurer—	J. C. Hull	2-yrs.
Clerk—	Derwood Ridgway	2-yrs.

DEDICATION OF NEW FORT DEFIANCE BRIDGE

Governor George White will officially dedicate the new Fort Defiance bridge at Defiance on the afternoon of Thursday, October 19th. The bridge, which has been under construction for the past year is nearing completion and will soon be ready for traffic.

The beautiful concrete structure is an innovation in bridge construction, and is said to be the first attempt in Ohio to combine the beauty of modern architecture with utility in bridge construction.

The dedication program is planned to begin at 1:30 and will be held on the site of Fort Defiance from which the new bridge takes its name. The welcome address will be made by Mayor Fred L. Hay of Defiance. Response will be given by Addison Q. Thacher, Mayor of Toledo. Short addresses will be made by O. W. Merrell, Director State Department of Highways; also by J. R. Burkey, Chief Engineer of Bridges in the State Highway Department. A representative of the Federal Bureau of Public Roads is also expected to be present and speak.

The principal address will be made by Governor White who will dedicate the new structure.

Music will be furnished for the afternoon's festivities by the Defiance Community Band and the Defiance High School Band. The children of the parochial and public schools will sing.

IN HOSPITAL

Miss Lucille Curie entered the Garrett hospital last Friday and Monday submitted to a goitre operation. She was in a run down condition because of this, but was able to work at the Zonker store. We hope for her speedy recovery.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

One hundred and thirty-four pupils had a perfect attendance record for the first month of school. The per cent attendance in the entire school for that month was 97.55. We hope that each room can improve on its attendance during the present school month.

Attorneys D. M. Link and John Zimmerman, of Auburn, were speakers at the first P. T. A. meeting of the school year held on Tuesday evening of this week. They discussed the new tax laws and how they would influence school finance. Patrons should remember that all state income tax paid this month will be turned over to the schools to aid in payment of salaries.

Remember the Social Supper being served at the school building Thursday evening of this week and sponsored by the P. T. A. Serving will begin at six o'clock. The public is invited. Proceeds from this event will be used to further the schools warm lunch service.

Our schools received several ribbons as awards in the Auburn Fair entries last week. The High School booth received third prize, the fifth and sixth grade free for all entry won a second prize. Friendly letters written by Annabelle Stewart, Gwenevere Jenkins and Richard Freeburn of the seventh grade received first, second and third prizes respectively. In the Sophomore class an English theme written by Romy McSorley received a first prize and one by Evelyn Dermott was given a third prize. Junior English compositions, Earl Kinsey received first prize; Freshman English composition, Ersa Reidenbach received a third prize. There were other ribbon awards but data on winners had not been furnished the office when these items were written hence we cannot give individual recognition.

Thursday evening, October 5, was the occasion for the first Sophomore Class party of the year held in the home of Effiebel Freeburn. There were twenty-nine in attendance at the party including the class sponsor Mr. Gerdes and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cox. Both indoor and outdoor games were enjoyed. After a delicious lunch guests departed stating that they had experienced a very pleasant evening in Effiebel's home.

The first basket ball games of the season will be played on the local school floor with girls and boys teams from the Ashley School on Friday evening, October 27th. Keep this date in mind.

Mr. Roy Maxwell is teaching the third and fourth grades now. Mrs. Harriet Oberlin, who has taught in this room for several terms resigned her position last week.

ARREST NEAR NEWVILLE FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Hugh Hosler, of Battle Creek, Mich., was fined $1 and costs and was sentenced by Judge Endicott Monday afternoon to a term of thirty-five days at the state farm.

Hosler and Walter Hecks, of Batle Creek, had been in Allen county Saturday night calling upon Hosler's sister, Mrs. Ray Hart. They were accompanied by Romeo Fusselman of Newville, DeKalb county, and they started back to the Fusselman home.

At a point a half mile west of Newville the car ran into the ditch, struck a telephone pole and broke it. Hecks plunged through the windshield and had his head cut. He went to the Shull home, nearby, and Dr. C. B. Hathaway, of Butler, was summoned to dress the injury. Sheriff John P. Hoff and his deputy, Herbert N. Grimm arrested Hosler.

WHEAT FARMERS TO CUT THEIR AVERAGE

As a result of the wheat allotment campaign which has been under way for some weeks and closed September 25, between $26,000 and $27,000 will be provided to DeKalb county farmers through the federal government. Approximately $57,000 would have been available had every wheat grower in the county taken advantage of the plan.

Five hundred and seven farmers of the county have affiliated with the plan, the average acerage being 8,877, which is about one-half of the total acerage, which is normally 18,000. The average per applicant is placed at 18 acres, showing that the largest growers of wheat in the county have aligned with the movement.

Under the present plan, 1,350 acres of land in DeKalb county will be out of production this fall.

FARMERS' MUTUAL MAKES ASSESSMENT

The amount of loss in the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance company of DeKalb county for the fiscal year ended October 1, was $21,495.48, Philip S. Carper, secretary, announced today.

This is a reduction of $9,000 over last year. To meet the loss, the directors of the company have levied an assessment of 25 cents on each $100 of insurance. The assessment was 30 cents last year. The loss in the rodded class this year was $17,458.82 and in the unrodded $4,036.66.

The company has insurance of $10,648,670 in force of which $9,004,410 is in the rodded class and $1,644,260 in the unrodded.

WILMOT FAMILY REUNION

The third annual reunion of the Ella Wilmot family, was held at the Ernest Jenkins home, Sunday, October 8th. Potluck dinner was served at the noon hour. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Ella Wilmot, Mary Donley and children, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. G. Wilmot and family, Arden Casselman and family, Frances Barnthouse and son, Merrill Jenkins and wife, Vivian Murphy and sons, Lewis Geauque and family, George Soller and family, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Baker, Delbert Dusing and family and Mr. and Mrs. Casselman from Auburn.

TRIO GIVEN SENTENCE

Two men and one woman were under sentence at Kokomo, Ind., Monday on charges of holding up a filling station September 11. Marie Davis, 21, of Pioneer, Ohio, and Grant W. Ramsey, 21, of Spencerville, Ind., received 10-year sentences, and George Boger, 19, of Harlan, Ind., received one to five years on robbery charges in the Howard circuit court. The three told the court they decided to rob a filling station when the dilapidated car in which they were traveling ran out of gas.

SPENCERVILLE LADY DIES AT HARTFORD CITY

Mrs. Nancy Palmer, an aged lady residing north of town, died on Friday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mertie Kelley of Hartford City, Ind. Mrs. Palmer had been sick for several months and had gone to the home of her daughter about a month ago. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Roll Church at Bluffton, Indiana.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

SAFETY FIRST AND COMFORT NEXT

IF ANYONE should ask Jerry Muskrat how to build a house the advice he would give would be something like this: "Build it for safety first and comfort next." There isn't one of the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest, but will say that this is the best of good advice. Even Peter Rabbit will say so, though as everybody knows he doesn't live up to it. If safety means hard work Peter will take a chance with danger every time. Even when his own comfort is concerned Peter will avoid the work if possible. Isn't it funny how lazy and shortsighted some people can be?

But Jerry Muskrat isn't one of these. Oh, my, no. No, indeed. When he dug those tunnels from the cellar of his house down under water over to the bank and to the deepest part of the Smiling Pool he was thinking of safety and preparing for it. And safety was his first thought as he built the walls above water. He knew that when Jack Frost should come and cover the Smiling Pond with ice it would be an easy matter for Old Man Coyote and Reddy and Granny Fox to get to his house. If the walls were thin and poorly made they might be torn open. Then, too, the cold might creep through and freeze him. For some reason, just why he didn't know, he had a feeling that the coming winter was going to be extra cold.

So Jerry made those walls extra thick. He chose the stoutest cattails and rushes he could find and dug up the biggest roots he could manage. He went a little way up the Laughing Brook for sticks. All these things he towed across the Smiling Pool to the new house and worked into the walls. He dug up mud and worked it in with the rushes and cattails and sticks in a way that only he and Paddy the Beaver can.

Peter Rabbit, watching from the bank, turned up his nose. "It is nothing but a pile of rubbish," said he. In truth Peter wasn't to be blamed for saying so. That is what it looked like—just a great pile of rubbish. What Peter couldn't see was that in the center of it was a nice big roomy chamber, one big enough for Jerry and two or three friends to sleep in in comfort. Not only this, but it was high enough to be dry even though the water should rise quite a lot in the Smiling Pool. And this nice dry chamber connected with the water cellar beneath, from which led tunnels to the bank and to deep water.

So, while in his tunnels and thick walls Jerry was looking out for safety, in the nice, big, dry bedroom he was looking out for comfort. If he couldn't have had the safety with the comfort he would have chosen the safety. But as long as he could have both he intended to have both.

Higher rose the walls and presently the bedroom was roofed over. As had been the case in the old house, tiny spaces were left for fresh air to come in and bad air to go out. No one knows better than Jerry how necessary fresh air is, no matter how cold the weather. So he took care not to seal the top of his roof with mud, that the air might pass through. Many nights Jerry worked and when at last he laid the last stick and the last bulrush in place he felt that his new house was worth all that he had gone through, all the hard work, and even the terrible experience with Hooty the Owl.

VITAMIN-RICH FOODS

THE popular cook is the one who is able to serve the common things in an uncommon way. We need to serve daily foods rich in vitamins, and they may be found in the cheap vegetables so common everywhere.

Red Cabbage and Apples.

Wash a small cabbage and cut it into quarters, remove the hard core. Cover with boiling water and cook ten minutes. Drain and chop. Pare, core and chop three medium-sized apples, mix with the cabbage. Melt two tablespoons of shortening and add the cabbage and apples. Cook five minutes, then add three-fourths of a cup of stock, one-fourth cup of vinegar, one teaspoon each of salt and sugar, a grating of nutmeg and a few dashes of pepper. Cover and cook slowly until tender.

Macedoine of Vegetables.

Melt three tablespoons of shortening, add one tablespoon of chopped onion and the same of chopped pimiento. Cook for five minutes. Add two tablespoons of flour, and when well mixed add two cupfuls of canned tomatoes and cook until the mixture thickens slightly. Add one cup of peas, corn, lima beans or carrots, one and one-half cup of boiled rice, one tablespoon of chopped parsley, two teaspoons of salt and one-half cupful of grated cheese; add a dash of cayenne and bake for twenty minutes in a hot oven.

Stuffed Eggplant.

Cut one eggplant into halves and cook in boiling salted water until almost tender. Drain well, scoop out the centers. Melt one tablespoonful of butter, add one small onion minced, and cook until a light brown. Chop the centers taken from the eggplant, add one cup each of bread crumbs and stewed tomatoes, one tablespoon of chopped parsley, one teaspoon of salt and one-eighth teaspoon of pepper. Fill the eggplant halves and cover with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven.

Life Has So Much

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

LIFE has so little, so you say,
But have you looked at life today,
Or have you only looked within
At your own care and your own sin?
Some live forever in a cell,
With all the world in which to dwell,
By their own troubles held and caught,
Poor self-made prisoners of thought.

There are so many other things
Besides some care to which one clings;
Such beauties, pleasures, harmonies,
Why shut yourself away from these?
Why live a hermit in your mind
When you might walk abroad and find
Far greater matters than your cares,
Concern yourself with life's affairs?

Life has so little, you have found,
Because you shut yourself around
With walls of thinking, musty walls,
The while a world of wonder calls.
Old thoughts will bring you only grief,
New thoughts will bring you new belief,
New hopes to find, new heights to touch,
New joy to know—life has so much.

GRAPHIC GOLF

FLAT LIE PREVENTS TILTING WRISTS

STEWART MAIDEN, who piloted Bobby Jones along the paths of golf skill and is one of the foremost instructors of the present day, believes that the club with the flat lie is an easier club than the upright to play. His reason is that the player can thus address the ball with the hands in a natural position and a straight left arm. With the upright lie the golfer might find it necessary to tilt his wrists to accommodate a suitable position for the clubhead. This position is almost impossible to maintain on the downward sweep of the clubhead with any degree of exactness and power. Naturally the lie to use is that which the player can most easily adapt himself to. In the majority of cases and particularly for the player of average height or less, the flatter lie will be found more suitable.

Stone Mountain

Stone mountain is a solid block of gray granite 867 feet high and nearly a mile long. It is only 15 miles from the city of Atlanta. The design, 200 feet high and 1,300 feet long, carved on its side, commemorates the Army of the Confederacy.

MOUNT VERNON ON THE MARKET!

Possibility in Modern Craze for Moving Shrines.

The boyhood home of Captain Cook, the navigator, at Great Ayton, in England, has been sold and is to be taken down, brick by brick, and shipped to Australia, there to be erected in a place of honor for next year's centennial celebration of the founding of the commonwealth of Victoria. When the owners disposed of the house they "expressed a wish that it remain where it had stood, as a monument to the great and noble man, but subsequently agreed to a modified stipulation that it should not be moved outside of the British empire."

It is difficult to see how any genuine sentiment of patriotism or veneration can prompt this tearing down and setting up again in new locations of these ancient landmarks of historical or heroic importance. As well might a rich foreign bibliophile purchase and remove to his own country the house at Stratford in which Shakespeare was born.

Taking away the brick and mortar sunders most of the associations with which the shrine has always been identified. The ground about it is hallowed—the familiarity of the nearer scene; the distant view. The very character of the people of the place imparts a friendly homeliness to it which is utterly lost once it is transplanted to a strange situation among a people who, having no traditions or heroes of their own, must fain buy or borrow them from the old home. Let us hope that no vicissitudes of fortune will ever bring Mount Vernon on the market to see it perhaps carried away piecemeal to the Panama Canal Zone or to the Philippines to gratify a misguided sense of self-aggrandizement on the part of colonial officialdom.—Boston Transcript.

Knew One Bone, at Least

Mr. H—, a teacher, and his wife were discussing the modern way of teaching physiology, as compared with the way they were taught.

"Why," said he, "I'll wager there's not a child in school now that can give the name of a single bone in the body."

Elizabeth piped up:

"I know the name of one."

"What is it?" asked the mother.

"Why, it's the crazy bone!"—Indianapolis News.

Read the "Ads"

but don't ignore medical opinion

if you want to

—keep bowels regular and comfortable
—make constipated spells rare as colds
—avoid danger of bowel strain

A doctor will tell you that the careless choice of laxatives is a common cause of chronic constipation.

Any hospital offers evidence of the harm done by harsh laxatives that drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form.

Can Constipation be Corrected?

"Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say thousands who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose that you find suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without assistance.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the average person's bowels as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is no "convenience" in any cathartic that's taken so frequently, you must carry it wherever you go!

What is the "Right" Laxative?

In buying any laxative, read the label. Not the claims, but the contents. If it contains one doubtful drug, don't take it. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptional preparation in which there are no mineral drugs. By using it, you avoid danger of strain. You can keep the bowels regular, and comfortable. You can make those constipated spells as rare as colds.

How many dimes and quarters are spent on "popular" laxatives! How quickly they count up, as you use more and more of these habit-forming helps! A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin would save you money—and bring you real relief.

Why Doctors give a liquid laxative

The habitual use of irritating salts, or powerful drugs in the highly concentrated form of pills and tablets is risky.

The properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without discomfort or injury. You need not take a "double dose" a day or two later.

The public can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drugstore.

May Egyptians Claim Laurels of Columbus?

The Abbe Moreux, director of the Bourges observatory, and author of a work on "The Mysterious Science of the Pharaohs," has come out with a theory that, centuries before Columbus, Egyptians discovered America.

Otherwise, how did it happen that, when Columbus arrived, he found the Indians calling the constellations of heavenly bodies by names corresponding to those now known to have been bestowed upon them by the ancient Egyptians

Again, as the Abbe Moreux informs us in Le Petit Parisien, "a savant, Moustafa Ibrahim Bey, has just demonstrated that certain geographical names in America are derived from ancient Egyptians, where, for example, 'Mississippi' means "Father of Waters.'"

Still again, "in Mexico we find pyramids, hieroglyphs, and sculptures in which the human beings, especially in their mode of hairdressing, exactly resemble those shown in ancient Egyptian paintings."

But would an expedition analogous to that of Columbus have been possible in the days of the Pharaohs? According to Ibrahim Bey, Rameses II had a ship 280 cubits long built by Phoenicians, and we know that the ancient Egyptians perfectly understood the use of sails. In the Seventh century, B. C., "Egyptians circumnavigated Africa." Those mariners, thinks the Abbe Moreux, may later have risked a voyage to America.

Thus the company of pre-Columbian discoverers of America increases, and to Norsemen and negroes these subjects of ancient Pharaohs are, if not a universally plausible addition, at least entertaining.—Literary Digest.

Go Out and Get It

By LUCILLE BARNES

©, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

JOAN VERNE closed her shorthand note book and looked across the smooth expanse of the glass-top desk at the harassed middle-aged executive at the other side.

"Business seems to be picking up, Mr. Walker. How about a raise?"

Mr. Walker said the usual thing. Profits were increasing; so were expenses. No chance of real improvement without continued economy. Besides, she wasn't worth a cent more that she got.

Joan looked bored, thought a moment, and then asked him if it would be putting him in a jam if she left that afternoon.

"Why, you couldn't possibly do that!" he said. "You're the only person beside myself who knows about that deal in Pittsburgh. You must be crazy. I'd be out hundreds of dollars if you should leave me now. There's a law against such a thing."

"Maybe so," she said, "but there's nothing to stop me from having a nervous breakdown or something, and never coming back. Except, possibly, seven dollars more a week."

"Make it four," he said.

"Split the difference, and make it five-fifty."

"Oh, all right."

"Thank you very much, Mr. Walker," she said in her most businesslike manner.

At ten minutes after five Joan was on her way to her favorite beauty parlor.

Joan was a favorite at the beauty parlor, not because of her docile approval of everything that Maggie and Maurice and Olga did, but because of her insistence on perfect work. Today she had been even more exacting than usual. But her look of real, genuine approval at her reflection in the mirror as she went out was worth a great deal more to them than her none-too-lavish tip.

"You are the loveliest woman in the world," Stanley Jones told her when she met him in the lobby of the Smith-Bradly. "Absolutely, you are the loveliest woman in the world," he told her again as they sat down at their table in the roof garden dining room. "Don't you know that you are gorgeous?"

Joan looked across the table, avoiding his direct glance by a tantalising fraction of an inch.

"But I'm just a very ordinary sort of person," she said. "Just like thousands of other stenographers working to make an honest living in a big city."

"But you could do a great deal better than that if you only knew it. With your wonderful personality and intelligence. You don't half appreciate yourself. I don't believe you get a cent more than my own stenographer. And you're worth infinitely more to any man. You wouldn't even ask for a raise, I suppose, you shy little girl. With your personality and intelligence and charm, there would be no limit to what you could do. But the trouble is other people take advantage of you. What you should do is make up your mind what you want and then go out and get it, the same way other people do without half your ability."

"I don't like to be scolded," Joan told him. "I wish you'd say something nice."

"But, Joan, I've told you how—how adorable you are. I've said all the nice things I dare. You're the most wonderful woman I ever knew. You're positively glamorous."

"But I'm really not a bit glamorous," she said. "And the only time I ever pretend I am is when I'm with you. I never attract attention."

"But you could if you wanted to," he said, "if you wanted to doll up and use make-up and spend money on beauty parlors as other girls do. You know I've often wondered why you never used rouge or any of the other kinds of war paint."

"Oh, you're scolding me again," Joan told him. "First, because I didn't ask for a raise, and second because I don't go to beauty parlors."

"It's all part of the same scold," Stanley said. "It's a fault that makes me love you all the more."

"But you just said you wanted me to doll up and go to beauty parlors."

"Not for my sake," he said. "Only for your own sake, to give you more confidence, and to make you seem as utterly lovely to yourself as you always do to me—so that other people would realise, and you'd know they realised, how charming you are."

"Perhaps I will sometime," said Joan. "Only men are likely to misunderstand a girl's motives."

"And that," said Stanley, "was precisely the sort of thing you would say. But don't you see, if you dolled up, they couldn't. Because with your exquisite taste, it wouldn't be obvious. They'd never even suspect it. Will you do it sometime for my sake?"

"Sometime," she said.

Stanley, utterly oblivious of the waiter, put his hand over Joan's.

"The sometime will be when you have consented to be my wife," he said.

"And you won't ever tell me that I ought to make up my mind what I want and then go out and get it—as you told me I ought to ask for a raise?"

"No, Joan," he said. "Because if you'd ever gone out after things there would never have been a chance of persuading you to marry me."

Bridal Veils That Are Different

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SEEKING the latest news in regard to smart fall and winter bridal array, are you? It's hats! Instead of the usual cap effects, brides who are ultra-minded will crown their prettily coiffed heads with the most cunningly devised little hats fancy can picture.

Not that the time-honored little cap of lace or tulle has completely dropped out of the scheme of things. Oh dear, no! But the hat fantasies which are "now showing" are much newer, which, you will agree, is something to think about when assembling an up-to-the-moment trousseau.

The trio of charming hat fashions here pictured are just such as will be shown you or should be shown you, when you go touring the leading specialty shops and departments in quest of "last word" bridal headpieces and veil ensembles.

First, let's take note of the little brimmed hat tilted so jauntily on the head of the bride posed seated. There is a certain air of elegance about this costume which is apparent at a glance. The drape about the crown of the exquisite chapeau which this modern bride wears is elaborately and artfully worked with silver and pearl beads. The veil which is attached to a snug-fitting back bandeau is arranged in a short cape effect, thus achieving a silhouette of striking originality. The flower muff in its snowy whiteness adds a fluttering touch. Similar muffs of gay colored posies will be carried by the bridesmaids. You'll love the white satin gown which this bride is wearing, especially the sleeves which have long flowing panels attached which are picturesquely medieval in spirit and very attractive.

In these highly voguish hat fashions for the bride the eyebrow line plays an important role. Which leads us to tell you about the piquant little visor veils through which the bride's sparkling eyes shine forth so effectively. Study its fascination in the picture to the right as it flares so sprightly from beneath the folds of the close-fitting toque of tulle which tilts so fetchingly over the right eye of the tall statuesque bride who is wearing it. This visored snug hat with its long sweeping veil of fine tulle is a graceful and beautiful interpretation of lines which are of classic simplicity.

Startlingly new and too fascinating for words is the hat-and-veil creation which distinguishes the lovely bride posed in the foreground of this group. The tiny hat which tops her shapely head is one of the new pill-box models, for you must know that the "pill-box hat" is taking the world of fashion by storm this season. It is exactly what its name implies—the shape of a pill box and it is no-end chic in its swanky new lines. The one pictured is created of tulle encircled with a wreath of orange blossoms and buds. The handsomely lace-bordered veil cascades over the shoulders and down the back from whence it trains in sweeping lines. Be sure that you see this fascinating pill-box model on display at your favorite millinery shop before you make your final selection.

As to new materials for bridal gowns the list features heavy white bengaline and cloque crepe.

BLOUSES IMPORTANT IN FALL FASHIONS

Blouses play a leading role in fall fashions. The stylists are promoting the idea of warm winter suits, and with them blouses of jersey, cashmere, velveteen and heavy silks.

Satin is outstanding in the blouse department this fall. Tailored satin blouses made like polo shirts, with long sleeves and link cuffs, are the newest thing in sight. With a black suit you may wear a white one or one in vivid red or green, and with brown or the new eel gray you may have a blouse that matches exactly, or one that makes a vivid contrast—Chinese red or pumpkin yellow.

Necktie silk is one of the newest fabrics for blouses, in dark red or green or brown or navy twill silk with a tiny white figure. Blouses of tie silk are usually tailored, many with the new tied collars, which are simply narrow neckbands that tie into a small bow tie, like big brother's. Velveteen blouses in dark, rich colors with high necklines are effective with woolen skirts and suits. They're also nice in plaids.

Shoes, Purses and Belts Made of Delicate Woods

The pink-cheeked Holland maid isn't the only one these days who wears wooden shoes. The stylists have clad madame in a fashion to make a dryad jealous. Delicate woods are used to make her slippers, her hats, her belts and her buttons.

Bags of bird's-eye maple are lined with brown-and-yellow checkered gingham, and clasped sometimes with wooden blocks, sometimes with carved wooden spirals. The material is washable, waterproof, and as light as a feather. Wooden bracelets are so highly polished that they look as though they came from the back of a tortoise instead of the heart of a tree. Flexwood hats are draped to fit the head; vanity cases with inlaid centers are appearing.

FUR-BORDERED COAT

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The short, three-quarter length coat bordered with fur is a most important fall type. Not only are the coats which belong to suits stressing this new length but separate coats heavily fur-trimmed carry the same styling. The coat-suit pictured is brown wool with handsome blue fox.

Elegant Negligees

The new negligees are as elegant as evening gowns, with heavy crepes and dull satins cut in long slender lines prominently featured.

Adrift With Humor

THE SYSTEM

"You advertise that you make suits while customers wait. Is that so?"

"Yes, you order a suit, pay a deposit, and go home and wait until it is ready."—Vart Hem.

Shade

"Was there any shade in the desert?"

"Yes, but I couldn't get in it."

"Why not?"

"Have you ever tried to sit in your own shadow?"

EVEN HONORS

Stella and Mary were boasting of the belongings and achievements of their fathers.

"My father is a Mason," said Stella.

"Mine is a Moose," retorted Mary. "Moose have horns."

"My father had a calf when he was a little boy," boasted Stella.

"Pooh! Mine had a lamb and a pig."

"My father is rich. He has $1,000."

"Mine is richer. He owes $10,000."

"Well," said Stella, to settle the whole debate, "my father has a blue eagle."

She Had Used It

Father home from work was dressing for dinner. He could not find his hair brush and called to mother:

"You haven't by any chance been using my hair brush, have you?"

"Yes," she laughed, "I used it on two heirs."—Indianapolis News.

The Most Famous

"In the last century what great feat will go down in history?"

"Charlie Chaplin's."

Pertinent Query

"A fool and his money are soon parted."

"Yes. Who got yours?"

Didn't Need To

"Did you ever attend a school for stuttering?"

"N-no, I j-j-just p-picked it up."

A Quicker Way To Ease Headaches

A Discovery that's Bringing* Fast Relief to Millions

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia . . . the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, see that you get the Genuine BAYER Aspirin. For Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER Aspirin."

Two lively helpers in one BIG bar. Good golden soap and plenty of dirt-loosening naptha—that's Fels-Naptha!

A busy team that gives you extra help—easier washdays—clothes so clean and sweet it's a joy to hang them out!

Change to Fels-Naptha Soap—get some at your grocer's. Find out yourself that it's gentle to hands—and that it does a grand job in the old-fashioned tub or in a new type of machine; in hot, lukewarm or cool water; whether you soak or boil clothes. You'll like Fels-Naptha!

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

HOME BUREAU WIN HONORS AT FAIR

The Concord Township Home Bureau won first prize on exhibit and Grand Champion on outstanding display in that dpartment. The booth, which was decorated in green and white crepe paper represented the progress of the Home Bureau.

The Auburn Dispatch had the following to say of the booth:

"Concord township contrasts the difference between the unsightly farm of many years ago with the idea of a beautiful homestead of today. On one side of the road is the old fashioned house unkept and run down. Beside the front doorway a pig is laying, and at the back a skunk is running down a flock of chickens, an ash pile added to the general neglect of the place, and the old ramshackle barn and dilapidated fences, horse and wagon were memories of yesterday. Across the road was the modern home and great barn. Landscaping, with rock garden and fish pool, trellises, motorized machinery and a general air of progress leads to the final theme of the exhibit, 'Keeping the Boys and Girls on the Farm.'"

In the background was the following poem neatly printed in large letters, composed by Mrs. Howard Borthwick:

The old farm house was so shabby,
The yards and the barn looked so flabby,
That the kids said, "good by,
Our fortunes we'll try
In a place that's not looking so scabby."

But the Home Bureau got hold of Mother,
With projects and one thing another,
And she fixed up so pretty
The kids left the city
And returned to the farm with each other.

Now we hope we may cause no alarm
But this slogan will do you no harm.
Our Club with Purdue
Solves the problem for you,
Of keeping them "Down on the Farm."

The committee, who planned and arranged the booth were Mrs. Frank Curie, Mrs. Rob Nichols, Mrs. John Engle, Mrs. Ern Johnson, Mrs. Stanley Hallabaugh, Mrs. Howard Borthwick, Mrs. Howard Krise and Mrs. Chas. Koch.

A merry mastodon out for a stroll several thousand years ago never came home. The reason came to light Monday when Verne Patty, curator of the State Museum, arrived in Indianapolis from "rescuing" the bones from a bog near Garrett, in U. S. Road 27. This time the state will keep its skeleton. The last mastodon "captured" in Indiana was on private property, and the owner sold it to a Buffalo museum. This one will be "at home" in the museum, since it was on a right-of-way. "It's in fine shape," said Patty.

Foster Gee is roofing his house.

Mrs. Flora Gee is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Ben Nelson at Antwerp, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Curie are at Hobart for a few days and attending the fair at Chicago.

Fulfilling a long felt need, Hicksville, O., will soon commence construction of a combined auditorium and gymnasium for the schools in that city. The proposed structure, 64x100 feet, will be erected on the east portion of the school grounds. It will have a seating capacity of 1,500 and a large stage will be provided. Under a plan worked out by the Hicksville township trustees, school board and a citizens committee, no tax levy will be made to finance the project. A portion of the cost is to come from the library fund, transferred early this year to the trustees for relief work. Hence relief labor will be used. The remainder of the cost has been taken care of by popular subscription, it was said.

Quite a few men are working on the state highway from this section of the county.

Rosemary Yeiser missed school Tuesday being on the sick list, and Frances Reidenbach missed several days last week.

Mr. C. M. Pinchon, of Minneapolis, Miss Vera Pinchon and Harry Randall, of Chicago, were over the week-end guests of Mrs. W. H. Randall.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

On last Friday afternoon the pupils in grades seven to twelve who intend to became members of the High School Athletic Association met in a general meeting and elected officers for this school year. The constitution of the athletic association provides for four student executive officers and an athletic council of eight.

John Dilley was elected president, Keith Dailey was chosen for vice president, Orville Coburn is secretary, and Earl Kinsey is treasurer. Frank Monroe and Devere Woodcox of the Freshman Class, Effiebel Freeburn and Charles Thornton of the Sophomores, Clayton Baker and Eloise Draggoo of the Juniors, and Dale Collins and Helen Like of the Seniors will constitute the Athletic Council. The principal, athletic director, and assistant athletic director are ex-officio members of the council. The membership dues of the association is twenty-five cents for the year.

There will be no school on Thursday and Friday of this week. Teachers will be in attendance at the Northeastern Indiana Teachers Association which holds its sessions in Fort Wayne. Speakers at the general sessions this year are Superintendent W. A. Sutton of Atlanta, Georgia and Dr. S. Parkes Cadman on Thursday morning and evening; Dr. George D. Strayer of Columbia University and President Robert N. Hutchins of Chicago University will be the speakers at the Friday afternoon session. Thursday afternoon and Friday morning are given over to the sectional meetings. Prin. J. B. Munn was DeKalb County's representative on the executive committee and helped to make the arrangements for this year's association program.

A good attendance marked the P. T. A. supper given last Thursday evening at the school building. A very moderate charge brought out a goodly number of parents and pupils. Miss Helen Ditmars, vocational home economics teacher, reports that the net proceeds from the supper will greatly aid the warm lunch service which will start the first of November.

There will be a Senior class party at the home of Ruth Baker on Saturday evening of this week.

Ex-county superintendent Clarence Green was a caller at the school building one afternoon last week. Mr. Green is now a representative of Newson and Company, publishers of school books.

KRISE TRUCK STRIKES GARRETT MERCHANT

Wesley Keen, a Garrett merchant, was badly bruised about the back and legs when a truck struck him as he was getting out of his automobile in front of his home Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Keen had just returned from a hardware store where he had bought a can of wax. He parked his car, a Chevrolet coach, heading south, along the curb, opened the door on the side toward the street and got out on the running board. With both feet on the running board he leaned over to get the wax, which was on the front seat.

He did not see the Ford stock truck before it hit the door of his car and forced it against him.

The truck was owned by Howard Krise of near Concord and was being driven by his son. Mr. Krise was also in the truck. They were coming from Fort Wayne, where they had delivered a load of stock and were passing another car at the time of the accident. Something went wrong with the steering apparatus on the truck and the driver was unable to keep it in its course in the street. The truck was traveling at a speed of about 35 miles per hour. The machine ran up over the curb and onto the sidewalk after it struck Mr. Keen.

The driver and his father helped Mr. Keen into the house and he will be confined to his bed for several days.

SHIP CAR OF MUSCLE SHELLS

A car load of muscle shells was shipped from here last week to the Automatic Pearl Button Co., at Muscatine, Iowa, by Edgar Lysher. The muscle digging business was considered a profitable business this year, when the price started at $25 and raised to $40 per ton. In other years the best price available was $25 and that delivered, which would not net a very desirable profit, consequently there were not many engaged in the work.

The shells were much better his year because of being allowed to bed themselves for the past two years.

Men engaged in this work came to St. Joe and moved up and down a number of times during the season of low water, besides the local diggers.

TWO DAYS A WEEK

The special representative, Frank Brandon, in charge of the local bank, stated that he would be at St. Joe on Friday and Saturday until further notice, to look after the affairs of liquidation. Any information that the public wants concerning this matter can be obtained by asking Mr. Brandon on these days.

BOARD COMPLETES ELECTION PLANS

The town board at its Monday evening session completed its plans for the coming November election, with the following appointments:

Clerks—Beatrice Woodcox and Mrs. Neva Hursh.

Judges—Frank Akins and Albert Moore.

Inspector—Laney Gee.

Sheriff—Chas. Cochran.

The preparation of the voting booths and arrangements for the meals are in the hands of the town marshal.

The appointment of Leslie B. Meek as health officer, was made to fill the unexpired term of E. R. Kinsey, to December 31st.

The matter of the levy for St. Joe was discussed, and due to the cut in the rate proposed from 40 cents to 24 cents, the board decided to file a complaint with the state tax board.

A survey was made by the marshal of the sidewalks that needed attention and the clerk is making requests for theis repair before the weather gets bad.

JOHN A. MAY BURIED LAST SUNDAY

The funeral of the late John A. May of 107 West Second St., Auburn, was held Sunday at the Christian Church in Ashley. The Rev. J. O. Rose, of Angola, officiated and burial was made in Central cemetery.

Mr. May died Friday morning from ulcers of the stomach and anemia and was ill six months. He was sixty years of age. He was employed for many years in the Clark hardware store at Ashley and later in the Milo J. Thomas hardware store at Corunna. He also operated an independent telephone system at Corunna a number of years. Mr. May operated the St. Joe telephone system for a number of years and also worked in a local hardware store. He and his wife moved to Auburn last January and he took employment with L. Waite Widney as a plumbing and heating mechanic.

Surviving besides the widow, whose maiden name was Zetta Cox, are two daughters, Mrs. Tross Wise of Ashley, and Miss Marjorie May of Fort Wayne. Mr. May was a member of the Christian Church.

GETTING ALONG FINE

Miss Lucille Curie, who was operated on at Garrett hospital for goitre, last week, has been moved to the home of her brother, Herbert Curie, and if she continues to improve will likely be brought home Friday.

WHEAT PRODUCTION AND ACERAGE STATEMENTS OF MEMBERS OF THE WHEAT PRODUCTION CONTROL ASSOCIATION OF DEKALB COUNTY, STATE OF INDIANA

The following is a statement of the production and planted acreages of wheat in the years 1930, 1931 and 1932 and planted acreage for 1933 of producers (of) Concord, Spencer, Stafford and part of Newville townships, who have submitted applications for farm allotments. This publication is made in compliance with the regulations of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration It is made so that a check may be made on all statement claims, and so that reports may be made to the county Wheat Production Control Association on any inaccuracies which may appear in the statements.

The allotment for this county has been definitely calculated from official records of the United States Department of Agriculture, and is 202,608 bushels. This is the total allotment for the county. Therefore, if any farmer receives a greater allotment than his past production warrants, he is thus depriving other farmers in this county of their just share.

Total production figures of those who apply for contracts, together with those who do not, must be consistent with the official county production as shown by the records of the United States Department of Agriculture. If the county totals are greater than the official totals, it will be necessary to make a downward adjustment.

Any person may make a confidential report if he finds any statement here which he believes to be inaccurate. Such reports should be made to the community or county Allotment Committee, either in writing or verbally. The reports will be strictly confidential. A farmer whose statements are said to be inaccurate will need to prove his production figures.

Farmers have been asked to furnish evidence of production and evidence of sale, such as thresherman's certificates, elevator certificates, or other records and receipts. Satisfactory evidence will be required of any farmer whose statement is questioned.

The following statements have been condensed to save space. "A." represents acres planted and "bu." represents bushels harvested. The "3-year average" represents the 3-year average acreage and production of 1930-32. Farmers should refer any questions regarding this publication to their Community Committee or the County Allotment Committee.

A newspaper notice that a three pound nugget has been found at AjoRriz may lead to a study of geography, or to better type-setting, but it will hardly give direction to a new gold rush.

According to a touching Soviet-propaganda romance, a person who did right by the state went bravely to his death and had his grave marked by a red flag. It is to be suspected that at heart the Russians are practical enough to prefer to be alive, with a suit of red flannel underwear.

The talk at a doctor's meeting generally is of little interest or profit to a layman. A notable exception is found in a remark let fall by a speaker at a convocation of the American College of Surgeons in Chicago. "It has been said that men fear thought as they fear nothing else in the world. This is a way of saying that many are too lazy to think and would rather have it done for them by others, or that they are unable to follow their thinking through to a logical conclusion."

Such matters as economic recovery, progress in the arts and sciences, and neighborhood news, get a chance in the papers if too much space is not required to chronicle the doings of someone who goes by the name of Two-Gun, the Beer King, or some similar significant title Gangster news is depressing on account of its mere quantity. It is doubly so when subject-matter is considered. A plain every-day murderer too often merely is inconvenienced by being accused of tax evasion or running past a traffic light, and then set free. It is clear that either the laws, or their enforcement is at fault. This is a day of codes, a time of direct and effective methods, so far as the conduct of the peaceful citizen is concerned. For the handling of the law-breaker of the gangster type there is no effective code. It is reported that in a locality in which racketeering on a certain Asiatic race was begun, several racketeers were picked up in out of the way places with knives in their backs. Thereupon racketeering stopped. Private vengance of course cannot be countenanced, but it is evidenced that in the rough and ready method referred to, there was some element that did the work. The problem presented is how to identify that element clearly and embody it in the lawful and regular administration of the statutes of the land. Those who favor shooting gangsters at sight and on general principles cannot be given their way, yet it is no more than just to admit the effectiveness of that plan. It is not beneath the dignity of the science of criminology to try to segregate from the bumping-off process, the step that the law can employ justly and profitably.

One hears less and less about the mysterious thing known as inflation, as the days pass, and it may safely be regarded as dropping into disfavor, both with the public and with those having the say in such matters. The time is not remotely in the past when plenty of cheap money was looked upon as a cure for many if not all our economic ills. The demand for inflation was based on a process of pure reasoning, but experience sometimes is the most effective means for questioning what appears to be a bit of perfectly sound reasoning.

The instructive experience to which the people in general have been treated is the increase in prices that has occurred during the past few weeks. Although the minimum wage has risen from $7 to better than $14, there is an undercurrent of opinion that incomes, taken by and large, have not risen in proportion to what consumers are called upon to pay for what they buy, and naturally enough, the purchaser cannot see clearly where he is going to get off, if he trades through the medium of a depreciated dollar.

The foes of inflation include such respectable organization as the war veterans group and organized labor, backed by many who have no particular affiliation which they can use as a mouthpiece. As their demands took on an audible tone, the friends of inflation replied with increased vigor. The tumult was met by proposals tending to accomplish all that was claimed for inflation, with no corresponding risk. Chief among these were the placing of the banks in a better position to extend credit, the loosening of deposits locked up in closed banks, easier credit for the farmer, and the purchase by the government of staple products. Without presuming to take sides, or to condemn either the inflationists or the anti-inflationists, it seems certain that the curtain has been drawn, temporarily and perhaps permanently, before the inflation figure, which a little while ago held the center of the stage and spoke so clearly that no one in the house missed a word.

Fair Art Exhibit

"Mother and Child," by William Zorach, American sculptor, shown in the art exhibit of A Century of Progress, the Chicago World's Fair, which closes October 31.

WORLD'S FAIR IS ABOUT OVER

The last chance to see the Chicago World's Fair is at hand. The gates will close October 31st. Then the rainbow city that has risen on the shores of Lake Michigan will vanish forever. The unique buildings, the rare exhibits, the breath-taking illuminating and the diverting amusement attractions will only be a memory.

This huge spectacle of marvels is within easy drive from Indiana over uncrowded roads. Sparkling Indiana summer days bring the message "Hurry up and see the Fair before it is too late."

Motor travelers find everything made to order for them in and around Chicago. There is now a surplus of high-class accommodations of every type. Information booths on all major highways direct motorists to quarters close to them or put them in touch with reliable city services which will guide to high-grade accommodations at attractive prices.

Getting to the Fair grounds is no trouble. You can drive to the gates, park, and be inside in five minutes. Space was provided in advance so liberally that parking demands never averaged above 50 per cent. Twelve thousand cars may be parked within five minutes of the entrances. Space for 50,000 cars additional is within a mile radius.

The Fair is at top notch. The action exhibits are operating at their best with many additions and improvements. The Midway is an aggregation of proved hits, going full speed. Now is the cream of the show.

Easy traffic conditions, perfect sightseeing weather and abundant, low-cost accommodations make the Fair an ideal objective of a trip. Eighty-four exhibition buildings and features and eighty-two miles of exhibits are included in the general admission of fifty cents for adults and ten cents for children. Rapidly lessening days of October bring the last chance nearer and nearer.

OPPOSES FINAL BANK REPORT

Grabill Receiver Files Many Objections

Objections to the final report, filed October 2, of the Harlan State bank as former receiver for the Grabill State bank, were filed in circuit court Friday by Charles R. Schrom, present receiver for the Grabill State bank.

Schrom objects to the final report and all other current or supplementary reports which have been filed by the Harlan State bank as former receiver for the Grabill State bank.

It is claimed in the objections that the charges, expenses and fees charged by the Harlan State bank in administration of the receivership are "excessive and too large and that the services of said receiver are not worth the amounts claimed and asked for in said receivership." It was further asserted that charges, expenses and fees of the Harlan State bank for services of attorneys in the administration of the receivership are too large and that this claim should not be allowed by the court.

The exceptions also set forth that the Harlan State bank, during the administration of its trust, permitted taxes to accrue against the banking building of the Grabill State bank in a large amount, and also permitted delinquent taxes to accrue against the property to the damage of the receivership estate in an amount of $700, which sum should be deducted from whatever sum the court determines to be a reasonable charge for services of the Harlan State bank as receiver.

It was claimed that while the Harlan State bank was receiver it neglected for a long and unreasonable time to sell the Grabill State bank building, thereby causing considerable damage to the bank.—Journal-Gazette, Oct. 16.

WHAT BANKING WENT THROUGH

By JOHN H. PUELICHER
American Bankers Association

BANKING in its long career has been compelled to withstand many serious shocks, but it ran into the most perplexing entanglement of its whole history since the general breakdown of values in 1929. The commercial structure of the entire world seemed to have been shaken from its foundations and the marvel is that the banker, with everything breaking down all around him, was able to come through as he has.

J. H. PUELICHER

General business failures, agricultural stagnation, income losses, capital losses, inabilities to meet debts and therefore inabilities of bankers to pay back depositors when loans were not paid, were the reasons, in most instances, for the bank failures.

No profession, no department of life is without its weaker elements, but had proper consideration been given to the relatively few instances in banking, had exaggerated and startling headlines been kept in true proportion, had banking not been used as a target for political self-seeking and with vote-seeking motives, had unfounded rumors not been spread the people's confidence might have been retained and financial losses, for many bank failures were caused that need not have happened.

There were factors in our banking experience which every earnest banker deplores—factors which many had worked years to eliminate, which it was fearfully recognized would aggravate any difficult days which might arise. One of the worst of these was due to political regulation which chartered many banks that should never have been chartered.

That there have been incompetence and dishonesty in banking is admitted. That the instances that did occur were used grossly to increase fear in the public mind, we affirm. We shall continue to strive for higher attainments in our profession and strive for laws that require competence and ability in management. That we cannot legislate honesty and unselfishness into either a banker or a borrower must be conceded, but dishonesty, wherever found, should be punished. It is as true in banking as elsewhere that no matter how good the law, dishonest and incompetent men can make it ineffective. Good laws are essential. We must strive for ever better ones, but their enforcement will come only as the public recognizes that it is a matter not of laws or codes alone but of the men who administer them.

The Public's Part

Our people must be brought to realize that the welfare of our country depends upon its banking system, that the strength of the banking system depends upon the public's faith and understanding and the vast majority of banks, because of faithful service rendered, even through the whole of this general breakdown, had the right to expect the trust and confidence of the people.

In every great catastrophe, no matter what its nature, no matter what its cause, someone must be crucified. The banker was this time selected. In the late 90's, political agitation started a tirade against the railroads. Some railroads may have done reprehensible things, but the agitation became so general and so violent as almost to destroy one of the fundamental factors in the progress of a country. Today the same thing has been done to the banker. In spite of all that has happened, the fact remains that even most of the banks which failed are paying out infinitely better than are investments in almost anything else.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Philley, of Huntington were in town yesterday visiting in the Harry Kees and C. C. Woodcox homes.

The Fish and Game Club is planning for a membership get-together on Thursday evening, November 2, at the K. of P. lodge hall. A number of wardens are expected besides Mr. L. H. Dunten, president of the Isaac Walton League of Fort Wayne, has been invited.

STATE POLICE DO BIG TASK IN QUICK TIME

Teletypewriter Message Starts Troopers Covering Bay State

The value of teletypewriter service was again demonstrated in Massachusetts, when a job which once before required a whole month was accomplished in only 12 hours and seven minutes.

Back in 1927, Massachusetts State Police found it necessary to make a thorough investigation of all persons and companies authorized to sell or use explosives in the state. This proved a tedious job, and it required a month to finish it. Following a recent bombing in Worcester, Mass., a similar investigation of all persons and companies in the state authorized to sell or use explosives was undertaken.

In the intervening time since 1927, teletypewriter service had been introduced. This time, the Commissioner of Public Safety promulgated the order at the State House by dispatching a message via teletypewriter to the twenty-five State Police troop headquarters and sub-stations throughout the Commonwealth.

The message soon had 150 troopers out on the road, going into all parts of the state, and six hours after the order for the check-up was issued, 308 of the 355 municipalities had reported. By 7:30 P. M., 341 reports were received. The towns that were heard from later than that were slow simply because of the great amount of territory that had to be covered by the troopers. The last report was received 12 hours and seven minutes after the order had been issued.

The DeKalb county sales of passenger automobiles increased from 33 in August to 50 in September.

John Woodcox is home from California, where he served in the C. C. Camp. Donald McCann also arrived last week.

Carl Carpenter was at Hillsboro, Ind., attending a Spotted Poland hog sale, and drove on to Danville, Ill., returning on Tuesday evening.

Dan Haynes, Mrs. Carl Shroyer and son and Mr. and Mrs. Quenton Shroyer, of Dayton, O., were Saturday and Sunday guests in the home of Mrs Alice Copp.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Foltz and children, of near Miller City, O., Miss Mildred Foltz, student nurse in Toledo hospital, and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Foltz, were Sunday dinner guests in the J. P. Buckingham home.

The Knisely Brothers & Co., Saturday sued Geo. E. and Millie Wilson and Grover C. Morr in the DeKalb circuit court on a note for $100 executed Dec. 28, 1931, and payable in six months. A judgment of $160 is asked. Attorney H. C. Springer represents the plaintiff.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

The high school basket ball season opens next Friday evening at the local school gymnasium when games will be played with the Ashley girls and boys teams. The first game will start at 7:30. Other home games are scheduled with Farmer, O., Hamilton, Leo, Spencerville and Waterloo High Schools.

This week closes the second month of the school year. Elementary school report cards will be issued for this school month on Wednesday evening of next week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cox and Miss Helen Ditmars visited the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago on last Saturday. We regret that a few of our pupils did not see the exposition during the vacation months.

Teachers report a very interesting and profitable two days spent in attendance of the Northeastern Teachers Association sessions held in Fort Wayne on Thursday and Friday, last. Not only were the sessions of great value but teachers had an opportunity to see a most remarkable exhibit of school work from all grades and departments of the Fort Wayne city schools. Mr. O. K. Shull, local trustee, was in attendance on Thursday.

Senior Class Party

The Senior Class held a party Saturday evening, October 21, at the home of Ruth Baker. The evening was spent in playing various games. Miss Borthwick represented the teachers, due to the absence of the class sponsor. A delicious lunch was served consisting of pumpkin pie with whipped cream, buns and weiners, pickles and cider.

A delightful time was had by all, and after refreshments were served, the class members, with their guests, departed.

There were about twenty-five present. The guests include: the Misses Jean Myers, Jean Goodwin, Helen Schrader, Beatrice Storer, Wilma Wade, Evelyn Dermott, Priscilla Borthwick, and Messrs Ned Shull, Marshall Morr, Hollis Akins, Karl Akins and George Simanton.

Chapel Exercises

The first chapel exercise of the school year was in charge of the Rev. Brown, of the local M. E. Church on Tuesday morning, October 17. The assembly sang Love's Old Sweet Song and Sweet and Low.

Rev. Brown expressed the thought that as we pursue our chapel services this year, we each make an effort to learn something about the writing of the New Testament. He proceeded in outline form the construction or writing or development of this so-called 'closed book.' He centered his talk this morning around the character, Paul, explaining how Paul came to write some of the books of the New Testament in the form of letters to churches previously founded.

For closing, the assembly sang "Sailing." All enjoyed the morning serivce.

The absentees from the Junior High room this week have been Virgil Dunn, Naomi Ayers, and Wayne Shook. Wayne is attending the Century of Progress at Chicago.

On Wednesday morning of last week the Seventh Grade endured a general shifting by having their seating arrangements changed, much to the chagrin of some of the members.

The Seniors were very graciously honored Wednesday, October 18 by their class sponsor, Miss Ida Reed, who presented each with a dinner served by the Methodist ladies. A table had been reserved for this purpose. Each Senior was presented with a small red and white ribbon emblem which was used as a pass-port to this table.

The basket ball boys opened their first game of the season, October 14, with the Concordia College Juniors, which is a very strong team in Allen county. The S. H. S. boys lost the game after a very hard fight. The game was rather undecided throughout. The first four minutes was scoreless on both sides and at the end of the first period, it was 5-5; then during the first part of the second quarter, the Cadets took a lead of 5 points, which left the S. H. S. boys behind; but they soon snapped out of it and just a minute before the end of the second quarter the S. H. S. boys were leading 10-12. When the first half ended, the score was 12-14 in favor of the Cadets.

The S. H. S. boys went back into the game with the spirit to win and tried very hard to win but failed. The score at the end of the third quarter was 20-21 in favor of the Cadets. Then in the last quarter the Cadets produced a lead, 29-30 and S. H. S's. Coach substituted Merl Dean Furnish and brought the score to its final end, 29-33.

Kenneth Means starred in points over all the players on both teams with 14 points, and Myers for the Cadets with 13.

Mosbaugh and Feeling were referee and umpire from Ft. Wayne.

The S. H. S. boys meets Harlan October 20 and Butler October 27; both games at Spencerville.

CHECKING 5-ACRE CORN GROWERS THIS WEEK

The work of checking the Five-Acre work in DeKalb county began Monday, October 23, when H. L. Miller, of Bluffton came into the county acting as State Judge.

The group system of checking was used this year with several members in one community cooperating by helping each other husk their plots. They assembled at one place in the morning and stayed together for the whole day. On Monday morning, October 23, they started at Albert Yoder's. Tuesday at Derrell Carpenter's, Wednesday at Orlo Deetz and on Thursday at Woodrow Drerup's. On Friday the scattering plots will be checked.

There is some talk of husking out a full five-acre plot in order to check the yield with the plan of plot checking. If this is done it is the desire of the committee that everyone come and help husk and watch the check-up.

OVER 500 NAMES IN DeKALB COUNTY WHEAT ALLOTMENT

The DeKalb county wheat allotment committee released for legal publication last Wednesday the list of land owners who have applied for allotments under the acreage reducing plan of the United States department of agriculture.

The list contains 519 names and it has been divided among the newspapers of the county equally, according to geographical location.

A second publication will soon follow giving the names of land owners who sign contracts with the government.

The county allotment committee signing the notices is composed of Harry M. Shull, of Union township, chairman, Arthur Lautzenhiser, of Franklin township, and Clyde Hart, of Spencer township.

HERE LAZINESS IS A PASTIME

Loafer Can Find Paradise in Jamaica.

For action, New York's Times square and Kingston, Jamaica, make a perfect contrast. For songs like "Lazy Bones," Kingston is certainly the place for inspiration. Hustle is a foreign word to native Jamaicans and so far as they are concerned, it can stay foreign.

The first impression which registers on the visitor is the lack-a-day mood of the native Jamaican boys and men. They lounge around. No plush-cushioned seats, to be sure, but any spot is soft enough. And even through the countryside, "pickaninnies," as Americans call them, never seem troubled by serious thoughts of work or anything else—but frolic.

For a taste, however, of a people living in another land, Jamaica adds variety to any cruise. It has its points of interest, fascination and romance. Even as the ship sails into the harbor, passing over submerged Port Royal, time flees backs to the days of Pirate Henry Morgan, for Port Royal was the buccaneer's headquarters, where he planned his raids of rich Spanish Main ports. The natives tell you that on stormy days the bell in the church tower, sunken deep in the blue water, chimes.

Once Port Royal was Jamaica's capital, but an earthquake jarred it and the sea engulfed it. Today, it is just a reminder of pirate tales. The survivors moved the capital across the bay to Kingston, where Jamaican life has bloomed in its natural way, where women still parade through the streets with market baskets balanced on their heads, where small cafes smell strongly of native Jamaica rum and where those too lazy to work the rich banana plantations gather to enjoy a life of leisure, even though it may be without luxury.

While under Spanish rule for a half century, few signs of Iberian influence are in evidence. The island is distinctly British. When it was wrested from Spain, it seems, anything which the Spaniards could not take with them they destroyed so that no real Spanish building remains. Even Spanish is seldom heard.

A Bermudian influence seems to grip the island, for while throughout the West Indies the motor car is the common transportation for visitors, Jamaica clings to the horse-drawn carriage, although a car is available upon request. Gasoline draws a handsome price, and horses seem plentiful, however, offering an excuse for the carriage's survival.—New York World-Telegram.

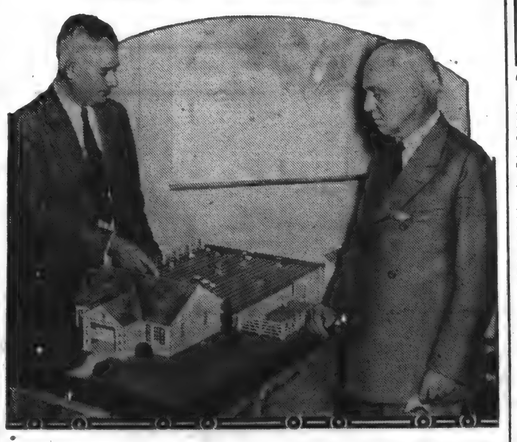
Subsistence Homesteads Planned



PART of the "new deal," and a very important part, is the plan to get people back to the farm to live on "subsistence homesteads" which are to be financed by the government to the extent of $25,000,000. Dr. M. L. Wilson of the Interior department, director of the plan (left), is showing a model of one of the homesteads to W. A. Julian, treasurer of the United States.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

REDDY FOX ADMIRES JERRY'S HOUSE

IF IN all the great world there is anybody pleasanter than Reddy Fox when he tries to be pleasant I don't know who it is. Of course in that handsome red coat of his he is very good looking, anyway. Then when he puts on the polite airs that no one knows better than he how to put on, brings into his eyes an innocent look, and smiles, he is as pleasant a fellow as you would care to meet. Only when he forgets and grins a little too broadly so that he shows all his long teeth does his face lose its pleasant look.

"Good Evening, Neighbor Jerry," Said He.

Now Reddy Fox was one of those who knew all about what was going on in the Smiling Pool. You know Reddy gets his living by knowing what is going on about him. Every night while Jerry Muskrat was at work on that new house Reddy had stolen over to the Smiling Pool, from among the rushes watched Jerry for a little while, and then stolen away again, taking the greatest care not to be seen.

"There isn't the least use in the world trying to get him now," said he, as he thought the matter over. "There won't be any use as long as he is at work on that new house. But when it is finished he'll have less to think about. I must see if I cannot find something to interest him."

Reddy grinned, and the grin was the kind of a grin which showed all his long teeth. He grinned just that same way each night as he trotted away from the Smiling Pool after watching Jerry work. At last came the time when Jerry stopped working because, you know, the house was finished. Reddy knew when Jerry stopped working. Oh, yes, Reddy knew all about it.

Then one evening Reddy visited the Smiling Pool quite openly. He sat right out on the bank in the moonlight, and you couldn't imagine anybody more pleasant than was Reddy. He had his most polite airs and his best grin.

"Good evening, neighbor Jerry," said he, and his voice was as pleasant as he knew how to make it.

Jerry stopped swimming long enough to look up at Reddy. Then, because he could hardly be less polite than Reddy, he squeaked: "Good evening," and started on his way. In a minute he dived and disappeared as he swam for the entrance to a certain tunnel in the bank. When he once more popped his head out of the water for a breath of fresh air Reddy was still sitting on the bank right where he had been and he was still as pleasant as before.

"I have been admiring your house," said Reddy. "You know I travel about a great deal and have seen many houses, but never have I seen one to compare with this. It is wonderful. Not even Paddy the Beaver can build such a house as this."

Now, of course this was rank flattery and not the truth at all, for Paddy the Beaver is a master builder as everybody knows. But it sounded sweet in the ears of Jerry Muskrat in spite of the fact that he knew. So he lingered to hear what more Reddy might say.

Mother's Cook Book

SEASONABLE FOODS

A MOST delicious dinner may be prepared in a Scotch kettle. Place a piece of brisket or shoulder of beef in the kettle with plenty of fat to brown all over. Then add a little water, cover it lightly and cook at a low heat. An hour or more before the meat is to be served add carrots, onions and later a few potatoes; cook, basting them occasionally and season well during the basting. Serve the meat surrounded by the vegetables and prepare a gravy from the liquor in the pan.

Molasses Pie.

It may be baked in individual tins or in the usual sized pie plates. Line a pit plate with flaky pastry and fill with the following mixture. Bring one cupful of molasses to the boiling point and add carefully a tablespoonful of butter rubbed to a paste with a tablespoonful of flour, cook in the molasses until slightly thickened, then remove from the fire and add the juice of a large lemon and a pinch of cinnamon. Walnut meats may be added to make it more tasty. Cover with a top crust and bake in a moderate oven.

Raisin Pie.

Line a pie plate with rich pastry. Pour boiling water over one and one-half cupfuls of seeded raisins, let stand until cool, drain and mix with three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and two tablespoonfuls of flour. Turn the mixture into a pie pan, piling it high in the center, sprinkle with the juice of a lemon and grating of the rind, add one-half cupful of water in which the raisins were soaked and dot with two tablespoonfuls of butter cut into small pieces. Cover with pastry and bake forty minutes. Have the oven very hot the first ten minutes to bake the pastry, then reduce the heat. Serve hot or cold.

NOT REALLY RAINING

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE mists of morning always rise,
Melt in the warmth of better skies.
I never see the vapor drifting
But in the moving it is lifting.
Give breezes time, the sun a chance,
And, as the hours of day advance,
The mists of morning rise and scatter
And prove a very little matter.

I wonder if we do not make
On many mornings this mistake?—
Mistake some little care for sorrow,
Although it ends before the morrow;
Make for ourselves a doleful list
Of losses that are only mist
That blows away, amid complaining,
Because it isn't really raining.

I know we have our larger grief,
But much that frets us is the brief,
Upon life's surface floating bubbles,
But mists that are not really troubles.
Though many losses living brings,
We sigh the most o'er little things.
Let us be glad, somehow or other,
Unless it's really raining, brother.

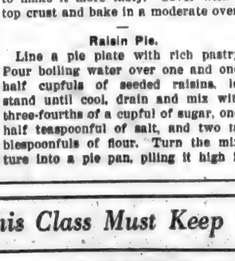
GRAPHIC GOLF



OVERCOMING HOOK AND SLICE

ONE reason for the popularity of deep faced clubs is their tendency to cure a slice. While most of th average golfers either slice or hook, the slice is far more prevalent. For this reason the ordinary golfer would undoubtedly find that the deeper faced clubs were more suitable to his particular case. Deep faced clubs have the power to counteract the slice and this fills a particular niche in most games that cannot be easily discounted. On the other hand those golfers who show a penchant for hooking might find it well to switch to shallow faced clubs. With these clubs the tendency to slice would overcome the hooking proclivity and a fairly straight ball would result. With these two facts in mind it should be a simple matter to find the club that best suits one's game. There's nothing like a straight ball off the tee to start the hole right.

Quality All-Important in Selection of Soap

By RUBY BAKER

The weekly wash is a good example of where "pinching on quality" is costly in the end. Women whose snowy-white washings are the envy of their neighborhood have learned the value of buying not cheaply but well.

When these women purchase a laundry soap they look for quality and washing value. They know that a perfect wash depends on the use of a high-grade soap. After all, it's the ability of the cleansing agents that gets results.

Many a housewife has found that a cheap or "weak" soap not only requires harder rubbing to get clothes clean, but that this hard rubbing actually harms the fabrics.

Where you buy quality, it makes little difference in what form a soap comes. A soap can be any color of the rainbow—without any effect at all on the whiteness of clothes. For instance, a certain well-known laundry soap is golden because that is the natural color of its combined fine ingredients. And due to its greater cleansing energy, this golden soap gets clothes cleaner—which means whiter.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are best for liver, bowels and stomach. One little Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic.—Adv.

What Worried Her

Mrs. Asker—Do you have any trouble with your furnace?

Mrs. Teller—My main trouble is getting my husband to attend to it.

Why Doctors Favor a Liquid Laxative

A doctor will tell you that the careless choice of laxatives is a common cause of chronic constipation.

Any hospital offers evidence of the harm done by harsh laxatives that drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and even affect the liver and kidneys.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be controlled. It forms no habit; you needn't take a "double dose" a day or two later.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the average person's bowels regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is little "convenience" in any cathartic which is taken so frequently, you must carry it with you, wherever you go!

Its very taste tells you Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. All druggists, ready for use, in big bottles. Member N. R. A.

Hope for Increase in World's Radium Supply

Will Canada one day be able to supply us with all the radium we require for our hospitals?

There are large deposits of radium-bearing ore in the great Dominion, and these are now being worked. They may transform the world radium situation.

For years now British hospitals have been seriously handicapped in their great fight against cancer by the high cost of radium, which has been practically a Belgian monopoly. Most of it comes from Katanga, in the Belgian Congo, which turns out about three grammes a month.

Rad'um is playing a vital part in fighting this scourge, and in view of this protests were recently made in parliament against the heavy duty collected on such imported radium. In reply the treasury announced that it should be removed. This relief lowers its price by about a third.

New radium-bearing deposits have been discovered at Glenelg Hills, western Australia; and other deposits at Wodgina are officially considered as eminently suitable for working. They yield one grain of the precious element to each ton of ore. —London Answers.

How Acid Stomach Makes Itself Known to You

HERE ARE THE SIGNS:

Nervousness	Frequent Headaches
Neuralgia	Feeling of Weakness
Indigestion	Sleeplessness
Loss of Appetite	Mouth Acidity
Nausea	Sour Stomach

Auto-Intoxication

WHAT TO DO FOR IT:

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful 30 minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

OR—Take the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets — one tablet for each teaspoonful as directed above.

If you have Acid Stomach, don't worry about it. Follow the simple directions given above. This small dosage of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts at once to neutralize the acids that cause headache, stomach pains and other distress. Try it. You'll feel like a new person.

But—be careful you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy—genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "PHILLIPS'" is on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM

Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Doan's PILLS

A DIURETIC FOR THE KIDNEYS

PASSED UP ALL FOR CLAM PIE

Delicacy That Made Hit With "Sea Devil."

Jot Small was telling me about the time Count von Luckner ("the Sea Devil") visited Commander McMillen, of Arctic fame, in Provincetown, Mass.

"Mac brought the count and some other guests over here to my Galley for supper one night," Jot related. "And I just locked the doors after they got in, so we wouldn't be disturbed by no other customers.

"Well, it was a Sat'day night, so of course the principal dish was baked beans. And after while, I got to noticing that Von Luckner didn't seem to care much for the beans. Oh, he was polite about it, all right, but he wasn't what you might call eager. He et bread and he drank coffee, and he pushed the beans and the pork around on his plate and went through the motions. But beans wasn't his dish.

"So pretty soon I whispered to Mac, 'Do you think he'd like clam pie?'

"'Try him and see what happens,' says Mac.

"So I cut a big wedge of clam pie and put it down by his plate. He looked at it, sort of uncertain, for a minute. Then he reached out his fork and cut off a little nibble. Then I seen his eyes kind of sparkle. He took a bigger bite. Then he took both hands and made a motion like a man swimmin', and pushed the beans one way and the coffee and bread the other, and pulled that pie right in front of him.

"'By Chove,' he hollered, 'I haf found someding!'

"He swallered that wedge like a logfish stealin' bait, and he held out his plate for more. That happened three times, and then he'd et the hull dam pie. And every time he'd finish a piece, he'd say, 'By Chove, I haf found someding!'

"He'll be droppin' his hook in these waters again, some day. Because he's goin' to have a heck of a time tryin' to teach 'em to make clam pie in Germany!" — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Vast Pampa Source of Welfare in Argentina

Argentina, richest of South American countries, draws its wealth from the pampa—a rockless, treeless sea of grass, 2,800 miles long and 900 miles wide, grazed by millions of head of stock. Fecund, half-wild herds of horses and cattle, seed of the conquistadores' mounts and milk cows, have been scientifically bred up to the stable and the abattoir.

Calmer herds, tamer men. Almost gone is the gaucho, cowboy son of Spanish settler and Indian squaw. Apotheosis of the type was Dictator Juan Manuel Rosas, who a century ago routed the Indians, united his countrymen, and ruled in a palace, with a court jester. On the pampas only the pampero (cold wind, rain or hail storms) and locust plagues remain fiercely primitive.

Buenos Aires, with its 2,000,000, is Paris, Chicago and pampa in one. Quite effete now, it no longer flaunts in its Boca section advertisements of cheap, expeditious murder by expert assassins. For safety and comfort, wheeled traffic is barred from the city's shopping district between 4 and 8 p. m.—World's Work.

TRY THIS!

When children won't eat— and won't gain weight—

The youngster who has no appetite, probably has stasis. A little syrup of figs will soon correct this condition—then watch the child eat—and gain!

Mothers should never coax a child to eat. Nature knows best. Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite—get rid of stasis. Children who don't eat are sluggish. Read what the "California treatment" is doing for sluggish, listless children in every part of the country!

A POUND A WEEK. Your child will eat well from the day and hour you conquer sluggishness. But that girl or boy with furry tongue and a bad breath should not be dosed with salts!

Begin tonight, with enough pure syrup of figs to cleanse the colon thoroughly. Less tomorrow, then every other day, or twice a week, until the appetite, digestion, weight, complexion, tell you the stasis is gone. When a cold or other ailment has again clogged the system, syrup of figs will soon set things to right.

When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, California syrup of figs will gently stimulate the colon muscles—and the child you used to coax to eat will fairly devour his food.

The claims made for California Syrup of Figs are true and it will do the same for you—IF you get genuine CALIFORNIA Syrup of Figs. Don't accept any substitute.

Blessed Scandal

JAMES GIMBEL was to play opposite Hansen!

Swiftly spread the news through Zenith that the great Swedish star had insisted on having him, and it created a sensation. Nora Hansen and James Gimbel! A magic combine, this, recalling the halcyon days when films were voiceless. Their screen appearances together then had been the supreme movie thrill for millions.

But, with bombshell suddenness, sound came; in the first frenzy, Hollywood and its public alike went heart and soul for the theatrical tones of any ham who had ever spoken lines. With Gimbel's initial talking picture, his voice was found lacking the dulcet purr of the new favorites, and audiences turned away.

Nora Hansen fared better. Surrounded by an aura of glamor and mystery, press agent-woven, she remained sacred to her public. Two more silent pictures she made while studying English, and then her first talkie was released. The rest is history. Overnight, a wave of adulation for the rich, husky voice with its foreign accent swept her to a new and incomparable peak of fame.

All this came to every one's mind and lips with word of Gimbel's selection. But there were a few for whom the thing held deeper meaning—who remembered the hints of something beyond professional interest between Hansen and her co-star in the old days.

But now, they asked, wasn't there more than met the eye in the star's demand for Gimbel? To Fiberg, the producer, who had tried dissuasion, she had said:

"For five years you gif' me my actors—nine or ten different ones—and I do not like any of dem. Now I shall haff de man I want. You t'ink he is—what-you-call-it—'t'rough'. Well, I show you he is still de best screen lover of all."

Never in all her career, had Hollywood's eagerest gossips been able to couple Nora Hansen's name with another's. Until recently, Gimbel, too, had been free of entanglements. A year before, however, he had unexpectedly married his newest leading lady while making a picture. She was almost an unknown in films.

Toward the actor Hansen displayed a rare warmth of manner, while he, in turn, seemed to regain the dash and zest of former years.

Then gradually, as the numerous love scenes were rehearsed and shot, a change began to appear in Gimbel's mood. Carefree ease gave way to tension and seeming passionate restraint.

Suddenly, as the last week of production started, Gimbel went to Fiberg with a surprise request.

"I want a two-day leave of absence," he announced; "I'd rather not tell you why, but it's very necessary."

To the producer's ears had come the current rumors, and now he stared quizzically at Gimbel. After a moment's silence, he said:

"Maybe you know it, and maybe you don't; but I was against putting you in this picture—and it looks like my hunch was right. They tell me you're costing us plenty for retakes and overtime wages. Now you want to tie everything up and take a vacation!"

The actor frowned with a touch of impatience.

"Just allow me these next two days," he repeated, "and I promise you'll have no further cause for complaint."

Fiberg started to voice a sharp refusal, checked himself, and gave a contemptuous snort.

"All right," he said disgustedly; "get out—and take Hansen with you!"

Gimbel whirled about, startled anger in his face. Then, slowly, the features relaxed in a broad smile.

"A splendid idea!" he exclaimed. "I'll do that!"

A brief notice informed the cast and crew that shooting would be discontinued for two days. Immediately gossip buzzed afresh, and a hundred theories of the cause were offered. All guessing, however, soon ended. At ten that evening, a news broadcast announced that Nora Hansen and James Gimbel, unaccompanied, had been seen arriving an hour before at Big Buffalo lake, a mountain resort fifty miles from Los Angeles.

Seated at home, Fiberg heard the item and came close to apoplexy. All too well he knew the public's distinction between spicy rumor and bald scandal. Frantically he phoned to Mile-Hi Lodge, the lake's one large hotel, told his name, and demanded to speak with Gimbel. After a brief wait, the actor's voice spoke in his ear, sounding excited.

"Where's Hansen?" Fiberg queried at once.

"In my suite; why?"

"You're fired!" he shouted; "fired—do you hear me? And if you don't get her back here in two hours, I'll have you arrested—I'll—"

A ringing laugh from the other end cut him off. When it was somewhat under control, Gimbel stammered mirthfully:

"Listen, you big stiff—it's a boy—an eight-pound boy!"

For one horrified instant Fiberg sought a memory of Hansen's lovely figure; then the actor was saying:

"Been expecting it for two weeks—ever since my wife came up here to dodge the publicity—but we just arrived in time. And listen—Nora says the darned kid looks like me!"

TELLING FATHER

He had been calling every night in spite of the warnings from his sweetheart about her irate father. This particular evening they had been planning their elopement.

Only the hall clock, announcing that the witching hour had been reached, broke the silence.

Then, without warning, a thump and a click were heard, and the room was flooded with light. There stood father, glowering and puffing at the terrified young caller.

"Who are you?" he bellowed.

The young man gulped and turned pale. But the color returned to his face suddenly, and rising to his feet, he said in a clear, loud voice: "I'm her brother."

Minor Official

"Now," said the bridegroom to the bride when they returned from their honeymoon trip, "let us have a clear understanding before we settle down to married life. Are you the president or the vice president of this society?"

"I want to be neither president nor vice president," she answered. "I'll be content with a subordinate position."

Faster Relief Now From Neuritis

Real BAYER Aspirin "Takes Hold" of Pain in Few Minutes

Now comes amazingly quick relief from headaches, rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia . . . the fastest safe relief, it is said, yet discovered.

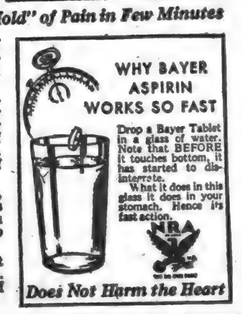
Those results are due to a scientific discovery by which a Bayer Aspirin Tablet begins to dissolve, or disintegrate, in the amazing space of two seconds after touching moisture. And hence to start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass, here, tells the story. A Bayer Tablet starts to disintegrate almost instantly you swallow it. And thus is ready to go to work almost instantly.

When you buy, though, see that you get the Genuine BAYER Aspirin. For Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always say "BAYER Aspirin."



Peace Stamp

From sturdy little Holland comes an idea that possesses more than the germ of common sense, says the Montreal Star. It consists of a peace postage stamp, with the regular design and a peace symbol added, to be sold in popular denominations by all nations at the same prices as their regular issues and for the same purpose. The voluntary purchase of a peace stamp will be regarded as a vote for peace, the request for such a stamp and the use of it being taken as an indication of the purchaser's sentiments.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

A class play entitled "On Ione's Trail" will be presented by the Senior Class in the near future. Try outs for the play will be held this week and the character parts assigned. Mr. Gerdes will direct the play rehearsals.

The Junior Class is adding to its treasury account through sale of candy bars at the noon hour and at basket ball games.

A Freshman Class party will be held in the gymnasium auditorium on Friday evening of this week. There are forty freshmen this year and Mr. Cox is class sponsor. We anticipate a very pleasant occasion from advance reports from committees.

The eighth grade enjoyed an evening in the home of Robert Schondlemayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Schondlemayer, on November 4th. While the eighth grade is the fewest in numbers of any class in our school they do not lack in either class spirit or interest in school work.

Mr. Maxwell, teacher of the third and fourth grades, at the request of the principal, made room talks to the lower six grades last week on the subject of "Safety Education."

In grades three to six Character Education stories will be used for the remainder of the school term. One of these valuable stories will be read and given consideration each week.

The Senior Class enjoyed (?) an intelligence test given during the sixth period on last Thursday afternoon by their class sponsor. Both the class and sponsor feel that they are better acquainted after that period of intensive concentration. In as much as the sponsor has used this test with all high school pupils under his supervision during the past twelve years he finds it of considerable use in understanding the abilities and interests of students.

The warm lunch service sponsored by the P. T. A. started on Monday of this week. About forty of the pupils and teachers were served on Monday and Tuesday.

Bad weather prevented many from attending the P. T. A. meeting, Tuesday evening. Being so near Armistice Day the program was largely patriotic and those absent missed a very splendid entertainment. Rev. J. N. Scholes had the devotional period; Miss Helen Ditmars sang "Keep the Home Fires Burning" with Mrs. F. B. Leighty at the piano; DuWayne Kinsey gave two saxaphone numbers, accompanied by Earl Kinsey; and two readings "America for Me" and "Indiana" were rendered by Mrs. A. H. Fabianske. Principal Munn introduced Captain Walter D. Stump, of Auburn, who addressed the association, students and friends on The Armistice. During the business session Miss Ditmars thanked those who had contributed to the success of the supper held in October. She stated that the sum thus earned had made it possible to start the warm lunch service on Monday of this week.

JUDGE ENDICOTT TO GRANT DIVORCE TO ST. JOE WIFE

Complaining that her husband failed to support his family, cursed and struck her, Bursal L. Zerby, of St. Joe, prosecuted her divorce case against Frank O. Zerby in the DeKalb circuit court late Saturday.

Judge Endicott indicated he would award her a decree when the costs are paid. Mrs. Zerby also is to have the custody of the only child, Robert, 3, and Zerby was ordered to pay $2 a week for the child's support.

The parties married January 8, 1929, and separated March 15, 1933. Mrs. Zerby's attorney is R. W. Sharpless.

The Zerbys lived on the Nicholls farm near Newville and Mr. Zerby is now employed at the Widney fruit farm.

ESCAPE BEING SOLD

Louis Wolfe, a farmer living near Peru, Ind., started to that city Friday with a load of hogs ready for market. When he arrived at his destination he found the truck empty. The end gate had dropped down and the animals had escaped.

LOCAL COMMITTEE TO AID DISTRESSED FARMERS

As the result of a plan recently adopted by the Indiana Agricultural Advisory Council, a county conciliatory committee has been set up in DeKalb county. This committee is composed of Larry Brandon, chairman, C. M. Brown of the Auburn State Bank, E. W. Atkinson of the law firm of Atkinson & Husselman, Harry Shull and Albert Yoder.

The committee, which will serve without compensation, will assist in distressed cases only, and will act as conciliator between the farmer and the holder of the mortgage, and also will assist the farmer in transferring his mortgage to the Federal Land Bank by paying the present mortgage holder with a Federal loan, and thus permit good farmers to retain the ownership of their farms, with a good chance of carrying on their operations successfully.

DAMAGE CASE SETTLED BY HICKSVILLE

Trial of the $25,000 suit of F. S. Dowell, against the Village of Hicksville, was brought to an abrupt close in Defiance county common pleas court Friday night when attorneys for the plaintiff and defense agreed on a settlement of $5,000. Dowell had alleged that sewage from the village had damaged his farm property and endangered health.

Two other suits, both for $25,000, filed by John Freeland and L. M. Hylpert, were settled by agreement at the same time, although they had not come to trial. Freeland was given $600, and Hylpert settled for $500. Refuse from the village is dumped into Mill Creek, which runs through several nearby farms, and from there it flows into the Maumee river.

Auburn postoffice will become dead letter office December 1. Mail of such character has been going to Chicago office.

NEARLY 500 FARMERS HAVE SIGNED WHEAT AGREEMENT

Four hundred and ninety-six DeKalb county farmers have made contracts with the government in the wheat allotment program for 1934, the county committee in charge announced Friday.

The bushels allotted is about 99,000, or 46 per cent of the possible total of 202,608. The growers are to be paid 25½ cents a bushel by the government in accordance with the program.

The county committee is composed of Harry M. Shull, of Union township, Arthur Lautzenhiser, of Franklin township and Clyde Hart of Spencer township.

A legal notice appears in this issue giving names of farmers in this section who signed the contracts.

SPORTING NEWS

The St. Joe Merchants were defeated by the Spencerville Independents by the close score of 18-17. The Merchants having had only two practices before this game, and the fact that Spencerville always has a fast team on the floor, is a good reason for the Merchants to feel that they are going to win a lot of games from now on.

The team and manager want to thank the local H. S. students and all others for their attendance last Thursday evening, and especially the rooting.

The Merchants practice Thursday evening in the preparation for the game with the Wayne Independents, Saturday evening. High School girls will play the preliminary at 7:15, prompt.

Let's pack the gym Saturday evening.

NOTICE OF FARM ALLOTMENTS AND OF MAXIMUM ACREAGES OF WHEAT FOR 1934 UNDER CONTRACTS FOR MEMBERS OF THE WHEAT PRODUCTION CONTROL ASSOCIATION OF DeKALB COUNTY, STATE OF INDIANA

Listed below are statements of the allotments which have been determined for members of the DeKalb County Wheat Production Control Association from Concord, Spencer and Stafford Townships. These allotments are to hold for the duration of the present wheat contracts, and they are the basis upon which adjustment payments are to be made. They have been determined by the County Allotment Committee after careful consideration of the application statements. Every effort has been made to have these allotments as accurate as possible. The maximum acreage which may be sown to wheat for the 1934 crop on each farm, under the reduction requirements of the contract, is also listed.

The DeKalb County allotment, which has been calculated from records of the United States Department of Agriculture, is 202,608 bushels. This is the total number of bushels alloted to the county under the wheat plan. The total of the individual allotments, including those allotments which could have been assigned to farms which are not participating under the wheat program, must be in line with the county allotment figure.

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare

It is now expected that the New Year will see the approval of all the industrial codes. That will mean that the National Recovery Administration has completed its first great task. At this writing, 59 codes, covering the basic industries, have been approved. One hundred thirty-seven are being revised. Forty-seven are scheduled for early hearings. By the time this is read the retail code, which was one of the most difficult, will have been approved unless an unlooked-for problem crops up. Most interesting feature of this code is that it will eliminate selling at less than advertise "leaders" at less than cost in the hope that customers buying them will buy other goods on which a profit is made. Very small stores in towns of bottom-bracket population, will be immune to code provisions.

One important NRA problem is going to be the attitude of the press. Here's where the recovery administration made a possibly far-reaching mistake. When General Johnson excluded two reporters from his conference, because he didn't like what they had been writing about NRA, he was doing the unprecedented. Then he put his foot in deeper by advocating a licensing system for papers, and just about every metropolitan editor in the country ran for his typewriter. On top of that an NRA representative in the South called on the editor of a medium-sized paper, told him that if he didn't stop making unfriendly comment on NRA labor provisions, he'd find himself in trouble. The editor spoke up in his paper and found the whole press, including the most zealous supporters of the Roosevelt program, behind him. This threatened press censorship is vitally important, and sparks are going to fly when it really comes to a head.

General belief is that Mr. Roosevelt is heartily in favor of a free press—that his mistake is in not holding tight enough rein on some of his assistants.

One fine afternoon back in 1913 an obscure prince was shot in the equally obscure city of Sarajevo. To most of the world the event simply meant one more scarehead and nothing more. Then armies began mobilizing. Lights burned late in the chancelleries. The British Navy set out for maneuvers several weeks ahead of the normal time. And the greatest war in history was under way.

Matters are not especially different in Europe now. Hitler's withdrawal of Germany from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference, has sent the greatest scare since those 1913 das through premiers and emperors, congresses and parliaments. The Hitler position is that the Versailles treaty is unbearable—that the refusal to meet Germany on an equal basis as fas as armaments, especially, are concerned, thrusts the blame onto the other powers and that whatever happens will be their fault. Position of the other powers is more vague than that, and more confused. But they indefinitely fear Germany. Theoretically she has no army, save a small Reichswehr made up of picked men in for long terms. Practically, she has a great army, consisting of Hitler's brown shirts, which, under command of schooled Reichswehr officers, is powerful indeed. Her great lack is the weapons of offense—artillery, tanks, planes.

Final decision may be left to France, which has most at stake, is most afraid. Many European statesmen believe it is time to declare a preventative war on Germany, crush her absolutely and unseat Hitler, before she has time to prepare. Smaller countries are alarmed—barricades are rising on the Swiss frontier, and her small, but first-class army received increased appropriations, went into harsh training. There is a link of nations around Germany of which but one, France, is great—the others, however, by cumulative action, could make it very unpleasant for Hitler.

So far as the United States is concerned, these events are of only economic importance. Roosevelt policy will doubtless be to keep hands off—even in case of war, to pursue complete and dispassionate neutrality. It's Europe's affair—and the fires are burning faster daily.

Our printing draws attention. Give us a chance to prove it

Dividend Printing

▶There is one kind of printing that you want—printing that pays a dividend on the investment.

▶A letterhead with right sort of type properly balanced is a real business asset. It wins the approval of the person receiving your letter, and while he is in this frame of mind your letter is read.

▶The same reasoning applies to any other job of printing. Neatness, the right weight and kind of paper, the color of the ink, the selection of the type, all play an important part in the production of dividend printing.

We are equipped to give you that kind of printing. Let us prove it to you.

Railroad Legislation

A RECENT state legislative bill provided that a track man carrying a bell by day and a lantern by night should lead all railroad trains across grade crossings; that conductors must smile when answering questions; that it would be a misdemeanor to serve eggs more than one day old on pullman cars; that trains be required to stop at any time when flagged by hitch-hikers, and that trains crossing rivers wider than twenty-five feet be equipped with lifeboats and life preservers. This one did not pass.

The Bank as a Rebuilder

IN place of a 3 per cent loss on an investment of $40,000 a large New York savings bank is now getting 6 per cent profit on an investment of $80,000, because it had the good business judgment to spend $40,000 in modernising a group of 40-year-old tenement houses on the lower East Side which it was forced to take over on mortgage foreclosure, says an article in the American Bankers Association Journal. A year or two ago the owner, who had always kept up his mortgage payments, began to neglect the property, it became run down and the tenants began to leave.

The bank remodeled the buildings completely, putting in an oil-burning heating plant, incinerators and other modern changes, with the result the buildings are now entirely rented, and there is $14,000 a year coming in instead of several thousand going out. At that rate the improvements will pay for themselves in three years.

This same bank has done 15 other renovation jobs similar to this, and all have proved profitable. The bank has its own architects and is employing seven painters who are kept busy continuously.

GO TO ASHLEY

The DeKalb county young people's Sunday School convention will be held this year on December 2nd and 3rd at the Christian and Methodist Churches in Ashley.

FISH AND GAME CLUB HOLD MEETING

The Fish and Game Club was attended Thursday night by 40 members and a membership of 65 was reported to date. L. H. Dunten of Ft. Wayne gave a splendid talk on the effects of out-of-door sports such as the club sponsors, on the life of the boy. No true sportsman ever concocted devilment while engaged in fishing or hunting sports.

The reforestation program was deemed necessary by the speaker, in order to prevent floods, which in earlier days was unknown, and today are accounted for doing millions of dollars of damage annually, which can not be controlled by artificial means.

A luncheon followed plans for a membership drive, consisting of corn cake, coffee and beans.

The K. of P. hall made an ideal place for the gathering and December will see a much larger attendance.

"I was bidding farewell to an old lady in one charge I was relinquishing," said a clergyman, "and answered her regrets by saying I was sure my successor would be a better man. 'I don't know,' burst out the lady, 'they seem to be getting worse and worse every time!' "

"Guilty or not guilty?" asked the judge sternly of Rastus, charged with chicken stealing.

"Not guilty, Jedge."

"What is your alibi?"

"Alley by which?"

"You heard me. Have you an alibi?"

"You mean de alley by which Ah got away, Jedge?"

The preacher's small son was being quizzed by an elderly visitor one day.

"Does your father ever preach the same sermon twice?" he was asked.

THE NUTTIER THE BETTER—WHEN IT'S FOOD

A-nutting we will go! At least if you live in the country, you're missing a deal of fun if you don't saunter out with bag and tall stick (to knock them down) to gather your Autumnal share of nuts. If it's the city were you dwell, then it's the markets and the street vendors who must supply your new-crop nuts. For "and add a cup of nuts" is the culinary direction that makes a success of many a recipe, lends charm to many a dish.

Black walnuts (vanishing Americans that they are;) filberts, almonds; chestnuts, sometimes called "marrons;" English walnuts; pecans—hard shell or soft; Brazil nuts, called "niggertoes;" butternuts; and the tough hickories which need a smashing to get the meats—all the nuts of nutdom can go in or on your favorite dishes, to make them even better. Let these recipes guide you in making them nuttier—and better!

Almond Filled Cookies

1 cup butter, 1 cup sugar,
2 cups flour 1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla

Cream butter until soft and fluffy; add sugar gradually; beat well. Add unbeaten egg and flavoring. Add sifted flour slowly to make a very soft dough. Press one half of the dough into ungreased shallow square pan! Cover with filling. Prick and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 25-30 minutes or until delicately brown. Cut in squares when cool.

Filling: Mix together ½ cup preserved Canton ginger, ½ cup blanched almonds and ½ cup citron; put through food chopper. Add ⅓ cup maple karo and a little salt.

Brazil Nut Salad

1 can grapefruit
¼ cup Brazil nuts
1 pkg. cream cheese Lettuce
Cream mayonnaise or French Dressing

Make cheese into little balls and roll in coarsely chopped nuts. Drain juice from can of grapefruit. Arrange grapefruit sections and three cheese balls to a serving on cup-shaped lettuce leaves. In center put a pasteurized date (stuffed with date-cheese mixture.) Cover with dressing and sprinkle with chopped nut meats. Other nutmeats may be substituted for Brazil nuts. 6 servings.

Nut Brown Puff

6 graham crackers, crumbled
2 egg yolks, beaten
⅛ cup sugar ¼ cup nutmeats
¼ tsp. salt ¼ tsp. almond flavoring
1½ cups scalded milk
⅛ tsp. vanilla 2 egg whites

Mix crumbled crackers, sugar, salt and cover with scalded milk. Stir into beaten egg yolks. Add nutmeats (chopped) and flavoring and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into buttered baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 35-40 minutes.

Fruit Nut Penoche

3 cups light brown sugar
1 cup rich milk 1 tsp. vanilla
¼ cup water ½ cup figs (cut)
1 tbsp. butter ¼ pkg. pasteurized dates
½ cup nuts (cut)

Place the water, cup of milk (or ¾ cup evaporated milk) sugar, and butter in a large saucepan. Stir over low heat until the sugar is entirely dissolved and the mixture begins to boil. Boil until a soft ball is formed in cold water. Remove from the stove and cool, add vanilla and beat until creamy, add the cut nuts and fruit just before turning into a buttered pan. 1¾ pounds.

Pecan Pie

1 recipe pie crust 1 cup pecans chopped
3 eggs, beaten 1 cup dark karo
½ cup sugar 1 tsp. vanilla
2 tbsps. butter Salt

Bake pie crust slightly—just enough to "set." Then mix filling ingredients well, pour in shell and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until done. If you prefer a pie of lighter color, use white karo.

Nut Sandwiches

Chop salted pecans and combine with chopped, drained canned pimientoes; just before serving spread on saltinas. For sweet sandwiches, combine chopped bananas, moistened with orange juice, English walnut meats and spread on graham crackers when ready to eat.

Nutty Divinity

1¾ cups sugar, ½ tsp. vanilla
½ cup white karo ½ pkg. pasteurized dates
¼ cup water ⅛ cup nut meats
⅛ tsp. salt ½ cup toasted cocoanut
1 egg white

Cook sugar, karo, water and salt to hard ball stage (260 degrees F.) Leave saucepan over the burner after heat has been turned off. Beat egg white quickly with Dover beater. Pour hot syrup slowly over beaten egg white, beating constantly. Continue beating until candy will hold shape. Add vanilla, sliced dates and nuts; mix thoroughly. Turn out on marble slab or molding board. 1¼ lbs.

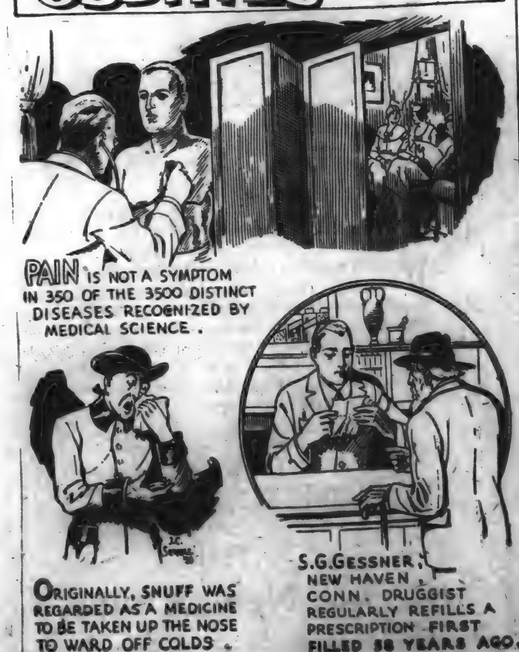
HEALTH ODDITIES

by DR. O. J. Waring
RESEARCH DIRECTOR, A.D.S. FELLOWSHIP



SPENCERVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Chapel Services were conducted Tuesday morning by Rev. Howard Brown. He continued his discussion of the writing of the New Testament. He spoke in part as follows: First in point of time are Paul's Epistles, written perhaps 49-70 A. D. Second in point of time are the Gospels. Matthew, Mark, and Luke are called the synoptic Gospels, i. e. biography of the life of Jesus. A synopsis of either of these three gospels is similar to that of either of the others. Mark was probably written about 70 A. D. by John Mark, who saw Jesus and years later wrote to the Romans telling them of the courage of Jesus.

Luke, known as the beloved physician, went with Paul. He never saw Jesus, but later he wrote of what he had heard. He wrote to the Greeks, a highly intellectual people, and told the same story which Mark had written to the Romans.

Matthew was written about 90 A. D. and John, probably 100 A. D. John wrote in a philosophic strain. John is not so much interested in the life of Jesus as he is in what His coming meant to the world.

One of the gospels, Luke, has a sequel called The Acts of the Apostles, written by Luke to his friend telling not of what Jesus did while on earth but of what happened to the church after the death of Jesus. Reverend Brown says the Bible should be read as a running story and not in piecemeal fashion. There is nothing like it in any other literature in the world. Know your Bible stories and history!

The Seniors held a class meeting Thursday noon to plan for a party in the near future.

The Senior class were approached Friday by an agent on the subject of caps and gowns for commencement activities, which thus early begin to appear dimly on the horizon of school affairs for spring. No final decision was reached.

Dola Hurni has been absent for several days past, due to illness. She feels much improved at this time, however, and we expect to see her back in her usual place on Monday.

Classes and school affairs in general have settled again into routine procedure.

The Home Economics Department has planned on 3 soup days a week. The girls expect to serve it for 1c per bowl and 1c for crackers on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday of each week. Any donations of vegetables, soup stock, milk or other soup materials will be greatly appreciated by the committee in charge of the worthy project.

The seventh grade are getting quite a thrill following the episodes of Miles Standish, John Alden and Priscilla Mullen.

The eighth grade are fostering the Christmas spirit this early by following the reformation of "Old Scrooge in "The Christmas Carol" by Dickens.

These two classes have reading twice a week.

Thanksgiving is the next vacation in sight. However Armistice Day is to be observed in fitting fashon before we dare to be thankful for lesser blessings.

The leaves have fallen fast
Gloomy days are here at last,
But wear a smile, and have no fear
For Christmas brings a load of cheer.

HORSE SENSE

The wide awake farmer never takes chances on his field corn, but saves a good supply early in the fall.

Damp soybeans spoil easily in storage. Threshing or combining should be delayed until the grain is hard.

Clean off the growth and trash in fields where troublesome insects may hibernate over winter.

In storing potatoes, do not pile them in too large piles. Good ventilation is necessary to prevent black heart.

Save doctor and drug bills by giving the entire family access to a basket of good apples at all times.

Approximately 1,500 bushels of corn are required to maintain a breeding herd of 10 sows and feed the spring and fall litters from this number of sows to market weight of 200 pounds.

The best seed ears come from corn plants whose leaves are still green when the ear is ripe and the husks are turning yellow.

Fall plowing should always be left in the rough to expose as much as possible of the soil to repeated freezing and thawing.

A Negress went to her husband's doctor and said: "Doctah, ah's come to see if you am gwine to ordeh Rastus one of dem mustard plasters again."

"I think, Mandy, he'd better have one more."

"Well, he says to ax you kin he have a slice of ham with it, 'cause it's mighty pow'ful to take alone."

Bankers Aiding Agriculture

State associations of bankers in many agricultural states are giving time and financial support to encourage practices among their farmers that will bring about better farm results.

The major activities reported from one state to the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association which is nationally active in promoting this line of cooperation are as follows:

1. Drought relief work: Local banks have played a vital part in this work, being represented on the county committees for passing on all seed loans. These committees met practically every day during the spring to pass on the loans in order to get as quick action as possible. A total of 914 applications were received and handled by one committee, 822 being granted.

2. Four-H Club work: Bankers helped stimulate 4-H Club work, financing many members who otherwise could not have enrolled. They also helped finance fifteen 4-H Club delegates to the state club convention.

3. Livestock feeding: The banks cooperated with the Extension Service in the state and the railroads in increasing the amount of livestock feeding. Assistance was given the feeders in securing finances for their feeding operations.

4. Crop improvement: The bankers took part in the crop standardization program of the Extension Service and encouraged the farmers to use pure seed and in many cases made loans for this purpose.

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

R. H. C.

The annual Halloween party of the Rural Housewives Club was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Jenkins, Tuesday evening, October 31st.

The children and husbands were guests of the organization and with nearly all the members present a most enjoyable evening ensued.

Upon approaching the house one was impressed with an uncanny atmosphere produced by subdued lights and appropriate decorations of pumpkin heads, ghosts and all the possibilities of the artistic use of orange and black crepe paper.

The guests were met at their cars by a ghost who informed them to follow her direction which led them thru dark halls and recesses. They wore masks of comic and weird designs. After an amusing guessing contest of "who was who" Will Hamilton proved to be the "toughest" guess, receiving a prize. Other contests followed, A. W. Trostel and Alice Virginia Hart receiving prizes.

The whole event was climaxed with an appetizing lunch of pumpkin pie, doughnuts and coffee, and a weiner roast on the lawn.

The committee in charge was Mrs. Walter Coburn, Inez Hadsell, Mrs. A. W. Trostel, Mrs. Wm. L. Hamilton, Mrs. Lehr Wilder and Mrs. Fred Hart

FARM BUREAU

Mrs. Grace Dilley, DeKalb county Social and Educational director of the Farm Bureau most delightfully entertained the township S. and E. directors and a few invited guests at her home, north of St. Joe, last Friday.

At the noon hour luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Stella Goldsmith and Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick. Following the luncheon talks were given by Albert Yoder, County Farm Bureau Chairman; Senator Larry Brandon and Frank Baltz. Instrumental music by Mrs. Frank Baltz. A vocal solo by Mrs. Mary Simpson and a talk by Mrs. Stella Goldsmith. Says Ruth Smeltzer in the Pathfinder:

"Oh, Mr. President,
We've no cotton or wheat,
But we've a crop of carrots
That's very hard to beat;
If you will give us
Some of the 'bonus plunder'
We'll be tickled to death
To go out and plow it under."

It might be easier to create a job for every man, insinuates the Cuba (Illinois) Journal, than to make every man work.

"The time has come for us to act, not to argue," says Senator Capper, who adds: "When a man's house is on fire he cannot adopt a conservative attitude about it. He cannot stop to take time to balance the niceties and equities about the matter."

"No," answers the New York Times, "but he can afford to stop long enough to make sure that what he is throwing on the fire is water and not gasoline."

Every public building in Kansas must be provided with a sufficient number of cuspidors. It's a state law.

Because Sergeant Patrick Gallagher, a Chicago policeman, died from the results of spider bite which he received while on duty in March, 1932, his widow sues the Policeman's Benefit Association for $10,000 death benefit.

It's the average man who is suffering most during these depressing times. The most of the rich continue to live in their luxurious homes and have all life's necessities without embarassment; the hoboes, tramps and extremely poor are given more attention than in normal times. It is the tradesman, professional men, merchants, etc, that seem the worst hit.

"The trouble is the things we seek
Cannot be bought for ten-a-week.
And all the joys for which we sigh
Are just too rich for us to buy.
We have the taste to cut a dash,
The thing we're lacking most is cash."

CHILD NEGLECT BRINGS FATHER INTO COURT

Harold E. Farver, a former Jackson township resident, was brot back from White Pigeon, Mich., Wednesday night by Sheriff John P. Hoff, to answer a charge of child neglect.

Nellie E. Farver secured a divorce from the defendant 10 years ago and she was given the custody of the children, Audrey, now 15, and Maxine, 12. Farver was to pay $10 a week for the support of the children but this was later reduced to $15 a month. However, he has paid nothing since last April.

Mrs. Farver and the children live with her mother, Mrs. Thomas Stafford, in Jackson township. Farver is remarried and now lives at White Pigeon. He claims he has been out of work and unable to pay.

RED CROSS NURSE'S ACTIVITIES FOR ONE DAY LAST WEEK

The Red Cross Nurse, on a cold slippery morning of last week called at a Dentist's office to drive him to some schools for a Dental Survey. They visited one school with 2 rooms, and three one room schools. One hundred and eight pupils were examined. Along with other defects, 35 children had 78 cavities in permanent teeth. In the first 4 grades, these cavities were usually, quite small, and if filled, the teeth will be permanently saved. In the four older grades these cavities were much larger, due to the lack of early filling, will cost more to fill and even then, in the course of time, may be lost. Only one little laddie was afraid to be examined, however after the dentist had made friends with him by visiting him in his own seat, he smiled brightly through his tears opened his mounth, unafraid, to proudly show us a fine set of teeth.

On our way home, while the sun, to our relief, was shining, and the roads had cleared, the Dentist told the Nurse that many children were coming to him for care, owing to our Dental Survey conducted in our schools during the autumn months.

In the afternoon, a mother called to see the nurse in her office, about clothes for her infant son. Another mother came with a friend, to talk about her daughter who has tuberculosis. An organization, at the request of the Nurse, had furnisehd a pint of milk each day for the daughter after her return from the Irene Byron Hospital, during her last year, but had discontinued this. The Nurse dropped a post card to this club to intercede for this daughter, and wrote a letter to the Red Cross Chairman in that locality about needed clothing. A report was sent in that a boy sick in bed with kidney trouble, was living alone, and starving for the want of food. The Nurse jumped in her car and investigated this report, then reported this case to an organization. Four postcards written, 5 phone calls and 2 calls answered, completed the day's activities.

Catherine E. Eoll,
Red Cross County Nurse.

BUY NOT, EAT NOT

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

Sometimes we have to go against our training or go broke. Sometimes what we have always believed to be a rule of virtuous conduct proves fatal in practice. For instance, we have grown up in the belief, fostered by our parents and teachers and enforced by our government, that we have no right to take or use the property of another person without his consent, but if the property in question happens to be a blackjack that the other person is about to bring down on my head I shall have a better chance of surviving if I perceive, in time, the unwisdom of clinging unalterably to old convictions. That is, there are times of emergency when clinging to an old conviction will be ruinous. Let us consider the present time in its relation to our old conviction in favor of thrift.

People of pioneer stock are often spoken of as the "backbone of the country," and probably they are. Pioneers are thrifty or they don't survive. If the wood pile is used too freely in the autumn it may not last through the winter, and the Midland child learned thrift at its grandmother's knee. Moreover, we've been taught for several generations that it isn't what a man earns that counts and takes care of him in his old age; it's what he saves. We've always believed that thrift is a virtue, that spending is risky and that squandering is suicidal. We demand thrift from our government, vote against political candidates proven unthrifty, and we investigate, and often relegate to private life, officials shown to be carelessly lavish with public funds. The value of thrift, indeed, is one of our strongest convictions. No one doubts that it is a right and useful conviction or that it would be dangerous to unsettle it; but here is the United States government coming to us now, asking us to buy, buy, buy, advising us to spend our money rather than to save it, and generally appearing to set itself strongly in opposition to that old principle of thriftiness in which we were trained. There seems to be a contradiction somewhere.

Moreover, the government asks us to spend at a time when we have the least to spare, at a time when the Federal government itself, as well as our State, county and city governments, are taking heavily from us in taxes and in that way lessening our power to spend. Worst still, our government, through the N.R.A., asks us to spend at a moment of great financial uncertainty in our lives, at a moment when we don't know whether we're emerging from the depression or going deeper into it, and when we aren't sure whether we're less afraid of the future than we were a year ago, or more so. The curious thing about the government's exhortation to us to spend is that the exhorters know how we feel and how we're situated; they know our old conviction in favor of thriftiness and they agree with that conviction—and yet these same exhorters ask us to buy, buy, buy!

What's the answer? Money is a means of trade. If you had a cord of wood and no food, and your neighbor had a cellar full of potatoes and no fuel, and if neither of you were willing to trade, he'd have raw potatoes to eat but he'd freeze to death, and you'd have heat enough perhaps, but you'd starve to death. Thrift is indeed a virtue; but this is a time of emergency during which it's necessary to buy goods so that somebody'll have money enough to pay us for what we produce. If it's hard for us to get rich by washing one another's shirts, it's certainly impossible for us to make a living by washing our own. It seems wiser to live by spending than to perish by saving.

DEKALB FARMERS COMPLETE WHEAT CONTRACTS

The DeKalb County Wheat Allotment Board has completed its work on Wheat contracts and sent them to Washington, D. C. Monday. There were 502 contracts in all, covering 8,800 acres and the number of alloted bushels is 95,079 which, with 20 cents a bushel paid by the Government as the first payment, means that in a few weeks the wheat growers in this county will receive a total of $19,015.80. There will be 1320 acres taken out of production.

Those signing contracts annually produced 204,000 bushels of wheat with an average of 24 bushels per acre. The non-signers produced 240,000 bushels annually, with an average of 23½ bushels per acre. There were about 1100 wheat growers that were eligible to sign contracts. If everyone had signed there would be over $40,000 coming into the county as first payment.

The next payment amounting to over $4200 will be made by the Government sometime in June after it has been determined that the signers have fulfilled their contracts.

FARM LOANS MADE BY FEDERAL BANK

During the week ending November 8, the Federal Land Bank of Louisville, closed 710 loans and mailed checks totaling $1,486,000 to the farmers of Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana, and Ohio. Ernest Rice, President of the Bank announced today. This is by far the largest number of loans ever closed in one week by the Land Bank and is more loans than were closed during the entire year of 1932.

In addition the Bank now has 7337 approved loans aggregating about fifteen million dollars which can be closed as soon as the borrower sends in a completed abstract of title to the property.

During the month of October, a total of 828 loans aggregating $2,099,600 were closed by the Federal Loan Bank. Of these, 170. for $318,100 went to Indiana.

THANKS

We, as the newly elects of the St. Joe Town Board, wish to thank those who came to our support in time of need.

Also equally thanking those who did not. Our aim, as the board, shall be to look after the best interest of the town at all times.

The Board.

SPORTING NEWS

The St. Joe Merchants were defeated by the Fort Wayne Box Co. basket ball team last Saturday eve by the score of 29-15.

The Merchants have no alibi, as the Box Co. are all veteran ex-stars of Fort Wayne high schools and are in constant practice.

The crowd witnessing the game saw some real basket ball formations.

The Merchants are ironing out the rough spots and with the addition of local ex-high school players will be ready to take into camp the fast Albion Hubs on Wednesday evening, Nov. 22. Again we thank all of you fans for your attendance, we hope soon to merit a continuance of same.

The desire of the United States to purchase gold at a fixed price represents a determination to settle the value of the American dollar, but the value of the dollar, considered by itself, is not the end immediately sought. The end ultimately in view is to raise the price of commodities by lowering the value of the dollar, and an increase in the price of goods is part of the present recovery plan. In other words, a corner on gold is desired. The efforts of individuals to control the price of a commodity has been met with failure in many instances which the past records. The situation is highly complicated, but the matter reduces itself to two questions: Can the United States carry out its gold-purchasing program alone, and if it cannot, how far may it safely count on foreign aid, particularly on the help of England. We are planning big things. The new movement of the government in the direction of absorbing gold and fixing the value of the dollar, relative to the price of commodities, is one of them. With so many wise heads at work, most of us can do no more than wait, watch the potency of the pay envelope considered relatively to the market basket, and see whether good or evil follows in the wake.

By the action of President Roosevelt, a man named Washington has been saved, temporarily at least, from the electric chair in the District of Columbia. He is said to be resigned to his fate. Recent biographers have put the memory of another Washington in the electric chair. They would have us believe that he was no more than a good militiaman and an ignorant, hard-fisted, country aristocrat. If General Washington knows what is going on, perhaps he is simply looking down in calm content, resigned to his fate, like his namesake. He has no reason to be disturbed. It will take more than professional historians, magnifying the incident and incapable of broad survey, to convince the public that General Washington was not a man whose reputation will remain large, even in the perspective of time.

When King Pharaoh of Egypt was having an interwiew with Joseph he asked: How old art thou? The Civil Service people are making the same inquiry, but not merely in courteous wonder. It is proposed, though in the face of some opposition, to shut the gate against certain applicants who own up to the age of forty years.

In bringing about a reform of criminal procedure, more has to be accomplished than appears on the surface. A court should be a place where a criminal can tell his story and then be judged. The law to the contrary notwithstanding, courts too often are places which a criminal enters with the presumption of guilt against him. He is not there to bring out the truth, but to get out of something which it is already assumed he has done. The prevailing disrespect for law arises in no small degree from the fact that the law promises to act in one way, and really operates in one that is quite different. Most persons hate a law court like a pesthouse. When the courts come to be recognized as friends in need and as wise and impartial arbiters in the instance of doubt, reform will have arrived. There is something radically wrong in a system under which a litigant or prisoner rejoices not in the fact that his cause is to be heard in court, but rather in the circumstances that he has a "good lawyer."

A hen is credited with 357 eggs in one year. The fact that her roost is in Canada frees her from the charge of over-production under the terms of the N. R. A.

The Greek courts have decided that Mr. Insull need not be returned to the United States for trial. Greece may have thought that it was a fair bargain to give Homer to the world, take Mr. Insull in exchange, and call the account square.

Some aspersions used to be cast upon the late President Garfield because in his youth he worked on a canal. The canal boat and the canal mule long have been a rich mine of joke material. Mariners have scoffed at canal navigation as "ditch crawling" and chafed for the blue deep and the far horizon of the sea. The latest government project is a canal across Georgia and Florida, which will shorten by twelve hours the passage from the Atlantic to the Gulf of Mexico. The attention that is being given to sheltered navigation is noteworthy. It is promised that in time is will be possible to go from Texas to Massachusetts by an inside route. The old salts were strong and useful men, but like the trans-continental stage drivers, they may have to see their ancient calling go down before something simpler, more expeditious and void of hazard.

EVERYONE MUST HELP

Not another winter like the last! That was the pledge of the new Administration when it came into office. Every effort is being given to achieve it. It represents the most earnest hope of every citizen.

But government alone can't do it all. We can spend money for relief—and we are, but there is never enough. We can build public works—but there comes an end to that, and the public treasury is not bottomless. A large share of any kind of relief effort must be borne by the individual citizen.

And this doesn't mean charity, vital as that is. The best kind of relief is that which spends money and provides jobs on projects which are permanently valuable, and gives those who pay the bill something really needed. That is true whether the work is done by the Federal government or the state, or John Jones down the street.

A dollar spent for a new house, or to repair an old one, does double duty. An extremely large share of it goes directly to labor. The rest of it goes to various industries through numerous pockets. It touches many states and communities. It is always growing, and by the time it has run its course it has done the work of fifty or a hundred dollars.

DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT

A business man of Arkansas recently received a letter from the Federal Barge Lines, in a franked envelope, soliciting his business. He replied—and gist of what he had to say was that he would never ship anything over that subsidized line, and that he resented the free use of the mails for sales promotion efforts.

His views are shared by a legion of American citizens. The difference is that most of them do nothing about it. They watch the hand of the bureaucrat feel its way into more and more businesses—they see government go into the unfairest kind of competition with existing private businesses—they watch taxes soar while tax sources grow smaller. They have some realization of the menace in those things—they know that it may be only a question of time before their business will be among those hit. Yet so far, their influence has been negligible in shaping and creating governmental policies. They are disorganized—while the friends of government-in-business are organized and active.

It's long past the time that American business should make itself felt in this. There is plenty of ammunition at hand. The Shannon report, made by the Senate some time ago, produced the fact that more than 50 industries are subject to tax-exempt and tax-financed government competition. Other surveys show amazing discoveries.

We can't have real recovery if industry is frightened, and if investors are timid. Nor can we achieve it as long as an extortionate share of the national income goes to the tax collector. Here's a problem for every citizen.

J. L. Rhodenbaugh has broken up housekeeping and given each of his three daughters portions of the furniture, save a small amount kept for himself. He left Sunday for Lima to be in the Dave Chambers home for a few weeks. Adrian Hankey now occupies the Rhodenbaugh home. "Jim" as he was familiarly known will be greatly missed in St. Joe.

Through eight big days and nights, the International Livestock Exposition will celebrate its 34th anniversary in Chicago from December 2 to 9. Earlier predictions that this largest of the continent's live stock shows would exceed its own past records in the number of animals that would be exhibited have been realized, reports B. H. Heide, secretary-manager of the Exposition. There is an increase of several hundred entries over last year, which broke the record up to that time, he says.

READING FUN IN STORE FOR BOYS

World adventure thrills are in store for readers of The American Boy—Youth's Companion, according to word just received from the editor of youth's favorite magazine. From the Arctic to the jungles of Haiti, and from the plateau of Asia to the lion country of Africa, the editors have charted a course of excitement and fun in the 12 issues of 1934.

Several years ago, The American Boy introduced to its readers the popular, black-haired Jimmie Rhodes, Army aviator. Those who followed his adventures thru Brooks and Kelly Field, and with the 94th Pursuit on cross-country hops, target practice, and formation flying will be delighted to learn that Jimmie Rhodes has returned to the magazine. The new series takes him to Haiti where a revolution is impending

The American Boy — Youth's Companion, filled with the adventure every boy craves, with the information he needs, and the advice on hobbies and sports he is always seeking, is the ideal present for that son, cousin, nephew, and chum. It's the kind of a present that renews itself every month when the mailman lays a copy on the doorstep. Approved by teachers and educators, and endorsed by high school America, the magazine can solve your Christmas shopping difficulties

The subscription price is $2.00 for 1 year. Until January 1, you may take out a 3-year subscription for $3.00, a saving of $3.00 over the one-year rate for 3 years. After January 1, this 3-year rate will be withdrawn. Mail your order direct to The American Boy-Youth's Companion, 7430 Second Blvd. Detroit, Mich. Service on your subscription will start with the issue you specify. 46t1

▶There is one kind of printing that you want—printing that pays a dividend on the investment.

▶A letterhead with right sort of type properly balanced is a real business asset. It wins the approval of the person receiving your letter, and while he is in this frame of mind your letter is read.

▶The same reasoning applies to any other job of printing. Neatness, the right weight and kind of paper, the color of the ink, the selection of the type, all play an important part in the production of dividend printing.

We are equipped to give you that kind of printing. Let us prove it to you.

Byrd to Broadcast Thrills From Antarctic Expedition

THE scene is the South Pole region. The temperature is 70 degrees below zero. Against the terrific odds of overpowering cold, the spectre of hunger and threat of burial in eternal ice, heroic men are battling to discover a new continent. Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd is leading his Second Antarctic Expedition to new pioneer glories.

Toasting their feet by a comfortable fireside, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Radio Listener will share the high adventure of these intrepid explorers. For the thrilling drama of this fight to conquer the world's last remaining frontier, is to be brought to the American public, direct from Little America, 10,000 miles away, by weekly short-wave broadcasts.

Pioneering Achievement

For the first time in history, civilization will learn the thrills of pioneer discoveries instantaneously as they take place in the polar wastes. When the dials are tuned in on Little America, Admiral Byrd and others of his party will present vivid dramatizations of Antarctic conquests, inaugurating the most ambitious broadcasting project ever conceived.

–Assigned the most difficult radio reporting job ever attempted, Charles J. V. Murphy, brilliant young New York newspaper man, accompanied the expedition to announce and direct the Antarctic broadcasts from the scene of action. Besides possessing exceptional ability as a writer, and a dramatic speaking voice, Murphy, standing six feet two inches in height, and weighing 180 pounds, has the physique to battle the hardships he will encounter on the world's last and coldest frontier.

Series Starts November 18

The first broadcast has been announced for Saturday night, November 18, from Byrd's flagship, the Ruppert, as it sails on its last lap to the Antarctic regions. The series will be heard in this country over a Columbia Broadcasting System network of 59 stations every Saturday night at 10 p. m. Eastern Standard Time, 9 p. m. Central Time, 8 p. m. Mountain Time and 7 p. m. Pacific Time.

SPENCERVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Chapel Service

Chapel Service was held on Wednesday morning of this week due to the inability of Rev. Walter Coburn to be present on Tuesday morning.

The assembly sang "Work, For the Night is Coming." The minister read a scripture lesson from the Book of John. Following this reading Reverend Coburn continued his discussion of the history of The New Testament, saying that the Bible was written originally in Greek and on rolls of papyrus, which were approximately thirty feet long. He went on to explain the process of making papyrus. He explained also why the authors changed from the use of papyrus to the use of parchment, made from goat or sheep skins.

The service was closed with a short prayer by the speaker.

On Armistice Day

Saturday, November 11, marks the passing with eerie swiftness into the hazy past the anniversary of the close of The Great War.

Many of our people have lost or forgotten the true significance of this day. They believe the day should be celebrated with many other social engagements. Now, banquets, as well as any other forms of social gatherings, are all very fine on this or any other day; but should not a few moments be given to the real significance of the day? Surely it is a great day! Does it not recall the closing of the most horrible and devastating of World Wars!

A veteran of this war may be the merriest of the group, but at the same time, there is something of reverence in his attitude toward it also. Sometime during the day he is sure to find time to remember his "buddies" whom he left "over-there." He finds a few moments to give thanks to God for the sparing of his life and to utter a prayer for the souls of friends he lost in the cause.

Let us too, remember to give a few moments of our "precious time" to the thought of this great day and its significance in our lives. A little concern now and then for our fellowman will do the least of us no harm.

—A Student.

The Senior party at the home of Fred Stemen on the evening of Armistice Day was well attended. Nearly all of the seniors with a guest were present, as well as 3 of the teachers and other guests of the family. Games and stunts were the order of the evening and a delicious lunch of dark cake, fruit salad, chicken sandwiches and hot cocoa was served to the group of twenty-four. All departed at a late hour, having expressed their gratitude for a hospitable evening on November 11, 1933.

The B. B. team lost a hard fought game at LaOtto. The score being 10 to 17. They were handicapped by the smallness of the floor. Toward the end of the game, it was almost turned into football.

Most of the manual training boys have spent the last 4 or 5 weeks making nail trays for their home use.

The B. B. team held five or six good workouts before their game with LaOtto tomorrow night, here.

There was a cap and gown agent to see the Seniors Friday, but they decided they would not use them for their graduation.

Kenneth Means and Richard Kimes will be missing from the B. B. squad for at least the next month on account of grades. This weakens the team considerably.

The soup kitchen opened Nov. 7 and will continue to be open through the winter months on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. The menu for the week is tomato soup, Tuesday; vegetable soup, Thursday, and Friday potato soup. The soup customers are more numerous than they were last year.

Luella Meek, Anna Ruth Haupt and Virginia Poper are on the dish washing committee for the first day, and they think it unfair to be the first ones on the program.

Loyd Laux and Florance Wasson were visitors last Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Virgil Laux, class '30, visited the classes Friday afternoon.

United States history classes have had their study broadened by including present day history events and the students are subject to questions in their tests on what they have had brought before them outside of their text books.

The English III and IV class has been studying about the historical life and writings of authors of American literature.

The Physics Class has been working on experiments pertaining to the English and metric units of lengths.

Some members of the Junior and Senior groups attended a surprize party on Charles Agler Thursday evening. They all had a good time.

A pupil on noticing some upper classmen with loosened ties and some without ties remarked thus: "Say, teacher, do we dare take off our ties at school?"

Teacher: "How should a declarative sentence be punctuated"

Pupil: "A declarative sentence should begin with a capital letter and end with a decimal point."

Teacher: "What is the meaning of filigree?"

Pupil: "It is the feminine of pedigree."

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

THIS is National Honey Week when we are reminded that honey is a delicious and flavorful sweet with many uses.

Broccoli is a new-old cousin of cauliflower, rather new to this country but actually the vegetable from which cauliflower was developed. It is cooked and served like cauliflower, discarding the leaves and cooking merely the flower head and peeled stalk.

Green beans continue to be plentiful, good and very reasonable. Local and southern spinach are both in market together with cabbage, cauliflower and Brussel sprouts. Winter salads need not lack for fine quality lettuce. Plenty of salad dressing helps to make them good energy foods and the lettuce with fruits and vegetables supply other necessary food elements.

Grapefruit is the best quality citrus fruit on the market though there are available California and Florida oranges.

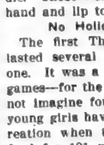
NOT MUCH POMP AT THAT FIRST PILGRIM FEAST



ON EVERY Thanksgiving with its bustle, happy family gatherings and subsequent chatterings, there comes a lull in the activities of the day. Conversation lags. Thoughts turn back to previous Thanksgivings.

Let us turn our thoughts back farther than our own experiences. Back indeed to the first Thanksgiving in America and there watch the preparation of this first feast, so different from our own. It will give us a close feeling of kinship with these predecessors of ours, these early American homemakers. And it will bring a deeper appreciation of the day, Helen Robertson writes, in the Detroit Free Press.

First Thanksgiving Feast.

The picture of that first Thanksgiving feast celebrated in Plymouth on the thirteenth day of December, 1621, is a striking one. Imagine the block-house standing out stark and alone in the great wilderness. Its rough walls, crude furniture and huge fireplaces—the Thanksgiving table of long narrow boards, perhaps not more than three feet wide, supported at either end by trestles.

If this first Thanksgiving feast was served in dishes, they were made of square blocks of wood about ten to twelve inches square and three to four inches deep, hollowed down into a sort of bowl. Nor was there one of these trenchers, for so they were called, for each person. Usually two children or a man and wife ate from one trencher. Forks were almost unknown, in fact the first fork was introduced by Governor Winthrop in Boston twelve years later. There were spoons, however, and drinking cups and "noggins" which were a sort of mug with a handle. These were passed from hand to hand and lip to lip around the board.

No Holiday for Women.

The first Thanksgiving celebration lasted several days rather than just one. It was a time of recreation and games—for the men at least. One cannot imagine four women and the few young girls having much time for recreation when they must prepare the food for 121 men, 91 of whom were Indians with an unbounded capacity for gorging. And this for several days!

Doubtless the deer and great turkeys were roasted in the open, the remainder of the feast being cooked in huge pots and kettles of copper hanging from the "lug pole" in the center of the fireplace which occupied the greater part of one side of the room.

After this first Thanksgiving, many followed, several being celebrated in one year. We of today wonder at their courage to hold Thanksgiving feasts when there seems to have been so little to be thankful for.

In the mind of the Puritan, Christmas and its celebration was nothing short of idolatry. This was the day to be spent in religious service. But Thanksgiving was the day of family reunion and feasting.

Eighteenth Century Thanks.

The next Thanksgiving celebrations of which we read are those which required days and even weeks of preparation. We read the description of one table, which surely must have groaned under its weight of deliciousness.

"On one end of the table was the big roast turkey and on the other a goose and two pigeon pastries. There was abundance of vegetables." Besides these there were huge chines of roast pork and venison.

And still the same letter bemoans the fact that they were unable to have roast beef because of the scarcity due to the war! The letter finishes with this paragraph:

"Our mince pies were good, though we had to use dried cherries instead of raisins and venison instead of beef. The pumpkin pies, apple tarts, and big Indian puddings lacked for nothing save appetite by the time we got around to them." Do you wonder?

Setting Day Aside.

The celebration of a certain day for Thanksgiving was not universal until 1864 when President Lincoln issued a proclamation appointing the fourth Thursday in November with a view of having a day kept thereafter annually without interruption. The President's assassination the next year almost caused a suspension of his own rule until President Johnson appointed the last Thursday in November.

Nevertheless it is "ye oyster stewed," "turkie," corn and pumpkin which were served in the Pilgrim days that still play the leading roles in our Thanksgiving menus of today. And just as in those early years, it is still a day of family gatherings and feasting. So while the Thanksgiving celebrations conform with the dictates of our day there still remain shades and shadows of the past which enrich it and make it the happier.

MUST RETIAN RED CROSS NURSE IN COUNTY

Your Membership Is the Only Means By Which This Can Be Done

The annual Red Cross roll call is under way in DeKalb county under the direction of Mrs. J. W. Thomson, of Garrett.

Mrs. Thomson announces the appointment of Mrs. Belva Buchmeier, of Butler township, as the chairman for all townships of the county.

Mrs. Thomson calls attention to the fact that the only person in the county receiving pay for services to the Red Cross is the county visiting nurse, Miss Catherine Ball. The receipts from the annual roll call are required for the purpose.

The Red Cross has gone into the homes of nearly one-fifth of all the families in the United States the past year, bearing practical relief for those suffering from four years of financial, business and industrial debacle, and from disasters created by the elements. It has carried on through stress and storm the greatest relief program of its fifty-two years of service.

In addition to the nation-wide distribution of flour and cotton, 2,627 chapters have expended $2,420,000 in providing unemployment aid in many forms—food, clothing, shelter, medical and nursing care. An army of volunteers has worked as in war days.

Disaster struck swiftly, repeatedly, in 24 states last spring, in form of earthquake, tornado, flood, fire. For 12 weeks Red Cross relief workers rushed from one scene of distress to another. In 147 counties 36 disasters killed 426, injured 9,000, destroyed or damaged 17,872 homes, affected 47,000 families. In the past year Red Cross administered relief in 77 disasters in the United States, 15 in insular possessions; extended aid in four abroad.

The established Red Cross services played a significant role in alleviating distress. More than 700 public health nurses made 1,359,355 visits to homes, inspected nearly a million school children. More than 31,000 nurses qualified for active duty, are enrolled in the Red Cross reserve, they have volunteered promptly for emergency, be it epidemic or disaster.

Fifteen hundred nurses have been authorized to teach home hygiene—proper care of the sick in the home—and 35,000 students received certificates the past year. Since 1914, 685,000 women and girls have been trained in this important duty.

First aid and life saving services have moved steadily forward in their endeavor to conserve human life; 65,000 certificates have been granted to individuals in first aid classes and 75,000 persons have been enrolled in life saving the past year. Since 1910, more than a million individuals have received first aid certificates or qualified in life saving.

More than 275,000 veterans and their families have been aided by chapters; field directors at army and navy stations have dealt with problems of more than 8,000 service and ex-service men.

Members of the Junior Red Cross — nearly seven million strong—have joined in relief work with youthful vigor and sympathy, canning fruit and vegetables, making clothes, providing hot school lunches. They have lived their motto: "I Serve."

More than 3,000 chapters are conducting organized volunteer services and 600,000 volunteer workers have given active service the past year.

STOP — THINK

Consider men whether you are traveling the right road. If men ever become satisfied with their lives, it will be through their love for God and His Church. The only way that we can learn of this love is to attend the services of our churches. A Revival to help men get on the right pathway is being held at the Rehoboth Church in Jackson township. A hearty welcome is extended to all. Services begin each night at 7 o'clock, all week.

WE DO OUR PART

Though I live in a hut by the side of the road,
And the days have been dark for me;
I am guiding my life by the rules of the Code,
In setting my fellowmen free.

And I hear in the distance a clear ringing bell,
Sounding the death of depression;
And the stars of the night the glad tidings tell—
America's free from opression.

And our children shall walk in the light of the day,
That tested each patriot's zeal;
Each forgetting himself as he sprang to the fray,
To give to our land a new deal.

And whatever the fates through the ages decree,
May we cherish this golden dream:
That only great is the nation who sets men free,
Where the lights of liberty gleam.

Though I live in a hut by the side of the road,
And my part in the work is small;
Let them say that I toted my share of the load,
For the common good of us all.

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Turnbull, of Dayton, O., were guests from Friday until Sunday in the Roy Koch home.

The Christian Sunday School reports an attendance of 147 and an offering of $4.65 for last Sunday.

Mrs. Ida Woodcox is quite poorly this week with asthma. Dr. Hathaway, of Butler was called Monday evening.

Robert Ulm, who had been in the Souders hospital for several weeks is now at his home near Butler, and is able to be about.

Mrs. Charles Smith and Mrs. Mary Smith and two children, of near Newville, were Monday afternoon guests of Mrs. D. C. McCann.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bowser Friday evening at the Sanders hospital in Auburn, a daughter, named Jo Anne. She is the third child.

James L. Rhodenbaugh has sold his residence in St. Joe to Henry and Bessie Shroyer and a transfer was made last week. Adrian Hankey occupies the property.

The sidewalk in front of the Leighty residence was repaired Monday by putting in a couple new blocks. The roots keep the walks broken about town, and replacement of the cement is about the only cure for the damages done.

Mrs. Inez Hadsell was called to Lagrange Sunday morning by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Martha Driver. She returned Monday leaving her mother not much better and with practically no hope of recovery. Mrs. Driver is 77 years old.

Tuesday of this week, Mrs. Amanda Coburn passed the 82nd milestone of her life. She makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Lena Meek, and is enjoying very good health, and is quite active for one of her years. She is a faithful attendant to her church.

The difference in people at times is very noticeable Monday being such a fine day we could not help but notice this. One man was in his shirt sleeves, another wore his coat only, while the third had on a coat, vest and top coat. Safety first this time of year should be considered, and many times carelessness of this kind, causes much discomfort to the individual later on.

Basketball fans are requested to keep in mind that our next home game is with the Spencerville High School team. This game will be played on Tuesday evening of next week just prior to the Thanksgiving recess. A school preliminary game will start at seven thirty.

Outside reading lists have been posted for the seventh, eighth, ninth, eleventh and twelfth grade English classes. The reading of good books greatly increases the students range of information and makes possible a greater mastery of other school subjects because of the increased knowledge and experience.

There were 336 servings in connection with the warm lunch service last week. Of this number 125 were donated. Cash receipts were $7.71 and $1.00 in tickets was given for supplies received.

The bookkeeping class is now completing the first practice set for the school year. Mr. Gerdes teaches the bookkeeping.

In a class meeting held last week the seniors voted to engage the services of Mr. Rice of Auburn as class photographer. The date set for the Senior Class play, "On Ione's Trail," is Saturday evening, December 16th.

Earl Kinsey received a badly sprained ankle in the basketball game on Friday evening of last week. He was in school again on Monday but will not be back in the game for several days.

Absentees on Monday were Darrell Richmond, Louis Bleeks, Keuneth Ridgway, Beulah Storer and Joyce Fusselman. The extreme in weather last week produced many colds.

The seventh grade geography class received a jolt a week ago in a test. As a result they are finding much more satisfaction in more study.

A special drive is being made in the eighth grade General Science class to improve the English used. In as much as people usually judge us by the English we use the importance of this drive is quite apparent.

In Mr. Cox's Junior History class the Constitution of the United States has been given a thorough study. The class now realizes that law is a pretty deep subject, and that Supreme Court Justices have real tasks to perform.

Pupils in the fifth and sixth grades to make the Honor Roll in spelling last week were as follows: Fifth grade—Rose Ayers, Jack Goodwin, Ruth Keesler, Myra Keesler, Barbara Stroh, Sylvia Washler, and Marcel Pugsley. Sixth grade—Norman Ayers, Minta Davis, Helen Goodwin, Iris Jackson, Betty Kees, Walter Loucks, Burl Rude, Dick Wasson, Maxine Woodcox, and Melvin Zimmerman.

The third and fourth grade pupils manifested considerable interest in articles shown and information given to them by their teacher, Mr. Maxwell, in connection with Armistice Day and its reminders of the World War.

Local Team Wins Over Hamilton H. S.

While the Hamilton H. S. girls team won an easy victory over the local girls(B. Storer, A. Richards, H. Likes, V. Shull, G. Thornton, Ethelmae Freeburn and M. Cole) by a score of 26 to 13 the Hamilton boys team was defeated by the local Tigers to the tune of 22 to 8. Coach Gerdes used as his starting lineup Willmot and F. Monroe at forward, E. Kinsey at center, J. Dilley and K. Baker as guards. These lads took the lead and were going fine when E. Kinsey sprained an ankle and had to leave the game. At this time coach Gerdes sent in Coburn, Simanton, Collins and Dailey who along with captain Dilley displayed a good brand of passing and an accuracy in connecting with the basket which Hamilton High could not overcome. At the end of the first half the score was 11 to 4. Hamilton was held to one field goal in each half. Captain Dilley scored 11 points for the locals, Coburn and Collins annexed two field goals each, Monroe scored one field goal, and Baker added the other point on a foul toss.

Chapel Service

Chapel service was conducted on Tuesday morning of this week by Rev. Brown. The assembly sang three songs of the patriotic type as the service was to center around the idea of Armistice Day. Rev. Brown read cuttings from the play "The Evening" by Chauncey Pollock. The play emphasizes the fact that the only enemy of mankind is Hate, and that so long as man continues to fill his heart with hate there will still be wars and rumors of wars for the many millions yet unborn. How long, Oh, God!

Miss Reed took her group of eighth graders to the Ladies Aid dinner on Wednesday. All reported a jolly time.

Madonna Kelley has quit our ranks—reason not known.

Forrest Brattain visited in the assembly Friday afternoon. It seems hard for these exgrads to tear themselves loose. Well the better half remains.

Helen Mason is now wearing glasses as is also Betty Jane McClellan. My how these girls must have studied! Never mind, girls you're just as sweet as ever.

The Misses Eunice Gerig and LaNore Laub, the only two girls of the class of '33, visited high school classes last Wednesday. It seemed quite natural to have them strolling about the halls once again.

In physics class:

Student: "Teacher, if the world were at rest and everything in it was in motion, would the world be at rest?"

Teacher: "Yes."

The class in Foods visited the local butcher shop on Tuesday of this week to learn about kinds and cuts of meat.

One of the seniors and the English teacher went rabbit hunting on Armistice Day. Due to ill luck, however, they were unable to capture a cotton tail. Perhaps the cause was—the teacher frightened the only one they saw within an inch of his life by shouting, "He run, runned, runned."

The Old Log House

An old log house rested in the center of a weed tangled orchard of knarled old apple trees. The golden rods stark and brown, from the season before, stood like soldiers guarding the relic of an age gone by; while the sweet scent of lilacs and wild flowers was driven by the wind through the crude windows and doors from which the panes had long since been gone. The sun shone down on the floor, which was covered with the leaves of many seasons wherever the caved-in roof did not cover the earthen floor. The little log house continued to slumber and doze in the warm summer sun until the snow came and made it a dazzling white palace more beautiful and awe-inspiring even than it had been before.

It would pay anyone to visit the mill and note the completeness of the work of remodeling this mill.

There is more grain stored in this mill now, awaiting operation, than has ever been known before.

An extremely high grade of flour and feeds of all kinds will be manufactured here, and Mr. Gauntt does not propose to start operations until everything is in readiness to start at full capacity. Orders are piling up rapidly for flour and corn meal.

TO THE DEPOSITORS OF THE ST. JOE VALLEY BANK

Reports are reaching me indicating that I had predicted the amount depositors would receive from the liquidation of the St. Joe Valley Bank.

I want every depositor to know that said reports are false and without foundation, and it is impossible, at this time, to make an intelligent forecast.

The laws of Indiana provide a very severe penalty for circulating false rumors with reference to a financial institution, and while no action may be taken on the case in question, I can not guarantee that future cases will be handled in a similar manner.

TO PAY $100 FOR SHOOTING AFFAIR

A shooting affair that took place on a highway in Spencer township the night of Sept. 23, 1932, was settled Monday in the DeKalb circuit court when McClellan Hart and Geo. Hart agreed to pay Harley Mann $100.

Mr. Mann, who is a Steuben county farmer, and Mrs. Edith Walter, who is now his wife, were driving on the road near the Hart melon patch when they were accosted by the defendants, who thought they were melon thieves. McClellan Hart fired a shotgun at Mr. Mann, wounding him in the head, neck, face and back.

AT INDIANAPOLIS TO CONSIDER LOAN

Frank M. Brandon is in Indianapolis this week checking up on the possibilities of taking advantage of a government loan, as provided for by the R. F. C. for closed banks.

The St. Joe Valley Bank, which is undergoing liquidation by Mr. Brandon, is in line for possibly $20,000 or more, which would aid in making a payment to the depositors, and the agent is anxious to release as much money as possible, in order to relieve the cramped financial condition of everyone.

Should a loan be secured, the agent will be compelled to deposit with the department assets sufficient to guarantee the loan of the money, and as soon as collections are made by the agent, payment will then be made on the loan instead of the depositors.

Mr. Brandon reports the success of liquidation thus far is beyond expectations for the times.

WHY YOUR HEALTH DEPENDS UPON YOUR KIDNEYS

Your Kidneys Are Constantly Eliminating Waste Poisons From Your Blood

To Be Well See That They Function Properly

YOUR KIDNEYS! Do you realize what an important part they play in your bodily health and length of life? They are the blood filters. Every 24 hours they excrete more than 500 grains of poisonous waste. Thus your kidneys are literally sentinels of your health.

It is well, then, to keep careful watch of your kidneys. If they fail to do their work fully, there is slow poisoning of the system, which may lead to many serious conditions.

Disordered kidney action and bladder irritations may give rise to scanty, painful or too frequent passage and getting up at night. One is apt to feel a dull, nagging backache, drowsy headaches and dizziness.

While, naturally, temporary irregularities may occur, if the condition persists, it is well to look to your kidneys. There is positive danger in neglecting disordered kidney action.

If you have any reason to believe your kidneys are not functioning properly, why not give Doan's Pills a trial? No other advertised diuretic has such world-wide use. None is so well recommended.

Get Doan's today. Your druggist has them.

Novel Buttons and New Fastenings

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IF YOU can snatch out of fashion's medley of novelties, buckles, buttons,—clips, clasps or gadgets of any sort which are breath-taking in their oddness, by all means do so, for the hue and cry now resounding throughout the style world is for fastenings of striking originality.

One way of giving swank to your outfit is to use perfectly enormous buttons. They may be of metal or composition, of glass, or better still, of wood, for wooden dress ornamentation is the rage. As to size, Paris is not only doing things on a big scale when it comes to buttons but much of the latest costume jewelry trends toward generous proportions. Some of the new beads are tremendous in size. Especially those chic new velvet or satin beads which are smartest when they are an exact color-match to your dress.

And have you seen the new lipstick buttons? They look amusingly like the real thing. When it comes to unique dress fastenings they are about the neatest trick yet discovered. They measure two inches long, are of shiny nickel with bright colored gallilith tips at each end. There's a big buckle to match if you're asking. A half dozen of these buttons on a gay woolen jacket is warranted to make any autumn street costume look stunning.

The lovely new mirror buttons answer the call for touches that dazzle and scintillate. To match the mirror buttons on your dress you should have initials on your bag of the same looking-glass medium cut in large block type.

In the glittering class, and the glittering, sparkling note is certainly going strong in fashion's realm this season, rhinestone buttons are shining forth in all their glory these days—and nights. The rhinestone buttons on the handsome dinner gown centered in the illustration are stars. Which goes to show the charming originality being displayed in buttoncraft these times. The belt has rhinestone slides. This gown is fashioned of heavy black crepe for the skirt. The jacket blouse is of sheer black mousseline, thus stressing the two-piece idea which is being sponsored for evening dresses. White silk pique is employed for the collar and bow.

Laced fastenings are ever so smart. They are accomplished in varied ways. In the picture the model to the left carries a style-condensing message in that the jacket of this bronze-brown woolen suit is laced down the front with self-fabric cord which is drawn through decorative bronzed metal hooks or slots or whatever they might be called. The brown caracul collar and epaulets are matched with tabs of fur which finish the cord streamers.

The good-looking suit to the right is of a knitted novelty fabric. Large metal eyelets act as a closing with lacings and tie of the same material.

Among other impelling style touches in the way of out-of-the-ordinary fastenings are such clever devices as safety-pin effects. They are more ornamental and jewelry-like than the prosaic utilitarian kind. In fact they make a most effective showing used in rows just like buttons.

Birds' Songs Recorded After Many Failures

It took modern engineering and science to capture the songs of birds where the musical and imitative arts had failed, says the Literary Digest. Bird songs are among the most elusive of melodies. Musicians have often tried to write them down, but most birds do not sing in the man-made scale. Their notes are usually not whole or half tones, but may be quarter tones or other fractions.

The apparatus which has first successfully recorded bird melodies was devised under the direction of Albert R. Brand, associate in ornithology, American Museum of Natural History. This recording machine is essentially an adaptation of the equipment used in recording the human voice in talking picture studios.

The longest shot ever taken with the apparatus was during the recording of the song of a common oriole. The truck was 250 feet from the microphone, and the microphone and mirror were at least another 100 yards from the bird. At that distance it was hard to distinguish the bird through the mirror sight, yet the sound picture was completely satisfactory.

PARISIANISM NEW FASHION RELIGION

"Parisianism" is the new fashion religion which Jean Patou has created for 1933-1934 season, and he says the reason he has adopted this title is because the fashions of the last few months have diverged somewhat from Parisian taste.

"The elegant woman found herself reduced to choosing too realistic an athlete's suit for daytime wear and confronted for evening wear by the alternatives of dressing herself up in seraphim's wings or winding herself round with feathers in the manner of the unforgettable star whose appearance in our capital aroused such diverse sentiments."

Patou maintains that his plan this year is not to decorate costumes, but to build them so architecturally that they will need no special decoration. The fronts of his skirts are simple, and his chief ambition is to define the legs but cover them at the same time.

Mannish Chapeau Really Devastatingly Feminine

At first glance seemingly mannish, the hats of the 1933 winter mode prove on closer inspection, on the contrary devastatingly feminine.

Nothing makes a pretty face more utterly girlish than a becoming jaunty hat of mannish cut, perched at the just-right angle on shining hair.

A simple, sophisticated knot, an unexpected bow of ribbon, give the lie to the sterner suggestion. Even the heretofore severe sports beret becomes subtly more elegant when fashioned—as it is this season—of choicest fur skins.

New Material Possesses Unlimited Possibilities

This is the heydey of artificial silks. French creative genius—the thing we can't seem to get away from, no matter how smart we are about copying things—has just given birth to another novelty, which is bound to make itself felt in this season's fashions. Artificial silk threads have been so mixed with real silk ones that a new material has come forth as the result, with a certain sheen over it that nothing heretofore has produced. It has unlimited possibilities.

BEADED EPAULETS

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

If you want your dress to have that new look be sure its sleeves are topped with some sort of fancy epaulets. If it's a street dress or coat the sleeves will be capped with tailored and stitched or braided effects. For dinner frocks of velvet, satin or other formal weaves the theme is elaborated upon via sparkling embroidered motifs such as here pictured. This velvet dress flavors of fashions of the nineties in that it has a tight bodice which tends to create a definite waistline and hip curves. The full sleeves are fashionably worked with elongated shoulder pieces of crystal passementerie. Rhinestone buttons finish the neckline. The little velvet pill-box turban sports a quaint ostrich tip.

Laced Frocks

Lacings are a new trick in fastenings for winter frocks. One brick wool frock is laced from the waist to the high neckline with brick-colored wool lacings run through gilded loops.

BETTY MAKES A HIT WITH HER HUSBAND'S MOTHER

thanks to an amazing new Laundry Soap

NEW LAUNDRY SOAP DISCOVERY WELCOMED BY HOUSEWIVES

A still faster-washing soap* that gets clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter yet can't hurt anything plain water won't

WASHDAY in over a million homes has been revolutionized by an amazing new Laundry Soap Discovery of Procter & Gamble—America's largest soap-makers. Up and down the country, it is completely changing women's ideas of quick, easy washing, safe washing, and white clothes!

This remarkable invention is an utterly new-type laundry soap. A soap that multiplies itself 500 TIMES in suds. Which means you get at least twice as much suds as from old-style soaps. A still faster-washing, still whiter-washing soap that's utterly SAFE for colors, fabrics, and hands.

This remarkable new discovery is called OXYDOL. And you'll find to your surprise that it makes other soaps—"granulated," bar or flake—hopelessly out-of-date.

Women believed they had the fastest soap already! Then found it was slow, alongside OXYDOL. For OXYDOL utterly banishes boiling. It ends washboard scrubbing. It cuts soaking time to 15 minutes—gets clothes out far sooner.

They believed they had the whitest washes they could possibly get. And are now amazed by washes 4 to 5 shades whiter than before.

By impartial scientific test, ONE washing with OXYDOL gets clothes whiter than 2 to 4 washes with other soaps. But that's not all!

You'll find clothes actually last longer, washed with this new soap. That the daintiest colors DO NOT fade. That it is easier on hands than any soap you've ever used. For no strong agents, no chemical bleaches are in OXYDOL. Just pure soap elements so blended with others as to protect clothes against fading.

OXYDOL simply can't hurt anything clear water won't!

DISSOLVES Dirt—In Any Water, Hard or Soft

Its creamy, "free-acting" suds dissolve dirt out in 15 minutes. No boiling, no back-breaking scrubbing is necessary. Nor any "water-softener," either. For the right amount of water-softener is already there.

Different from ordinary soaps, OXYDOL is specially fitted to water conditions in each district where it is sold. The water in this district, for example, has been tested for "hardness" by expert chemists. The OXYDOL you buy here contains just the right proportion of "softener" to fit it.

With OXYDOL you'll do your wash in 25% to 40% less time. You'll get a whiter, sweeter-smelling wash than ever before. Everything will iron beautifully—no soap streaks or smudges anywhere. And you'll never be bothered with fading colors or red, soap-bitten hands.

These things we promise you. Whatever your former favorite, try OXYDOL next time you wash. You'll never go back to slower soaps or harsher soaps again! Procter & Gamble.

Most invisible inks are made with paste drier as a base and one of the mineral salts as a coloring medium. Heat is used to develop the printing and moisture to make it disappear.

Of the chemicals possessing this property are cobalt chloride, barium sulphate, barium nitrate, copper chloride, dilute sulphuric acid, potassium nitrate, and equal parts of alum and garlic juice.

Another form of invisible ink is made from a mixture of transparent tint base and paste drier. It is invisible when dry, but shows up clearly when rubbed with an ordinary lead pencil.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

JERRY MUSKRAT WAKES UP JUST IN TIME

NEVER in all his life had Jerry Muskrat been quite so flattered as he was by the admiration of Reddy Fox for his skill as a builder of houses. Listening to the praise which fairly dripped from Reddy's smooth tongue, Jerry actually forgot who was talking. At least, he forgot that Reddy always had been an enemy. It was hard to believe that such a handsome fellow and such a pleasant spoken fellow could possibly mean any harm. And he seemed so much in earnest when he said that if only Jerry would come with him and show him how to build a house he would be the happiest Fox in the world that Jerry had it on the tip of his tongue to say that he would do that very thing and be glad to.

Jerry actually had paddled in to the bank and was beginning to climb out as Reddy said this. And then, as so often happens with a ton- that is too smooth, Reddy's tongue tripped him up. If only he hadn't said that Jerry could make him the happiest Fox in the world! That word Fox waked Jerry up just in time. He wasn't really asleep, you know, but he was so flattered and so interested in what Reddy had said that he had quite forgotten who was talking.

But at that word Fox h suddenly realized what he was abou' to do. In just one wee little minute more he would have been right out on the bank within easy jumping distance of Reddy. Hastily he pushed himself out from the bank and swam far enough out in the Smiling Pool to feel absolutely safe. Then he looked up at Reddy to see if the latter had noticed the hasts with which he had left the bank instead of climbing out on it. He thought there was just a trace of disappointment in Reddy's eyes, but it passed so quickly he couldn't be sure.

Apparently Reddy could think of nothing but a new house like Jerry's, only on land and big enough for him. He went right on talking just as if he hadn't noticed Jerry's action at all. "If you only could show me how, I believe I could build a house. Anyway, I would be willing to try and to work hard," said he with his eyes half closed, as if trying to picture to himself what such a house would look like. "I certainly would be the envy of everybody on the Green Meadows and in the Green Forest. I believe such a house would tickle Mrs. Reddy almost to death. I must bring her over here to see your house."

Once more Jerry was growing so interested in the idea of that house that without really knowing it he was paddling toward the bank. Then as his feet touched bottom he remembered and made a half circle to deeper water and there floated lazily. "I'll be glad to have you bring Mrs. Reddy to see my house," said he. "I am afraid it isn't possible for me to show you how to build, but as I told you before I will be glad to tell you how."

Reddy jumped lightly to his feet. "That will be fine," he replied. "I have an engagement now, but if you have time to spare tomorrow night I will come over at about this time and we'll talk the idea over. I certainly would like a house like that." He glanced longingly towards Jerry's new house out in the Smiling Pool, then, wishing Jerry good-night, trotted away.

SOFTER LIGHTS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THESE cooler nights
And kinder days,
These softer lights
And autumn haze,
Are like the years
Of later life,
After the tears
And joy and strife.

Less red the flow'rs,
Less green the grass,
But quiet hours
In peace we pass.
Though gone the May,
The summer spent,
We are less gay
But more content.

In spring we fear
The thought of fall,
But, autumn here,
Mind not at all;
For living writes
No fairer page
Than softer lights
And quiet age.

GRAPHIC GOLF

HEAVY HEADED IRONS

TOMMY ARMOUR'S rifle iron shots have long been the admiration of all golfers, duffer and star alike. Although Armour realizes the futility of an average player hitting a long, straight iron that will compare favorably with those of the powerful wristed pros, he does think that the high handicap player can help himself considerably by proper selection of iron clubs. The limber shafted, light headed irons in his estimation are not the best suited ones for the game. Most of the better players have clubs with rather heavy heads which at least give the suggestion that there is something strong and solid in their hands. He advises such heads for the average player, coupled with a slight flexibility in the shaft which should increase proportionately for the longer irons. With such clubs there is a tendency to hit the ball more easily, which in itself is conducive of better form than a vicious swing with a slightly weighted head. There is also a shock to the latter which soon tires the wrists and hands.

DESSERTS AND OTHER DISHES

THERE is nothing easier to prepare than junkets and gelatin dessert. They are most wholesome and especially good for the young and aged.

Cherry Sponge.

Dissolve one package of cherry flavored gelatin in a pint of boiling water. Add 12 finely cut marshmallows. Dip the shears into water when cutting them and they will not stick. Stir well, add a pinch of salt, six drops of almond extract, and chill. When slightly thickened beat with a rotary egg beater until like whipped cream. Turn into individual molds and chill. Serve with cream.

Flaked Ambrosia.

Dissolve one package of raspberry gelatin in a pint of boiling water, add a pinch of salt, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, one tablespoonful of orange juice and chill until firm. Beat with a rotary egg beater until well flaked, fold in two cupfuls of whipped cream and serve in sherbet glasses. Garnish with a green cherry.

Chicken Mousse.

Take one can of boned chicken and mix with a thin white sauce. Add one slightly beaten egg white and one-half cupful of whipped cream. Pour into molds, set into hot water and bake until firm. Serve garnished with capers or truffles. Serve with bechamel sauce.

A Good Cocktail.

Beat one egg yolk, add the juice of half a lemon, one teaspoonful of honey, mix well, chill and serve as a breakfast cocktail.

Prune Jam.

Soak two cupfuls of prunes over night in one and one-half pints of water. Cook for ten minutes in the water in which they have been soaked, drain and cut into small pieces. Slice one lemon and two oranges, including the peeling, very thin and cook in the prune juice until tender. Add the prune pulp, one cupful of sugar and one-half teaspoon of salt. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Seal in jars.

Dried apricots are equally good for jam prepared in the same manner.

RECORD OF LIFE

The average man of fifty is found to have worked 6,500 days, slept 6,000 days, walked 800 days, played 4,000 days, eaten 1,500 days, been sick 500 days and listened to the squawk of the pessimist all his days. —San Jose (Calif.) Mercury Herald.

To make Children EAT

Don't force children to eat! The girl or boy who has no appetite has stasis—which means the child is sluggish. But cathartics have caused more constipation than they ever cured! The "California treatment" is best—just pure syrup of figs. Try this for a few days, then see how eagerly your youngster will eat.

Stimulate the colon and that child with a finicky appetite will devour everything set before him. Here's the simple treatment that does more for babies or older children than all the diets, fad foods, or tonics.

Nature has provided the "medicine" you'll need to stir your child's colon muscles into proper action. California syrup of figs. Pure, delicious, harmless. It acts on the lower colon—where the trouble is. It has no ill effects on the intestines.

Begin tonight, with this marvelous "California treatment." Any druggist has California syrup of figs, all bottled, with directions. Use enough the first time to cleanse the clogged colon of every bit of poison and hard waste. Then just a little twice a week until the child's appetite, color, weight and spirits tell you the stasis is gone. Whenever a cold or other upset clogs the system again, use this natural vegetable laxative instead of drastic drugs.

WARNING! There are dealers who practice substitution. Be sure to protect your child by looking for the name CALIFORNIA on the bottle.

Why Liquid Laxatives Do You No Harm

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement, and with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it!

An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is syrup pepsin. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription, and is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help, as they do in the case of cathartics containing mineral drugs. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Member N. R. A.

RUNDOWN, INDIGESTION, GAS?

Mr. George Stiff of 615 No. Madison St., Rockford, Ill., said: "After influenza I had no pep or energy and never felt like eating. I suffered from indigestion and gas on my stomach. I used only one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it gave me relief from the stomach distress, and I felt 100%."

Sold by druggists everywhere.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

ALTHOUGH Thanksgiving is not until the thirtieth, it is not too early to be making a market list of the foods you will need for the holiday dinner. A turkey of the size desired should be ordered early. They are going to be very low priced and within the reach of almost every budget.

Sweet potatoes, yellow turnips and onions will be plentiful and cheap. Cranberries are low in price. Emperor grapes, Florida oranges, Bosc pears, red apples, bananas and mixed nuts will be available for the fruit centerpiece. Celery, olives and shelled or salted nuts will be wanted for relishes. New crop pecans, almonds, walnuts and peanuts will all be available at moderate prices.

Canned pumpkin for pumpkin pies will be found satisfactory and labor saving. Undiluted evaporated milk helps to make it rich and creamy.

The Quaker Maid suggests the following menus.

Low Cost Dinner

Swiss Steak Baked Potatoes

To the average reader, Russia still remains Russia, although technically she is the Union of Soviet Socialistic Republics. She is both Asiatic and European, and embraces in her area a territory that stretches from the northern part of the Pacific Ocean to the Baltic Sea. Her population, about 147 million, is about equal to that of the United States. By measures of comparatively recent origin, approximately a billion acres of land have been taken from large landholders and distributed to the actual tillers of the soil.

Such, broardly considered, is the status of the nation whose representative is now in this country, seeking recognition. It is obvious that, considered from the standpoint of mere size, Russia is not to be overlooked in the family of nations. The United States has claims amounting to about a billion dollars against the Soviet government. That is something which perhaps might be permitted to rest for the present, if there were nothing else to consider. Similar obligations remain unpaid, and the creditor is not saying much about it.

Perhaps the matter which stands out as the most unsurmountable barrier to a complete understanding, and to a recognition of Russia, is her propaganda activities of international character, which amount to a direct attack against religion and the general principles of human rights of the particular kind that we have come to believe go with government of the people, by the people and for the people. The average American may not go very often to church, but there is firmly implanted in the American mind the concept that religion, as distinguished from sectarianism, is tied up somehow with a satisfactory government. The notion that the United States should join the Soviet Union of course cannot be tolerated.

Russia has put herself in a bad position by becoming a soap-box orator of the radical type. This is something that was made a feature of the last Presidential campaign. It is perhaps the thing that stands most prominently in the way of accord during the existing state negotiations between representatives of the two countries. How to get Russia to step down from the Communistic speaker's stand is the real problem.

Mr. Hitler, condemned in many quarters as the wild man of Europe, has made at least one sound move. He has arrested a citizen who failed to vote. The plan might be followed with profit in this country. Something should be done with the man who is too engrossed with his private affairs, or too big in his own estimation, to get out to the polls with his fellows.

Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment is assured, and the papers give some space to the fashions in whiskey glasses that are likely to prevail. There is still considerable legislation to be done on the liquor question, and the drys, although temporarily in the background, may figure out some sort of a legislative Tantalus cup before all is finished, it being recalled that Tantalus, although provided with a cup, had one of such construction that although it could be filled, emptied itself before it reached the drinker's lips.

Inflation promises to receive the early consideration of Congress, with pointed views expressed on both sides. Years ago, a prominent politician who had acquired more property than he could account for was faced with the question: "How did he get it?" With plenty of money afloat, the man not deeply versed in the money question will not ask how the government got it. With most of us, the old query will remain: "How are we going to get it?"

According to press dispatches, the Nobel peace prize will not be awarded this year. It is true that there is a considerable amount of upheaval going on everywhere, and that there is much talk about the relative strength of navies, armaments and so on. It is suggested, however, that in view of the fact that the United States has set a good many European minds at rest by calling the debt question off for the present, Europe might at least have conferred the Nobel peace prize on that mythical person known as Uncle Sam.

PAYING DIVIDENDS

Any organization that pays dividends indicates a sound management. Dividends are usually considered as actual cash, yet there are certain dividends that represent a money return even though the payment may not be by check.

In Indiana a health program has been carried on through the state and county tuberculosis associations to reduce the mortality from tuberculosis, and prevent unnecessary illness from this disease. Has the program paid dividends? In 1910, 4,710 persons died from tuberculosis in Indiana. In 1932 the official records show that 1,964 persons succumbed to this disease. Converting this into money, let us assume that each person contributes only $100 a year to the economic life of a community. In 1932 there were 2,746 less deaths from tuberculosis than in 1910, or a reduction of about fifty-eight per cent. These 2,746 lives saved would therefore represent dividend paying of $274,600 a year. Part of this saving was made in this county.

The tuberculosis campaign which has played a large part in this life-saving program must be looked upon as an economic necessity. The Christmas Seal Sale, which is the means of raising the funds to carry on this campaign, must be looked upon not as another charity but as a sound business propositon. When this stock is offered you, buy liberally. It is money saving; it is life saving.

TRUCK RATE REGULATIONS EXPLAINED

Fair earnings for truck operators and economical correlation of the State's transportation lines, the Public Service Commission asserts, is the embodiment of rules, rates and regulations contained in an order to become effective December 30, 1933 which has been written after months of study and investigation.

Directed by positive declarations of the legislature when it passed the 1933 law to regulate contract motor vehicle carriers and to establish minimum rates for contract motor vehicles which shall not be less than rates for motor common carriers for substantially the same service the Commission has weighed the recommendations of shippers, certified truckers, contract truckers, bus operators, interurban and railroad representatives. With the mass of recommendations obtained in a three-weeks' hearing, the Commission has made its interpretation of the law and facts, viewing the whole subject as one affected with a public interest. It represents the Commission's best effort as maintained by law, to make "adjustment and correlation of transportation agencies to the end that public highways may best serve the public interest."

The commission regards its order as being one that gives no undue advantage to any system of transportation bidding for freight shipments and one which at the same time gives the shipper all he can expect to ask if truck and transportation systems are to continue to operate profitably and serve him. Its purpose was to bring order in a public interest business which never before has been ordered, but in which chaos, cut-throating competition and bankruptcy have prevailed. The present Public Service Commission is the first ever to attempt regulation of the whole commercial motor vehicle industry and the first to work toward the elimination of the prevailing and wholesale economic waste. It aims to give truck men descent compensation for their labors, to clear the public highways of irresponsible operators and to advance public safety.

Shippers and business men testified before the Commission in public hearings that general business conditions would be improved if uniform freight rates were to prevail and they could know that some competitor was not receiving rebates or below-cost, bootleg service.

Truck representatives at the hearing united in their requests to the Commission that railroad rates form the basis for truck rates, their argument being that trucks by giving the additional store-door pickup and delivery serivce on shipments could obtain much business in competition with the railroads.

The new uniform rates to be charged by motor vehicles for hire are based on the railroad Disque mileage scale rates. Trucks are permitted to apply for special commodity rates and to file exceptions to the classifications. A truck-load's minimum rate is the same as the railroad carload minimum, except that a truckload is defined as being one-half the carload weight minimum. Railroads protested against this rule. Uniform bills of lading must be used by trucks. Truck mileages must be figured on the route mileage set forth in commission permit and the short line rate will govern. Truckmen protested this rule. A penalty of $200.00 fine is carried for each rebate offense.

All motor vehicles for hire in Indiana fall into one of three classes. Those exempted from regulation, forming one class are taxicabs, school busses, moving vans, mail trucks, non-profit farm produce trucks, vehicles operating inside corporate limits and suburbs, those hauling newspapers and those used only occasionally for hire and the major use of which is for private business.

"Common carrier" trucks, refined by 1925 law, must have certificates from the Public Service Commission to operate over fixed routes at fixed schedules.

"Contract carrier" trucks, defined by the 1933 law, must have permits from the Commission. They are required to have copies of their written contracts with shippers on file in Commission offices.

No one person or corporation may hold at the same time both a "Common carrier" certificate and a "Contract carrier" permit.

Both types of regulated motor vehicle carriers are subject to the new rules, rates and penalties. Certificates and permits may be revoked by the Commission on failure to render adequate service or where service has been discontinued an unreasonable length of time. Both are required to file reports, records and contract at Commission request. Certificate and permit numbers must be painted on vehicles. Carriers cannot deviate from fixed routes without permission. Accidents resulting in injuries to persons must be reported in three days. For lapse of liability insurance permits also are to be revoked.

New rate schedules, in compliance with the order must be filed with the Commission on or before December 30, 1933. The rules and rates are both subject to revision by the Commission following public hearings.

Thanksgiving

OH, LET me linger by my fireside embers—
Thanksgiving is no day for idle roving,
Old friends, old days, old songs, my heart remembers,
Are gathered to my side for hours of loving.
I take life's book and turn its yellow pages,
Before the firelight glow I watch them brighten.
Old faces of old friends of outgrown ages,
Through windows, with me, watch the brown earth whiten.

I SEE old homesteads with their snowy thatches,
And from huge chimneys grayish smoke ascending.
I hear the welcome sound of lifting latches.
I feel the warm handclasps of hands befriending.
Oh, faces of the past, when life was living,
Come, gather 'round this board and lift your voices
Again, as yore, in one long, glad Thanksgiving,
In which the heart of youth and age rejoices!

The Albion Hubs, rated as one of the best independent teams in onrthern Indiana, defeated the St. Joe Merchants by the close score of 19-15, at the local gym last Friday night.

It was furiously fought and victory was in doubt during most of the game, regardless of the fact that the Hub's and Merchant's full back returned several points without material gain.

The Merchants take on the Kendallville All-Stars here Saturday night, December 2, both first and second teams. "Jack" Prentice, state high school ex star heads the team of All-Stars.

Regardless of defeats the Merchants are according you the opportunity of seeing the best independent teams there are in action. Let's complete the Thanksgiving holiday by packing the gym Saturday evening, December 2.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ON VOTERS' REGISTRATION

The following questions and answers on the new voters' registration law enacted by the 1933 Indiana General Assembly are designed to clarify in the voters' minds the actual mechanics of registering:

Q.—Who is in charge of voters' registration?

A.—The clerk of the county in which the voter resides.

Q.—Does the clerk have deputies who may register voters?

A.—Yes. City and town clerks and township assessors are deputies ex officio, and the county clerk is empowered to appoint any number of additional deputies he may deem necessary to facilitate registration.

Q.—How are the additional deputies selected and by whom?

A.—Deputy registration officers are to be chosen in equal numbers from the ranks of the Republican and Democrat parties. These appointees must, according to the law, be chosen by the clerk from lists of nominees prepared by the Democratic county chairman and the Republican county chairman in each county.

Q.—Must the deputies selected be notary publics?

A.—No. The act of deputizing under oath by the county clerk, qualifies the several deputies to register voters. The seal of a notary public is not required for registration of voters.

Q.—When should county chairmen submit their lists of nominees for deputies?

A.—Not later than January 4, 1934, and thereafter at least ten days prior to the first day of subsequent registration periods.

Q.—When does the first registration period begin and when does it close?

A.—January 15, 1934; closes April 9, 1934, twenty-nine days before the primary. The registration period is reopened May 15, 1934, and closes October 8, 1934, twenty-nine days before the election.

Q.—Is the registration permanent or must a voter re-register before each primary and election?

A.—A voter is not required to register unless he changes his residence address within the county, in which case, he must notify the county clerk of the new residence address; if a voter moves to another county he must register again in the county of new residence.

Q.—Where do the voters register?

A.—At the office of the county clerk, town clerk or township assessor, or any additional locations designated by the county clerk.

Q.—If a voter fails to register between January 15, 1934 and April 9, 1934, will he be entitled to vote in the primary?

A.—No.

Q.—If a voter fails to register before the primary and is deprived of his vote in the primary thereby, may he, by registering in the second registration period, May 15, 1934—October 8, 1934 be entitled to vote in the election?

A.—Yes.

Q.—If a voter fails to register in either of the designated periods may he vote in the 1934 election?

GEORGE HART IN FORT WAYNE HOSPITAL

George B. Hart, who was taken to the Lutheran hospital at Fort Wayne, for an operation in hopes of saving his left arm, which was becoming paralized from an accident last December in the threshing machine, is in a very serious condition from shock to nerves.

Readers will remember that a year ago in December, George had his left arm broken above the wrist and according to Mrs. Hart, he has suffered considerable all summer. The accident happened at the Ginther farm, when threshing soy beans, and eGorge was caught in the belt. He was thrown to the ground and arm and shoulder twisted.

When visited Sunday, he was suffering considerable. Te operation was an extremely painful one.

THANKSGIVING PROGRAM

The Spencerville Methodist Church will hold a special Thanksgiving service Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Girls Chorus of the Spencerville High School will sing, Mrs. LaVerne Angel will offer a piano solo and there will be other special numbers. Rev. Howard Brown will give a Thanksgiving address and all will join together in songs of praise.

The public is invited to join in this service on this day designated for thanksgiving to God.

IN THE HOSPITAL

Roy Kinsey was taken to the Souders hospital at Auburn Monday morning in the Kinsey ambulance. His condition is serious. He has been ill for six years with pernicious anaemia.

CHICKEN SUPPER

The U. B. Aid Society will have a bazaar and chicken supper in the church basement Friday evening, December 8.

ANNUAL GROSS INCOME REPORT IS COMPULSORY

More than a half million on which Indiana individuals and businesses will make their annual gross income tax returns in January will be distributed within the next few days to hundreds of distribution points throughout the state, C. A. Jackson, gross income tax division director, announced.

Preparations for receiving more than 300,000 tax payments are being made at the state house. This huge number is anticipated because every taxpayer who owes the state must pay up in full in January. In July and October, when the first two payments were made, a taxpayer did not have to make settlement unless he owed $10 or more. Consequently, scores of thousands deferred their payments until January.

Jackson pointed out that a return must be filed and payment made by every person or business with receipts in excess of $666.67 for the eight months from May 1, 1933, to December 31, 1933, inclusive. From the total receipts, the exemption of $666.67 or two-thirds of the annual exemption of $1,000, will be deducted.

The annual return blanks require the taxpayers to include total receipts for the eight months, regardless of previous returns filed or payments made. If tax was paid in July or October or both, space is provided on the blank for deducting the amount of the previous payments so that the sum due in January can be determined accurately.

Jackson stressed the necessity for every individual to become a business man to the extent of keeping an accurate record of his receipts from all sources. This record must be preserved for two years.

COURT TO DECIDE PAYMENT OF INSURANCE

A complaint filed in the DeKalb circuit court by the DeKalb County Farmers Mutual Fire Insurance Co., sets out that it issued an insurance policy to Pluma Houser in 1930 on a barn and granary located on land in Spencer township and that it allowed a claim for $900 for the destruction of the buildings by fire last June 9.

However, it states that Pluma Houser, the Auburn State bank as administrator of the Minnie Thompson estate, Geo. W. Rakestraw as commissioner, and as receiver, Blanche Trott, Margaret Wasmus and Blanche Strand have all made claims to the money. The plaintiff deposited the money with the clerk of the court and the court is asked to make disposition of it. Atkinson & Husselman are the plaintiff's attorneys.

With Secretary Woodin absent on account of sickness and under leave of uncertain duration, and with Undersecretary Acheson's resignation effective, the say-so in the Treasury Department rests in the hands of Mr. Morgenthau. He has virtually clapped the lid on the giving out of news, an action recalled as reminiscent of World War days. This may mean much or it may mean little. It may indicate that something of importance, such as inflation, is brewing, or it may simply mean that the chief of the office is the man who is going to do the talking hereafter. Probably the new censorship of the Treasury means both. Changes are taking place rapidly everywhere and why should one expect the Treasury to be an exception to the general rule? And if the person highest in command in the Treasury concludes that information should be stated in his own words, he is exercising no more than a prerogative that the boss has claimed from time immemorial. The fact however remains that the new censorship has given rise to wonder, and to speculation as to what will happen next.

It is rumored that Mr. Ford will have a conference with the President. The subject-matter of the talk is a secret, and much guessing is being done about it. Until the facts are known, perhaps it will be just as well for the average reader to assume that the Chief Executive merely is going to buy a new car, and in the meantime keep pegging away at the old job. One thing is certain, both of the parties mentioned have definite ideas about handling their own affairs and probably do not need outside advice, at this stage at least.

Dr. Einstein has had his property in Berlin confiscated under a law that permits enemies of the state to be treated in that manner. Since it has been stated that he is neither an anarchist nor a communist, let it be assumed that he is being punished for the same reason that the stripes have been laid on many another in the past, namely, venturing out into a realm in which there are things which the public does not understand.

The Soviet government has been recognized by the United States, and it is said that the Russian representative was able to meet many of the demands of the United States by pointing out that they were already taken care of the laws of the land asking recognition. A European commentator admits that such laws exist, but says that they are a dead letter. If he is correct, the success of the Russo-American accord comes back to a principle of every day life, more far-reaching than law and diplomacy: Will the other fellow deliver the goods?

A doctor illuminates a girl's lung and extracts a pin therefrom. That was doing pretty well, but before science can hope for full-handed applause, some means will have to be devised for shedding light into the human mind, and then plucking out prejudice and hate.

An Ohio mail carrier has used one bag for more than a quarter of a century, which is an item capable of being handled in an interesting way by almost any newspaper man. It would take a writer like Hugo or Dickens, however, to tell of all the joy and the sorrow that has been delivered out of that old sack.

An astronomer states that the star space contains nothing but a mass of bubbles. If this is true inflation already is in progress on a large scale.

The Washington man charged with stealing a corpse and a score or so of coffins may plead for the mercy of the court on the ground that he was tempted by covetousness beyond his power to resist.

Lieut. Commander Settle's attempt to do some good aerial navigation vertically recalls what has been accomplished by a similar means operating horizontally. Messrs Post and Gatty flew around the world in a little more than eight days. That puts one over on Magellan. It took his boats almost eleven hundred days to circumnavigate the earth in 1519, he perished on an island in the Pacific, and one ship out of five reached her home port, carrying about 30 men out of the original 280.

GREAT DAY IN AMERICAN HISTORY

Early New England Settlers Feeding Their Indian Friends

MANY EXAMINATIONS MADE AT CLINIC

The largest clinic ever held by the DeKalb County Anti-tuberculosis association, was conducted in Auburn on Wednesday of last week in the city hall. Thirty-five were examined. Three active cases were found, there were four suspects and three were in for rechecking. There were nine contact cases. People from Union, Keyser, Smithfield, Franklin, Jackson and Concord townships and from Garrett, Auburn and Ashley were present. The next clinic will be held at Butler February 28th.

These clinics are financed from the sale of Christmas seals and the one Wednesday was one of five which have been held during the year. The Anti-Tuberculosis association and Red Cross are distinctly different organizations. The latter is having its annual membership drive now and the former will start the sale of Christmas seals and health bonds the day after Thanksgiving Day when the Red Cross campaign ends. The sale of Christmas seals and health bonds is the only means by which the T. B. association is supported.

WANTS POSSESSION OF CAR

F. W. Silberg of Butler, in a complaint filed in the DeKalb circuit court by W. W. Sharpless says that Walter Bock gave him a chattel mortgage on a truck to secure a note for $1,300, but that J. B. Dawson and Paul Kail, of Auburn, have taken possession of the truck without right. A judgment for possession and $300 damages is sought.

NEW FEATURE ADDED

Keeping up with the Joneses—that's the name of our new comic strip on page four and will be found there each week. It is something you will enjoy reading.

Another feature, "Amaze a Minute" scientific facts by Arnold, will be found in each issue. You may like it, if you follow it week by week. Let us hear from you in either event.

ORDWAY—BISHOP

Zella Bishop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bishop, of west of town, and Wayne Ordway, of near Butler, were married at the M. E. parsonage in Butler, last Wednesday afternoon, by the pastor, Rev. Antle. The event was a surprise to the parents. The young couple will make their home with the groom's parents for the present on the farm. Congratulations.

SOME LOCAL BRIEFS

Frank Bowman is driving a Chevrolet Coupe, trading his former car to Wm. Goldsmith a Hicksville salesman.

Frank Brandon, who has charge of the local bank, was not at his post of duty last week due to sickness. He expects to be here Friday to attend to the affairs, providing he does not eat too much turkey.

Joe Wyatt, who lives at the south edge of Auburn was fined $5 and costs in the DeKalb circuit court Monday on his plea of guilty to a charge of assault and battery. The complaint was filed by Maurice Burnham. The defendant has been farming lands owned by Mr. Burnham's mother, Mrs. Cynthia Sheets, and the two men engaged in a quarrel Saturday. Mrs. Burnham was present and also was struck by Wyatt. Mr. and Mrs. Burnham said the defendant hit him in the face with his fist, in which he held a corn husking peg.

SPENCERVILLE High School Notes

Chapel Service

Chapel service was conducted by Rev. Walter Coburn on Wednesday morning. The assembly sang, "Holy, Holy, Holy." The minister read from Timothy, the fourth chapter and the ninth verse. Paul is in Rome in prison and Timothy, to whom Paul is writing, is somewhere in Corinth. Timothy had previously been converted to Christianity by Paul. The leader illustrated his scripture lesson by a diagram on the blackboard.

He spoke further, telling of the discovery of one of the three papyrus Bibles known to exist, one copy of which was, up to the revolution at least, in a library in Leningrad, in Russia. This book was written about 350. There are many versions of the Bible. Jesus spoke in Arabic, the Bible was written in Greek, and later translated into a language similar to that in which Jesus spoke, i. e. the Syriac.

Miss Beulah Storer visited classes all day Monday.

Miss Lucile Tharp attended the high school classes all day Thursday.

Velma Jean Furnish, who has not started to school yet, visited the school Wednesday all day. She came with her sisters, Rosemund and Doris.

Mr. Glen Agler attended school Wednesday afternoon a little while.

Three seniors of the 1933 class visited the classes Wednesday afternoon. These were Loyd Laux, Charles Kimes and Forest Brattain.

A new fad has been started around the high school. We have noticed quite a lot of dice shooting in the assembly after school. Maybe some experts will be developed.

Charles Agler was absent from school last week on account of an attack of appendicitis.

Some of the high school girls spend part of their study periods in manicuring their finger nails, combing their hair, using their lip stick and putting on rouge and powder. It isn't gunpowder either. The difference between a social aspirant and a soldier being that the soldier faces the powder while the social aspirant powders her face.

The primary boys and girls enjoy a story hour each Wednesday P. M. The stories are told by two of our high school girls, Mildred McNamara and Luella Meek.

Our calendar for this month is attractively decorated with chickens, ducks and turkeys, which were made by the boys and girls.

The first grade pupils, which are on the honor roll for last month are the following: Imogene Allen, Betty Bice, Marion Collis, and Lorraine Rhodes. The second grade pupils, on the honor roll are Franklin Coburn, Elda Hensley, Betty James and Evelyn Kline.

VOTING PRECINCTS REDUCED FROM 51 TO 42

An agreement on a reduction of the number of precincts in fourteen townships from forty-one to thirty-five was reached by the county commissioners in special session at the court house Wednesday.

No decision as to Keyser township was made.

Changes are made in accordance with a new law requiring that city precincts include no rural territory and also to save expense in elections. The first saving will be in the purchase of equipment for the registration of voters, which starts January 15. The board decided to advertise for bids for the equipment.

Under the new set-up, the number of precincts in Concord, Spencer and Butler townships will be reduced from two each to one each; in Franklin and Fairfield from three each to two each and Wilmington from six to five. Union will continue with ten precincts, but the township will be divided to place eight precincts within the city of Auburn and two outside. In Wilmington, three precincts will be placed inside the city of Butler and two outside.

No changes are to be made in Stafford, Jackson, Newville, Grant, Richland, Smithfield and Troy townships.

The tentative plan calls for Keyser township to have 4 precincts within the city of Garrett and three outside. The latter would include one precinct for Altona. The total in the county would thus be cut from fifty-one to forty-two, or a reduction of nine.

A formal order for the changes will be made by the board when it meets December 4.

NOTED SPEAKER COMING FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL MEETING

Dr. D. W. Kurtz, Chicago, World Traveler and Lecturer to Give Address in Auburn

Dr. D. W. Kurtz president of Bethany Biblical seminary of Chicago, will be one of the most prominent speakers ever to address any convention of the DeKalb County Council of Religious Education. Dr. Kurtz, world traveler and lecturer, will be on the program February 15 and 16 at the annual county meeting which will be held in Auburn.

Besides Dr. Kurtz, E. T. Albertson, general secretary of the Indiana Council of Religious Education will be here. Mr. Albertson is a favorite at the county meetings for he has addressed many of them in local conventions and his return will be welcome news.

Miss Nellie C. Young, head of the children's division of state Sunday School work, will also address the convention. She is another worker for whom DeKalb county Sunday School people have a warm spot in their hearts.

Dr. Kurtz is a graduate of Yale University and Juanita College. He was also a student at Leipzig, Berlin, Marburg and College de France. For thirteen years he served as president of McPherson college and at present is president of Bethany Biblical seminary in Chicago.

LIST TEN COMMANDMENTS IN ORDER OF IMPORTANCE

Asked to list the Ten Commandments in the order of their importance, girl students at Simmons college recorded them like this:

Honor thy father and mother.
Thou shalt not kill.
Thou shalt have no other Gods before Me.
Thou shalt not steal.
Thou shalt not commit adultery.
Thou shalt not bear false witness.
Thou halt not take the name of the Lord in vain.
Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image.
Thou shalt not covet.
Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.

COUNTY WHEAT CONTRACTS APPROVED

Clyde Hart, secretary of the DeKalb county wheat board, has received word from Washington, D. C., that the DeKalb county wheat contracts were approved by the Washington Board of Review on November 17th. An interesting fact is that DeKalb county ranks 168th in the United States and according to information received by Mr. Hart, this is the order in which checks for DeKalb county will be written.

LET'S BE THANKFUL

Thanksgiving Day is a day set aside for giving thanks to Almighty God for the many bountiful blessings that we have enjoyed throughout the past year. It is a day when all of us should stop and consider just how many things we have to be thankful for. For we all do see many things for which we should offer thanks.

No matter what our condition or our lot in life, whether rich or poor, well or sick, we all have much to be thankful for. Thankful that conditions are not worse, that our lives have been spared throughout the year, that our real friends are still true and that we are living in the good old U. S. A.

That and hundreds of other things we should be thankful for if we would stop a few moments to consider. Let us take time to think these many blessings over and then to give credit where credit belongs. Let us show HIM that we are appreciative for the things HE has done for us.

Let us think of Thanksgiving Day as something more than a day of feasts, of turkey and pumpkin pie, sweet potatoes and cranberries. LET US THINK OF IT AS A DAY OF GIVING THANKS FOR THE BLESSINGS THAT WE HAVE HAD BESTOWED UPON US. LET US GIVE THANKS!

Readers having court work to do for which newspaper legal advertising is necessary, will confer a favor on the St. Joe News by asking that the legal notices be inserted in this paper. You will be helping the home paper and meeting the law's requirements just as well as having the legal advertising done some place else, and then we can reach the people that will be most interested.

Two Butler boys and former St. Joe citizens, who have been laid up for some time are reported better. They are; Robert Ulm, is about his home following an appendix operation and Oliver Bungard is up in a wheel chair. He broke both heels in a fall from a load of hay on Butler pavement. Their recovery brings good news to their many friends here.

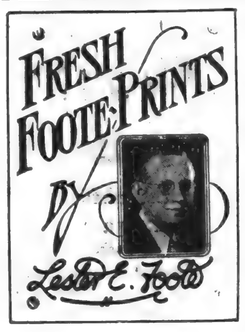
VOL. XLVII ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, DEC. 7, 1933. NUMBER 49



"May we be grateful for the passing of dark days," prayed President Roosevelt in his Thanksgiving proclamation.

Some one said, "The Ten Commandments are violated even more than prohibition; why not have them repealed."

"Preparation for war is a constant stimulus to suspicion and ill will."—James Monroe.

"To get his wealth he spent his health,
And then with might and main—
He turned around and spent his wealth
To get his health again!"

"The "Happy Warrior" seems to be out to even up with the administration for working against his New York City political machine at the recent election of mayor and declared himself for: "Gold dollars against baloney dollars."

The nation is divided in regards to the merits of "hard" and "soft" money.

The action of California's Governor, James Rolph, Jr., in the recent Holmes-Thurmond lynch case is causing considerable comment but the general attitude of the American public seems favorable to the "necktie party."

In 1922 Arthur Hind, stamp collector, paid $32,500 for the only 1856 British Guiana one cent stamp in existence.

"The 'Buy Now' drive would go over the top in flying colors," says The Pathfinder, "if it were not for the fact that so many bought way beyond their means during good times and find themselves in these lean times face to face with 'Pay Now'."

Co-education in higher American institutions of learning was first adopted, in Oberlin College, (Ohio) just one hundred years ago this December.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Coming Events

On Friday evening of this week the Leo High School girls and boys teams wil meet our school in the last home game 'until January 19th. The Farmer, Ohio, teams come on the latter date.

Saturday evening, December 16 is the date set for the Senior class play. You should see the local class in "On Ione's Trail."

Two Announcement Parties

At a Thanksgiving dinner held on Tuesday evening of last week which was attended by the local teacehrs and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Curie the announcement was made that Miss Priscilla Bonthwick had become Mrs. George Simanton more than a year ago.

The next evening Mrs. Simanton entertained the girls basket ball squad at her home and the announcement was repeated. The teachers and Mr. and Mrs. Curie had been pledged the previous evening not to disclose the news until after the second party had been held.

December P. T. A. Meeting

On Tuesday evening of this week the local P. T. A. held its regular December meeting. Music for the evening had been arranged by Mr. C. A. Woodcox and consisted of numbers by the school band and also a chorus with instrumental accompaniment. A sort of play was then presented by a Sophomore cast under the direction of Mrs. Simanton. Dr. C. A. Meigs, of Ft. Wayne, who is a member of the Better Vision Institute gave the address.

Spencerville Wins

The best crowd of the season attended the basketball game on last Tuesday evening played on the local floor with the Spencer Township boys. Referee Walthe found a great deal of spirit displayed by both players and fans. Players on both teams were sent to "the showers" early via the limit on personal fouls. However Spencerville had better luck in locating the basket and came off victor by a 29-22 margin. Local players missed 22 opportunities to score from the free throw line. One third of those attempts made would have tied the score while one half of them converted into points would have given a nice margin. Find that basket before Friday evening, boys!

Louis Bleeks has missed several days of school. There were other absentees on both Monday and Wednesday of last week.

Grades one to six presented a short Thanksgiving program on Wednesday afternoon of last week.

There were several visitors in both grades and high school last week. Patrons are always welcome.

Pupils and teachers had a two-day recess—Thanksgiving and the day following.

The per cent attendance in the upper six grades for the third month of school was 97.7. To date fifty-nine pupils of these grades have a perfect attendance record. The primary room attendance was 96.7. Third and fourth grades, 94.8. Fifth and sixth grades, 96.7. Forty-one pupils in the lower six grades have perfect attendance records to date.

Seventh, eighth and ninth grade mathematics classes have completed the required amount of work for the first semester and will spend the next three weeks of the semester in review and supplementation.

Seventh, eighth and tenth year history classes were given brief type tests last week.

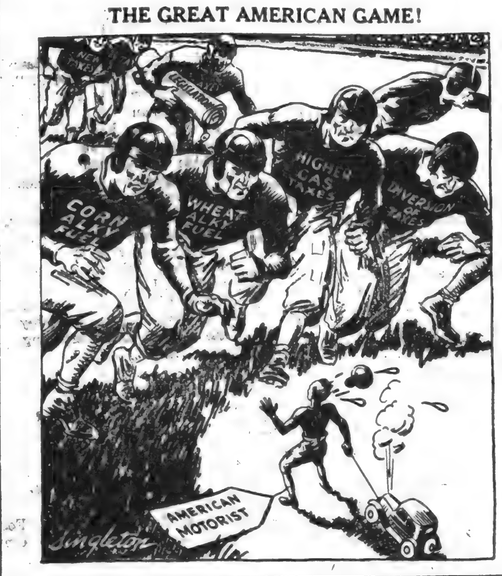
THE GREAT AMERICAN GAME!



At the end of each month the pupils of the primary room have a special observance for the children having birthdays during the month. Gloria Jane Zonker, Helen Faye Wiers, and Sarah Mae Ridgway had birthdays in November.

COUNTY BENEFIT IN PUBLIC WORKS PROGRAM

Calvin C. Kain, DeKalb county highway superintendent, was in Indianapolis on Friday and succeeded in getting through two large projects under the federal-civil re-employment program which will employ two hundred and eighty men in various parts of the county.

One of the projects is the improvements of highways for which one hundred and eighty men will be put to work and the other is for thirty-seven and a half miles of ditch re-cleaning and bank grubbing on which a hundred men will work.

The projects which Mr. Kain was instrumental in having approved were highways, 25 miles; 180 men working 58,000 man hours; total wages, approximately $34,700 with practically no cost for materials except working tools for the men. Drainage improvements, 100 men working 35,000 man hours; total wages $23,000 with no cost for materials except working tools.

Men are at work on a mile road in Jackson township commencing a half mile north of Rehoboth and running east, a road that is much in need of repair.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS

We are carrying on our books considerable tax due in 1933 and previous years which have not been paid. These taxes are subject to penalties and interest as provided by law.

The law further provides that a list of delinquent properties be prepared for advertisement effective December 1, 1933.

It has been the policy of this office to be as lenient as possible in the collection of delinquent taxes. For that reason, we have adopted a partial payment plan. If you are unable to pay all of your delinquent taxes at this time, you are urged to call here and pay a part, thereby saving yourself the added expense of advertisement.

Sincerely,
MERRITT M. MAXWELL,
DeKalb County Treasurer.

LOCAL ORGANIZATION WILL ENTERTAIN BROTHERHOOD

The Lutheran Ladies Aid Society will entertain the Wittenburg Brotherhood at the church Wednesday night, December 13th.

Mr. Fetters, the president, asks them to extend a most cordial invitation to all men of the community.

A good program has been arranged, consisting of special music, readings, and an address by Mr. John R. Leighty of this place.

The Lutheran Ladies Aid will serve supper to the pubilc Wednesday evening from 5 to 7 o'clock, Dec. 13th. Price 25 cents.

SPENCERVILLE CHURCH BEGINS NEW ORDER OF MORNING SERVICE

The Spencerville Methodist Church is inaugurating a new order of Sunday morning service to be used on alternate Sunday mornings. This is called the "Unified Service" and combines both the Sunday School and the Preaching service.

This plan which is being used in many churches today is being tried here as an experiment on December 10 and 24 and will be voted on by the entire congregation December 31.

According to plans announced by Rev. Howard Brown and Lynn Fisher, the Sunday School Superintendent, the Unified Service will last only one hour and a half, beginning at 9 and closing at 10:30 A. M.

In this type of program the preaching of the morning sermon comes before the class sessions and has a definite relation to them.

ANNOUNCE MARRIAGE LAST WEEK

The marriage announcement of Miss Priscilla Borthwick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Borthwick, to George Simanton, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Simanton of west of town, as having taken place on November 12, 1932, at Vaughnsville, O., has just been made public.

The bride graduated from the local high school in 1928, also graduated from Defiance College and taught her first term of school at the Ohio town. Mr. E. Edwards, father of one of the Vaughnsville teachers, performed the ceremony, in whose home Mrs. Simanton stayed while teaching school there.

The groom also a graduate of St. Joe in 1928, is a graduate of the International Business College at Fort Wayne, and is employed at the Goodall Lumber Co., Auburn.

They will be at home to their friends the first of the year, in the Simanton property west of town, that is now being prepared for them.

The best wishes are extended this popular young couple.

TAX RATES HIGHER IN DEKALB COUNTY

County Assessor Charles E. Miser, has compiled an interesting report of the tax rates in the various taxing units of DeKalb county in which a comparison is made between the rates levied in 1932 and 1933.

In only two instances are the rates lower this year than last. In Union township the rate is 36 cents below last year and in Franklin township this year's rate is 2 cents lower. The greatest increase was in Grant township, the rate being 74 cents more than last year; Altona is next with 72 cents and St. Joe next with 70 cents. St. Joe's poll tax is the highest in the county, $5, and Ashley is next with $4.50. Stafford township has the lowest rate in the county, $1.18 on the $100 and the town of Ashley has the highest, $3.78 on each $100 of taxable valuation.

SPENCERVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Chapel Service

Chapel service was conducted on Tuesday morning of this week by Reverend Howard Brown. The assembly sang "Sailing." Rev. Brown then took up his discussion of the origin of the New Testament.

The Home Economics Girls served a Thanksgiving dinner to members of the teaching force, Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Appleman, and members of the class on Tuesday noon of this week. The food was delicious and all enjoyed the occasion. Thanks girls!

Several members of grade eight have been absent several days due to illness.

The pupils of 3rd and 4th room decorated with turkeys and chickens of brilliant colors last week.

The pupils that are on the honor roll of grade three are Martha Hart, Josephine Chapman, Jeanne Hatch and Evelyn Shook, and of grade four there are only two, Frances Russell and Marcille Harper.

Roger Laub and Dick Reed have been absent on the account of sickness, both are of the third and fourth grade room.

Mr. Jesse Hart and Mr. Howard Dermott were visitors of the school Monday.

Miss Waneto Venderley and Miss Naomi White visited the classes all day Monday.

The seniors have received their rings which they ordered some time ago. They are satisfied much with them.

Rev. Brown told the assembly on Tuesday morning that he had spoken in the Harlan High School on Monday morning, and that the students there kept reminding him that their basket ball team had not lost a game this season. In self defense he replied that they had a surprise coming as soon as their team met ours and at that time two, instead of one record would be broken—that their team was doomed to lose a game and one to win one.

The pupils on the honor roll for this month in the fifth grade are Carol Reed and Paul Crothers.

The students on the honor roll this month are Sophomores and one Junior. The Junior student is Dorthy Markle and the Sophomores are Carol Gerig, Agnes Walker, Margaret Walter, Fred Steward and Warren Rectenwall.

The B. B. Boys took the St. Joe Boys to camp last Tuesday evening with a score of 29-22. The game would have given a foot ball game a disgrace, if both teams' players would have had helmets and a foot ball. Though since it was supposed to be a basket ball game it was fast and rough throughout. The S. H. S. boys held the lead after the first quarter of not less than seven points through the other three quarters, but were threatened in the third quarter which was not so good for them. Kenneth Means starred for S. H. S. over both teams players with 13 points, while John Dilley, captain of St. Joe's team starred with 12 points.

MEN ARE PICKED IN AUBURN FOR DRUNKENESS

James Turk, of 718 North Van-Buren St., Auburn, and Art Guilford, the owner of a canning kitchen at St. Joe, were arrested Thursday night at 10 o'clock by Night Policeman Fred Krueger. In the DeKalb circuit court Saturday afternoon before Judge W. P. Endicott, the former plead guilty to public intoxication and the latter to drunken driving. Turk was fined $20 and costs. Unable to pay he was remanded to jail. Guilford was sentenced to the state farm for thirty-five days and was fined $1 and costs.

Turk told the court a man driving a truck carrying an Ohio license gave he and Guilford half a pint of liquor. From that time on he did not know what he was doing. Officers said Turk and Guilford took an automobile belonging to C. G. McIntosh from in front of his retail beer store on East Ninth St., in Auburn. Mr. Krueger found the men in the car on East Twelfth St. The two claimed another man whom they did not know said they could take his car parked in front of Mr. McIntosh's store so that Turk could drive Guilford to St. Joe The car instead of belonging to the stranger was that owned by Mr. McIntosh.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

The days following Thanksgiving mean a let down in effort to the housewife. Simple fare after feasting is best for digestion and for purses. Friday's fish is a welcome change and the variety is great, considering that fishing weather has been bad. Oysters are especially attractive just now.

Many people like to have cold sliced turkey for their Sunday dinner. Since it is wise to buy a large turkey, as it carries more meat in proportion to bone than a smaller one, there should be plenty left. Some people, however, prefer turkey sandwiches or a salad of diced turkey, celery, chopped olives and salad dressing for the Sunday night supper.

There is no change in the fruits and vegetables available though prices and qualities may vary slightly. Grapes are somewhat cheaper after long period of high prices.

The Quaker Maid suggests the following after-Thanksgiving menus

Low Cost Dinner

Braised Beef Rolls Baked Potatoes
Green Beans
Bread and Butter
Cottage Pudding Cheese
Tea or Coffee

Medium Cost Dinner

Cold Turkey, Hot Dressing and Gravy
Mashed Potatoes Brussels Sprouts
Cranberry Sauce
Rolls and Butter
Coffee Mince Pie Milk

Very Special Dinner

Consomme
Celery Olives
Cold Turkey, Hot Dressing and Gravy
Candied Sweet Potatoes
Buttered Broccoli Cranberry Sauce
Tomato Salad Salad Dressing
Mince Pie Cheese
Coffee Milk

Nothing that you can possibly give any woman will be welcomed with more lasting appreciation than Djer-Kiss Sachet, the supreme Djer-Kiss fragrance in powdered form. She will use it to sprinkle on lingerie, to delicately and lastingly scent all outer wearing apparel and even into the pockets of her coats.

And it is so inexpensive you can afford to add it to your every gift list.

Married school teachers do more satisfactory work, on the average, according to a Wisconsin University professor—I guess they just have to make good in order to save the moving expense of the household goods and the family.

An ear of corn with 1,248 grains was raised in Mercer county, Illinois, this year and is on display at the Aledo (Illinois) Times-Record office in the above county.

"There's a whole day tomorrow
That hasn't yet been tried,
With hours still unwasted
And hopes still undenied;
Free from fret and folly
It lies, untouched yet near.
Today's page is blotted—
Tomorrow's still is clear!"

At Aledo, Illinois, a campaign is being waged by the police force, with the citizens cooperating to stop an "epidemic" of window peeping. Not being able to content themselves by just peeking it seems that in many cases the peepers call insulting remarks to their victims.

According to all reports this country has agreed to forgive and forget the treatment handed the United States by the Soviet government in 1917 when she sent our ambassador home, cancelled her financial obligations to this country, and proceeded to destroy American property in Russia. The Soviet government of Russia is recognized by the United States.

"Let him who will, go wander

"One of the inherent and ineradicable traits of the American voters," says Frank R. Kent, political writer, "is that they infinitely prefer to vote against something or somebody rather than for them."

"I will buy a new hat for every officer who kills a bandit," were instructions given police officers at Long Beach, California by their new Chief, Joe McClelland, who added: "If any fellow draws a gun on you, kill him; it is the only language he can understand."

Charles Smith, Hobart, Oklahoma, is under arrest; the charge is manslaughter as a result of the death of his two-year-old son. Smith is charged with giving the child whiskey just to see the child act foolish. A physician testified that the whiskey caused the child's death.

Are the "times" better? This is a much discussed question. Our answer is: Some things better; other things worse. On an average present conditions are about the same as last year but prospects for better times in the very near future are much brighter than at Christmas time a year ago.

Clifford Probst, age 31, a coal miner, was burned to death while locked in a cell in the Greenfield, Illinois, city jail. The man died screaming in pain. The jailer could not be found in time to unlock Probst's cell.

The farmers who have been waiting on the repeal of Prohibition Amendment with the expectations of seeing a much better market for their corn and rye are looking scornfully at the reported orders for 5,000,000 gallons of foreign whiskey. Others are joyful over the fact that there will be no shortage of holiday liquor.

In America, we are informed, the average American family expends from one-half to two-thirds of its budget on the basic necessities of life; leaving a decent amount of money for recreation, education, travel and luxuries. In this country any able bodied adult can get along nicely when holding a position but for the unemployed there is little condolence.

The rose would rout the thistle,
The grain outrun the chaff;
If hearts were only jolly,
If grieving were forgot,
And tears of melancholy
Were things that now are not;
Then love would kneel to duty,
And all the world would seem
A bridal bower of beauty,
A dream within a dream."

VOL. XLVII — ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, DEC. 14, 1933 — NUMBER 50

MORE MEN TO WORK IN DEKALB COUNTY

Works projects sufficient to employ 585 ment starting Friday morning were completed Thursday at the CWA and re-employment office in the Chamber of Commerce. Of this number 500 will be employed on county and 85 men on state projects.

The apportionment of workers in the various townships is as follows: Butler 17, Concord 22, Fairfield 21, Franklin 21, Grant 39, Jackson 24, Keyser 144, Newville 10, Richland 22, Smithfield 28, Spencer 14, Stafford 7, Troy 9, Union 144 and Wilmington 61.

Additional funds amounting to $8,000 for state road No. 1, north of Butler have been promised and money has been requested for this highway from Butler south to state road No. 8, known as the Auburn-Newville road. C. O. Krise, county re-employment director, has had some assurance that civil works funds will be released for this work.

Mr. Krise has completed his local office setup. For a week politics have played a part in the office organization necessitating some changes. At present the re-employment organization consists of Mr. Krise, county re-employment director, republican; Robert Little, assistant director, democrat; Glenn Talbert, certifying officer, democrat, (Mr. Talbert replaced Jesse Fleming, a republican who was not satisfactory to many democrats;) Louis Gibford, democrat, takes Mr. Talbert's place as disbursing officer and Mrs. Geraldine Kingsbury, republican, is clerk.

In addition to the county re-employment staff, an advisory committee made up of men in different sections of DeKalb county has been appointed. The committee is composed of County Auditor, Frank Lyon and Austin Kail, commander of Post No. 97, American Legion, of Auburn, Mayor Jack Patterson, of Garrett, Mayor C. W. Cook, of Butler, Eugene Kelly, of Waterloo and Fred B. Leighty, of St. Joe.

A telephone, 43, has been installed in the office.

Following the county meeting Saturday night, an order was procured by the local committee to start the Hursey drain project Monday morning, and a hurried arrangements put 11 men from Concord and 6 from Spencer township to work. The work began at the St. Joe River and will extend for eleven miles or more. All brush is cut and grubbed from the banks and sand bars are removed by shoveling. Paul Furnish is the boss.

Both the quotas of Concord, 22 and Spencer 16, are filled and a call for another allotment of men has been made to the county office.

CLASS ENTERTANS FAMILIES IN CHURCH TO PARTY

The Co-Aid class of the M. P. Sunday School, with their teacher, Mrs. Lora Leighty, gave a reception to the members of the Church, Sunday School and friends on last Thursday evening. A very pleasing program was given by the class, consisting of musical selections, both vocal and instrumental, and select readings.

Miss Violet May gave a very instructive talk on the Methodist Protestant Home located in North Carolina. The program ended with a spelling contest which all enjoyed. Everyone was unanimous in their praise for an evening well spent.

Doughnuts and coffee were served.

LEGAL NOTICE

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Senior Class Play

On Saturday evening, December 16, the Senior Class will present Noel Flaurier's three act comedy entitled "On Ione's Trail." Students in the cast will be Ethelmae Freeburn, Beulah Madden, Geraldine Thornton, Virginia Shull, Dale Collins, Keith Dailey, John Dilley, Orville Coburn, Robert Musser, and Helen Likes. Come to the school auditorium on Saturday evening and enjoy this school event. Admission price will be ten and twenty cents.

Semester Examinations

According to plans formulated in the last county institute the semester examinations will be started on Wednesday, December 20th. The Indiana new type tests will be used in all of the elementary grades. Uniform examinations will be given in several of the high school subjects. The county will provide the examination booklets for English 9, U. S. History, Plane Geometry, Algebra and World History. Uniform examinations will be given in several other classes but the pupils will bear the expense of the examination booklets but the expense is moderate, only two cents a copy.

Warm Lunch Report

During the week of December 4 to 8 three hundred and sixty-seven hot lunches were served. One hundred and ten were donated lunches. Cash receipts were $12.95. Also $1.05 in supplies were purchased through tickets issued to pupils.

Christmas Program

Grades one to six are planning to give a program on Friday afternoon, December 23. Parents are cordially invited to be present. There will be no admission charge.

The best attendance records for last week were established by the seventh and ninth grades. The seventh grade had a perfect record for the week. The eighth and ninth grades had only one pupil marring an otherwise perfect attendance.

Frank Curie, Jr., entertained the three day measles last week.

Fifth and sixth grades are deriving much good from deep breathing exercises observed daily.

Last week's honor roll in the fifth and sixth grades show the names of Rose Ayers, Helen Faye Curie, Ruth Donley, Lila Hurni, Myra Keesler, Barbara Stroh, Sylvia Washler, Marcel Pugsley, Norman Ayers, Richard Davis, Helen Goodwin, Betty Kees, Walter Louckes, Burl Rude, Grant Strong, Marcella Wiers, and Melvin Zimmerman.

Basketball

St. Joe boys teams were decidedly trounced by Leo H. S. teams on last Friday evening. Leo had two tall players on the first team who kept the ball well out of reach of the local team throughout the game. St. Joe's second boys team had gone into the game with very little practice and proved unequal to the task of stopping the thirteen Leo huskies who were worked in relays against them.

On Saturday evening the local girls and boys first team played in Harlan. The Harlan girls won by a score of 36 to 21. The Harlan boys also had the long end of a 17 to 10 score.

The local teams will play in Waterloo on Friday evening of this week. Following this there will be a two week period without games.

CLASS GETS PICTURE

The Loyal Happy Hustlers class of the Christian Sunday School, St. Joe, was awarded the picture given by the singing evangelist, for taking the largest crowd to the evangelistic services held at Newville Sunday night. The load was taken by Charles Cochran. The crowd numbered twenty-eight.

SPORTING NEWS

The Merchants having been idle for a week, are getting conditioned for what promises to be one of the hardest battles they will have this season, this Thursday evening, December 14, with the Hicksville Merchants, both first and seconds. First game 7:30 prompt.

The Merchants now have one of the strongest teams in Northeastern Indiana and are going to prove to you fans that your loyal support will not be in vain.

Many have wondered as to the financial status of the Merchant's organization so far, so the team and manager wish to state that we are out of the red so far, and have acquired a much needed asset, a new basket ball. The team has the real spirit now, and you fans can help a lot by atending Enmasse.

CEDAR CREEK IN PIONEER DAYS

(By John A. Warner)
Allen County

Cedar Creek is the outlet of Cedar Lake in DeKalb county and flows south through Auburn and makes a rainbow circle through Butler township and over in Perry township near Huntertown and then back to Cedar Creek township and empties in the St. Joe River at Cedarville. In early days it was noted for its many water power saw mils and grist mills.

The first mill was the Beichtel mill on the bank of the Seventh street bridge in Auburn. The next was the John Doty saw mill west of the Grube bridge, and on down the stream was the Jacob Miller saw mill. The next land mark is the Stoner Dam on the Amos Fitch farm in DeKalb county with a head race nearly a mile in length. The old Stoner mill was in Allen county.

A short distance from this mill was the Fitch saw mill and carding mill. The writer remembers while working in this mill of a large pike getting in the water wheel and shutting down the power. It made a good fish fry. The next was the Vandalia grist and saw mill where the Fort Wayne and Auburn road crosses Cedar Creek later known as Gloyd's mill. Next was VanZile's grist mill in Cedar Creek township across the Tonkel Road, and last of all was the Cedarville mill, which was owned by the Cook family. Each of those mills were supplied with water power by building a dam across the creek, which caused heavy back water which was stocked with many varieties of fish especially pike, some as long as a yard stick and would weigh twelve pounds. The writer remembers toting three of these home one summer more than 50 years ago.

If its news, give it to us.

Mrs. Hazel Steward and niece, Jeane Hatch, of Spencerville, Mr. and Mrs. Ercil Steward, of Butler were callers of Mrs. Ada Berry and Mrs. Mary Betz Sunday evening.

Rev. and Mrs. George Osbun, of Ashley, were over Friday night and Saturday guests of Mrs. Osbun's mother, Mrs. Anna Dilley. Mrs. Dilley is improving in health and is about the house.

Mrs. Mabelle Thornton recently entertained at her home in St. Joe at a six o'clock dinner, Mrs. Nina Kees, Mrs. Ethel Wineland, Mrs. DeLora Curie and Mrs. Anna Baker and daughter, Violet, of Bluffton, Indiana.

An all day meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Church will be held Thursday this week at the home of Mrs. Geo. Kinsey. Pot luck dinner will be served at the noon hour and a general invitation has been extended to all the ladies of the church and their husbands and families to attend. A Christmas exchange is planned and will be in charge of Neva Hursh and Ruth Davis.

A statement just received from the Salvation Army concerning its relief for year ending September 30, totaled 439,934 meals, 125,904 beds and 364,351 transients taken care of at their 36 headquarters, besides all their local relief. The public has given well to this organization, and with all the other relief organizations and tax assistance Indiana has done her part in looking after those without permanent employment.

Indiana farmers were granted 608 loans aggregating $1,219,000 by the Federal Land Bank of Louisville during the month of November. This represents a new record in number of loans closed in Indiana during one month and is almost half the number of loans which were closed in the state during the first eleven months of 1933, when 1331 loans for $2,985,500 were closed. These loans are being used chiefly to refinance farm mortgages and notes, most of which have been held by commercial banks.

ALMOST PASSED OUT

"Jiggs" Keeler, employe at the St. Joe Filling Station, was found in an almost unconscious condition Sunday morning, caused by gas fumes. He was unable to call for aid. When found he was unable to walk alone, but was back on the job in a few hours.

Chinese pirates renew their activities. Perhaps piracy is the only game in which the Chinese have any chance of coimng out ahead, when foreigners are concerned.

An American film actor has been arrested in Mexico for appearing in public, wearing nothing but a blanket, which slippd off during his activities, whence it appears that the standard of conduct expected in Mexico is a grade above that which characterizes some American motion pictures.

The treasury department doubts the legality of the purchase of gold by Federal Government. The R. F. C. is inclined to go ahead. The financial Hamlet, in a position of doubt, can only say: "To buy or not to buy, that is the question." In the meantime, those who are not in places of authority are gradually making up their minds that, in view of recent prosecutions, one thing is certain, and that is that it will be well for them to get rid of whatever gold happens to remain jingling in their pockets.

Colonel Lindbergh continues his flying trip, and honor after honor is bestowed upon him, the latest being a position of authority in that portion of the League of Nations which is concerned with aviation. It is likely that, like the rest of us, he is not blind to honor and perferment, yet, like the rest of us, he would probably be willing to strip himself of his decorations if, at the same time, he could strip his memory of the recollection of one small grave.

The fossil bones of a man said to have lived 30 million years ago, have been discovered in South Dakota, and are being made the subject of much current speculation. Without detracting from the efforts of investigation as to the origin of man, it is suggested that science might more profitably deal with his future, or even his present. Whether human beings descended from apes is of no great consequence to the fellow called upon to bear the burden of the day. The vital question is whether or not we are now acting like apes, or manifesting characteristics that point toward a reversion to a ancient, ape-like status.

Now that Russia is recognized by the United States, and has, to that extent, a seat around the fireside of nations, a good many difficult problems present themselves, problems which are likely to stretch out beyond the tenure of the present and several succeeding administrations. Not the least of these is the question as to how safe money invested in Russia really is. Another matter to be considered is that every dollar of credit extended, or privilege accorded to Russia, makes her that much stronger as a competitor of the United States. Friendly trade relations may offset both of these considerations. On the other hand, a day may arrive when it will be devoutedly wished that the recognition of Russia might be undone. The Russian method of thinking and acting differs essentially from ours. The future may hold some mysterious means whereby oil and water can be made to mix. At present there is not much to do saving to trust to the wisdom of the future in meeting unusual situations, so far as Russo-American contacts are concerned.

The lynching of two alleged kidnapers in California gives rise to a variety of thoughts. First, there is the obvious theoretical comment that the lynching was wrong, even though the entire countryside may have participated in it, and that the regular administration of criminal law must be respected, conformed to, and upheld. There is, however, another and practical side to the situation. With the two kidnapers dead, and with the body of one of them reduced to a cinder, the vicinity of San Jose will be noted carefully by criminals of the kidnaper type as a poor place in which to carry on their operations, and San Jose probably will enjoy a degree of peace not known to other parts of the country. California laid the basis of its civilization and order on the operation of vigilance committees, who took things into their own hands, and left evil-doers dangling at the end of a rope in short order. The success of the western civilization, founded on that procedure, is not to be questioned, and perhaps the whole matter profitably may be laid aside with the observation that what has been done cannot be undone.

MORTUARY

CULBERTSON

George D. Culbertson, son of Isaac and Nancy Culbertson, was born in Jackson Township, DeKalb County, Indiana, June 1, 1863 and departed this life December 8, 1933, at the home of a nephew, Ivan Culberston, in Jackson Township, at the age of 71 years, 6 months and 7 days.

Mr. Culbertson never married, living with his parents. At the death of his father he continued to live with his mother and cared for her the number of years she was an invalid. At her death he lived on his farm near St. Joe until one month ago when he was taken to the home of his nephew for care. He lived his entire life in DeKalb County. He was an honest and obliging neighbor. During his last fliness he found his Savior and expressed his desire of going to heaven and seeing friends who had already passed on. He was considerate and appreciative of all kindness extended him. He often expressed his appreciation of the faithful love of his sister and nephews and nieces. The last month he spoke of missing his home neighbors who he said were unexcelled as friends.

He leaves to mourn his departure, one sister, Jane Friend, of Fort Wayne, five nieces, Mabel Baker, of St. Joe, Lillie Strong, of Fort Wayne, Maude Henderson, of Auburn, Alice Kane, of Hudson, Michigan, Nellie Nugen, of Jackson Township; six nephews, Delos White, of Auburn, Henry Culbertson, Ivan Culbertson, Fred Culbertson, Ross Culbertson and Vernon Culbertson, all of Jackson Township. He also has 26 great nephews and nieces and four great, great nephews and nieces.

The funeral service was held Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the St. Joe M. P. Church, Rev. V. O. Harrold officiating, assisted by C. A. Gerber, of Ft. Wayne. Interment was made in Auburn cemetery. Mrs. E. R. Kinsey & Son, funeral directors.

CHECK UP, BE SURE INCOME TAX REPORTED

Indianapolis, Ind., December 12: Every person or business in Indiana that paid $666.67 or more to any employe between May 1, 1933 and December 31, 1933, will be required to report the payment to the state gross income tax division under a regulation issued today by Leroy Sanders, head of the legal department.

These information lists, similar to the lists required by the federal government for income tax purposes, will be used to check against the returns made by the individual taxpayers.

Sanders pointed out that the gross income tax division has the right to require submission of any information necessary to determine the correct amount of tax due.

ate," Sanders said. "If any do not, they may find themselves tied up in the courts with their books for several weeks. We must have the information and we have tried to devise forms which will make it easy for the employers to report."

Blanks on which the employers will file their reports will be available at automobile license bureau branches on January 1. The reports must be submitted on or before February 15, the same date that the reports to the federal government are due.

Sanders warned that the reports must be filed not only by the larger employers but also by every person who has paid one or more employes $666.67 or more during the eight months ending December 31, 1933.

STORE LICENSES BY JANUARY FIRST

Anticipating improved business conditions bringing another increase in store license purchases, the state store license division on Monday began mailing out more than 50,000 blanks on which owners of Indiana stores will make application for the 1934 permits to do business.

The 1933 record of 54,472 licenses sold up to December 1, an increase of 2,102 over the total for the entire year of 1932. Most of the additional licenses were sold to new stores.

The application blanks were mailed directly to all store owners of whom the store license division has records. They must be filled out and accompanied by payment of the license fee to the store license division before January 1. No extension of time will be granted.

The fee for one store is $3.00 a year plus a 50-cent filing fee required with application, making the total cost to an individual store owner $3.50. For groups of stores under the same ownership, the cost runs up to $150.00 a store.

Around the Calendar

Summer brings its share of work.
And, though it's hot, we ne'er must shirk.
But June has many perfect days
July has fireworks and displays,
Picnics and parties, and moonlit nights,
Reunions, vacations, are summer's highlights.
Summer is spring fever's cure
And most of us like summer I'm sure.

Autumn is the time of year
When nights are cold, and days are clear.
Winter is coming, the breezes say,
And squirrels are busy every day.
Autumn brings school and harvest too
And many tasks that we must do.
But autumn has its share of joys,
For healthy, happy girls and boys.

Winter days are often blowy
Winter nights are often snowy.
Have you ever seen tracks in the snow,
And followed them to see where they go?
The fields are desolate, the trees are bare,
Yet children frolic without a care.
We all know what cheer Christmas brings
Yes, winter has its many good things.

But spring is really the best of all
Better than winter, or summer, or fall.
In spring, all things begin to grow,
And here and there some green will show.
Housecleaning, and plowing, and planting will come,
But work should never make us glum.
When the birds return and flowers appear,
To me, spring is the best of the year.

—M. Walter.

YOUTH INJURED ON AUBURN CROSSING

Automobile which DuWayne Kinsey was Driving Struck by Engine

DuWayne Kinsey, was injured Saturday evening at 6:45 o'clock when the Rockne coupe which he was driving was struck by an engine at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing near Evergreen cemetery in Auburn.

DuWayne received bruises and cuts and a number of flesh wounds from broken glass. He was carried to the Pennsylvania station at the foot of Main street, Auburn, where a local physician treated his injuries. His automobile was badly damaged.

DuWayne was on his way to Garrett at the time. From statements he made after the accident he evidently had fallen into a doze because he did not see the lights on the engine or hear the ringing of the bell on the locomotive.

The engine was backing east at the time and was not making over two miles an hour, it was reported at the railroad station Monday and the engineer was able to stop within ten feet of the crossing after the accident.

DuWayne was absorbed in his buisness, having two funerals scheduled for Sunday, and besides on his way to Garrett, to get his "sweetie" and hurrying about to get back home in time for the senior play, all together are no doubt responsible for the accident.

He went on to the Garrett hospital and was brought home Sunday forenoon in time for the funerals. His face is badly cut and bruised, but can be very thankful that is was no serious for himself, because his car can be replaced with a new one. It was fully covered by insurance.

CORN AND HOG CONTROL COMMITTEE

T. E. Myers, County Agent, announces the appointment of the temporary Corn and Hog Committee for DeKalb county. These men will arrange for and assist in conducting meetings in their respective townships at which time information on the corn and hog project will be given out.

Keyser, Perry Gump, Garrett.

Richland, Jeff Buss, Waterloo.

Fairfield, Ralph Stomm, Waterloo.

Smithfield, Marion Clark, Ashley.

Spencer, Concord and Newville, Clyde Hart, Spencerville and Merritt Sechler, St. Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Bachtel, of Waterloo, were Sunday afternoon callers in the Rolla Wiers home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Herrick and sons, Clayton and Lawrence, of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Orange Herrick.

Frank Tustison reported this week that the for sale ad worked and that we could "cut it out." After two insertions the article was sold. Why don't you try it? It will work.

ROY KINSEY DIES IN AUBURN HOSPITAL

The death of Roy Kinsey of St. Joe, occurred Thursday night at the Dr. Bonnell Souder hospital in Auburn, where he had been a patient for three weeks. He had been in ill health for six years and death was caused by anemia.

Mr. Kinsey was 54 years, 10 months and 8 days old and had been a lifelong resident of St. Joe. He was born February 6, 1879 and was the son of August and Catherine Kinsey.

On June 15, 1903 he was married to Mary Springer, who survives with two daughters, Mrs. Ida Derrow of 1523 South VanBuren Street Auburn, and Mrs. Chas. Waterbeck, of Willard, Ohio; two brothers, George Kinsey, of St. Joe and Charles Kinsey, of North Baxter Street, Auburn; one sister, Mrs. Mabel Quinn, of Ft. Wayne; two half sisters, Mrs. Myrtle Baxter of Butler and Mrs. Pearl Williams of St. Joe; one half brother, Claud Mason, also of St. Joe, and six grandchildren. Two brothers and a half sister preceded him in death.

Roy, before his sickness, was an active member of the fire company in St. Joe and for many years followed the painting trade.

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Methodist Church in St. Joe, with the Rev. V. O. Harrold officiating. Burial was made in Riverside cemetery at St. Joe. Mrs. E. R. Kinsey & Son, funeral directors.

Miss Thelma Bishop, of Spencerville, was a guest of her grandmother, Mrs. D. C. McCann from Friday until Monday morning. George McCann and son, of near Butler were Friday guests.

It seems that the best way to be beloved and sought for by ones country is to run away to Greece.

Sometimes the unaccomodating seem to get along best in this world. A merchant who is reported to have had a thousand dollars or so in small change sacked up for the bank and too bulky to handle, was merely smacked down by a hold-up man and left in possession of his funds.

Considering that but a small proportion of the population actually indulges in a large consumption of hard liquor, the interest manifested in the death of the Eighteenth Amendment can be accounted for only on the ground that a new conception of patriotism has arisen, wherein recovery is thought to be based, in some degree at least, upon the per capito amount of fire water that the average citizen can train himself to carry.

John L. Sullivan is dead and gone, but there was a day when "John L." referred to one person only and that person was a good fighter. Organized labor has secured the appointment of Mr. John L. Lewis to an important place on the Recovery Administration. There may be nothing in a name, yet united labor may have preferred to have a John L. represent it, for a good and historic reason. It is certain that Mr. Lewis had a better start than he would have been able to claim if his name were John D.

What the country really needs is a serial radio program in which someone is not perpetually in a jam.

The Parliament of Finland has authorized the building of several warships. The person may be living who will see the time when jokes about the Swiss navy will have no point.

France is said to "have no objections" to certain features of the armament plan of the United States. If the United States proposes to do something to which France has no objections, something must be wrong, either with the plan, or with France.

Several hundred men in arms seize a customs house in Cuba and are sent scattering after a short battle, from which it appears that even if the world is not moving forward, it is at least going on in the same old way.

The R. F. C. is reported to have secured the collection of a twenty-five year old debt for a five-cent newspaper bought from a newsboy, but so far the big offender, represented by the delinquent subscriber, has not been called to account.

A writer of letters to a newspaper says that we should all capitalize our ethical incentives so as to better coordinate and articulate our mental activity with the environment set-up. This reminds one of a phrase found here and there in the Holy Scripture and reading: "which is, being interpreted."

The papers contain several items which may have no connection. Yet they may be grouped together, and the reader left to draw his own conclusions. A sea serpent has been reported in a lake in Scotland, another is said to be operating on the Pacific coast, and the foreign liquor ships are making port in the United States as rapidly as weather conditions and docking facilities will permit.

An instruction course promises a complete knowledge of law in one year, which leads one to think that stretched all the way from the country justice of the peace to the members of the Supreme Court of the United States, there must be a lot of fellows who put in an idle youth.

The application of ice is said to promote beauty, which holds out a grain of hope for the many who are getting the cold shoulder.

The papers are filled with the names of the great, some of them new to the ear, all demanding attention and approval, and most of them worthy of it. Lovers of animals will drop down to a lower level for a moment and put in a good word for the New York fish market cat which, having been removed from a burning building, ran back into it to get her four kittens.

On a road leading into Washington, the police chased a car containing a woman who appeared to be gagged stopped the vehicle at pistol-point, and gathered in the occupants. When the lady's head was unbound and her mouth cleared, she was able to state that she had a toothache. One of the most difficult things in life is locating properly the line that separates helpful service from minding one's own business.

Should old acquaintance be forget? Some are not likely to be. Balancing the budget is an old acquaintance who has walked again into the picture. The treasury officials have figured out how much money will be required to run the federal machinery for the year 1934-1935, and are ready to speak their piece. Taxes of course will be in order. We can stand some taxation, even though the ancient prerogative of grumbling about it is still retained. There is some consolation in the assurance that printing press money will not be necessary. So long as a dollar remains a dollar, the folks who have to pay the government bills can get along somehow.

Looking forward to the convening of Congress, the question foremost in the minds of those inclined to speculate about such matters is not what that body will do in the way of positive legislative enactment. Before anything of importance along that line is accomplished, a preliminary problem will have to be disposed of, namely, how far Congress will be in full accord with the plans of the executive branch. Making due allowance for a common political complexion, there remains the fact that men are notoriously prone to differences of opinion. During the last session, the tendency to disagree was held in check by many circumstances, one of which was that the patronage, now pretty well parcelled out, had not been distributed. Upon the whole, the approaching session seems likely to be much more lively and peppery than its immediate predecessor.

If you knew just what it means to ye editor to have a news item sent in you would not hesitate. Many could give us news of interest if they would, but we are not always able to find it out without your assistance.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

MERRY CHRISTMAS! May you have a generous share of the good things of the world at this season and the companionship of those you love.

The markets are stocked with everything edible that either Santa Claus or the family marketer could wish, turkeys at low prices, ducks, geese, capons and roasting chickens for poultry lovers, fresh and smoked hams for those who prefer them and beef, lamb or veal for Sunday's dinner.

The citrus fruits are plentiful, cheap and of ne quality and so are apples. There are California grapes for table centerpieces and cranberries for sauce or cocktail.

Fine celery is plentiful and you will want olives to serve with it. Lettuce is cheap and with Russian or plain salad dressing, it is the ideal dinner salad. You also may have almost any green vegetable that suits your fancy at a moderate price.

The Quaker Maid suggests two Sunday dinner menus and a Christmas dinner menu as well.

Low Cost Dinner

Roast Pork or Pork Chops
Browned Potatoes
Mashed Rutabaga Turnips
Bread and Butter
Deep Apple Pie
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Holiday Vacation

The local school will end the first semester on Friday of this week and then there will be a vacation period of one week. Semester examinations will be given in the elementary grades on Wednesday of this week. On Thursday and Friday the upper four years will write the semester examination. Indiana New Type tests are used in grades one to eight and in the upper four grades most of the classes will write achievement tests. School will re-open on Monday, January 1st.

Senior Class Play

A large audience attended the Senior Class play given in the school auditorium on last Saturday evening. The play, "On Ione's Trail," opened with an introduction of characters by Mr. Bruce Gerdes, who had directed the rehearsals. Between acts Miss Inez Kinsey and Miss Karma Jean Wilcox, each, rendered special numbers. The furniture used for the stage setting was loaned by Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Shull. Each senior played his or her part well and along with the director, Mr. Gerdes, received many fine compliments from the splendid audience.

Special Christmas Lunch

The Home Economics Department is planning to serve a special lunch on next Friday noon. We are promised chicken, biscuits and gravy, fruit salad, and other delicious viands. Hope you can eat with us on this occasion.

The third and fourth grades report that Betty Smith and Candace Loftus have returned to school after absence due to sickness.

Maurice Woodring of the first grade had the chicken pox last week.

The spelling honor roll in grades five and six last week shows the names of Frank Curie, Jr., James Hamilton, Myra Keesler, Barbara Stroh, Sylvia Washler, Marcel Pugsley, Norman Ayers, Helen Goodwin, Betty Kees, Walter Loucks, George Medley, Burl Rude, Grant Stron, Maxine Woodcox, and Melvin Zimmerman.

Good Deeds

An officer of the Parent-Teachers Association became interested in a local girl of four years of age and took her to Dr. C. A. Meigs of Fort Wayne (Dr. Meigs spoke at our last P. T. A.) who fitted her eyes to glasses and is furnishing her without cost medicine which it is hoped will bring to her much better health. This officer of the P. T. A. deserves mention and those who heard Dr. Meigs in his address here on Dec. 5th will thank him for making the future of the little girl so much brighter.

Josephine Bachtel, Hilda Medley and William Moore were on the absent list Monday of this week.

Local basketball teams play their next games in Ashley on January 5 and Leo on January 12th.

CONCORD

Quite a few around here are doing their butchering.

Eloise and James Draggoo took dinner Sunday with Iris Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. James Wyatt, of Auburn, spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bone.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Maxwell and family spent last Sunday week ago in the Ford Jackson home.

Charley Morr's family and Lloyd Draggoo's family were shopping in Fort Wayne Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Perkins, Mrs. Grace Sheffer and Iris Jackson were in Fort Wayne Wednesday doing Christmas shopping.

Concluding the best business year we have ever had, we deeply feel our obligation to the citizens of this community . . . no greetings could be as heart-felt as ours, this Christmastide.

SPENCERVILLE SCHOOL NEWS

The Junior and Senior boys were invited last Wednesday to see the girls of the Home Economics Foods class perform a demonstration on Table Etiquette. Thanks girls, for the information.

Miss Hazel Stimman spent the week at the home of Mr. Harry Farver, near Angola.

Mr. Stallman visited the school last Thursday.

The Primary Room is very neatly decorated with Santa Clauses, small evergreen trees, and other brilliant Christmas decorations.

The students are waiting patiently for their exams of this semester.

The High School will have a short program Friday afternoon, December 22. It will consist of songs, by the Girls' Glee Club, the Boys' Glee Club, and the special Girls' Chorus.

Tests of the week reveal that some review would not be amiss.

Let us hope for a jolly old vacation week. Here is hoping that examinations leave us with a smile.

There are a few minor changes scheduled for the work of the second semester.

A Freshman party is in the offing. Good times Freshies!

O

The jingle of a sleighbell and the tread of Santa's deer will announce the early dawning of the day that crowns the year. May the rhythm of this ditty, in a minor, humble way, reaffirm, in nineteen-thirty three, the joys of Christmas Day. May tones of glad good feeling echo on the Christmas air; may every worthy citizen enjoy his Christmas fare. May tables groan with turkey and with roasts and viands rare. May each man eat and be replete before the board is bare. Oh, may we all be thankful for our gustatory weal; and also for the skillful wives who cook this Christmas meal. May peals of joyous laughter fill your home with Yuletide cheer, as we all chime in to wish you: Merry Christmas! Glad New Year!

A sum exceeding $9,000 was placed in circulation in DeKalb county on Saturday from CWA and PWA funds distributed to more than six hundred men, working on various public works projects in the county. Vouchers amounting to $7,515 were paid Saturday morning at CWA headquarters in the Chamber of Commerce building, Auburn, and about $1,500 was disbursed to PWA workers on the state project on Road No. 1 north of Butler.

J. E. Foltz was appointed in the DeKalb circuit court Saturday as executor of the will of the late Geo. Culbertson of St. Joe, who died December 8. There is $150 in personal property and $2,400 in real estate and the heirs are Emma Woodcox and following nieces and nephews: Lillie Strong, Deloss White, Richard, Henry, Ivan, Fred, Ross and Vernon Culbertson, Stella and Eva Hughes, Alice Kain and Nellie Nugen. Mr. Foltz filed $300 bond, with O. K. Shull as surety.

Ralph Bates, attorney at Columbia City and former state commander of the American Legion, may oppose David Hogg, of Fort Wayne, former congressman, in the race for the republican nomination for congress in the fourth district, it was learned Thursday. Mr. Gates has been spending considerable time speaking throughout the northern part of the state recently. Several weeks ago he appeared before the Allen County Republican club at the Ft. Wayne Y. M. C. A. Mr. Hogg announced several weeks ago that he probably would seek again the candidacy for congressman. There is some talk going around that Walter E. Helmke, former Allen county prosecuting attorney and president of the International Walther league, might decide to be a candidate for the nomination for congressman on the republican ticket.

THOSE CHRISTMAS CAROLS

By MARION R. REAGAN

(©, 1934, Western Newspaper Union.)

BERYL SANDS stood outside the dingy little restaurant, looking in at the heavily steamed windows with the absent vacant stare of one whose mind is preoccupied with melancholy thoughts. People walking along the sidewalks crunched the fresh, dry snow under their heels. Most of them were talking and laughing with the light ease of those who feel at rights with the world. But their gay chatter only made Beryl more and more conscious of her loneliness. There was not a soul in this whole city she could call her friend, not one. And as for a lover—Beryl winced. Twenty-eight and never a lover! Think of spending all of one's life alone. "Old Maid Sands" it would be. Oh, how terrible life was; how unutterably hard on girls like her. Of course there had been Jack Boulton. He had always rather liked her; taken her home from church parties and so on in the old days when they lived in Allantown. He might have fallen in love with her if she had encouraged him. He was the only man who had ever understood her at all. Wonder where he was now?

With slow, listless steps, Beryl entered the little restaurant. She chose the cleanest looking table in the room. A man was already seated there. She sat down opposite him and began to read the menu card.

"Beryl, by George, if it isn't!"

She looked up quickly and recognized with amazement the large, astonished blue eyes.

"Jack Boulton! Why, Jack, what on earth are you doing here?"

He laughed that half-amused, half-cynical laugh she knew so well.

"I'm down on luck, Beryl—broke. I came up here to Chicago three years ago to put across a deal but things didn't go so well, and I've been a little on the rough ever since."

Beryl was sympathetic. "I know, Jack, I think we're pretty much in the same boat. I haven't quite won fame and fortune here myself." They both laughed.

Jack looked at her a long time. She dropped her eyes under his steady gaze.

"You know, Beryl, I like that sad look in your eyes. I don't like to think that you've been sad, of course; but the look—it's appealing. It's the same expression that came into your eyes when you used to play those Christmas carols at the church. Heavens, how you could play them!" His face lit up with the happy memory of it. "Do you still play?"

"Occasionally. The piano at my boarding house is a cheap one and I hate it, but if you care to, we'll go down there after dinner, and I'll play you all those old Christmas songs. You have no other engagement?"

"None," he said promptly, "And if I did, I'd cancel it."

* * * * * * *

When Beryl had finished, she rose from the piano and faced him. He was looking at her intently, longingly.

"You are very fond of music, aren't you, Jack?"

"Yes, when you play it I am." He came very close to her and took her hands. "Beryl, I was just thinking what harmony you could make out of my discordant life, if you would. Could you—could you ever—" he broke off. His voice thick with surging emotion.

"Yes, Jack, I could," and as he held her tightly in his arms, Beryl was exultantly happy, and felt for the first time in her life, secure.

Christmas in British Isles

Christmas was introduced in what are now the British Isles under the Saxon rulers and was continued, in the winter solstice when the people had little to do, by the Anglo-Saxon kings and the succeeding monarchs of Norman blood. The celebrations beginning with court festivities and graduating down to the poorest families were frequently uproarious. In the reign of Elizabeth the Puritans attacked the Yuletide festivities, but the celebrations continued to flourish until the rule of Queen Mary. The Puritans, aided by the conditions growing out of civil war, finally succeeded by 1647 in abolishing the holiday.—George Newell Moran.

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Home Bureau met at the home of Mrs. Cora Curie for an all day Christmas party, Friday, December 15. A bountiful dinner was served at the noon hour. The hostess with her committee furnished roasted chicken, noodles, escalloped potatoes, and coffee. The rest of the dinner being pot luck.

The meeting in the afternoon, beginning at the usual time, was opened by the singing of several Christmas carols. The secretary's report was read. Forty-one members responded to roll call with "My First Christmas." We had two guests present. The project leader, Mrs. Harriet Draggoo, gave the work from the previous meeting. We were then favored with a couple readings, the first one, "The Night Before Christmas," given by Myrtle Pugsley, and "The Night After Christmas," by Doris Yeiser. Several interesting contests were conducted, after which the Christmas exchange was enjoyed. Everyone enjoyed a very pleasant day.

The January meeting to be held at the home of Doris Yeiser.

Her New Year's Resolution

By Helen Gaisford

JOHN LARKIN was too busy for frivolities on New Year's Eve. He sat at his massive desk till eleven, and then, to rest his eyes, turned off his lamp and sat in darkness, watching the lights and figures on the street below.

When he woke with a start an hour later at the sound of horns and sirens, he was cold and stiff. Suddenly he realized that some one else was in the room. He sat very quiet, scarcely breathing. A beam of light flashed and was gone. A moment later the unseen visitor had picked out the safe, and delicate fingers twirled the dial.

Although he realized that a shot might pass unnoticed in the din outside, he could scarcely sit and be robbed. With a sudden lunge he grasped both of the intruder's wrists—and in his arms lay a frail form, quite motionless. He looked for a weapon, found none, and turned on the lights.

"A girl," he exclaimed, "in boy's clothes!"

She stirred and sat up.

"Well," he demanded. "Tell me what you wanted in my safe."

"Nothing. Let me go."

"I suppose you were responsible for those letters that were stolen last week. But they were in code, so you came back for the key."

"Do you mean these?" She took from her shirt a sheaf of papers. "I was going to put them back. I have decoded them."

He took the papers. Above the code ran a perfect translation. He looked at her a long time. "Don't, please," she said, and covered her face with her hands.

"Did anyone ever tell you how beautiful you are?" he asked. "White and dainty like those snowflakes falling outside."

She shrugged. "I suppose if you were going to call the police you would have done so by now."

"Yes."

"Are you going to let me go?"

"More than that. I'm going to take you home."

"I can get home all right. Even if anyone recognizes this as a disguise they will think it part of the night's celebration."

"As you say. But won't you tell me why, at midnight on New Year's Eve, a beautiful woman returns a cleverly decoded message to my safe?"

"Yes," she answered. "Sit down.

"A week ago," she began, "I was very down on my luck. I have always been rather a gambler, and I vowed that I would either be well off

A Busy Year Ahead

New Year's in the Family

By Charles Frederick Wadsworth

JIM TROMAN stamped the snow from his feet and entered the front door of his home.

He stood straight, with chin up and a good-humoredly challenging look in his eye.

Anne Troman, busy preparing the table for the evening meal, looked up.

"Well, Father," she smiled, "you look pretty well pleased with yourself this evening."

"I don't know how I look, but I feel like a million dollars!" was Jim's reply.

"And why?" Anne wanted to know.

"Just because," Jim spoke deliberately and impressively, "I am going to start the New Year with a clean slate. I have paid every bill I owed. No man can say I owe him a dime. And I have yet one day to go before New Year's!"

"That's surely is fine," said Anne. "It does make us feel good, doesn't it?"

"Hold on there, Daddy Jim," warned little Bert. "You haven't paid me back that three dollars and thirty-one cents I let you have some time ago out of my bank."

"Nor the two dollars and eighty-six cents I let you have out of my bank," little Agnes reminded him.

Daddy Jim laughed. "Oh, that is all in the family. You know I'll pay you back, don't you?"

"Of course," said Bert, "but so did all those other folks you paid off. So why did you think you had to pay them and not us?"

"Because," said Daddy Jim, "they are business people and need the money to use in their business and make more money."

"Well, so do I want to make more money," argued Bert gravely. "I want to start a savings account the first of the year, and get interest on my money."

"Me, too," chimed in little Agnes.

Anne laughed as Daddy Jim's eyes widened. "I think the children have one on you there, Father."

"Yes, I guess they have, at that," said Jim, leaning back in his chair to get his hand into his trousers pocket. "Now, let me see. Here is a five-dollar bill, three ones, and a dollar fifty-nine in change. After paying my young creditors I would have three dollars and forty-one cents left for a New Year's dinner."

Daddy Jim looked at Anne inquiringly. She smiled.

"That will do very nicely," she said.

"Okay," said Jim heartily. "Here is the whole works. Pay the claims of our distinguished little creditors, and look after the big dinner with what's left."

He held the money out to her.

"And as for the dinner," she assured him, "I am surely going to surprise you!"

Monaco is the smallest country in the world, and has the dimensions of a good sized ranch, its area being approximately 400 acres. Its principal source of income is a well-organized gambling joint at Monte Carlo. It has come into public notice once more because it is getting ready to sue on bonds of the state of Mississippi that have been in default for about a century. Travellers in Monaco will have to furnish information as to whether or not there are any oxen there, but figuratively speaking, it seems that it depends on whose ox is being gored, so far as the payment of debts is concerned. One thing is certain. If the United States started to sue on outstanding European debts, the lawyers would not need the N. R. A. or anything else to put their business on a sound and paying footing, and perhaps the whole land would prosper if the United States were to follow the example of Monaco.

Washington just now is annoyed by the starling, a bird of the sawed-off crow type, whose chief shortcoming is that it persists in roosting in large numbers in places where it is not wanted. The starling simply has followed the "on to Washington" urge of the office seeker. The starling undoubtedly will be driven away by modern methods and will depart disappointed. The office hunter should take due notice and prepare himself for the worst. Not even a change of administration can make room for everyone.

In order to have real force, the old saying that a cat may look at a king should be changed to read that a cat may look at a dictator.

In the latest turmoil in Cuba, a mob cleans out the establishment of a newspaper said to favor Americans. The N. R. A. should establish a code to set a limit on the production of Latin-American troubles for the United States.

An auto company has secured an order for about a dozen expensive cars from Russia, the first order of that sort to be received in several years. It may be that, despite Sovietism, Russia is slowly finding its way back to normal, age-old condition in which the rich are accustomed to ride in their chaises, etc. Of course no Soviet official would think of raising himself in that way above the proletariat.

The safetly glass market is reported to be in good condition, and the time may arrive when it will be perfectly secure for those who live in glass houses to throw stones.

An organization opposed to large federal expenditures states that a debt is a debt and has to be paid. European comment is lacking, but might be boiled down to the ungrammatical question: Since when?

The new administration in New York proposes to clean up slum conditions. A good deal remains to be done along that line in the city mentioned, as well as elsewhere. Yet it cannot be denied that some progress has been made since the old days in England, when the hours for throwing garbage into the street were fixed by law, so that a man with a clean shirt could walk about in safety, during a part of the day at least.

Seneca may not have had a heart filled with the Christmas spirit but he certainly knew something of the world when he wrote that it was safer to affront some people than to oblige them.

Rough play is blamed for a marked increase in accidental injuries in the army. The day may come when it will be said of a croquet tournament that the marines have arrived and have the situation in hand.

Those who scoff at the funny page in the newspaper should note that one of the chief grounds of prominence mentioned in connection with the passing of a judge of high standing is that he was the father of a well-known comic artist.

MOTORISTS MUST HEED SCHOOL BUS LAW

The practice of Indiana motorists who violate the state law by driving past school busses loading or unloading children must be stopped, says a bulletin issued by the Indiana Bureau of Accident Prevention to the more than seven thousand bus drivers of the state. The communication sets forth the necessity of thorough co-operation between bus drivers, school officials and parents in an effort to educate the motoring public in this important item of Indiana law.

The Bureau of Accident Prevention, set up under authority of Governor McNutt, operates under the state Department of Safety, Al Feeney, Director. Loran W. Warner, of Winamac, is chief of the bureau activities. In maintaining contact with the public the bureau has a speaker available for meetings of organizations and schools. Those in charge are in constant touch with schools, traffic officials, school bus drivers and others having to do with the elimination of traffic hazards.

Commenting on complaints reaching the Accident Prevention Bureau of motorists passing school busses loading or unloading children, bureau officials call attention to the fact that an eye witness to the offense is qualified to prosecute such violations. Affidavit should be filed by such witnesses in the community in which the offense is committed. Assistance in identifying the owners of license plates will be given from the offices of the Accident Prevention Room 149, State House, Indianapolis.

The bureau bulletin points out that in calling upon parents and school bus drivers to prosecute cases of law violation in passing school busses no campaign of punishment is directed against the public. Rather, it is a state-wide effort at accident prevention. The time to stop a dangerous practice is before it results in some regrettable accident, the bulletin states, and state law is the instrument proposed to be used to this end. Upon issuance of a warrant, state police will take prompt action, if necessary, in apprehending the offender.

MAKE RETURNS NEXT WEEK

With hundreds of thousands of Hoosier citizens preparing to make annual returns in January, the promise was made today by C. A. Jackson, director of the Indiana Gross Income Tax Division, that every available method will be utilized to penalize the "tax dodger."

"The fact that a great majority of persons will be fair in payment of their taxes places on our department a responsibility to catch the cheaters," Jackson said after detailing a few of the plans devised for administration of the law.

The latest step toward providing means of enforcement was a ruling issued by the Attorney General directing all employers to report sums paid to their employes of the amount of payments total more than $666.67 from May 1, 1933 to December 31, 1933. Annual returns for this same eight-month period are to be filed by January 30, 1934, by all persons whose receipts during the period have been more than $666.67.

It was pointed out that the law gives the Gross Income Tax Division authority to investigate the books of any business or person when it becomes necessary to collection of taxes. These records may be used not only to determine salaries and wages paid to employes but also amounts paid out to other persons for merchandise or services.

Methods similar to those used by the Federal Government for checking income tax payments, in addition to some especially adapted to the state, have been installed by the Indiana tax division.

Records will show any line of business in which receipts in one community seem small when compared with receipts in the same line in a similar community, and an investigation can be made.

In addition, other methods not being revealed, will be used to catch the dodgers, Jackson said, adding that "the Federal government has repeatedly demonstrated that evasion of income taxes is a poor way to attempt to make money."

The Passing Year

By Henry Loukuss, in Detroit News

THE year that we measured has ended;
And has fused with the eons sublime.
The land-marks we knew have all blended
In the age old image of time.

Its suns and its shadows have perished,
Like the loves that we quickly forget;
But the spring and the autumn it cherished
Still haunt with a tinge of regret.

We meet on this threshold each season;
And we sigh as the sands must drift by.
Each grain is as precious as reason,
For they total the years 'til we die.

or flat broke by the last day of the year.

"That night I read in the paper of your exploits in the stock market—how everything seemed to rise or fall at your command. I decided to throw my lot with yours—only I knew that of course you would not divulge your methods to a stranger."

"When the stranger is so beautiful one might do many things," he murmured. "Was your ruse successful?"

"Very. I now have ten times what I had then."

"But I don't understand how you got into my office, and found the combination to my safe."

She laughed. "That was easy. My father was a locksmith; when I was a child locks and their mechanisms were my toys. I could open them by touch."

"And decoded the messages."

"That did take work. I sat up all that night, trying again and again. You see, the possibility of a code had not occurred to me when I first decided to rummage among your personal effects. That was why I had to take the papers away, instead of just reading them. But at last I was lucky, and once I got a start, it was just a question of time."

"You have a good start into the New Year as a safe-breaker," he observed.

"Please don't say that. I was so desperate, and it hasn't hurt anyone."

"But it has," he insisted. "I'll never be the same unless I am sure you are keeping out of such devilry."

"If I make a New Year's resolution never to crack another safe will that satisfy you?"

"Partly," he answered, as he opened the door for her, "only I think I had better come around now and then to see that you keep it. What are you doing this coming year?"

Football an Old Time New Year's Celebration

ONE of the most peculiar and ancient of the New Year's celebrations is that held before the cathedral at Kirkwall, in the Orkneys. The inhabitants, according to old Norse customs, divide into two sections, and meet at the market cross to have a general game of football. All living above the cathedral play to get the ball to the country district, those residing before the cathedral fighting to get it to the sea, the whole game being played through the principal streets of the town, and hundreds of players of all grades of society often take part in the game.

SPORTSMEN ENJOY SHOOTS

On Christmas day, a small number of local trapshooters, assembled at the eastern edge of town, near the old stockyards, where they practiced on a number of clay birds.

This is the third shoot that has been held in this vicinity, one on Thanksgiving day in which the prize was won by Don Keller.

The second contest took place a short time later, in which Grover and Herbert Curie were the contestants, who scored equally. When the tie was shot off, Herbert Curie broke all five birds, Grover losing one out of his five shots, and the turkey was awarded to Herbert.

As far as we were able to learn no prizes were offered to winner of the Christmas shoot, it being a sort of impromptu affair, more for practice than otherwise, as the affair was, as far as we know, not advertised.

HIGH HONOR ROLL

Miss Violet Baker, a junior in the Bluffton high school, was one of five in her class to receive high honors for work closing a six week peroid, and the class has an enrollment of 102. This is a splendid record. It will be remembered that Violet moved to Bluffton after starting in on the term here. Mr. and Mrs. Ora Baker are proud of this standing made by their daughter, and attribute much of her success to the thorough training by teachers in the St. Joe school in previous years. Congratulations, Miss Violet.

A Fourth of July Santa Claus

By Eleanor E. King

(©, 1934, Western Newspaper Union.)

IT WAS the great day of the Fourth of July, and Tommy, like all the other seven children of the busy Allister family was out bright and early. Tommy had a great friend in the lady next door. So, Tommy had learned, and, by the way, kept it a safe secret from the rest of the troop, that when his stomach growled too loudly, if he were to go to next door he most always could get a piece of the best bread and jam, and perhaps run an errand or two for her to ease his conscience.

Tommy, bright and early, had found his way over to Mrs. Askins', as he called her. She was busy getting ready to go to a picnic.

"You see, Tommy," she explained in answer to his questions, "this man who is coming with his car to take us out to his house where we are to have our picnic, is an old chum of Mr. Haskins.

As they loaded the things into the car Tommy trooped along and was introduced to Mr. Miller. While they stood there Tommy spied a balloon man coming down the street. As the noise of the horn grew nearer, Tommy's eyes enlarged.

"Aren't those whoppers, though," Tommy sighed. "Gee!"

"Wouldn't you like one, Tommy?" suggested Mr. Miller, digging into his pocket. "Now, I'll tell you, Tommy, if you know my name next year when I come after these folks on the Fourth, I'll buy you another balloon.

It was almost Christmas now, and Tommy was once more in the Haskins kitchen, watching preparations for another feast, but of a different sort. The most wonderful pies, cakes and puddings were being evolved. Suddenly, Tommy burst forth:

"Say, Mrs. 'Askins, do you remember what that man said?"

"No, Tommy; what are you thinking about?"

"Do you suppose he will come back? You know he bought me a balloon, and said if I remembered his name he would buy me another when he came back."

"Of course he will," said Mrs. Haskins.

"Oh, I am so glad. My mother she just says I am silly when I ask her and says, 'I am too busy to be bothered with that. Run along, now!' And you know," Tommy hastened to add, "I haven't forgotten his name either. It's Mr. Miller."

That night Mr. Miller dropped in for a minute at the Haskins'. Before his departure, Mrs. Haskins had a moment of conversation with him alone. He said, "All right," leaving with the merriest kind of a twinkle in his eyes.

Christmas Eve came. Daddy and Mother Allister were doing their best to keep from looking sorrowful. They knew only too well that they could never begin to give the children the number of things each wanted. The children had all gone to bed. Just Daddy and Mother Allister were in the parlor fixing up a little, scraggly tree when a knock, ever so gentle on the front door, attracted their attention.

"I am sorry to bother you at this hour, but I wanted to wait until I was sure Tommy would be in bed. Perhaps you would feel better to know my name—Miller," he said, shaking hands with Mr. Allister after depositing his load on the table. "I've a tree outside here," and he hurried out to get it.

The next morning was never equaled in all the annals of the Allister family. Such excitement, such happiness. Tommy, after his recovery from surprise and rapture over his toys, ran to his happy mother as she was trying to get breakfast. Tugging at her skirts, he said, "You see, mother, that man I met on Fourth of July was Santa Claus, and his name is Mr. Miller."

The Christmas Message

Christmas represents a great historic event and spiritual truth—the most important of all events, the most precious of all truths—no less than the coming of God to earth, in human nature, in the person of a child, to save us from our sins. That makes the wonder and the glory and the blessing, in the birth of Jesus. He came to express the divine love, and by His sacrificial death, to make that love effective unto the salvation of all who should believe on him. The cross on Calvary marks the tragedy in the life of the child born at Bethlehem. It also makes its glory.—Presbyterian Banner.

A Legendary Fable

A moth was killed
In the dark night,
Lured to his death
By a very bright light.

A flame it was ,
But he knew it not,
So he flew on
To the candle so hot.

A sputter, a flare
And he was gone,
To mourn his death
Alas, there were none.

II

A happy fly
Buzzed here and there
And so came to
A spider's lair.

He flew right in Never giving a thought
Until he realized
That he was caught.

He struggled in vain
It helped not a bit,
And when he was eaten
We cared not a whit.

III

A little mousie ran about
And smelled a piece of cheese.
He stright way nibbled at it
His hunger to appease.

Too late he remembered
That it was a trap,
And the spring closed upon him
With a short fatal snap.

No one could help him
n misery he died,
All because mousie caution
He had defied.

IV

People too are tempted
As the mouse and the fly.
But cling to the virtuous qualities
And pass the evil by.

Lure of easy money
Of power and of fame
May lead you to destruction
As the moth to the flame.

So people one and all
Take a lesson from their fate.
Learn to look before you leap
Before it is too late.

—M. Walker.

The students have a great thing off their minds now, since they have had their exams. Although they have not received their report records, they will forget them and have a grand time any how over their full week's vacation. They will all be glad to join one another New Year's Day. They left the school last Friday afternoon wishing their Teachers and fellow students a Merry Christmas.

Miss Reed is spending the week's vacation with her sister in South Bend.

Mr. and Mrs. Appleman spent Christmas Day at Fremont and taking a tour to Cleveland and Monroeville, Ohio, and back home to finish the rest of his vacation.

There were quite a number of visitors at the entertainment Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Marjorie Jones was one of the visitors at school last week. She was the Home Ec. teacher last year and all the girls gave her happy greetings.

VOL. XLIX — ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 4, 1934 — NUMBER 1

50 Years Ago

Taken from the files of the St. Joe News, 50 years ago—
M. E. Olds, Editor

Rev. Hussey went to Kendallville Tuesday.

C. P. Houser of Auburn, was in town last week.

Hugh Culberston of Auburn was in town Tuesday.

A new fence has been built in front of Mr. Zern's residence.

A number of new buildings will be built in St. Joe, next season.

Is Wyatt has purchased the Concord store of Henry Garrett.

Shilling shipped a car load of hogs from this place last Monday.

Harry White while at school last Tuesday, fell and fractured his ancle.

Three car loads of live pork were shipped from this place last week.

WANTED, a good lively barking dog, apply at once to Mack Leighty.

Frank Draggoo took a load of dead hogs to Fort Wayne last Monday.

Mahlon Baker has moved into the house formerly occupied by J. H. Conrad.

A sled load of young folks went over to Coburn's Corners Tuesday night to a Literary.

Charlie Meek has another pet. It isn't in alcohol this time, but on his neck. Its a boil.

Well, we've just got this to say, if you don't, why don't you—buy the Nimble Nickle 5 CENT soap.

Mrs. John Engle and Miss Sarah Boyle left Thursday morning for a visit among friends in Ohio.

A series of revival meetings will be commeced in the church at this place, immediately after the holidays.

Frank Scholes of Fort Wayne, was in town last week. Frank is now deputy surveyor of Allen county.

Misses Sidie and Dora Leighty, who formerly lived in this place, are visiting friends here and at Spencerville.

Morris Widney of Auburn, sang some fine selections of music at the hard tack social, last Thursday evening.

C. E. Miller has leased the St. Joe Cheese Factory for five years, and solocits the patronage of the surrounding country.

There are several mistakes in this isuue, both in spelling and composition. Our proof reader is getting near sighted.

Mack and Ben Leighty have the contract for loading fifty car loads of gravel to be used in grading the streets of Hicksville.

George Miles, the present railroad agent at this place, has resigned his position, and will leave the first day of January.

Mrs. Wm. Volmer, who has been visiting her parents for the past few weeks, returned to her home in Fort Wayne, this week.

J. H. Conrad is the worst man to spout in this country; fact of it is he spouts about all the time, and when he can't get anything else to spout about, he spouts a house.

Mack Leighty says he don't know now just when he will be married, but he rather thinks he will or he wont, just as him and the rest of the folks think about the matter.

J. H. Conrad our enterprising tinsmith has got one of the neatest and cleanest litle store rooms in DeKalb county, and Cooney knows just how to arrange a stock to make it look well, too. Call and see him.

While down in the elevator yesterday we asked Weighmaster Baker whether there was anything new or not. Mahlon began to scratch his head and think. Finally he looked up in a kind of a cross eyed way and said "Have you heard from Ohio." We left.

Have you ever been scared to death? If you haven't but would like to be, just go over to George Bleeks' and have an interview with his dog. He can chaw a man up in 5 or 10 seconds and not half try. We've been there and know something about it, I thank you.

Is this what they call an open winter?

Willis Brown of Auburn, was in town Tuesday.

We are offering some rare bargains in Underwear. Take 'em in.

Mrs. Wm. Saylor has been quite sick, but at this writing she is some better.

Orange Fales was married a week ago Thursday, to a lady at Napanee, Ind. They spent last Sunday with father and mother Fales, at Spencerville.

Dr. Bowman pulled a tooth for Burt Hull on Tuesday, the roots of which reached clear down to his feet; at least they said that when Doc yanked on the tooth, Burt's feet flew up.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

P. T. A. Meeting Next Monday Evening

At the request of the local Farm Bureau the regular meeting night for the P. T. A. has been changed to Monday. The January program of the P. T. A. will be given on next Monday evening, January 8th. Mr. H. K. Schondelmayer, president of the P. T. A., has been secured as speaker for that evening Loran W. Warner, of Indianapolis, who is chief in the Bureau of Accident Prevention, Department of Public Safety. Other numbers on this program will be announced later.

Returned Missionary Speaks in School

Miss Agnes Dunn, formerly a resident of this community, but until recently a visiting missionary in India, visited the local schools on Monday of this week and made two addresses. The first talk was given to the upper six grades in which Miss Dunn gave a very interesting description of the country and people among whom she served for five and one half years. Her talk was illustrated by a number of articles which she had collected in India. Later in the afternoon she spoke to the pupils of the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades.
served for five and one half years. Her talk was illuserated by a number of articles which she had collected in India. Later in the afternoon she spoke to the pupils of the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

A number of improvements have been made in connection with the school plant and its equipment during recent weeks. Windows are being weather stripped, a number of articles added to the equipment in the clothing room of the Vocational Home Economics department, and a new reference set—The Lincoln Library of Essential Information.

The following names were on the absentee list on Monday of this week: Beulah Storer, Karma Jean Wilcox, Earl Kinsey, Corral Platter, Darrel Richmond, and William Bonecutter.

Several pupils from other schools visited high school classes this week.

The girls and boys basketball teams will play at Ashley on Friday evening of this week. Next week the first and second boys teams will play at Leo. There are no home games until January 19th when Farmer, Ohio girls and boys teams come to St. Joe.

Report cards will be given out on Wednesday afternoon of this week. This report will indicate the pupil's standing for the first semester.

In a meeting of the high school teachers held Monday evening plans were made to hold short assembly periods on Thursday morning of each week beginning with January 11th and continuing into March. In January four ministers will be invited to speak before the upper six grades. In February and March each of these upper six grades will be responsible for a short assembly program.

Judge Endicott Saturday reappointed Herman L. Brown of Auburn, and Clyde Hart, of Spencer township as jury commissioners of the DeKalb circuit court. Mr. Brown is a democrat and Mr. Hart a republican. Both have served in this capacity for a number of years. The court also reappointed Frank M. Provines, of Auburn, as bailiff.

Forty-nine Years Old?

Officially The News Reaches the Age of 49 Years, This Week, But Really We Are Not Sure of the Exact Date of Our Birth.

Back in the eighties, (presumably '84) when the streets and highways were all mud, when the business buildings were nearly all frame, when we had no rural mail delivery and but very few telephones, when we had no automobiles, radios or bath rooms, when the sidewalks were all of wood construction, when daily papers and magazines were scarce, when there were no picture shows, when the merchants received all their goods by local freight, when the ladies wore "street sweeper" dresses, when there were no electric lights or electrical equipment, and when the populace was just as happy as they are today and apparently more contented, The News made its appearance in St. Joe, and judging from the tales told us by the older residences, it was a welcome piece of paper. Mort E. Olds, who was a member of the Big Four Store, acquired a press and a limited assortment of type and started a "store paper," carrying their advertising, spiced with local gossip and happenings.

The following item, taken from one of these two-column sheets of December, 1883, will give you a good idea of how the paper was published at that time:

> "A new year will soon poke it's nose in upon us, and we, like all the great newspapers, must have a prospectus for 1884. We had one last week, but it got away from us. We expect to make this paper one of the northern lights of 1884. It will be published semi-occasionally, that is, now and then, or otherwise, just as the weather will permit. It will be illustrated with the same illustrations that we used last year. It being leap year, we shall lend the use of the columns of this paper, and it's brains too, if necessary, in assisting bashful young ladies and old maids in popping the question. Our politics are hiprobition. Our subscription price will remain the same, unless the democrats should happen to elect a president, and in that case, we should make immediate preparations for moving up salt river. Our terms are nothing, payable in advance. Chromos furnished on application. Subscribe at once."

Many a man has gone down in history as a humorist and author, who didn't have a thing on Mort Olds. He had a style all his own and a humor that was really refreshing. Often feeling the need of illustrations and not having the fine producdions of this day, he made his own "cuts" from blocks of wood and many of them would compare favorably with present days comic sheets. Mort was an artist as well as a journalist. He continued the free papers until some time in 1884 when the paper began to issue regularly under the name of St. Joe News. Wood reglets were used instead of the metal leads and slugs of the printing plant of today. It was a crude equipment as compared with the material used in the production of The News of today, but it served its purpose very well and the community was very appreciative of Mrs. Olds' efforts. While we are sorry we cannot give the exact date of the first issue of the "pay" paper, Mr. Olds placed it at January, 1884, and we will have to take his word for it, as our files are incomplete.

The duties of editor and publisher became burdensome to Mr. Olds after a number of years and he sold the paper to Bert Bowman and a man named Thomas. It came back into his hands and he again sold it, this time to a Mr. Williams, but it reverted to him and he continued his career as a publisher until May, 1900, when he disposed it to L. W. Yeiser. This time the sale "stuck" and Mr. Yeiser remained as the publisher until March, 1906, when the present editor came into possion of the paper. Mr. Leighty had started with the paper three years prior to its purchase by him, so he has been with you over a period of 31 years.

During all these years The News has stood for every advancement in the town and community and we believe our pride in its record is pardonable. There is no need to deny that the trend during the past twenty years has been toward the city, to the detriment of the business interests of the smaller towns, but there will always be a need for the service the town can render and by adopting modern merchandising methods, much of the business can be brought back into our midst.

The News, after this 49 years of service, wants to continue to stand for all that is for the best interest of the community and trust that in the years to come we can look back to 1934 and see that that was the time that marked the turning point for the better.

This forty-nine-year-old wishes the very best in the world for its readers during 1984.

Publisher from 1900 to 1906.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hadsell and two children, of Muncie, and Mr. and Mrs. William Hough and son, of Columbus, were guests of Mrs. Inez Hadsell over Christmas and she accompanied her daughter home for the week returning to St. Joe last Saturday. Mrs. Cordelia Hadsell, of Hicksville, 90 past, was also at the holiday dinner.

NEW TOWN BOARD INSTALLED MONDAY EVE

The joint meeting of the outgoing and in-coming members of the town board was scheduled for Tuesday night, but the old chairman was the only member present to accept the report of the last meeting officially and to wish the new officers success in their assuming control of affairs.

Henry Springer, town attorney, was present and discussed with the new board, matters regarding the damage suit filed against the town and M. C. Blue et al, by L. R. Zimmerman, which is sheduled to be tried Friday of this week, and everything is prepared for the defense of the town, should the case be called for as scheduled.

C. R. Price, councilman from Ward Two was made chairman, and Harry Kees of Ward One and D. W. Yeiser, treasurer, were sworn into office by Clerk, D. B. Ridgway.

An adjourned meeting for Saturday night at 7:30 at the hall was made to complete their organization plans when the matter of appointment of attorney, health officer and marshal will be completed.

John Wineland will have his financial statement made to the board at this session.

GIVES INTERESTING TALK ON INDIA

Christianity Is Received Warmly As Compared to Only a Few Years Ago

PORTRAYS LIFE OF MASSES

Has Wide Experience In Her Five Year Term As Missionary

Miss Agnes Dunn, a missionary from India, who has spent nearly six years in the foreign field, is visiting relatives and friends in and around St. Joe. She is attending school in Cleveland, taking the post-graduate course in Public Health Nursing in Western Reserve University and is here for the Christmas vacation.

On Monday evening she appeared at the M. P. Church, at the monthly meeting of the membership, and brought a very vivid and interesting story of her work in India as a missionary.

Miss Dunn as a little girl spent two or three years in the home of her uncle, Howard Northrup, but has not even visited St. Joe for fifteen years.

She was sent to India from the Pacific Branch of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methdist Episcopal Church.

Last May she left India, spent two weeks in Palestine and Syria, six weeks in England, and attended the Congress of the International Council of Nurses which was held in Paris and Brussels. There she gave a talk on her work as health nurse in the girls mission boarding schools in North India and showed the film illustrating actual work in one of the schools. She landed in New York in August. The direct trip to India takes about one month.

India is about half as large as the United States and has nearly three times the population. Of these 352 millions some 77 millions are Mohammedans, over six millions Chirstians, then there are a million or so Sikhs, Jains, Parsees, Jews and over two hundred millions of Hindus.

Miss Dunn says that India is progressing slowly. Christianity has so permeated the thought of the country that moral, social and educational reforms are being promulgated by Indians themselves.

The Sarda Marriage Act, fixing the age of marriage for girls at 14, boys 18, was written by a Hindu. So far the law has done little good, but it takes time to change a custom centuries old especially in a country which is still 90% illiterate.

Because of illiteracy, diversity of languages and religions, the age-long enmity between Hindus and Mohammedans, the danger of attack from Afganastan and other reasons Miss Dunn thinks India is better off under British rule than she would be if independent. For fifty years England has been preparing Indians to take over responsibility in governmental affairs so she may become a dominion, as Canada. Even now several departments of government are in Indian hands. Work on the new Constitution progresses slowly because of the jealousy between Hindus and Mohammedans.

Mahatma Gandhi's influence as a political leader has waned, the Covil Disobedience Movement is dead, and now he is working to uplift the outcasts of Hinduism. This is a worthy work and we hope much may be accomplished.

Missionaries have always worked with outcasts—now Hinduism is awaking to her responsibilities in the matter. There is little opposition to Christianity. In fact the door stands open. The opportunity that has been prayed for for years is upon us, and the church in America is failing to measure up. Missionaries are being recalled and retained just at the most critical period in Oriental history.

Miss Dunn brought with her many curios, and costumes which she demonstrated on living models in St. Joe, Albion and at Coburn's Corners. The curios include articles of plain and carved wood; dolls showing various occupations and costumes; water and cooking utensils; jewelry for the neck, nose, ears, arms, wrists, ankles and toes; stamped cloth; a Hindu worship set, including a brass idol of the elephant god; things from Kashmir and Darjeeling; a small model of the Taj Mahal at Agra; things made in mission schools, and many others which help one to understand how the Indians live.

As soon as this semester's school work is over Miss Dunn is starting for California, stopping in Chicago and Montana and other places to see friends and tell of India. She is so enthusiastic about her work that she is anxious to return and expects to be sent back next summer.

On the Monday evening program were musical numbers by Earl Kinsey and Inez Hensley and little Miss Frances Reidenbach, accompanied by her sister, Erma. A luncheon was served by Mrs. Alice Reidenbach, Mrs. Neva Hursh and Mrs. Addie Koch, consisting of cakes and tea. A fair sized audience enjoyed the evening.

On Sunday, Miss Dunn spoke in the Lutheran Church at 1:30, at Albion at 5:00 and 7:00 o'clock at Coburn's Corners Church.

CURRENT CONDITIONS IN THE NATION'S SCHOOLS

(J. B. Munn, now serving on one of the committee's of the Department of Superintendence, National Education Associations, discusses the findings of this committee.)

I

Public schools ought to be the very last of our institutions to feel the pinch of economy just as they ought to be the first in experiencing the return of prosperity. No doubt the educational tree has needed some pruning but if such pruning is necessary it should be done scientifically and by experts. It serves no good purpose of economy and it is immensely damaging to our educational system to slash into a budget regardless of whether we are cutting into a vital spor or not.

In these days of tremendously pressing problems the most important of all is, What are we going to do about our schools? No one disputes the fact that education should be universal but some want education pared down to the point of the R's. Every child deserves more education than that. I believe that children in order to have the best chances in life possible, that is a happy and full life, should have every bit of education that they are capable of receiving and of using to advantage.

Children should have this not only for their own sake but for the good of the entire notion. No nation in these times can hope to survive, to say nothing of making progress in the arts, sciences, commerce, trade and industry, unless it is composed of educated citizenry. Especially is this true in a democracy, depending, as it must depend, upon an informed public opinion for the selection of its leaders and the framing of its laws. Such a nation can not hope to long endure unless it provides its youth with the opportunities which tend to result in a highly and universally educated citizenry.

Individual Americans must be educated not only to enjoy a happier and fuller life but they must be educated in order that, in cooperation with other educated Americans, they may do their part toward sustaining and upbuilding an intelligent, beneficent and capable government.

II

From a mass of current educational statistics our committee finds evidence that the public schools have been made to suffer from a retardation of program far beyond any economic need. Under the guise of economic necessity too many of education's best friends have been side-tracked by selfish interests. Their places have been taken by individuals who in other times would neither seek nor accept those positions. Because of the times the public is permitting too much of this retardation of program. Several states through their departments of education are combatting this evil by ruling that the license of any person to serve as a superintendent, principal or teacher shall permanently lapse after five years of absence from professional duties. Such action will be of immeasurable value to the cause of education.

III

Our committee has mailed inquiry cards to all county superintendents or equivalent rural and state officers, 3520 in all. When replies had been received from 1886 of these county officers tabulations revealed that 1343 schools had not opened this year due to lack of funds. Estimating on this basis which has been verified by later reports there are about 2000 closed schools in our forty-eight states this year due to a lack of funds. Our committee has also discovered that there are at least 18,000 schools which will operate for less than a six months term. It is reported to us that seven hundred of this number will have a term of less than three months.

Our inquiry also reveals that there are 34,000 teachers who are receiving less than $450 in wages for the present school year. There are 21,000 teachers receiving wages less than the "blanket code," officially known as the President's Reemployment Agreement.

The states in which closed schools are the most numerous are Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Montana, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, and West Virginia. Our committee finds that 1,004,650 children will have fewer days of school this year than in previous years. But the saddest part of all of this is the fact that in those 2000 school districts the schools never opened at all! An entire year of educational opportunity has been lost! A year which cannot be regained!

Are there not many other things far less important than our schools which should be dispensed rather than imperil America's future citizenry in this respect?

FRED SAYLOR WRITES FROM NEAR ANGOLA

A letter from Fred Saylor, who lives on Road 20, east of Angola, was received at this office a few days ago in which he says that he and his mother are fine, and would be glad to see any of their friends who might happen their way. Mrs. Saylor's fame as a pie baker is spreading far and wide and now she bakes 25 pies daily for "coast to coast" busses; "Greyhound Line"; "Round-Up" bus terminal; "Nevins"; "Indiana Trail" and "Eastern Stage" lines. Fred said he attended the Sinclair Gas & Oil Co., meeting at Elkhart on Thursday night and was served to rabbit, duck and 6% beer. A line also stated that Doyt Collins was at Angola, and that he accompanied Dorothy Stutz to Columbus, O., to visit her prents.

A SURPRISE THAT REALLY WORKED

It's not an easy matter to pull a surprise on the husband, but Don Keller says he will admit that his wife really knows how to do it. His birthday and their wedding anniversary were celebrated at his home New Year's Eve, and the following guests were present for supper: Mr. and Mrs. Dan Keller and family of north of town; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Packer and Mr. and Mrs. Mack Keller and family of Butler, and Mr. and Mrs. Erman Haifley and family, of Auburn.

CHRISTMAS PARTY

The following item was received last week after The News had gone to press, hence we print it this week. We appreciate all items mailed us and try to use while it is yet news:

Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Rosenbery assisted by the two Miss Medley's, entertained on Christmas Day the following guests: Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Moore and family, Mrs. Moore's father and mother, Mr. George Walter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson, Mrs. Anna Koch and Mr. John Koch.

The house was beautifully decorated throughout in keeping with the Christmas spirit. The guests were seated around a beautiful Christmas tree and after singing some familiar songs, the presents were distributed, each one receiving his share among which was a beautiful quilt and pillow given by Mrs. Walter to Mrs. Rosenbery. Twenty-five were then seated at a long table loaded with good things to eat, and after Rev. Moore ask a blessing, and did we eat? Well, ask the preacher.

Menu: roast pork, roast chicken, sage dressing, mashed potatoes, brown gravy, escalloped corn, baked beans, lettuce, baked apples with whipped cream, fruit salad and whipped cream, mixed pickles, devil's food cake, angel food cake, mince pie, coffee, apples, oranges, pop corn balls and nuts, and home made candy.

The afternoon was devoted to singing the old gospel songs with Mrs. Moore at the piano. The guests departed wishing each many a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

One present.

An annual report compiled Tuesday by Dr. B. O. Shook of Spencerville, DeKalb county coroner, shows that he held 41 inquests during the year 1933.

Let the car speak for itself

HUNDREDS of thousands of people now own and drive Ford V-8 cars. Some neighbor or friend of yours has one. If we told you what we think of the car, you might say we are prejudiced, so we let the car and its owner tell you.

Economy of operation is one of the first points they will emphasize—the owner will boast of it and the car will prove it.

The 1934 car is even better than the 1933—and that was our best car up to its time. The new car is more beautiful—faster—more powerful—gives more miles to the gallon—better oil economy—is easier riding—cheaper to own and operate than any car we ever built.

You owe it to yourself and your pocketbook to ask our Ford Dealer to let you see this car, and let you drive it for yourself. At the wheel of the car you will be sure to reach a right decision. The Ford V-8 will tell you its own story.

NEW FORD V·8 for 1934

Eloise Bowman was a guest of Norman Carroll at Bryan, Ohio, over Sunday and Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Bishop and children were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Clara McCann.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Gerdes are now residents of our little city, keeping house in the Mrs. Jennie Sechler property.

F. H. Langley, of Auburn, underwent a hurnea operation at the Sauders hospital this week and is recovering rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Koch and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Koch and son called on Mrs. John Geisinger and family at Garrett Sunday evening.

At the beginning of 1934, Sheriff Hoff did not have a prisoner in the jail. During 1933 there were 132 persons placed in jail in DeKalb county.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob DuVall and son, Clifford, of Leo, and Albert Moore, wife and two children, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shroyer, north of town.

Miss Florence Shaffer, of Hillsdale, Mich., Frank and Bruce Erickson, of Garrett spent part of their school vacation with their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Kessler.

A neighborhood party was held at the F. R. Bowman home Friday evening. Mrs. E. R. Kinsey and two sons and Ed Storer and family and John Dilley were present and enjoyed ice cream.

Miss Agnes Dunn, of Tilaunia, India, Mrs. Lela Northrup and son, Curtice and Mrs. Ruth Davis and three children were recent dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hamilton and son.

Mrs. Simon Mutchler, of Brighton, Ind., mother of Mrs. Gladys Cox, was operated on last week at Sturgis, Mich., for gall stones. She is getting along fine. Mrs. Cox has been at her bedside for the past week.

Mrs. Wilbur Shroyer, who has spent the past five months in Los Angeles, California, returned to her home here last week. While visiting her mother, Mrs. Lena Hartwick, of that place, Mrs. Hartwick became ill and passed away and was brought to Fort Wayne for burial, last week.

RUTH HALL KILLED BY AUTO ON ROAD

(From Community Progress)

An intensive hunt has been under way for the hit-and-run motorist who killed Miss Ruth Hall, 24, residing on the St. Joe Road about six miles south-west of Cedarville, Saturday night, December 23, about 11 o'clock. Miss Hall was struck by the vampire motorist as she was walking along the St. Joe Road near her home.

Dr. Raymond J. Berghoff, Allen County Coroner, and his deputy, Dr. Walter E. Kruse, were in charge of the hunt that was being conducted by city and county officials.

Leaving the home of her half-brother, Ernest Hall, the girl had started to walk to her home, declining to be driven home. She had attended a community party at the Blume School Saturday evening and stopped at her half-brother's on her way home.

It is believed the girl was almost instantly killed, having suffered a fractured cervical vertebra.

The hunt for the vampire motorist continued Christmas Day with but little information being uncovered. Deputies of Sheriff Fred G. Lunz were grilling a suspect Monday in connection with the death of Miss Hall. A truck driver, whose name was withheld until completion of the investigation, was being questioned regarding the accident. He is known to have been near the scene of the accident Saturday night and the headlights on his truck have been damaged, deputy sheriff stated.

The driver has not admitted that he struck the girl although he is reported to have said that he drove on the St. Joe Road that night.

About 15 minutes after being last seen Miss Hall was found along the side of the road by Raymond Weilbroner, a teacher at the Blume school, who was driving home from the party.

Weilbroner rushed to the Ernest Hall home and informed them of the accident. The girl was taken to the St. Joseph Hospital in the Julian Schone ambulance. She was dead when taken into the hospital.

Miss Hall was apparently hit by a car going at a high rate of speed. Her pocketbook and shoes were scattered over the side of the road, and she had been dragged by the car or truck.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hall and in addition to the parents is survived by the following brothers and sisters: Edward Hall, of Grabill, Frank, of Fort Wayne, and Floyd and Mary at home; and the following half brothers: Ward and Ernest, of near Fort Wayne, Arthur, of Tampa, Fla., and William also of near Fort Wayne.

The deceased was a member of the St. Joe M. E. Chapel and has been employed at the General Electric company in Fort Wayne for several years. She attended Leo High School and was quite well known in this community.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the home of her parents on the St. Joe Road and at the St. Joe Chapel Church with the Rev. J. Stewart officiating. Burial took place in the Parker cemetery.

Just A Smile

"Who was the woman who looked back and turned into a pillar of salt?" asked the Sunday School teacher.

"I dunno, mum," answered Willie, "but my mama looked back and turned into a tree."

A colored community in one of the Southern states held worship for many years in a cabin. Finally more prosperous times arrived, and they built a fine new church and the cabin was abandoned.

On the inaugural Sunday, a professor from the colored folks college occupied the pulpit, and expounded doctrine forcefully. One old mammy was so overcome with emotion, she kept exclaiming, "Praise de Lawd!" to the evident annoyance of the church's distinguished visitor. Finally one of the ushers hurried over to the offender and warned her to be quiet.

"But I'se got religion," she moaned rocking to and fro. The usher very disgusted, "Well, mam, dis heah ain't no place to get dat in," he declared in a stage whisper.

Mr. Davis: "Stanley, explain what are the functions of the skin?"

Stanley: "The chief function of the skin is to keep us from looking raw."

Dave: "The horn on your car must be broken."

Sid: "No, it's just indifferent."

Dave: "Indifferent; meaning what?"

Sid: "It just does'nt give a hoot."

Miss Warner (in English:) How large would a box have to be to hold all the people that ever lived?

Mary Jane C.: "Waht do you want to put them in a box for?"

A young country fellow left the farm and got a job in the city. He wrote a letter to his brother, who chose to stay out on the farm, telling about the city life, in which he said: "Thursday we autoed out to the club where we lunched and dined until dark. Then we went theatrring." The brother on the farm wrote back: "Yesterday we motored to town where we baseballed all afternoon. Today we horsed out to the cornfield and giddyapped until sundown. Then we suppered and piped for awhile. After that we staircased up to our rooms and bedsteaded until the clock fourthirtied."

Sports

The New Haven-Leo tilt was up to all expectations, being hard fought and close all the way thru. Barker, Lion forward, again proved himself one of the outstanding players of the county accounting for 12 of his team's points. The Lions led 18 to 13 at the half and still had a five point margin with less than five minutes to go. An overtime made the Bulldogs victorious in one of the best games ever witnessed by either fans.

Kindness

It is said that if we would know others' truthful opinion about ourselves, children can tell us. A child is more frank than adults oft dare to be. While their innocent remarks may sometimes sting, children are likewise more frank and liberal with their words of kindness too.

A little boy said one morning in school, "See this coat my mother made for me."

His teacher remarked, "How well your mother sews!"

He answered, "You know I have a wonderful mother."

If that mother could have heard how emphatically her son called her wonderful, her heart would certainly have thrilled with joy.

The little girl who said to her teacher at the close of a regular school day, "Thank-you for this happy day," was a real joy-giver too.

It will greatly aid parents and teachers in problems of child discipline if they keep in mind the fact that children not only like to be kind, but also respond to kindness like magic.

At this Christmas season when hearts should be happy, we can all do much by scattering sunshine—the sunshine of kind words, deds, and smiles.

This suggestion is well expressed in the following poem by Joseph Morris:

"Drop a pebble in the water,
And its ripples reach out far;
And the sunbeams dancing on them
May reflect them to a star.
Give a smile to someone passing,
Thereby make his morning glad;
It may greet you in the evening
When your own heart may be sad.
Do a deed of simple kindness;
Though its end you may not see,
It may reach, like widening ripples,
Down a long eternity."

THE accompanying graph constitutes a vivid explanation of one reason why the prices for corn and hogs have been so low the last few years. The main reason is the severe decline in the export demand for United States hog products since the 1919 peak.

In 1910-14, European nations took the equivalent of nearly six million hogs. This was only a moderate export level, but the total United States hog production at that time was in good balance with the combined domestic and foreign demand.

Under the stimulus of the World War, foreign purchases of our hog products jumped to the equivalent of about seventeen million hogs. But since the war, our exports have dropped back again to the equivalent of about four million hogs. This decline has been due to a rapid restoration of hog production in European countries since the war, particularly in Germany and Denmark, and more recently because of tariffs and of quotas which limit the quantity of imports.

Meanwhile, hog production in the United States has continued to increase at about the same rate as the population. Consequently, the products no longer shipped abroad have become excess products on the home market and have driven down hog prices. Some adjustment to this changed demand must be made if hog prices are to be raised to a more favorable level. The corn-hog production-control program, now being offered by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, will help farmers bring about this necessary better balance.

VOL. XLIX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, JANUARY 11, 1934 NUMBER 2

50 Years Ago

Taken from the files of the St. Joe News, 50 years ago—
M. E. Olds, Editor

Another car load of corn is expected to arrive this week.

Milt Boots of Edgerton, Ohio, was in town last Monday.

Miss Clara Shull was married last week to Mr. Lewis Lake.

A car load of milk cows were shipped from this place last Tuesday.

Quite a number of Newville people attended the lecture Tuesday evening.

Communion services at the church on one week from next Sunday, at half past ten o'clock.

Mr. Keator has been invited to deliver a lecture at Spencerville, and will probably do so some time next month.

John McCue has been promoted to the position of walking boss, and Jerry Irwin is now foreman of this section.

Dr. Bowman expects to go to Philadelphia about the middle of next month, to attend a course of medical lectures.

Alex Donaldson has secured the contract for building a brick school house in district number four, Concord township.

Alfred and Chalmers Reasoner have lately purchased a circle and drag saw, and are prepared to do all kinds of wood sawing.

There is quite a demand for houses to rent in this place at the present time. Why don't some one who has money, put up a few dwellings?

Will Curie is trying hard to raise a moustache. Get some of Hall's Hair Invigorator and dope it on your upper lip three times a day, and that will fetch it every time, sometimes.

Two county ditches have been laid through the low lands of Sodom, which will when completed, drain and fit for cultivation a number of acres of land, that is now almost worthless.

It is very seldom indeed, that we are able to present to our readers such lovely and at the same time, such highly interesting poetry, as that to be found on the first page of this issue. It was composed and written by three promising young men of our village, who are not yet out of their teens, and how such young and tender brains could produce such a thrilling description of a recent capture and trial, and then rhyme it into choice poetry, is more than we can tell. The boys ought to be careful and not over-task their brains too much, or it might produce a softening. The poetry follows:

A Mishap

By John, Burt and Frank

Not long ago in the town of St. Joe,
There was a case in which there was a chase.
One man was small, the other tall,
And oh it was fun, to see them run.

The tall man said
Hold on Shorty, I'm almost dead,
Then Shorty replied, I'm hunting bail;
Then the tall man said you must go to jail.

When before the Squire they did appear,
Shorty began to feel rather queer:
And he said, what's all this fuss about,
And Solomon said, you're gone up spout.

Then Sam didn't look very immense,
For he had got goods under false pretense;
And then in order to settle the fun,
They sent E. J. after Robinson.

Then very much against Sam's delight,
They said he couldn't come tonight
And they found that the best they could do,
Was to take him to Auburn on number two.

And after all his day's toil,
They turned him over to Sheriff Boyle;
Sam was marched through whitewashed halls,
And finally lodged between stone walls.

Millie Sechler is teaching the Sodom school this winter.

William Sechler is getting out lumber to build a new house next summer.

George Tappin received a severe cut on his foot, a few days ago, by coming in close contact with an axe.

Mrs. Alice Tappin who has been quite sick for the past two months, is slowly regaining her usual health.

Wm. Staman bought an oak tree of Frank Sechler, the butt cut of which, measured 16 feet in circumference.

Notwithstanding the severe snow storm on New Year's night, a sled load of young people went over to Henry Sechler's, east of Newville, to an oyster supper. They report a fine time.

Dan Baker and wife, formerly of this neighborhood, but who have for the past three years been living in Iowa, have returned to make this their future home. Their return is welcomed by many friends.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Good P. T. A. Attendance

On Monday evening a good sized audience was in attendance at the January meeting of the P. T. A. The program opened with a group of four songs by pupils of first and second grades under the direction of the teacher, Miss Martha Miser. Franklin Sechler gave a reading representing the third and fourth grades. The fifth and sixth grades then gave two numbers on the program. Their first number was entitled "The Ten Good New Years Resolutions." This was followed by a playlet "A Kansas Birthday Party." The P. T. A. president, Mr. H. K. Schondelmayer, then introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Loran W. Warner, Chief of the Bureau of Accident Prevention, Department of Public Safety, Indianapolis. Mr. Warner told of his work throughout the state, meetings with school bus drivers, speaking before county teachers institutes and in public school rooms urging that every precaution be taken to avoid accidents and injury. We feel that his address was very practical for bus drivers, pupils and patrons.

Absentees last week included Connie Harter, Harriett Keller, Joyce Fusselman, Roy Like, Dale Collins, Francis Close and Ray Littlefield. Each of these pupils was absent due to illness.

For a noon hour diversion three sets of table tennis or ping pong have been introduced in the upper grades of the school. Monday an elimination contest was started to determine the champion boy player in senior high school. Watch for the name in this column next week.

The following five ministers have accepted invitations to speak at chapel services which will be held on Thursday mornings for the next five weeks: Rev. A. H. Fabianske, Rev. C. W. Moore, Rev. J. N. Scholes, Rev. Walter Coburn and Rev. H. K. Schondelmayer. The next six Thursday mornings after the ministers addresses will see the upper six grades taking turns in providing assembly programs.

The honor roll in spelling for the fifth and sixth grades last week contains the names of Ross Ayers, Helen Faye Curie, Frank Curie, Ruth Donley, Evelyn George, Jack Goodwin, James Hamilton, Dorothy Stewart, Norman Ayers, Richard Davis, Helen Goodwin, Iris Jackson, Betty Kees, Burl Rude, Grant Strong, Maxine Woodcox, and Christine Zonker.

Vocal Music in the Schools

We now have three days of music in our schools instead of two days in the week. The additional time is alloted to vocal music and reaches each grade in the school. Twenty-one boys enrolled for the boys chorus in the upper four high school grades. Thirty-five girls are enrolled in the chorus class for the same grades. This work is under the supervision of Mr. C. A. Woodcox.

Farmer High School Teams Next Week

Keep in mind that the girls and boys teams from the Farmer, Ohio High School play in St. Joe on Friday evening, December 19th. On Friday of this week our boys teams play at Leo.

The seventh and eighth grades have the use of the gymnasium on Thursday noons beginning this week.

NO MONEY TO PAY OLD AGE PENSION

The county commissioners last week held that the condition of county treasury will not permit any payments at this time for old age pensions.

The board has been studying about 280 applications and found that nearly 200 of the applicants are entitled to some relief under the law. The amount of each pension must be decided by the board, but none may exceed $15 a month.

The tax levy providing for payment of pensions was fixed last September, but no funds will be available specifically for this purpose until June. The budget for 1934 for all county purposes was cut to the minimum and the levy fixed accordingly. The balance in the treasury available at this time has been considerably reduced by the Knisely Bros. & Co. bank of Butler, going under class B. The county has $12,000 in the institution and when this money may be used is unknown.

The commissioners are uncertain as to when old age pension payments will be started.

Road Supervisor's Salary

The board reappointed Calvin C. Kain, county surveyor, as county road supervisor and fixed his compensation at $3 a mile per year. The total mileage of county highways is approximately 740, which is less than the salary of the county surveyor heretofore. Of this sum, $1,575 will represent Mr. Kain's salary as surveyor as fixed by law and $645 as his additional pay for supervising the highways. He will also receive 5 cents a mile for traveling expense.

On account of the increased damage to sheep by dogs and the resultant exhaustion of some township dog funds, the commissioners increased the dog tax for 1934, making it $2 for males or spayed females, $3 for unspayed females and $4 for each additional dog. The rates last year were $1, $2, and $3, respectively.

The board also approved the new precinct boundaries, by which the number in the county is reduced from 51 to 41.

A warning was issued by the board against placing rubbish on county highways right-of-way and prosecution for violations was threatened.

Your eyes were made for LIGHT LIKE THIS

WHEN you read on a shaded porch on a sunny day you are reading by the light that is ideal for your eyes. You feel no sense of stress or strain. Why? Because you are reading with nature's equivalent of a 1,000-watt lamp—many, many times as bright as the lamp used in the average home.

You use them most in LIGHT LIKE THIS

WHEN you read indoors, the light is about 1/100 as bright as the light on the porch. Your eyes must adjust themselves to the difference. You can help them make this adjustment by having adequate light throughout your home. This, science tells us, will assist in preventing nervous muscular tension, defective vision, and a tendency toward headache, dizziness, vertigo. We will be glad to consult with you on the proper lighting of your home.

VISIT SUGAR PLANT AT DECATUR

Recently the Central Sugars Refining Co., of Decatur, Ind., invited a group of Social and Educational Directors of the Farm Bureau to visit the plant at Decatur, and enjoy a banquet and program. Mrs. Stella Goldsmith, Mrs. Grace Dilley and Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick attended from DeKalb county.

The plant was just finishing the last run of sugar for the season; a tour was made of the plant which proved to be very interesting and educational, as each step was explained, from the time the sugar beets were unloaded from the cars, until the sugar was in sacks ready for the consumer.

The plant was run the past year co-operatively, the refiners and beet growers sharing the profits on a fifty-fifty basis. The banquet was served at the noon hour by the ladies of the Church of Christ in the church dining room, after which a fine program was given. This refinery at Decatur is the only beet sugar refinery in Indiana and it is well worth visiting from an educational standpoint.

REHOBETH SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS HAS PARTY

The young people of the Rehobeth Sunday School were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Foltz, of near Spencerville Saturday evening. Games were enjoyed by all and at a late hour luncheon was served to the following guests: the Misses Anna Ruth Haupt, Gertrude Kitchen, Dorothy and Kathryn Young, Wanda, Hilda and Alma Richmond, Ruth Marsh, Clarissa Rediger, Dorothy and Faye Kelley, Bessie Peters, Fern Wright, Elizabeth Calvert and Kathryn Barrington. Messrs Harold Yoder, Jimmie Kelly, Bob Johnson, Vere Peters, Donald Young, Marion Rediger, Hubert McNamara, Virgil Kimes, Perry Bennett, Leo Spitler, James Ryan, Raymond Foltz, Lawrence Wappes, and Evert Carnahan; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Kitchen, Mr. and Mrs. David Rediger and Mr. and Mrs. William Foltz.

TRADE FARM OFF

The Goings farm of 40 acres, west of town, was traded last week to George McNutt, of Fort Wayne. In the exchange the Goings' will have a modern, 5-room brick bungalow and one-half acre of excellent black soil. They will be located on West Taylor street, near the Sweet celery field. They will be leaving a nice country home but because of the health of Mr. Goings, they are unable to do any farming. The daughter, Stella, works in Fort Wayne and can be at home.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

On Monday evening from 3 to 5 Mrs. Frank Curie entertained in honor of her son, Frank's tenth birthday. Those present were Ruth and Myra Keesler, June Elizabeth Jump, Helen Faye Curie, Marcile Pugsley and Franklin Sechler. The hostess served ice cream, individual birthday cakes with candles in cracker-jack and apples.

Fish and Game Club Information

Thirty-two attended the feed put on by Willard Hurni and his gang Thursday night, as the losers in the pest hunt. After the feed the boys elected officers for 1934 as follows:

Ed Storer, president.
Grant Balta, vice president.
Secretary, Willard Hurni.
Treasurer, F. R. Bowman.

A membership campaign is on among the boys.

FRESH FOOTE-PRINTS

By Lester E. Foote

While testifying in his own defense in a divorce case brought against him by his wife, Dr. A. E. Citron, Brooklyn, New York, stated that his family trouble started when his mother-in-law not only accompanied him and his wife on their honeymoon but she also insisted on sleeping in the same bed with the bride and groom.

In California the new Barber's Code places the minimum price of a hair cut at sixty-five cents.

Robert Elliott, Sing Sing's official executioner, turned the switch on seventeen in 1933. For his part in these official killings Mr. Elliott received $150 each; making his income for the year $2550.

Mrs. Katie Swan, age 59, of Pittsburg, Kansas, committed suicide, by taking off her clothing, wading through a pond, and then lying down on the bank of the pond where she was found frozen to death.

In New York City a society woman had her dog up on the roof of a ten story apartment house; the dog fell from the roof striking a man on the head. The man is in Beekman Street Hospital with a fractured skull; the dog is dead.

Harry Rosenweig, Chicago, has sued "Woody" English of the 1933 Chicago Cubs for $50,000. The charge reads that a ball batted by English in one of last summer's games broke Rosenweig's wrist.

At Spokane, Washington, Mrs. Charles White complained to the court about her husband. She claimed that after Mr. White had pawned the family silverware for money to buy liquor and couldn't get drunk enough to satisfy himself he then climaxed his "hocking carer" by pawning his own false teeth.

Chicago drug store advertises legal blended whiskey at $1.29 per pint.

College women at the University of Nebraska are reported to have a fad for smoking corncob pipes.

"Mark Twain," says the Nauvoo (Illinois) Independent, "condemned polygamy on the grounds that "no man can have two masters."

Some Chicago counterfeiters made about $500,000, which was found and promptly seized by the Federal authorities. Evidently they were attempting "uncontrolled inflation."

It is predicted that President Roosevelt will ask Congress to continue the C. C. C. program for another year. The territory in which this young army may work is practically unlimited. The 162,009,145 acres of national forests make an acreage larger than the combined areas of the states of Iowa, Illinois and Indiana.

"The man who wants a garden fair,
Or small or very big,
With flowers growing here and there,
Must bend his back and dig.

The things are mighty few on earth
That wishes can attain.
Whate'er we want of any worth
We've got to work to gain.

It matters not what goal you seek
Its secret here reposes:
You've got to dig from week to week
To get Results or Roses.

Trouble seems to follow in the wake of laying off from ones job for a day. The Fourth of July used to be the peculiarly fatal holiday. This year, Christmas has set a fairly bad record for itself in the way of mortalities. There was a liberal supply of accidental shootings. A celebrating boy blew himself partly to pieces with a stick of dynamite. Several died from heart disease, due to the excitement of the occasion, and so on. In spite of the fact that it was a sad day for many, the Yuletide is not to be regretted. Considerable money changed hands in a legitimate way. Santa Claus showed that he was powerful enough to rise above the press of hard times, and last but by no means least, Christmas is the only day in a twelvemonth whose activities are based on the assumption that it is more blessed to give than to receive.

One of the chief problems confronting the new Congress probably will be that relating to the restoration of confidence, and the particular path that movements in that direction should take. In this regard there are two schools of thought. One holds that if the dollar only can be made sound enough, those who have the dollars wil surely loosen up and relieve the government of the burden of supplying much of the aid that it may be called upon to furnish. The other school is of the opinion that if the government is liberal enough in fostering public works projects and in lending a helping hand to industry and to various state and local treasuries which are in a pinch, the dollar will take care of itself. The views thus expressed are wide apart. It is often stated that money talks, but ih this instance the dollar has nohing to say for itself, and Congress will have the talking to do, as well as some serious thinking.

The Commandant of the Marine Corps asks for an appropriation for two thousand more men, stating that the organization cannot work efficiently in its present condition. On the one hand, there are few bodies which are tearing along at maximum efficiency at present. On the other hand, it has always been reported of the Marines that they "have the situation in hand." Perhaps here is suggested a remedy for all our troubles, which has been overlooked. Turn the Marines lose upon a perplexed world. Of good and conscientious workers there seem to be a plenty, but the man would be competent indeed who could boast that he has the situation in hand.

An "inside story" of a preceding presidential administration is promised. History has run riot on the inside story proposition. It is questionable whether intimate accounts of prominent persons accomplish much good in the long run. Such prints make best-sellers for a while, afford an evening's entertainment, gratify curiosity, and then pass on to the shelves of the second-hand book shops. More time has been spent in trying to find out whether Shakespeare actually stole deer than has been devoted to the reading of his works. It is enough to know that President Lincoln stood firm under trying circumstances, and that General Lee was faithful to his cause to the end. That the one may have eaten in his shirtsleeves, or that the other may have counselled his son to drive a harder bargain respecting the building of his house, is mere trash. All that the public has to gain from the lives of great men may be derived from a portrait drawn in the lines of their real greatness and softened by the setting sun of their departing day.

The President of Catalonia, a late split-off from ancient Spain, is dead at 74, which is nothing more than might have been expected. The fact to be noted is that he was a President at more than three score and ten. The maxim old men for counsel, young men for action, is to be recalled. No one can deny that there has been plenty of action all over the globe during the past ten years. Who can tell whether we have not suffered from too much action and too little counsel?

January clams its share of important and interesting events. During that month, Presidents Filmore, McKinley and Roosevelt were born. The first balloon ascension in the United States took place in January 1793, King Charles of England was beheaded in January 1649. Those in need of further information can glean it readily from the chronicles. One thing is sure. New Year's Day as kept in the United States, will be certain to be included in January. Anyone who wishes to make the month memorable can mark it by paying up his newspaper subscription.

According to a column heading, Paraguay insists that Bolivia do certain things. If any nation has a recipe for geting what it wants by insisting, the United States might get a copy and make use of it in connection with the war debts.

ATTENTION FARMERS!

A strong Farm Bureau secured state laws to reduce property taxes and a new national law, Agricultural Adjustment Act, to provide parity prices for farm products.

A stronger organization is needed to retain tax reduction laws and to secure other fair tax legislation.

The Farm Bureau needs the cooperation of all rural people if equality for agriculture is to be secured in state and nation.

Organization is the watchword of the present. All other groups are organized for efficiency and power to maintain a fair standard of living for themselves.

Agriculture, the last to mobilize for united action, must more solidly organize its ranks to gain a parity position.

The Farm Bureau is the voice of organized agriculture An unorganized agriculture cannot survive if organized, it will meet the situation. In a small rural community such as this is, the prosperity of the community depends upon the prosperity of the farmers who make St. Joe their trading center. The drive for Farm Bureau membership will start in DeKalb Ca. Janutry 16, and continue until al farmers have been solicited.

All ministers and newspaper editors of the county will be given memberships. The pulpit and the press being recognized as being the makers of public opinion, a potent factor in rural life, and leaders in the service they render to their community. Meet your Farm Bureau membership solicitor with a smile, join the Farm Bureau and wear the smile the rest of the year.

S. and E. Director.

BETTER CHECK UP ON YOUR INCOME NOW

Indianapolis, Jan. 8. Persons who received less than $666.67 from May 1 to December 31, 1933, do not need to file an annual gross income tax return, Clarence A. Jackson, director of the state gross income tax division, pointed out today.

"We have received many letters from persons whose income was less than the legal exemption of $666.67, asking if it is necessary to make income tax reports even if no tax is owed the state," Jackson said. "It is not necessary for those persons to file."

It was made clear, however that regardless of any previous returns filed, any person who had receipts above the legal exemption of $666.67 for the eight months ending December 31 is required to file an annual return by January 30.

"Since the annual return is a cumulative report covering all receipts from May 1 to December 31," the tax director said, "it will act in many cases to correct automatically some errors that have been made on quarterly reports. When overpayments have been made in July or October, the annual return will show that the taxpayer has a credit coming from the state."

With the taxpaying period only a few days old, thousands of persons already have gone to the State House and made returns at the offices of the gross income tax division. By January 30, the final date for filing anual reports, officials expected that 50,000 persons will have paid taxes at the State House.

Thousands of others will use State Auto License branches and sub-branches throughout the state for obtaining return forms and information. Forty-one such branches are operating in Marion county. There are 329 branches in the state.

RECEIVED TEMPORARY APPOINTMENT AS P. M.

Edward Storer has been appointed acting postmaster at St. Joe, taking office January 15, subject to civil service examination later on.

Eugenics and Education

The advent of man and the appearance of intelligence were simultaneous events. Indeed, they were identical events. Intelligence was forced upon man by necessity. It came to counteract the handicap his forebearers were under without it. This should be suggestive. It means that if man is to endure it must be by intelligence. It means that when intelligence is gone man is gone. It means that if intelligence degenerates man is doomed first to mediocrity and ultimately to extinction.

Now, there are in the world only two forces that can in any way touch or modify intelligence. One is Heredity and the other is Education. Education always has to do with the present generation and Heredity or Eugenics with original endowment.

The force controlling intelligence is Education. While it is powerless to increase our original capacity for intelligence, it is the only means of making the most of the intelligence our heredity gave us. Without Education the gift of intelligence was misplaced. If Education is inferior, the gift is thrown away. The sole purpose of Education is to develop the intelligence we were born with. In a way we may say that Education is everything, for without Education no one is prepaerd to solve his own Heredity problem. Is it, then, too much to say that wrong Education means man's extinction, and that right Education will build a civilization that will endure to the end of time? Education then is our supreme problem. For the most part it is in the hands of students. The right things in Education you are to conserve; the wrong ones you are to eliminate.

All right Education is through self-activity. One grows, not from the decisions that are made for im, but from the decisions he himself makes. The purpose of teachers and schools is to suggest the experiences that students are to have, to define the tasks they are to take upon themselves, to raise the questions they are to answer, to propose the problems they are to solve.

There are plenty of problems. What most of us are short on is the will to solve them. It is not always easy to know when we have the right point of view. Wrong evaluations are at the bottom of our biggest blunders. In staring at the trees we miss the woods. We are living in an age of speed. One must run or be run over. Occasionally, if we can find a safe place to stand, it might be well to stop long enough to think where we are going, and at least to raise the question as to what we expect to get when and if we arrive.

The world is bigger. It is moving faster. Competition is keener, problems are harder. It looks as if one's chances to win are smaller. It is easier to become discouraged. As age lays down its tasks, youth picks them up and accepts the challenge they imply. Flaming youth is good if the flame gives clearer vision but bad if it impairs vision. All things in their place may be good, but they are not equally good or work equally well out of their places. Therefore we need to choose the right point of view.

BASED on the fair exchange relationship with prices of things farmers buy, hogs during the past decade have had materially less purchasing power than they had in the pre-war period. In 1933, it took about eight hogs to buy what three hogs would buy in the 1910-14 period as indicated above. In all the years since 1920-21 (excepting in 1925-26 when there was a temporary reduction in hog supply) the purchasing power of hogs has been on a general downward trend.

In 1933, the fair exchange value of hogs was $7.75 per hundredweight. The prices of things farmers buy averaged slightly above their pre-war level. But the actual farm price of hogs in 1933 was only $3.47 per hundredweight, or $4.28 below fair exchange value.

Fair exchange value means the pre-war price for hogs only when the price of things farmers buy is at the pre-war level. If the prices of things farmers buy become double their pre-war level, then the fair exchange value will be double the pre-war price of hogs.

The corn-hog production adjustment program under the Agricultural Adjustment Act seeks to raise hog prices to the current fair exchange value. This may be done by bringing production into better balance with the most profitable demand through a reduction in 1934 of 20 percent in hog production and 20 percent in corn acreage.

EXAMINATION FOR POSTMASTER AT GRABILL

To fill the vacancy in the position of postmaster in Grabill, Indiana, the United States Civil Service Commission has announced, at the request of the Postmaster General and in accordance with an order of the President, an open competitive examination.

To be eligible for the examination, an applicant must be a citizen of the United States, must reside within the delivery of the post office for which the examination is held, must have so resided for at least one year next preceding the date set for close of receipt of applications, must be in good physical condition, and within the prescribed age limits. The competition is both open to men and women.

Under the terms of the Executive order, the Civil Service Commission will certify to the Postmaster General the names of the highest three qualified eligibles, if as many as three are qualified, from which the Postmaster General may select one for nomination by the President. Confirmation by the Senate is the final action.

Applicants will be required to assemble in an examination room for scholastic tests, and will also be rated on their eduction and business experience and fitness. The Civil Service Commission will make inquiry among representatives business and professional men and women of the community concerning the experience, ability, and character of each applicant, and the evidence thus secured will be considered in determining the ratings to be assigned to the applicants.

The Commission states that presidential postmasters are not in the classified civil service and that its duties in connection with appointments to such positions are to hold examinations and to certify the results to the Postmaster General. The Commission is not interested in the political, religious, or fraternal affiliations of any applicant.

Full information and application blanks may be obtained at the post office for which the examination is held, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

The following gradee are represented on the honor roll for the first semester as follows:

Primary First Grade are: Imogene Allen, Betty Bice, Lorraine Rhodes.

Second Grade: Elda Hensley, Evelyn Kline and Billy Coburn.

Helen Mason has been unable to enter the second semester's work as yet, due to severe illness. The senior group does not seem the same without her. Here's to her speedy recovery.

No school was held on January first due to the fact that the halls were redecorated and the paint was still somewhat damp. However, every class began on Tuesday promptly.

Sports

The game with the Ashley group was close throughout. Spencerville held the lead until the third quarter, when they surrendered it to Ashley. However, Rectenwall and Furnish won the game by free throws.

Fairy Folk

Tiptoe through the forest,
As quiet as can be,
And you will see a wood sprite
Whose home is in a tree.

He's the king of fairy folk
Who live in woodlands green
But though they dress in garments gay,
Not oft can they be seen.

They will not talk to skeptic ones,
Nor will they dance and play.
So if you doubt that they exist,
You'll not hear what they say,

But if you're kind and loving,
And always honest and good,
You'll greet your many fairy friends,
When you walk into a wood.

The town board met Saturday night with the intention of completing its organization, but due to the absence of Trustee Blue from Ward Three, only the bills were allowed. No appointments are made as yet, but at the next regular meeting they plan on completing their appointments. Dr. Price is chairman of the board.

Mrs. Vera Crabill Hurni, teacher of the Harrison school, Auburn, was pleasantly surprised one evening last week at her home in St. Joe when the members of Kappa Delta Phi assembled with well filled baskets. A pot luck dinner was held after which the regular business meeting was held, followed by bridge. Mrs. Hurni was presented with an occasional chair by the members of the sorority.

Candidates for postmasters in several Indiana cities were asked Thursday to file their applications with the civil service department at Washington, D. C., by Jan. 23. In most of the cities democrats have been appointed acting postmasters and will be continued in office provided they qualify under the civil service. The cities include Bloomington, Crawfordsville, Evansville, Kendallville, Lafayette, Laport, Logansport, Marion, New Albany and Vincennes.

TRIAL WAS PUT OFF

The damage suit filed by L. R. Zimerman against M. C. Blue, et al. and Town of St. Joe, was scheduled for last Friday, and because of the trial on Thursday continuing until Friday, the trial did not materialize. It will probably set for the March term.

Last week's Butler Review devoted a column and a quarter of its valuable space to taffy about our town and its citizens. While there were some things slightly exaggerated, yet in the main, the article but did justice to our village. However we are nclined to think that most of the puffs were measured by the length of the subscription given that paper.

It was highly amusing last week on those icy days, to see how particular people were about how they walked. They acted as tho they were afraid of falling down.

It is our painless duty to announce to our readers this week the death of George Bleek's dog, which occurred last Monday night, from some unknown cause. It is sad to think that right in the prime of his glory he should be so suddenly called away, and yet it is a relief to know that he is gone. We mourn as those that have no hope, and don't want any. Dearest doggie, thou hast left us,

But thy loss we'll never feel;
Thou no more will e'er caress us,

Nor thy teeth our breeches feel.

The editor he lide about me in the last papar; he said i was sufferin with a dislokation ov the brane; it wasn't so, I had the hiccups. As i was rusticatin along on Porke Avanew the other day, a thinkin tu muself, I herd a grate noys jest ahed, and I sea a man comin out ov a hous, an a woman was after him with a broom. It was just awfool the way that grate big woman pelted that por harmless innocent man; all becaws he wouldn't cary in wood and make fires. The ide, that in this enlitened age, under a free government, a man must cary in the wood, an git up on a cool morning and starte the fire, wile the woman keeps the bed warm; it's preposterus to think ov. And yet, this man was driven from his own hous, under the point ov the but of a broom, just becaws he refuzed to du as she said. I had lowed to take a companyon this fall, but seaing this incident has kinder upset me. Yours in truble, Barous O. Hippenhammer.

Wm. Lucas Takes His Life

Becomes Lonesome and Despondent Over His Condition-was About Town Daily. Lived at Spencerville.

William Lucas, 77, retired farmer and resident of Spencerville for many years, ended his life in his former home late Saturday afternoon by hanging himself from his bed post. Despondency concerning his physical condition is believed the motive for his action.

Mr. Lucas for several years lived in rooms in an office building which he purchased after retiring from farming. Only recently he moved into the home of George Lochner. When he failed to appear for his evening meal, Mr. Lochner started a search and found him sprawled across the entrance to his private rooms.

Dr. B. O. Shook, DeKalb county coroner, who lives but a short distance away, was summoned and the body was cut down. Lucas had used a neck scarf and a small rope. Since the bed post was only three and one-half feet high. Lucas sat down on the floor, Dr. Shook reported, and forcibly strangled himself.

A note was found on Lucas' Bible in the room. It read: "I am very lonesome and in so much pain that I can't stand it any longer."

Dr. Shook found that Mr. Lucas had been suffering from a severe strangulated hernia.

William Benton Lucas, son of Jefferson and Amelia Magee Luras, was born in Brooke County, West Virginia, near Wellsburg, August 2, 1856, and departed this life January 13, 1934, at the age of 77 years, 5 months and 11 days.

He was united in marriage with Ella Boyle, September 9, 1885, in Auburn, Ind. This union was broken by the death of Mrs. Lucas five years ago. A union which for 42 years endured, and was marked by a sprit of loving consideration and regard for each other. Mr. Lucas was known as being an optimistic, cheerful disposition, but it was hard for him to gather up the broken strands, and go on with life without his wife who had labored by his side so many years.

After his marriage he returned to West Virginia. With his wife he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church at Franklin. Five years later he returned to DeKalb county, settling on a farm in Concord township west of St. Joe. He then transferred his church membership to the Spencerville M. E. Church, where until his death he served is Lord in a quiet unassuming manner, bearing witness to the fact that "blessed are the meek."

With the message that Mr. Lucas had passed to the great beyond, went expressions of regret for his going and testimony of his goodness as a husband, brother and neighbor. A neighbor who was always willing to go the "last mile of the way" with his friendship and help.

During the last years of his life he knew sickness and sorrow, and when his suffering became too great, and the burden of life too heavy, he quietly slipped from under the burden, trusting his soul to a just God, who sees and understands. He leaves to mourn his departure, one brother, Clinton Lucas of St. Joe, one sister, Mrs. Alice Mitchell, three nieces and two nephews of near Wellsburg, West Virginia.

The funeral was held from the Spencerville M. E. Church Monday afternoon, with burial in the K. of P. Cemetery at St. Joe. Rev. Howard Brown, of Spencerville officiating.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Local Achievement Results Are High

We have received a report from Manchester College (from which institution we procured nine of our first semester achievement examinations) of results obtained in thirty-nine Indiana high schools (ours was one of the thirty-nine reporting a distribution of scores.) In making comparison of the medians established by the entire group of thirty-nine high schools and our own school classes we find our class medians to be from one to eighteen points higher than that of the combined group in eight of the nine studies. In the ninth subject our class median was but two points lower that that of the combined group of schools. Local high school students and teachers are much pleased with the results of this comparison.

Only three more home games remain on the school's basket ball schedule. Next Friday evening the Farmer High School girls and boys team come for return games. Our teams played in Farmer last school year. The other home games are with Harlan H. S. on Saturday evening, February 3 and Waterloo on Saturday evening, February 17.

Rev. Fabianske Speaks at Chapel

The first chapel period of the semester was held on Thursday morning of last week with Rev. A. H. Fabianske as speaker. Mr. Gerdes assisted by leading the singing and Miss Geraldine Thornton played the piano. On Thursday morning of this week Rev. C. W. Moore will be the speaker.

Schools Inspected

Mr. Thomas J. Mahan, assistant state school inspector, and County Superintendent C. F. Stallman made an inspection of the local school plant on Thursday forenoon of last week.

The Junior Class will present a play during the month of March. The class would be much pleased if the community would kindly take note of this plan and not schedule any other similar event just prior to the date of the class play.

New Basket Ball Equipment

The athletic council has recided that the treadbare basket ball suits which have served local boys teams for a period of four years should be placed in the discard and new suits purchased. Plans are under way to hold a special school event early in February to raise the money to pay for this needed equipment. Watch this column for a more complete announcement next week.

Charles Thornton is Winner

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week the senior high boys held their elimination contest to determine who the champion boy ping pong player was. There were many competitors and exciting matches. In the end Charles Thornton triumphed. Charles is a member of the sophomore class. The junior high school boys are training in ping pong and hope to hold such an elimination contest soon and have their winner challenge the senior high school champion.

Last Friday afternoon the senior class experienced the pleasure of writing answers to a one hundred question Educational Guidance Test which Mr. Munn arranged for them. Some of the class report that those questons covered a wide range as far as school experiences go.

Darrell Richmond has been absent from high school for one week due to a badly sprained ankle. Earl Kinsey found it necessary to visit the dentist on Wednesday morning of this week.

D. O. Wasson, of the seventh and his brother, Dick of the sixth grade left our school during the past week. The family have moved from the Yelser farm to the Scoville farm and the boys will attend school in Stafford township.

Both grades and high school had many visitors this week.

The teachers attended the county institute held in Auburn on last Saturday. Mr. Munn spoke to the high school section on the subject "How to Raise the Standard of Achievement in High School."

Grades One and Two

Pupils from the primary room neither tardy nor absent during the first semester were Irma Lee Wade, Sarah Ordway, Leora Wilmot, Beverly Wade, Donald Baughman, and Jimmie Kees.

There are still cases of chickenpox which interferes with the attendance in the primary room.

Before Christmas every pupil in the primary room was given a narcissus bulb by their teacher. These bulbs were put in glass jars which contained small stones and water. Much interest was shown as they watched the growth of the bulb. They were taken home as a Christmas surprise to the mothers.

Grades Three and Four

The third and fourth grades are studying the heavens during these long winter evenings.

Perfect attendance record for the first semester in grades three and four includes the names of Hubert Bleeks, Zelma Donley, Walter Fetters, Loren Inlow, Earl Keller, Roscoe Moore, Alice Strong, Harry Strong and Marilyn Zonker of the third grade and Du-Wayne Cook, Nelda Kees, Bernadine Wade and Morris Woodcox of the fourth grade.

Grades Five and Six

A farewell party was held in the fifth and sixth grades on Wednesday afternoon at the close of the school day for Dick Wasson who has since moved away and Helen Faye Curie who will soon move to Kendallville. All had an enjoyable time eating pop corn, candy and apples and saying farewell during the few minutes devoted to the party.

Rose Ayers, Ruth Donley, Myra Keesler, Marcel Pugsley, Helen Goodwin, Betty Kees, George Medley, Burl Rude, Lewis Walter, Maxine Woodcox and Christine Zonker's names are on our spelling honor roll this past week.

Bobbie Curie of Waterloo visited in our room one day last week.

Our room led in attandance last week.

MOVE TO KENDALLVILLE

Grover Curie and family are leaving today for their new home at Kendallville, 214 Diamond St., where he will operate the I. H. C. retail and wholesale store, which his company is opening this week.

For 15 years Mr. Curie has worked as salesman and now he has charge of this new store, three salesmen and three counties, Noble, Lagrange and Steuben. We are always glad to see any of our citizens advance, but sorry it has become necessary for this family to leave our midst.

FAREWELL PARTY

The Grover Curie family have been the recipients of many surprise parties the past few days, due to the fact that the famiy are soon to leave our midst to take up residence at Kendallville. On last Saturday evening members of the Church of Christ gathered to pay them a farewell visit, also on Monday evening this week the neghbors did likewise.

The Sunday School class of Mrs. Ima Epler also met with Catherine Pelle the same evening, many other organizations are having similar gatherings this week, which show the high regard held for this most worthy family.

A Neighbor.

ELECTED OFFICERS

The Lutheran Sunday School elected the following officers for 1934:

Hollis Dilley, Superintendent.
Derwood Ridgway, Assistant.
John Dilley, Secretary.
Ruth Curie, Assistant.
Ray Reasoner, Treasurer.
Joe Woodcox, Chorister.
Harvey Hull, Pianist.

The department heads will be chosen by the officers.

WIND-ROLLED SNOWBALLS SUBJECT OF RESEARCH

Howe, Ind., Jan. 9.—Research study of a recent freak snowstorm here, in which the wind rolled up large snowballs after whippng the nucleus from the ground, has been started by C. W. Wiegand, of Chicago.

Reports of witnesses to the unusual incident are being gathered by Wiegand, who will assemble them for scientific observation.

After the snow had fallen, a lashing wind caught up small rifts of the snow in open fields, and whirled them along the ground. The nebulae gathered more snow as they rolled, and continued until they became too heavy to be moved by the wind.

Shaped like a woman's muff, many of the balls grew to a length of two feet, with a diameter of about 12 inches.—News-Sentinel.

The same thing has come to St. Joe since the above came out in print, but the information was suppressed until Tuesday, believing that the story was not true. Here it is: Four muffed-shaped snowballs were discovered at the Wm. Staman farm on same day as at Howe. One a daddy, a mamma and two tiny tots were making their way across the barn lot when discovered. Daddy snowball was about 50 feet from his starting place or home, failing to return the mamma snowball started out to see where daddy had gone, when her wind subsided and she was left stranded about 30 feet from home, she in turn failed to return, so the twins started out to see what had happened and only were able to get about 20 feet when they gave up their journey.

Upon going to the barn, Mr. Staman saw the muff-shaped snowballs, and became curious. Looking about, he was unable to see any tracks whatever, save that of a lonesome hen, and of course she was not responsible. The matter was discussed at home, but not told to many as it seemed beyond reason. But now we are all convinced that it was the result of a heavy gale and that Howe has nothing on our wind.

This is an interesting happening, and can you imagine the surprise of the Stamans when the source of such a mystery was revealed to them.

DRIVE IS ON

A banquet was held in the Commercial Club dining room Monday night in Auburn, preparatory for the Farm Bureau membership drive, which started on Tuesday. Mr. Needler, from Indianapolis was the main speaker of the evening. Mrs. Grace Dilley gave the welcome address. Reports were made by Frank Baltz, county manager and Lester Boger, secretary-treasurer. Larry Brandon gave a short talk and introduced the speaker.

Jeff Buss led the singing, and other music was furnished by an orchestra from Ashley. An enjoyable evening was had by all. All drive chairmen solicitors, and social and education directors were in attendance.

A LADY IN THE RACE FOR TRUSTEE

Something new in the political field for Concord township has taken place, when Mrs. Gertrude Berthwick made known that she was a republican candidate for trustee of Concord township, subject of course to the primary. This is the first time that a lady has filed for any township office.

BOY SCOUT COUNCIL

A Boy Scout Council has been announced at Spencerville with Clyde Rectenwall as chairman, and Dr. C. R. Baumgartner and Rev. Howard Brown as members. The first thing they will do is to choose a place of meeting and scout master.

DIES OF STROKE

Mrs. E. Ulm, of Spencerville passed away Wednesday morning, following a stroke on Friday. She was found by her son, John, and never regained consciousness. Mrs. Ulm was 79 years old.

EXAMINATION FOR POSTMASTER AT ST. JOE, INDIANA

To fill the vacancy in the position of postmaster in St. Joe, the United States Civil Service Commission has announced, at the request of the Postmaster General and in accordance with an order of the President, an open competitive examination.

To be eligible for the examination, an applicant must be a citizen of the United States, must reside within the delivery of the post office for which the examination is held, must have so resided for at least one year next preceding the date set for close of receipt of applications, must be in good physical condition, and within the prescribed age limits. The competition is both open to men and women.

Under the terms of the Executive order, the Civil Service Commission will certify to the Postmaster General the names of the highest three qualified eligibles, if as many as three are qualified, from which the Postmaster General may select one for nomination by the President. Confirmation by the Senate is the final action.

Applicants will be required to assemble in an examination room for scholastic tests, and will also be rated on their eduction and business experience and fitness. The Civil Service Commission will make inquiry among representatives business and professional men and women of the community concerning the experience, ability, and character of each applicant, and the evidence thus secured will be considered in determining the ratings to be assigned to the applicants.

The Commission states that presidential postmasters are not in the classified civil service and that its duties in connection with appointments to such positions are to hold examinations and to certify the results to the Postmaster General. The Commission is not interested in the political, religious, or fraternal affiliations of any applicant.

Full information and application blanks may be obtained at the post office for which the examination is held, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C.

Receipt of applications is to close February 2, 1934.

REQUESTING PARENTS TO IMMUNIZE CHILDREN

The immunization of school children against contagious diseases is being urged through the schools of DeKalb county, and parents are asked to sign slips giving consent to such a program.

Many are now suffering with diseases of every sort in this county, so that schools are closed, and others are reduced in attendance to such an extent that it is runious to the school program.

Parents wishing to take advantage of the plan, will be asked to file their requests with the local school head, and the serum will be furnished by the state board of health, reducing the charge to $1.00 for each immunization requested.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Miller and son, Harold, of Defiance, Ohio, visited Grady Woodcox and family one day last week.

PLANS MADE FOR DEKALB S. S. CONVENTION

Plans are being perfected for the annual county convention of the DeKalb County Council of Religious Education to be held in Auburn in the First M. E. Church February 15 and 16.

Dr. D. W. Kretz, president of Bethany College, Chicago, will be the principal speaker. Dr. Kretz will be on the program both days. This convention will be the first county meeting which Dr. Kretz has addressed. He has a reputation as a leader in state, national and international Sunday School conventions. Dr. Kretz is a graduate of Yale and Juanita Colleges and has studied at Leipsig, Berlin, Marburg and the College de France. Leaders in the DeKalb county organization feel that they are fortunate in being able to secure this outstanding worker.

E. T. Albertson, of Indianapolis, general secretary of the Indiana Council of Religious Education, is another well known leader who will address the convention.

Assessor Out For Trustee

Local politics are beginning to take form. Among the first announcements that we have heard is that of Abner Trostel, republican, as candidate for the nomination of Township Trustee.

TO BROADCAST A WEEKLY BOOK REVIEW

Rev. Howard Brown, of Spencerville, will go on the air each Monday evening at 7:00 o'clock, over WGL, giving 15 minutes to a book review. The first one will be "Little America," by Byrd.

The second book to review will be "Boys' Scout with Byrd," by Paul Siple, who is a personal friend of Rev. Brown, which will make the talk more interesting.

If the public enjoys the reviews they may continue indefinitely.

YOUNG MOTHER DIES

Viola Moody, wife of James Moody, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Zimerman, died Monday at the Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne of double pneumonia. She was twenty-four years old and leaves several children. She was ill for two weeks. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon, but the time and place has not been decided as we go to press.

SPORTING NEWS

WHOOPEE!

The St. Joe Merchants Thursday evening defeated their ancient rivals, the Spencerville Independents, score 35-12. It was the most impressive, decisive victory that St. Joe has enjoyed in the past few years.

The entire Merchant team functioned to the n'th degree. Their offense and defense is something to be talked about for sometime to come. The old Jinx has been broken so that is why we say "Whoopee."

And last Saturday night the Merchants defeated the Spartans from Fort Wayne, who have been undefeated in eleven games, score 41-25.

The team and manager certainly appreciate your most loyal support, the past few games.

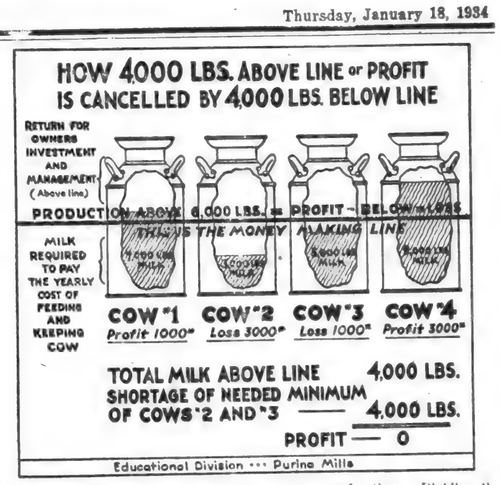
ST. JOE FLOUR & FEED MILL



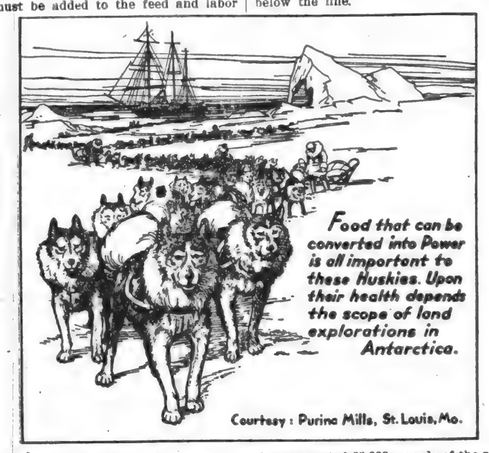
The amount of milk or butterfat it takes to pay the cost of keeping a dairy cow for one year—that is the money making line in a dairyman's herd, E. B. Powell, manager of Purina Mills' Experimental Farm, points out. Whether a cow is helping to keep the dairyman or he is keeping the cow depends on whether or not her production is above that line.

The money making line varies for each herd and in any herd it is higher than it used to be, because prices for dairy products are lower. Most herds have a few poor cows which eat up part of the profits made by the better cows.

In determining the cost of keeping a cow for one year, the annual cost of pasture, hay, ensilage, grain feed, and hired labor must be added together. Pasture is usually figured at $1 per cow per month; likewise labor. If the value of the calf and manure are not enough to cover cow replacement cost, veterinary bills, and other general herd expense, then something must be added to the feed and labor costs to care for them. Dividing the total cost by the price of milk gives the money making line. Production above this line is the owner's return for supervision and management and interest on his investment, which must be figured for each individual cow.

To increase the profit from the herd, the dairyman should get rid of the cows whose production cannot be brought above the money making line and feed better and more liberal rations to those which are above it, so that they will produce all that is within their capacity. By this means, the herd can be made to pay no matter what the price of milk.

A simple set of tools to figure the cost of keeping a cow has been developed by the dairy department of Purina Mills. In most communities are Checkerboard feed dealers who will be glad to supply them to help the individual dairyman make an analysis of his herd to find out where his money making line is, and which of his cows are above and which are below the line.



South Pole Dogs to Get Select Food

Admiral Byrd's Decision Is Result of Extensive Experimentation.

Admiral Byrd's second South Polar expedition has been under way since October via Panama and Australia. The early part of 1934 will see the Byrd ships, the sailing vessel, "Bear" and the S. S. "Jacob Ruppert," worming their way through the ice pack that hems in the Ross Sea. Then they will sail across to the Bay of Whales and establish their base for the thorough exploration of the Antarctic domain.

Most important of all the supplies that have been shipped in the holds of these two vessels are 153 carefully selected dogs, real huskies of the Northland. These dogs represent the one dependable means of transportation after the Byrd expedition has established its base. Upon these dogs will depend in a large measure the range of the expedition's activities.

The task of keeping these dogs in top condition is a major concern. "A well dog is a well-fed dog," so along with the dogs are being transported 100,000 pounds of Dog Chow, a concentrated food for dogs. The selection of this food was not a hit or miss preparation; not on a mission as important as a South Polar trip!

Like the food for the men, the food for the dogs was selected only after being subjected to rigid tests to make sure that it would meet every requirement of the Commander.

Captain Allen Innes Taylor is in charge of the 153 dogs. It was under his direction that a man visited the Purina Mills' demonstration kennels at Gray Summit, Mo., last year.

He carefully went over the records of 850 dogs that have been reared in the experimental kennels to note the development of succeeding generations, as well as the general condition of some of the original animals that have produced as many as seven healthy litters, fed entirely during their lifetime upon Purina Dog Chow.

More than that, he examined the records of the biological laboratories maintained by Purina Mills at St. Louis and checked from a scientific basis each ingredient of this commercial product.

Satisfied that here was the most compact, most nourishing and dependable dog food available, Captain Taylor contracted 60,000 pounds of the regular brand of Purina Dog Chow for his huskies and had 40,000 pounds of the regular brand particularly fortified with fats for the feeding during the colder seasons of the two-year trip. Cold at the South pole means 50 degrees below F. During the season when the sun does not appear for as much as four months, temperatures of 70 degrees below F. are not uncommon.

The Byrd expedition will really start making exploration trips late in August or early September, 1934, when the sun again appears after its four months' hideout. Airplanes will be used to fly over the South pole and beyond.

The dogs, however, will transport men and supplies to the bases that must be established and make the dashes into the unexplored regions. Upon their health will depend the lives of the men who are working with the most advanced scientific instruments to give to the world new facts and data about the mysteries of Antarctica.

It was only natural that Dog Chow should find favor with the Commissary department, who, on this expedition, must plan to save every pound of excess weight. Dog Chow checkers contain meat of first quality in dehydrated form besides its other ingredients.

The removal of the excess water makes possible absolute safety in transporting the dog ration, as there is no danger from deterioration or spoilage. The weight is reduced by approximately two-thirds over ordinary dog rations that would be needed for so large an expedition of working animals and allows for a tremendous margin of safety in supplies.

Each pound of Dog Chow is the equivalent of three pounds of fresh or canned meat. To equal in food value the 100,000 pounds taken on the expedition, it would be necessary for the explorers to carry 300,000 pounds of meat in the fresh or canned form. Aside from the dead weight that would have been placed upon the expedition's limited carrying capacity, the comparative expenditure in dollars would have been almost prohibitive.

So balanced, so scientifically constructed is the formula for Dog Chow that it will satisfy every need of the animals of the expedition without the addition of any other foods.

The expedition will be able to keep its Dog Chow anywhere. It will not require freezing through the tropics on the way down to retain its goodness. Only the ordinary care given in storing any sort of food stuffs will be required to supply the dogs with healthful, nourishing foods.

Eggs 15. Butter 18. Sugar lower.

Mell Bishop went to Fort Wayne last Tuesday.

Russ George has moved his family to Garrett.

There are 10,500 grains in a bushel of wheat.

J. H. Conrad was at Hicksville one day last week.

George Metcalf has moved his family to Garrett.

D. P. Hale of Sioux City, Iowa, was in town last week.

Mrs. O. M. Meek went to Lima last week to visit friends.

Mr. Latin Zimmerman of Goshen was in town last Tuesday.

Jake Martin has sold off all of his stock and tools and left town.

Twenty-seven persons united with the churches at Spencerville last Sunday.

There is only an average attendance of six scholars at the Orangeville school.

Samuel Warner was in town last week. Deputy Constable Thomas please take notice.

Over 1,000,000 hogs were sold last year in Indiana, the value of which amounted to $8,000,000.

Barney Woodcox is putting a cellar under the house he recently purchased of his mother's estate.

Ote Coburn went to Nebraska last week, where he expects to engage in the work of herding cattle.

Amos LaRue of the Auburn Courier, was in town last Tuesday looking up the interest of that paper.

Last month was jam full of all kinds of weather. It ought to have been ashamed of itself for getting so full.

P. K. Griner moved his household goods to Michigan last week and will probably make that his future home.

Phlete Shirts' brother, who has been visiting with him for a couple months, returned to his home in Michigan last week.

The well known firm of Leighty & Bishop dissolved partnership last week, M. T. Bishop retiring. Mell will engage in the lumber business.

Alex. Donaldson drove up to Hugh Maxwell's Sunday evening and neglected to tie his horse, the consequence was his horse came home in the sleigh, and Alex. walked home afoot.

Mack Leighty says he has made about $700.00 worth of improvement on the Yarnell farm since he has been living there. Now let's see, if he has made that much improvements in two months, in five years the farm will be worth $21,000.00 more than when he moved onto it. Mack is a snorter to work.

We were aroused from our slumbers last Tuesday morning by a loud rattling on the store door. Wondering who it was that was out so early, we hurridedly dressed and descended. Upon opening the door we found Frank Sechler standing there, acting as crazy as a loon. We were at a loss to know what made him act so strangely, and endeavored to quiet him down a little and find out what was the matter. Finally after his excitement had somewhat worn off, he said: "I've got my dunkard preacher." The facts in the case were that Frank was the father of a nine pound boy baby, and he was as happy as a clown in a circus.

Quite a demand for timber at the present time.

There were lots of people in town last Saturday.

Five car loads of corn have been shipped to this place this winter thus far.

Conrad has 1500 feet of spouting made up and ready to be put up as soon as the weather will permit.

Come in and carry off some of our canned fruit. We're selling it cheaper than you could pick it up, if the fruit didn't cost anything, and some one gave you the cans

Two car loads of western corn arrived in town last week, to be sold at a fair price. Those who want to buy should come immediately, as it is selling quite rapidly.

We had the misfortune to get our printing rollers too close to the fire the other day, which flattened them out until they resembled a couple of good sized pancakes. For this act of carelessness, we were compelled to use an old and worn out pair, which accounts somewhat for the blurred appearance of our paper this week.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Requests for Immunization

In keeping with a state wide program DeKalb County schools distributed information about special rates for immunization (life time) against diphtheria and vaccination against small pox last week. Throughout the country many patrons are availing themselves of the opportunity to get this protection for their children. There is an old maxim which states that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

Rev. C. W. Moore of Newville (U. B. Church) conducted chapel exercises on Thursday morning of last week. Rev. Moore had the assembly sing "America," offered prayer, called upon Eileen Gaff and Helen Washler to sing a duet which fitted in nicely with the theme of his scripture lesson and talk. Rev. Moore then presented his message with an object lesson which tended to strengthen confidence in the Bible and its teachings. Rev. J. N. Scholes is scheduled for chapel exercises on Thursday morning of the present week.

Rev. J. M. Small Speaks In School

On Friday forenoon Rev. J. M. Small, evangelist, called at the public school and gave two brief addresses. The first before the senior high school group and his second address was before the junior high school. His talks were most inspiring. They were drawn mainly from his own personal experiences and afforded encouragement to those pupils who find handicaps in their educational ventures.

The Foods classes of the Home Economics department have made visits to Zonker's store where they made a study of meat, their cuts, etc. The purpose is to make them better buyers and more versatile in marketing.

P. T. A. Committee Meets

In a meeting of the P. T. A. warm lunch committee it was decided that beginning with Monday of this week the free warm lunch service for pupils of parents now on the CWA payroll should cease.

REMEMBER FEBRUARY 10!

Saturday evening, February 10th is the date set for the schools special event to raise funds to pay for the much needed new basket ball suits for the boys. Each of the upper six grades is planning something special in the way of amusement for that evening. Plan to attend.

History 7 has been making a special study of the U. S. Constitution during the past few days.

The Juniors have decided on the class play which they will present. Watch this column for further announcements.

Kent, Catherine Belle, and Helen Faye Curie transferred to the Kendallville schools on Thursday of last week.

Grades One and Two

Donald Hankey received painful injuries from a fall sustained while at play Friday morning.

Several parents of children in the primary room have assured us that they will have their children immunized. This should protect the children from diphtheria and smallpox throughout their public school career. Knawledge of such protection gives a great degree of satisfaction to pupil, parent and teacher.

Grades Five and Six

Fear of scarlet fever caused a drop in our attendance last week. There were some absences due to colds, also.

Rose Ayers, Ruth Donley, James Hamilton, Harold Inlow, Marcel Pugsley, Richard Davis, Helen Goodwin, Iris Jackson, Betty Kees, Burl Rude, Grant Strong, Maxine Woodcox, and Melvin Zimmerman again won honor roll distinction in spelling this week.

Roscoe Moore received a very painfu linjury to his hand at the basket ball game on Friday evening. The services of a physician were necessary to remove a splinter which had imbedded itself.

GOOD BASKETBALL GAMES

Two good games were played on Friday evening with teams from the Farmer High School. The local girls won their game by a score of 23 to 21. Taking an early lead the local girls ran up a good score. But in the last quarter the Farmer girls began to cut down that difference but lost by a two point margin.

Farmer H. S. has a boys team of considerable size and weight. The local boys were outmeasured and outweighed but displayed plenty of fight and came very near defeating their huskier opponents. The final score was also 23 to 21. Du-Wayne Kinsey served as referee for this game and his work met with the approval of all concerned.

Visiting Day Announced

The Parent-Teachers Association anounces that Tuesday, February 6, wil be visiting day in the Concord Township Schools. Parents are requested to spend as much of that day as they find possible in the schools.

In the afternoon Dr. Swartz, county health commissioner or some other doctor whom he may designate, will address the P. T. A. on the subject of immunization against diphtheria and smallpox.

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club met at the home of Mrs. Cora Price last Wednesday evening. The beautiful story of Ruth was studied with Miss Mendelsohn as leader. Mrs. Curie gave an interesting paper on important people of the day.

After the business meeting a farewell party was given for Mrs. Dema Curie, who left St. Joe to make her home at Kendallville, Ind. Games and music were very much enjoyed.

The lunch committee planned a delightful two course luncheon of potato salad, sandwiches and coffee; jello fruit salad with whipped cream and home made cake.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank all the friends and neighbors who helped in any way, during the days of our sorrow and bereavement, in the death of our brother and uncle, William Lucas.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Lucas.
Mrs. Alice Mitchell and other relatives.

The Northeastern Indiana editors will be entertained at Albion on, February 6, with editor B. B. Matteson as host. A dinner will be served at 6:30 at the high school gymnasium.

A. E. HART WRITES OF EARLY YEARS OF NEWS

Hicksville, O. Jan. 20, 1933.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Leighty,
Editors St. Joe News:

Sometime ago I read with interest an article from Lloyd W. Yeiser on The News in connection with some of the early history of the publication. May I take this opportunity to convey to your readers something if I may, of the back ground of the early years of The News. Naturally we turn back to the early days in the life of the founder, Mort E. Olds, with whom I came in personal touch as an apprentice drygoods clerk under him 41 years ago March 5 next. The inspiration for newspaper work in Mr. Olds was kindled while a young man of 18 years, employed as a clerk in a hardware store in Fort Wayne.

When he retired from that position shortly afterward, he was the possessor of a small hand printing press which he brought back with him where he again took up his duties with his father in his Spencerville store and here started a small paper devoted to advertising mostly for the store.

Locating in St. Joe later as a member of the firm of Case & Olds in a general store, Mr. Olds continued his publication with the added feature of local news in connection therewith and distributed it to the public free of charge. Here he had the foundation and demonstrated his ability as a news writer in a vein of natural language all his own. As a boy thirsty for reading matter and local news I always found this little publication of interest in my school days.

As I grew older in years I more and more appreciated his ready wit sometimes couched in a vein of sarcasm that back of it all struck home many essential truths.

His contributions under the name of Barcus Q. Hippenhammer were fine examples of his grasp of human characteristics depicted in a way that were a pioneer type of the present day "Comic Page."

Recognizing that in these articles sometimes, they "struck home" with telling effect many of them were in the Will Rogers class of the present day.

However behind his writings there was that element of profound sincerity borne of a desire to give the news in an interesting and readable manner. This was thoroughly demonstrated during his newspaper days in the way the public read the paper whether they were subscribers or not. My personal contact with Mr. Olds always revealed to me his high class type of citizenship and his desire to do his part in making the world a better place in which to live.

It was my privilege last year to visit the last resting place of Mr. and Mrs. Olds in a beautiful cemetery at Clinton, Mich.

With kindest regards to the present staff of The News, I am,
Sincerely,
A. E. Hart.

RUSSELL BORTHWICK WRITES FROM SANTA BARBARA

Santa Barbara Island. Jan. 9, 1934.

Dear Mother:

I got your letter of the 25th just before we left Bremertan, but haven't had much time to answer since. Anyway I should let a little time pass before I answer to let a few things happen!

On our way south we went thru the Golden Gate and into Frisco to pick up some ammunition for another ship, but we were only there a couple of hours, so of course, I didn't get ashore.

You can guess the change in weather. In Washington it was raining all the time, and part of the time a light snow which always melted.

So far down here we've had perfect weather—Sunday I went ashore and saw some people in swimming.

All through the Navy they have different kinds of battle practice at which they fire the guns. Now we are practicing for "long range battle practice," so we anchor off this little island every night during the week, and go into port only on week-ends. Everybody has a battle station and mine at present is "sightsetter" on a 5-inch gun. Men in the mast find the range and deflection, and send it down to the guns. There are five other guns on the same "circuit," we all wear head 'phones, and set the range and deflection at the guns, and then they are corrected to fire at the certain target. Don't worry about me mother.

With love, Russell.

WHEAT ACREAGE INCREASED IN INDIANA

Farmers as a body in Indiana, Ohio and Missouri failed to cooperate with the government's wheat acreage reduction plan.

While a large number of farmers in Indiana signed up wheat reduction contracts and have received their bonus checks for so doing, a larger number of farmers, apparently thinking they might profit at the expense of those reducing crops, actually planted more wheat.

The result is that despite the fact 110,000 acres of wheat were taken out of production, Indiana farmers now have planted 33,000 more acres in wheat than the average for three years.

OUTSTANDING YOUNG MINISTERS TO PREACH AT SPENCERVILLE

A week of special services have been arranged at the Spencerville Methodist Church for the week of January 28 to February 3, according to plans announced by Rev. Howard Brown. This type of meeting is called a "Preaching Mission" and is similar to the one held last winter. The men who will bring the messages each night have been chosen from a large number of possibilities and represent the best of the younger men of Indiana Methodism.

The theme for the week is to be "Jesus and Your Life" and each night is to present the appeal of Jesus for a different type of individual. On Monday night Rev. Don Bailey, who will be remembered by all who heard him last year will speak on the subject, "What Jesus did for Paul." On Tuesday night Rev. Ruder, who was also here last year will preach on the subject, "What Jesus Did for Thomas." Rev. Harry L. Slick of Bringhurst, Indiana will preach Wednesday night on "What Jesus Did for Pilate," Thursday night, Rev. Wayne Paulen will preach on "What Jesus Did for Peter." The speaker for Friday has not yet been definitely chosen.

It is the belief of those sponsoring this series of services that there are many of us today who have the same characteristics as Paul, Thomas, Peter, and the others had so many years ago, and what Jesus did for them he can do for us also.

These meetings are open to all. No one can afford to miss any of them.

Junior Tustison has been very sick with pneumonia.

Lee Lane, Wabash section foreman, moved this week from the Craig Sheffer home into the Henry Shroyer property.

Scarlet fever is raging at Butler. 17 new cases Monday, schools and public meetings of all kinds are stopped indefinitely.

The regular quarterly meeting of the DeKalb County Churches of Christ will be held at St. Joe, Sunday evening, Jan. 28th. This is done so as to cooperate with them in their evangelistic meetings now in progress. The meeting will be held in the gymnasium.

Five hundred members of the Knights of Pythias Lodges and Pythian Sisters Temples in this vicinity will assemble at Auburn on January 31st for an afternoon and evening get-to-gether meeting. This is one of several such meetings arranged throughout the state by Harry C. Sullivan of Veway, Grand Chancellor of the Kights of Pythias and Mrs. Ocia V. Jellison of South Bend, Grand Chief of the Pythian Sisters, who will be honor guests. A pitch-in supper will be served from 5:30 to 7:00 and the evening session will be called to order at 7:30. Members of the lodges and Temples from Allen, DeKalb, Noble, Steuben, Whitley, LaGrange and Elkhart counties will attend the Auburn meeting.

CORN—HOG MEETING HELD LAST WEEK

The first community meeting relative to the government's corn-hog control program in DeKalb county, was held at the school house Wednesday evening, when a large crowd of farmers gathered to hear County Agent Myers explain the matter in full detail.

Work sheets were handed each farmer to study, and after statements of supporting evidence is made out, it will then be possible for farmers to be signed up.

A number of important changes are being made in rulings, which will eliminate much of the difficulty in making out the contracts.

A meeting will be held in about a month to give out further information.

INTANGIBLE PENALTY

A penalty equal to four times the amount of the tax, plus 10 per cent interest, is now due on delinquent 1933 intangibles, it was stated Saturday on the basis of a ruling from Indianapolis. The 1933 tax due on such intangibles must, of course, be paid, together with the penalty and interest. The penalty must be paid by the taxpayer through the purchase of 1934 intangibles tax stamps which are to be cancelled with the following words: "In payment of tax and penalty for 1933." In addition, the 1934 tax due on the intangible is payable one year from the date the intangible was originally executed or acquired by the taxpayer.

START REGISTRATION

The equipment needed for the registration of DeKalb county voters reached the office of County Clerk, Carl Walter Saturday morning. He at once sent notice to the twenty-three deputy registration officers recently appointed to call at his office to be sworn in and get their quota of supplies. The house-to-house canvas that will be made by the deputies was to get under way by the first of the week. A voter must be registered by April 7 to be eligible to vote at the primary in May. F. R. Bowman will have charge of this work in Concord township.

Upon application of Geo. C. Lucas, Dr. B. O. Shook, of Spencerville, was appointed in the DeKalb circuit court Monday as administrator of the estate of the late Wm. B. Lucas, of Spencerville, who died Jan. 13. There is $25 in personal property and $200 in real estate and the heirs are one brother, Geo. C. Lucas west of St. Joe, one sister Alice Mitchell, of Collier, W. Va., and a niece and nephew, Olive and Elmer Lucas, of Wellsburg, W. Va. The administrator filed $50 bond, with Geo. C. Lucas and Miles Baxter as sureties.

MORTUARY

RICKERD

Jennie Dalton Rickerd, daughter of Daniel and Sophia Dalton, was born July 24, 1863 at Jasper, Ohio, in Pike County, and departed this life from the home of her son, Edward in Newville, January 12 ,1934, at the age of 70 years, 5 months and 18 days.

She became a christian in childhood and remained faithful to the end. At the time of her death she held membership in the M. E. Church of Hicksville. On May 4, 1884 she was married to Peter Rickerd, who preceded her in death on April 24, 1926. To this union were born ten children, one of which died in infancy. In 1893 she with her family moved to Defiance County, Ohio, where she resided to the time of her death.

She is survived by nine children, one step-daughter, and one sister. These are as follows: Edith Riggs, of Morley, Mich.; Minnie Trine, of Albion, Mich.; Clinton, of Camden, New Jersey; Emory, of Hicksville, Ohio; Edward, of Newville, Ind.; Emmith, of Tekonsha, Mich.; Floyd, of Antwerp, Ohio; Roy, of Newville, Ind.; Lillie Rude, of Concord, Ind.; Ella Schooley, of Columbus, Ohio; and the sister, Minnie Grieves, of Springfield, O. Their loss is not only mourned by her family and relatives but also by many friends and acquaintances.

MOODY

Viola May, eldest daughter of L. R. Zimmerman and wife, was born January 10, 1910 at Spencerville, Indiana, and departed this life January 15, 1934, aged 24 years and 5 days.

She was married to James Moody July 14, 1926 and to this union were born four children, James, Betty, Jackie and Eugene.

She leaves to mourn her departure besides husband and children, father, mother, three brothers and one sister, Sherman, at Harlan, Charles at Spencerville and Melvin and Ellen at home. She was always of a cheerful and considerate nature and ever ready to help in time of need. She was a kind mother and a loving daughter.

The funeral services were held Thursday afternoon from the Spencerville M. E. Church, conducted by Rev. Howard Brown, burial in White City cemetery. Roscoe Walter had charge.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this way to express our thanks and sincere appreciation of the kindness and neighborly acts shown us through the loss of our daughter and sister.

L. R. Zimmerman and Family.

A kitchen as bright and cheerful as a SUNROOM

WOULDN'T you like to have your kitchen so light and free from shadows that work seems to hurry itself along? You can quickly have such a kitchen. Securing it is neither difficult nor expensive. Simply put a new 150-watt Edison MAZDA Daylight lamp in the central ceiling fixture (which should be of the totally enclosing type) and a 60-watt Edison MAZDA lamp in the shaded fixture above the sink* and in the one above the range.*

*If you haven't these fixtures, ask us to tell you how little it will cost to have them installed.

Now even washing dishes will be easier and less tiresome. For now you can see clearly, quickly and easily. What's that? You'd like to try it? Well, we're ready.

VOL. XLIX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1934 NUMBER 5

50 Years Ago

Taken from the files of the St. Joe News, 50 years ago—
M. E. Olds, Editor

J. W. Dills was at Fort Wayne last week.

J. D. Leighty was at Indianapolis this week.

Frank Herrick is agent for a patent road scraper.

Aaron Thomas is building an addition to his house.

Byron Woodcox offers his two lots in this place for sale at a bargain.

Frank Scholes of Fort Wayne was around shaking hands with his many friends, last Saturday.

Mell Bishop was in the northern part of Michigan last week, laying in a supply of lumber, shingles, &c.

The trial in regard to the removal of the high bridge at the west end of St. Joe was postponed until the next term of court.

Chris Currie will move his old house on to a lot near the brick works, and build his new brick where the old house stood.

There is scarcely a single crime committed in the world today,, but what is caused either directly or indirectly from strong drink.

Filley & Lounsberry proprietors of the St. Joe Saw and Planing Mill have sawed 1006 logs in the past two months and a half. Who can beat it?

Vince Dilley has sold his property in this place to Joe Baker. Joe will move in about the first of April. Vince has not decided where he will go.

We received a letter from Ote Coburn last week enclosing 25 cents, and requesting us to send him the St. Joe News. He is located at Indianola, Neb.

There was a large attendance at church last Sunday evening. The next regular appointment will be one week from next Sunday at half past two o'clock.

A great many boys, even very small ones, seem to think it a manly thing to smoke, and so they learn just as soon as they can get money enough to buy a little tobacco. But, although there are a great many bad things about using tobacco, there is not really one good one. Boys, don't never learn to smoke.

A pair of new boots and some old cast off clothes were found in a field near Coleman's school house one day last week. It is supposed that some thief had stolen a lot of goods, among them a new suit of clothes, and had stopped at the school house to put them on, and in his hurry he forgot to put on his new boots.

Whether the G A. R's. are partial to rainy nights or not for holding their hard tack socials, they have been unfortunate enough to appoint their meetings on just such evenings. However, there was quite a number in attendance at their meeting last week and they all seemed to enjoy themselves hugely. Gen. Blair of Waterloo, was present and delivered an interesting address. John Provines related in a pleasing way some of his army experiences. The inimitable Morris Widney of Auburn was present and made people laugh whether they wanted to or not. The pork and beans were eaten with a relish that indicated that people had been saving up for the occasion, and the bill of expense for the whole evening's entertainment was nothing. The soldiers "set 'em up."

Mrs. O. M. Meek went to Lima last week to visit friends.

Barney Woodcox has to use a cane to walk with on account of a badly sprained ancle.

Sometime ago the Auburn Republican put a cylinder press into its office, and last week the Courier followed suit. Now gentlemen, let us have a little less blowing about presses, and a few more items of news.

Fishin Fer Ofis

This is the year wen men want ofis, an sum ov them want it purty bad, tu. They hav a thurstin an a hankerin fer tu be a canidate fur sum hi posishun. Ther mouth waters tu be Trustea or Constabel or a skule director, or president of a debatin clube or a section boss or anything jest so its ofis. They come forth on the day ov the cawcus or convenshun lik mushrooms in the spring time an on electktion day thay ar cut down an thay wither away. Thay spend ther time an money fer that wich is nix. Politix dont pay; it cost tu mutch to be elected. Ther ought tu be moor ofises so everbody could hav one. I am not up fer ofis, that is I am not up, but, howevar, if thay want to run me fur Constabel whi let em run. I'll garantea not tu let the prisners git away frum me lik that deputy feller did sumtime ago; he cudn't help it tho the prisner wus tu mutch fer him: it wants a big man fer that ofis. I aint particler about it tho.

Yours Fer Ofis.

SOME OLD PAPERS FOUND IN BELONGINGS

Some days ago J. R. Leighty gave us the information, that in looking over some of the papers stored away in his father's desk, he came across the original subscription paper for the securing of funds to erect the St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church at St. Joe. The paper is dated January 9, 1879; another dedication subscription under date of May 9, 1880; and the third one for the purpose of raising funds for the purchase of a bell, dated August 19, 1881.

We propose to publish each of these papers, giving only the names of the subscribers on each petition. We feel quite sure that our older readers will appreciate this bit of historical data.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Special Visiting Day

Tuesday, February 6, has been designated by the local Parent-Teachers Association as visiting day in the schools. Parents are invited to spend just as much of that day as they find possible in the schools. Plans are being formulated for a special luncheon at the noon hour and an afternoon program. The speaker on the afternoon P. T. A. program will discuss the subject of "immunization" and will be either Dr. Swartz, county health commissioner, or some other doctor whom he may designate as speaker.

Pupils Immunized

On last Friday afternoon one of the county physicians called at the school building at 3:30 and an announcement was made that all pupils who cared to stay after school would be given immunization against diphtheria. Twenty pupils responded. If parents so desire we will make further arrangements for this work to be done at the school building. Kindly send a written note to this effect if we are to arrange this service for you.

Harlan H. S. Plays Here Next Saturday

The Harlan H. S. girls and boys teams play here on next Saturday evening. This may prove to be the last game of the season for unless the scaret fever condition improves a great deal it will be necessary for Waterloo to cancel the game scheduled here for February 17. So come out for the Harlan games and see the local boys in those new uniforms.

This week ends the fourth grading period of the school year for the upper six grades. Report cards will be issued Wednesday, February 7th.

Mary Neise, who has been a member of the eighth grade class withdrew from school on Tuesday evening of last wek. Mary's new home is in Newville Township and she will continue school in that township.

Francis and Mary Close returned to school on Monday after an absence of nine school days due to quarantine. Their small sister, is not yet in school, had a mild case of scarlatina.

Commercial Department

Tht typing class is doing very satisfactory work. Four members of the class have already achieved the goal set at the beginning of the school year, that being fifty words a minute. The speed record achieved last week in a time test was as follows: Helen Like, 71; Geraldine Thornton, 64; Ethelmae Freeburn, 51; Dale Collins, 50; Ruth Baker, 49; Robert Musser and Walter Boger, each 48; Virginia Shull, 44; John Dilley, 43; Flossie Inlow, 42; Keith Dailey, 42; Glen Likes, 38; Virgil Culbertson, 33.

The bookkeeping class is now working on Practice Set No. 2. This set deals with actual bookkeeper's problems such as banking, writing checks, monthly statements, and recording all daily transactions.

Home Economics Department

Our class in Family Relationships has just completed a unit of work dealing with the historical background of the family. This also included an interesting study of the early history and settlers of DeKalb County.

Grades One and Two

In the daily program of the Primary room a thirty minute period of free activity is observed. During this time each pupil is allowed to choose the activity he wishes to do. These activities include reading and arithmetic seatwork, reading library books, writing stories, and making number booklets as well as various forms of art work. By this method each child gives expression to his individual desires and interests.

The first grade made spelling booklets and are now having spelling every day.

Grades Three and Four

The pupils of the third and fourth grades are watching the growth of potted plants as part of their Nature Study.

The Swiss story, Heidi, is proving very fascinating to boys as well as girls of grades three and four.

In spite of the epidemic of colds we still have ten pupils in our room who have been neither tardy nor absent this year.

Miss Beatrice Woodcox visited the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades last Friday afternoon.

Grades Five and Six

Wayne Fetters, Ruth Keesler, Burl Rude, Grant Strong and Maxine Wodcox won honor roll distinction in spelling last week.

Much emphasis has been placed on the improving of reading in our grades during the past week. We feel that new interest has been taken in the supplementary readers, and that they are going to be very helpful to all.

Rev. J. N. Scholes Speaks

Chapel exercises were conducted last Thursday morning by Rev. J. N. Scholes. Rev. Scholes made an excellent talk in which he related facts which have come to his personal attention as he has gone about his work as an evangelist. Rev. Walter Coburn will be the speaker this week.

There was a good representation from the school in attendance at "school night" in the Church of Christ evangelistic services. Last Thursday evening was observed as school night.

GOING TO SCHOOL
(by John F. Coburn)

Walter H. Coburn, writes The News concerning an old paper for publication.

I am enclosing a little piece my grandfather wrote many years ago probably for one of the old "literaries" which used to be held even within my memory. The events in this one took place probably in Ontario County, New York State.

"I was only four years old when my parents first sent me to school. The teacher's way of instructing me was to call me to her side, point to the first letter of the Alphabet and tell me it was A, and I must say it after her; then to the second and tell me it was B and I would repeat it and so through to the bottom and then up again and my lesson was done. The consequence was that at the end of the three months I could repeat the alphabet down and up as fast as my tongue could rattle but I knew only just one letter so that I could tell it whenever I saw it and I doubt whether I learned that of her.

"At the next term we had a different teacher who pursued a different course and at the end of the second quarter I could read in the Testament fluently. The next season I learned the fourth chapter of Revelation so that I could repeat it fluently without the book. I well remember the earnestness with which I would pronounce the words, 'Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty,' and I remember hearing my father say to some who had heard me recite the chapter, 'He has learned that chapter wholly by himself by reading it, in such a tone as made it seem as if he thought it pretty smart but I had not thought of such a thing.

"I remember just one thing that I did when young that I thought was smart and I'l tell it now and let you think as you will of it. I must have been about six or seven years old, probably between the two; it was winter and the snow was deep, the road well broke with sleds but the wind had been and still was blowing fresh and had piled the snow in deep drifts across the track. Going home from school the wind was rather in our faces and quite cutting so my oldest brother and sister and David Cudworth and Lucy West (my Olive's sister) all of them about twelve or thirteen years old turned their backs toward home placed themselves side by side alternating a boy and a girl and boy and girl, wrapped their arms firmly around each others waist and commenced walking backwards. A thought struck me. It did not strike hard enough to knock me down at once but it brought me down as you shall see. I tripped past the four big ones I have described and ran on to a deep drift and lay down just at the edge of it right across the path and as they came along backwards they hit their heels against me and fell backwards into the deep dry snow. Of course they scrambled and of course in scrambling with their arms all under they poked the snow into each others clothes finely; meanwhile I had jumped out from under their feet and before they could recover themselves I was out of reach.

"Father did not whip me for it.

"Just about this time my father dug a well. It was in part through gravel and I would pick up the little flat pieces of slate and other stones and call them money and while doing this formed a clever plan. I would show these stones to the Indians as they came along peddling as they did sometimes and tell them it was money and buy pretty baskets and other pretty things of them. This both amused and disgusted the older children and they laughed heartily and told me that Indians knew money as well as white folks; but mother treated it differently. She took me on my own ground on the supposition that the Indians would not know any better and told me how wicked it would be to cheat folks in that way because they could not read and did not know and so explained the matter to me as to make a strong impression on my mind of the nature of true honesty and virtue which I yet vividly remember."

MORTUARY

VANZILE

David VanZile, aged 75, a pioneer resident of Hurshtown, passed away at his home early Sunday morning after a two weeks illness. He was a life long resident of Cedar Creek Township, having spent the greater part of his life on the farm on which he died. He gained perhaps his greatest enjoyment in recent years from his violin, being quite adept as an "old-time fiddler." He was a member of the Knights of Pythias Lodge at Spencerville.

He leaves the widow, Alice; one son, Orange, at home; one daughter, Mrs. John Steward; a number of grandchildren, and a great many neighbors and friends.

His funeral was held from the home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in White City Cemetery at Spencerville.

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

LADIES LITERARY CLUB

On Wednesday evening, January 24th, the ladies of the Ladies Literary Club entertained their husbands to a program and pot luck supper at the home of Mrs. Frank Curie. The program opened with the singing of the club song. Other numbers on the program included a piano solo by Cora Curie, a playlet by Mr. and Mrs. Fabianske, and songs by both mens' and ladies' quartettes. The mens' quartette, composed of Merritt Sechler, Harvey Hull, William Staman and Ed Storer sang: "Sleep, Mah Li'l Kinky Haid," and they were accompanied by Willis Cox.

The ladies' quartette, Miriam Fabianske, Lora Leighty, Gladys Cox and Helen Ditmars, sang, "Just A Wearyin' for You" and "Sleep, Kentucky Babe." They were accompanied by Cora Curie.

After the program came the social hour, during which the partners for supper were selected, and the supper located and disposed of in large quantities with much enjoyment.

Besides the regular members and their husbands the guests included Mr. Jimmy Kennedy of Garrett, Mr. J. B. Munn, Mr Dale Trostel, Mrs. Laney Gee, Mrs. Margaret Hull, Mrs. Mabelle Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Gerdes and John Dilley.

The committee in charge of the evening was as follows: Helen Ditmars, Lillian Buckingham, Lora Leighty, Belle Woodcox and Cora Curie.

HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Hom Bureau met at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Yeiser, Jan. 19th. Meeting was called to order by the president, Mary Krise. Two songs were sung followed by Lord's Prayer. A short speech was given by each officer and a response by a member. Our Creed was read and commented on by Mrs. Borthwick. A round table discussion, "Our Duties to the Club and Our President." All responded to roll call by giving some benefit from the club. Mrs. Dell Draggoo gave a very interesting report on her trip to Purdue and brought back many good suggestions and recipes which were passed to each member. Two new members were added. A lunch was served by the committee consisting of doughnuts, pickles and tea.

ITEMS ABOUT ST. JOE

The country needs honest, well-reasoned opinion—not blind idolatry or partisan ranting on either side.

Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Moffett, of Auburn, and Mr. and Mrs. Orange Herrick were guests of Mr. and Mr. Ray Herrick and family at Ft. Wayne Sunday.

Many Kosciusko county women are refusing to reveal their ages when questioned by registrars who are listing voters of the county, it was announced at Warsaw, Ind., Monday. County Clerk R. R. Hildebrand has suggested that in such instances registrars make a fairly accurate guess as to the real age of the person being listed and then add 10 years. One registrar declared that he could make a pretty accurate guess of any woman's age "even if the person questioned is disguised with rouge and lipstick grease." In Concord township objections to giving age by some, is to be expected, but why so, everyone here knows you, and those who inspect the blanks will not know you.

SPORTING NEWS

The St. Joe Merchants defeated the Erick Sausages last Saturday night by the score of 45-17 before a good sized crowd. The Erick team was headed by "Jimmie" Baker former Hoosier star.

The team and manager wish to thank C. A. Woodcox and his band for their splendid concert before the game, it shows the old spirit is still alive in this community.

The Smith Coal Co., team of Ft. Wayne, will be here Thursday eve, February 8. We are for revenge for that beating we got from them at base ball last summer.

Tuesday night the Merchants won another overwhelming victory by defeating a supposed to be fast team, the Avilla Red Hots 45 to 22. The Merchants used their reserves in most of the last half.

Next Thursday eve, February 8, they play the fast Smith Coal Co. team, which is composed of ex-high school stars of Ft. Wayne. This promises to be one of the best games this season.

VOL. XLIX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1934 NUMBER 7

50 Years Ago

Taken from the files of the St. Joe News, 50 years ago—
M. E. Olds, Editor

Don't fail to attend Prof. Gordon's concert.

Dr. Bowman will move into Loran Saylor's house as soon as it is vacated.

Hon. C. F. Moiser, editor of the Bristol Banner, was in town last Monday.

Phlete Shirts sold his horse, buggy harness and a bran new pin sleigh for $110 cash.

Who'll be the next lucky man to get married? It's a sure prescription for bald head.

J. D. Leighty was at Indianapolis last week, attending a meeting of the Knight Templars.

Give me liberty, or give me two dollars and a half and I'll go down to Mort Olds and get a pair of four dollar boots.

George Miles, commonly known among railroad men as "big foot" has quit railroading. J. H. Trippe is now agent at this place.

Up in Minnesota the thermometer was down to 45 degrees below zero. Just think of it, 19 degrees colder than it was here. Whew!

That cold snap last week reminded us of the winter of—let me see; I believe it was some where along about August, 1857. It was so tormented hot, we came near freezing to death.

The attendance at church this week has been good, but there is room for more. The meetings will probably continue for a number of days yet, and all are invited to come.

There will be an Oyster Supper at Leighty's Hotel, after the concert to be given at the close of Prof. Gordon's singing class, which will be either Friday or Saturday evening, Dec. 28th or 29th.

Nothing less than a shower of pitchforks can keep the St. Joe people at home, when there is an entertainment on hand, as was fully demonstrated the evening of the Hard Tack Social, when notwithstanding the disagreeable weather, there was quite a large attendance, and all were well repaid for going out, by an evening of enjoyable fun. Everybody had a good time, and the speeches, songs, beans, pork and hard tack were excellent. We say, do it again sometime.

One of the most foolish and uncalled for habits, that men engage in, is that of swearing; nor is it altogether confined to men. Sorry to say, there are young men and even small boys in our town, who oftimes are heard to use profane language. Now the question arises where do they learn it. Certainly not in their readers or spelling books; no, it comes from hearing older ones, and oftentimes parents themselves, indulging in this awful habit. Small boys are allowed out on the street until 9 or 10 o'clock at night, listening to all that is being said, and of course they hear men swear, and they are quick to follow the example, and if you ask them why they do so, they can truthfully reply "the big folks do that," or "my father swears, and if its right for him, why not for me?" Is this not true to a certain extent, and if so, why not make a resolve to quit using profane language, and after you have made the resolution, stick to it. There are other vices equally as bad, if not worse, which we shall speak of hereafter.

Dr. Sturgis of Huntertown, talks of locating in St. Joe.

Morris Widney of Auburn, spent last Sabbath with his brother O. H.

The new Methodist Church at Spencerville will soon be completed.

Rev. Hussey will preach at the church at this place, next Sunday evening.

Jacob Sechler is a sort of a grass widower, his wife having gone to Ohio on a visit.

Mervin Widney thinks that Michigan girls are a great deal nicer than our good looking Hoosier girls.

The young people had a party at John Leighty's, Sr., on Friday evening, in honor of Misses Sidie and Dora.

Teacher's meeting Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, to which all are invited who are interested in Sabbath School work.

Some of the boys living on Main Street who make a practice of jumping on freight trains, will get hurt if they don't stop it.

Why don't you attend singing on Tuesday evenings? Its free gratis for nothing, and by going you might learn something.

George Bleeks built an up ground cellar this fall. George thinks they are better and more convenient than those put under the ground.

William Leighty, wife and little May, were at Ligonier last Saturday and Sunday, visiting with Dr. Mitchel's family. He reports that Doc is well pleased with his location, and is building up a good practice.

The present term of school at this place will close this week, and after a vacation of one week the winter term will commence with Mr. Merica as principal and Mrs. Jennie Batt teacher of the primary department.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION NEXT SUNDAY

On February 17, 1934 will occur the 97th anniversary of the Coburn's Corners Church. This event will be celebrated there on the 18th by a special program.

The usual services with communion will be held in the morning. There will be a pot luck basket dinner at noon. Afternoon services will begin at 1:00 o'clock. There will be a representation of the charter members of the church in costume, eleven in number. A paper by John J. Coburn, one of the charter members, and preacher soon after, will be read. John J. Coburn's grandson, the present pastor, will preach the sermon and use the bible which his grandfather used.

Other interesting numbers will be given. Everyone is invited particularly those who are descendents of the pioneers.

DEATH NOTICES

Mrs. John Timmerman, of Spencerville, passed away Tuesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at her home after several weeks illness. The funeral arrangements are announced for Friday afternoon at 1:30 from the M. E. Church.

Mrs. Mary Terman, of near Kunkle, Ohio, passed away Wednesday morning, after a long illness. She was brought to St. Joe Wednesday in the Kinsey ambulance, and will be buried from here, the time not being known as we go to press.

BOY SCOUTS REORGANIZE

The Boy Scout Troop in Spencerville has been reorganized with Becks Erick as Scoutmaster and Lynn Fisher and Jerry Gloyd as Assistant Scoutmasters. The troop is meeting on Thursday nights in the newly finished room in the basement of the High School.

Last Saturday morning the troop went to Garrett for the DeKalb County mobilization to hear President Roosevelt's address on the 24th anniversary of Scouting in this country. Billy Erick, Billy Baker, Dick Jordan, Chas. Warstler, Robert Heffner, and Marton Allen, went on the trip accompanied by Mr. Clyde Rectenwall, Dr. Baumgartner and Rev. Brown.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Visiting Day

The local P. T. A. sponsored a visiting day in the schools on Tuesday of last week. The mothers accepted the invitation and turned out in a goodly number but the fathers failed to do so well. In the afternoon a P. T. A. Meeting was held. Dr. Swartz, secretary of the county board of health, was present and spoke on the subject of "Immunization." Music for this program was furnished by a trio from the Ladies Literary Club.

Alumni Games

A small number of basket ball fans attended the Alumni games on Wednesday evening of last week. In the opening game the high school girls met defeat by a narrow margin. The high school boys however took an early lead and defeated the Alumni boys teams in a very interesting game.

Carnival A Success

Moderation in the weather helped to bring out a good crowd to the school gymnasium on last Saturday evening for the carnival sponsored by the local school athletic association. Each of the upper six grades co-operated in staging this event and other grades teachers, parents, and local business men generously contributed and patronized the event. The gross receipts were $44.40. Local expenditures were kept to a sum of $10.26 leaving a net balance of $34.14. The net balance has been applied on the bill for the boys basket ball suits.

Last Home Basketball Games

The Waterloo girls and boys teams are again playing basketball and will come here on Saturday evening of this week to conclude our home schedule of games. We are hoping that local people will turn out to see several of this year's senior class play their last regular game as a high school student on the local floor. Senior girls playing their last semester are Josephine Bachtel, Ethelmae Freeburn, Helen Like, Virginia Shull, and Geraldine Thornton. Senior boys who will play their last home game are Keith Dailey, John Dilley, Orville Coburn, and Dale Collins.

Rev. H. K. Schondelmayer Speaks to School

Chapel exercises were conducted last Thursday morning by Rev. H. K. Schondelmayer. Rev. Schondelmayer cleared some points on church history which had been referred to him by high school pupils during recent weeks. Beginning on Thursday morning of this week the upper six grades will take turns in presenting one-half hour assembly programs. The ninth year are giving the program this week. Mr. Cox is the sponsor of this class.

Mr. McCoy Speaks to the Grade Pupils

Mr. McCoy of the Extension Division of Purdue Agricultural College who is speaking in all of the schools in the county on the importance of the eradication of the wild barberry, visited the schools here on Monday forenoon and made two talks. The first was to the girls and boys of the fifth and sixth grades and the second to the seventh and eighth grades.

Grades One and Two

We had eighteen visitors in our room on visiting day.

Calvin Hull was absent all last week because of illness.

The boys in our room are planning to make cupboards and chairs out of orange crates. Curtains for the cupboards will be made by the girls.

Grades Three and Four

The Third Grade dramitized a George Washington story last Wednesday. There were three acts with a different cast.

Grades Five and Six

Ruth Keesler was absent all last week on account of illness.

Several of the boys in our room are searching for the wild barberry bush. They hope to win the award given for the discovery and eradication of this dangerous plant.

Honor roll students in spelling last week were Myra Keesler, Marcel Pugsley, Helen Goodwin, Grant Strong, Burl Rude, James Harris, Maxine Woodcox, James Hamilton, and Betty Kees.

TAXES OF $707,098 TO BE COLLECTED

The annual abstract of taxable property and taxes in DeKalb county prepared by County Auditor F. E. Lyon, shows $707,098.03 of 1933 tax charged for collection by County Treasurer Merritt M. Maxwell in 1934. This is an increase as compared with a year ago, when the amount was $683,096.48.

The delinquent tax shown by the new abstract is $151,270.16, an increase of $28,789.98 over a year ago. The total of current and delinquent tax for payment this year is $858,368.19, as compared with $805,585.66 in 1933.

The total net value of taxables on the new abstract is $28,291,010, a reduction of $31,853,600. Real estate is assessed at $16,696,240, after deducting mortgage exemptions, which is to be compared with $16,625,500 last year. Personal property is $3,590,040, a reduction from $5,725,130.

Mortgage and soldiers' exemptions total $1,464,570, a reduction from $1,529,320.

The tax charged for collection, including delinquent, from each unit in 1934 as compared with 1933 follows:

Auburn city $181,599.71, increased from $176,368.07.

Butler city $46,218.99, reduced from $47,870.37.

Garrett $131,198.42, increased from $121,159.76.

Altona $5,323.25, increased from $4,823.65.

Ashley $8,341.08, increased from $7,463.34.

Corunna $4,754.85, increased from $4,614.77.

St. Joe $9,188.60 increased from $8,143.83.

Waterloo $35,481.41, reduced from $37,210.44.

When can hogs be raised at a profit? This, of course, depends somewhat upon the condition of the hog, the weather, shelter, etc. However, it is figured by authorities on the subject that it takes 4.5 cents per pound hogs to eventually balance a 45 cents per bushel corn market.

Down in South Africa, Jacobus Jonker, a poor 61-year-old native worker found the fourth largest diamond in the world. Yonker was anxious to get his prize cashed and didn't do much shopping for a buyer. However, he realized a cash net profit of over $300,000 for his trouble.

Is it correct to say a pair of twins? Well it is in referring to Leota, Roberta, Mona, and Mary Keys. These eighteen-year-old Texas quadruplets are the oldest living quadruplets in the United States. The young ladies are well developed physically and mentally and popular and happy college coeds, this year.

Religious doctrines differ greatly in regard to second marriages. It seems to be a question much discussed and, of course, much debated in regard to what will happen in gathering such families together in the next world. Are couples legally divorced religiously free? Are couples parted by the death of one or the other released from all religious obligations to the other?

The United States Government is now operating under what is officially known as the "Manage International Gold Bullion Reserve Standard." An ounce of gold is worth $35. The former price for years and years was $20.67 per ounce. If we understand it correctly, any person not living in this country who has an ounce of gold can sell it for $35 but any person living in the United States (now officially known as hoarders) can get only the former price of $20.67 with a prison sentence thrown in for good measure.

In 1933, life insurance companies in the United States paid over two billion dollars to living policy holders, which was more than twice the amount paid in death claims; this did not include the millions of dollars loaned to living policy holders against their policies still in force. New "Knee-Action" Chevrolet Gives Passengers Ride Like a Glide

In the design and development of the new 1934 Chevrolet, particular attention has been given to driver and passenger comfort, all annoying sensations of disagreeable sound and feeling having been eliminated. The upper photo shows the new Chevrolet coach with its long, sleek lines. Wind rush has been eliminated by the Fisher No Draft Ventilators and the new streamlined bodies. Chevrolet's "Knee-Action" wheels enjoy the advantage of being completely enclosed in a weathertight housing; the coil springs and shock absorbers ride in a bath of oil. William E. Holler, Chevrolet's general sales manager, is shown at the left holding a chart which shows the internal construction of the system. The radiator of the new car has added beauty through its graceful and sharply pointed design. Smartness has been the theme in every line of this year's Chevrolet.

The driver and passengers in the new 1934 Chevrolet get a ride like the glide of an airplane. One of the main factors in improving the riding qualities of the new car to such a great extent is the "Knee-Action"—or independently sprung front wheels, to use the technical term.

So much has been written about independent springing that the public has doubtless concluded that it is something too technical to understand. As a matter of fact, there is nothing complicated about either the principle involved or the construction of the system. Chevrolet's "Knee-Action" enjoys the advantage of being enclosed in a welded weathertight housing in which the entire spring mechanism and shock absorbers ride up and down in a bath of oil.

An automobile gives a perfect ride when both the front and rear springs have the same "frequency," or tension. Actually this has been impossible to carry out in the past because the front springs had to be over twice as "stiff" as the rear springs in order to hold the front axle, wheels and brakes in place. In independent springing, the wheels and spring mechanism are rigidly attached directly to the frame and there is no front axle. By relieving the front springs of the task of carrying wheels and axle, therefore, it became possible to make the front springs as "soft" as the rear springs. When the new Chevrolet strikes an irregularity in the road, both front and rear move up and down with the same frequency—there is no inclination on the part of the rear end of the car to leap into the air and throw the passengers forward and upward.

Chevrolet's "Knee-Action" has additional advantages all contributing to a comfort in riding never before thought possible in a motor car. There is a decided improvement in handling, steering, safety at high speeds and tire economy.

In design, the front spring is a neat, compact and efficient unit, as Mr. Holler points out in the above picture. The entire spring mechanism is attached rigidly to the frame. From this enclosed unit the wheels spring vertically at the ends of strong, steel horizontal arms.

INJURED IN CRASH AT SPENCERVILLE

Marshall Carnahan, aged 24, and his brother, Ebert, 20 years of age, residing near Hopewell Church in Jackson township, escaped death by almost a miracle in which the Chevrolet coupe in which they were riding knocked a Wabash railroad box car off the track at the station at Spencerville.

Marshall suffered a 4-inch long and deep scalp wound requiring ten stitches to close and Ebert has a lacerated nose. Other than these injuries and the reaction from shock the young men appeared Monday to be none the worse because of their experience. They were brought to the Dr. Bonnell Souder hospital in Auburn after the accident by Dr. Benjamin O. Shook, of Spencerville, the DeKalb county coroner. Marshall is still in the hospital. Ebert was able to go home after receiving treatment.

The young men did not see a train which was going slowly, east bound. One train was on the side track and the other was doing some switching when the Chevrolet coupe smashed into the side of the train in motion. One set of trucks was forced off the rails and it was not until 3 o'clock Monday morning that the train was able to proceed. The Chevrolet is a complete wreck.

The accident was unusual. The fact that a heavy box car attached to train should be forced from the track from the impact of a small automobile and the occupants not killed instantly or more seriously injured is remarkable.

MORTUARY

FORMER ST. JOE BOY TAKES HIS LIFE

Charles Benjamin, age 45, of Montpelier, Ohio, a former St. Joe boy, took his life at his home there Thursday evening by hanging himself in the bath room. When he failed to show up for work at the Wabash, an investigation followed revealing what had taken place. Poor health is the attributing cause.

Mrs. Benjamin was at Peru, visiting friends at the time of the tragedy.

Charles was the son of Jerome and Electa Abel Benjamin, born August 16, 1888, and was raised in the Coburntown community. After the death of his mother, who was a sister to J. C. F. Abel, Mr. Benjamin made his home in the Abel home for a number of years.

He was married to Jessie Wade, and two sons were born to this union, Lawrence, 23, born at St. Joe and Charles, 20, born at Grabill.

The funeral was held at the Montpelier home, with burial here Monday afternoon, conducted by Mrs. Mayola Kinsey & Son.

TUSTISON

George Junior Tustison, born December 15, 1927, at Auburn, Indiana, died February 8, 1934 at 8 o'clock in the morning in the Souder Memorial Hospital, Auburn, aged six years, one month and twenty-four days. His short years were spent with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Tustison at St. Joe, Indiana. He was baptized in the Lutheran Church and attended the primary department of the church school. Last September he entered the first grade of the public schools. From the illness that began January 17 the was unable to recover.

He leaves to mourn besides his parents, one brother, Paul Gene, his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tustison, of St. Joe, and Mrs. Isa Ernest, of Jackson, Michigan, a great grandmother, Mrs. Mary M. Blake of Briceton, Ohio, five aunts and seven uncles, three cousins, and many little friends.

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the Lutheran Church, conducted by Rev. A. H. Fabianske, burial in the K. of P. Cemetery. Mrs. Mayola Kinsey & Son, funeral directors.

AWAY

I cannot say, and I will no say
That he is dead—he is just away.

With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand,
As he wandered into an unknown land,

And left us dreaming how very fine
It needs must be since he lingered there.

And you—O you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return,—

Think of him faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here:

Mild and gentle, as he was brave—
When the sweetest love of his life he gave

To simple things:—where the violets grew
Pure as the eyes they were likened to.

The touches of his hands have strayed
As reverently as his lips have prayed:

When the little brown thrush that harshly chirred
Was dear to him as the mocking bird.

And he pitied as much as a man in pain,
A writhing honey-bee wet with rain.

Think of him still as the same, I say,
He is not dead—he is just away!

—James Whitcomb Riley.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank the kind friends who assisted in any way in the illness and death of our beloved son and grandson.

DELINQUENT SALE WAS A FAILURE

Although more than 1,800 items of property were advertised, only three of them were bid in at the DeKalb county delinquent tax sale held at the court house Monday.

The sales made follow:

Edwin Heller, 1.25 acres Troy township, bid in by Nick Ridlin for $4.55, the amount of the tax.

Susan Myrtle, .50 acres in Waterloo, bid in by Beulah Beard for $85.56, the amount of the tax.

F. B. Himes, 25.90 acres, Richland township, bid in by Lester E. and Sallie Palmer for $32.85, the amount of the tax.

The sale was conducted by County Treasurer Merritt M. Maxwell and County Auditor F. E. Lyon and very few persons were in attendance.

Washington, Adams Both Late for Inauguration

WHEN Washington was inaugurated the old Federal hall was the Capitol of the United States. At that time New York and Philadelphia were rivals for the honor of being the Capital of the nation, notes the Washington Star.

The first President was inducted into office on April 30, rather than March 4, not by design, but because of the procrastination of the congress and the difficulties of travel in that day. Congress had set the first Wednesday in March, which fell on the fourth of the month, as the date for "commencing the proceedings under the said Constitution," but when March 4 came neither the senate nor the house could muster a quorum and so could not organize. Only 13 members of the house answered to their names.

Two summons were sent out to members, but it was not until April 1 that the house finally managed to count a quorum. The senate obtained a quorum April 6, more than a month after the appointed day. On the same day a joint session of the two houses was held in the senate chamber. When the electoral votes were opened and counted, it was found Washington was elected President, and John Adams Vice President.

Washington and Adams were formally notified and this, together with their journey to New York, delayed the inauguration until the thirtieth.

George Washington One of Signers of Constitution

IN MAY, 1787, a constitutional convention met at Philadelphia, then the National Capital. George Washington was president of the convention, which was attended by 55 delegates from the states. A constitution was drawn up after about four months and was adopted by 39 of the delegates on September 17, 1787; 16 declined or failed to sign. Ten delegates appointed by the states did not attend the convention. Some of the best known names among the signers were George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, James Madison, Alexander Hamilton, Robert Morris, Roger Sherman, Charles C. Pinckney, James Wilson. Delaware was the first state to ratify, followed in order by Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Georgia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maryland, South Carolina, New Hampshire, Virginia, New York, North Carolina, Rhode Island. It was declared to be in effect in March, 1789.

Harold Sylvester returned home from Garrett Sunday evening.

Chas. E. Miser, county assessor, announced Tuesday his intention to be a candidate for renomination on the republican ticket at the May primary.

Mr. and Mrs. James Sylvester and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Ladig attended a birthday dinner in honor of Mr. C. A. McDaniel of Garrett last Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McDaniel and Mrs. Marjory Hughes, of Garrett, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Sylvester of Coburn's Corners Wednesday.

County Road Superintendent C. L. Kain, C. O. Krise, head of the DeKalb county unemployment commission and Glenn Talbert of the CWA headquarters, were in Indianapolis Tuesday on official business in connection with CWA work in this county.

If it is Printing we can do it and do it right

Dividend Printing

▶There is one kind of printing that you want—printing that pays a dividend on the investment.

▶A letterhead with right sort of type properly balanced is a real business asset. It wins the approval of the person receiving your letter, and while he is in this frame of mind your letter is read.

▶The same reasoning applies to any other job of printing. Neatness, the right weight and kind of paper, the color of the ink, the selection of the type, all play an important part in the production of dividend printing.

We are equipped to give you that kind of printing. Let us prove it to you.

CONCORD

Mrs. L. G. Fetters is about sick with a bad cold.

Mrs. Maude Harris called on the neighbors on this road recently.

Mr. Ira Bone is improving some so he is trying to help do the chores.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Perkins spent last Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Ford Jackson.

Miss Cleota Morr presented her mother with a new living room suite—it may be a joke.

Mrs. Israel Layman is suffering with rheumatism and is hardly able to get around.

Marcella Littlefield has quit school and is working at the Fillmore Shull home.

Mrs. Ford Jackson was called to Auburn Monday to help care for her mother, who is quite sick.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Warstler visited last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Fetters.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Krise, of Auburn, were Sunday afternoon callers in the Howard Krise home.

For an efficient and cheap way of disposing of what you don't want, try a classified ad in The News.

Mr. and Mrs. Curt Washler spent a day recently with their daughter, Mrs. Roy Keller, and family.

Mrs. Lankey Moore has been on the sick list this last week with the flu, but is some better at this writing.

Roy Keller and Lloyd Draggoo returned home from Florida last week and brought back oranges, tangerines, celery and cabbage.

The 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Douglas died last week with scarlet fever. It has been quite prevalent in their community

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Draggoo spent Saturday evening in the Ford Jackson home, and on Sunday evening Ford and family visited in the Carl Perkins home.

The Concord people were invited to attend the church services at Harlan last Wednesday evening in a body, but due to the cold weather and sickness only about a dozen were able to attend.

The Ladies Aid met last Thursday with Mrs. Curt Watt. They had a good attendance considering the extreme cold weather. Next month they will meet with Wanda Bleeks near St. Johns. A good attendance is requested.

Coburn's Corners

The Rural Housewife Club met with Marie Trostel Tuesday afternoon.

Attendance at Coburn's Corners Bible School for Feb. 11, was 81, collection $3.23.

Mrs. Fay Blaker and children, of Butler, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Laub and family.

Our weekly prayer meeting was held at the church Sunday evening in charge of the pastor, Rev. Coburn.

George and Martha Hart spent Sunday afternoon with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Hart.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Best and family, of Montpelier, O., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carpenter.

Rev. and Mrs. Walter Coburn and family spent Sunday in the home of Mrs. Mildred Curie and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Karl Hart and son, Lavon, of Hicksville, O., were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Lake recently.

Frances Barnhouse, who is employed in the home of Rev. Fabianske, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jenkins and son, Master Lauren Barnhouse.

Spencer Township Home Bureau meets with Gladys Hart Wednesday afternoon. Every woman or one from every home in this township should join this club and help carry on this good work. If interested at any time call our president, Mrs. Ross Abel.

NEWVILLE

Wm. Hoy, of Garrett, called on friends here Sunday.

Charles Smith was home over Sunday from Mongo, visiting his family.

Rev. and Mrs. Leweldyn, of Waterloo, called on Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Moore Wednesday.

P. O. EXAMINATION HELD SATURDAY

Examinations for postmaster at St. Joe will be held in Auburn on Saturday, February 17, in the office of the DeKalb county superintendent of schools in the court house. John Ludwig of the Auburn postoffice, will be in charge. There are six applicants for the job.

TO SIGN CONTRACTS HERE NEXT WEEK

Concord township farmers will be called in to St. Joe Town Hall, commencing next Monday, to complete their hog and corn contracts. The committee in charge of this work will be Wm. Staman and Fred Elson. Farmers will be notified when to come.

The Spencer township committee has been hard at work this week at Farmers & Merchants Bank, and many of the farmers are finding it difficult to furnish all the information on their first trip before the committee.

Those who keep farm records are now realizing the value of them, as practically all the information can be ascertained therein.

WO-HE-KA CAMPERS PARTY

Last Saturday afternoon, February 10, about 25 of the Wo-He-Ka Campers met at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Fabianske to relate the events of the last camping period and enjoy a few social hours together. The house was decorated for the occasion, and after a short devotions like those held in camp, games were played and refreshments served. Toasts were given to the all-camp girl and boy, Louise Sechler and Richard Davis, both of St. Joe. Campers present came from Butler, St. Joe, Spencerville, and Antwerp, Ohio, while Miss Ruth Heestand, one of the leaders came specially for this occasion from Nappanee, Indiana.

Last year the campers occupied three cottages at Hamilton Lake where classes in Christian education were held as well as periods in social training and recreation. Many who were formerly afraid of the water returned able to swim.

For the coming summer extensive plans are being made for a larger and better camp.

SCHEDULE FOR LENTEN SERVICES

Lent, as many people have experienced, is an excellent time for spiritual enrichment. During that season the Lutheran Church here will hold regular Thursday night services. Appropriate short meditations will be given. Everyone is invited to partake of the rich spiritual food offered at that time. Start Thursday night, February 15, at 7 o'clock and plan to attend regularly until Easter.

Reserve the following nights:

Feb. 15. A Plea for Pardon. Luke 23: 34.

Feb. 22. Three Crosses Speak. Luke 23: 39-40.

March 1. In Suffering Tenderness. John 19: 25-27.

March 8. "Forsakest Thou Me." Matt. 27: 45-46.

March 15. "I Thirst." John 19: 28.

March 22. "It Is Finished." John 19: 30.

March 29. Into Thy Hands. Luke 23: 46.

FIRE BURNS ST. JOE HOME COMPLETELY

Fire destroyed the Marion Baughman residence in St. Joe last Thursday night about 11 o'clock, with a total loss on the building and a portion of the contents. The insurance adjustment amounted to $577.

When discovered, fire was burning along side the brick flue. By the time an alarm could be given and neighbors arrived, only a small portion of the furniture down stairs could be saved.

Mrs. Stroh and daughter kept house for Mr. Baughman and they went to the home of neighbors with only a small portion of their clothing.

Monday they moved into the property down town, vacated recently by Ed Leighty. Whether the home will be rebuilt, has not been decided as yet.

CULTURE CLUB

The Culture Club met at the home of Mrs. Floy Smith Wednesday evening. After the club lesson a bountiful variety lunch was served.

SERIES OF MEETINGS START SUNDAY

Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, a two weeks series of meetings will start at the M. P. Church, with Rev. W. L. Heitz, of Winona Lake, Ind., as the evangelist. Special music each evening. Further announcements in next issue of News will be made by the evangelist. The public is invited.

SPORTING NEWS

The Merchants added another game to their string of victories when they defeated the fast Smith Coalers of Fort Wayne last Thursday evening by a score of 37-33. The basket sniping of "Fritz" Quance, and the tight defensive work of "Dewey" Kinsey and G. Wade was something to talk about.

The Merchants play at Leo this Saturday night, and on Thursday evening, February 22, play the Wayne Paper Box Co., here at the local gym. This team defeated us earier in the season.

The Merchants have won eight straights now. Again we thank you fans for your loyal support.

HULL RADIO ARTISTS ON CHURCH PROGRAM

The famous Hull family, of Detroit, Mich., will present a special concert at the Spencerville Methodist Church Thursday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. These famous radio artists began broadcasting in 1922 and are recognized as the oldest broadcasting unit in America. They began their radio career over WWJ. Detroit.

Each member of the company plays several musical instruments, thus equipped it being possible for the Hull family to provide programs of the widest possible variety and appeal. Its repertoire ranges from simplest of homey melodies to the most elaborate and beautiful selections from the great operas and classics. These versatile musicians have presented their musical programs from Dr. Merton S. Rice's great Metropolitan church in Detroit to the tiniest crossroads church in the far west; also for schools, colleges, clubs and radio.

Professor Hull for some time was director of band instruments in the Atlanta Conservatory of Music; his daughter, Benita acted as his assistant. The instruments to be used in Thursday night's concert include xylorimba, violins, cornet, clarinet, saxaphones, piano and trumpet. There will be special vocal numbers by Mrs. Hull. A cordial invitation is extended the community to attend this special musical program.

IT WON'T BE LONG NOW—— UNTIL CHICK TIME!

Do you want a paying flock of Pullets Next Fall?

You must consider Good Chicks, Good Feed and Proper Care.

Mrs. Brueggeman of Milan Center, Ind. says: "I had good luck again last year and resulted in a fine flock of laying hens."

What others have said, you can say if you buy our "P E P P Y P E E P S". They are bred right, and hatched right.

A drooping bunch of baby chicks are always disheartening. Refuse to accept Chicks that are sleepy and listless. Insist on Chicks that are FULL OF PEP.

We have them.

VOL. XLIX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1934 NUMBER 8

50 Years Ago

Taken from the files of the St. Joe News, 50 years ago—M. E. Olds, Editor

The pay car passed through last Wednesday.

Cash Silberg was married one day last week.

The Butler Review man called on us last week.

Mrs. Reed has been quite sick, but is some better.

Alex. Filley's mother and sister visited him recently.

Sol Barney and wife went to Fort Wayne last week.

Last Thursday was a billious old day for Griner's sale.

B. S. Pettit of Hicksville, called upon us one day last week.

Miss Lizzie Evans has been quite sick but is some better today.

Mrs. J. D. Leighty was at Fort Wayne a few days last week.

Charles Widney is confined to his house on account of sickness.

Chas. Shephard was registered at the hotel one night last week.

One of our good looking young farmers will be married Sunday.

On Friday morning the mercury was down to 32 degrees below zero.

Nels Thomas' house came near getting on fire one night last week.

Russ George is working for the B. & O. railroad, painting engines.

Sheriff Boyle of Auburn was in the city one day last week on business.

Say, who is it that said they were going to build a grist mill in St. Joe?

Lawyers Rose and Moody of Auburn, were on our streets last Wednesday.

O. M. Meek will move to St. Joe and engage in the work of house and sign painting.

Quarterly meeting at the Methodist Church in Spencerville, one week from Sunday.

There was an average attendance of over 100 scholars at Sunday School last quarter.

A gentleman from Wauseon, Ohio, is talking of starting a photograph gallery in St. Joe. Plenty of room.

Uncle Billy Allen is getting material on the ground for a new brick house, to be built the coming summer.

William Shambaugh a prominent young attorney of Fort Wayne, visited friends in St. Joe during the holidays.

Barcus Q. Hippenhammer is suffering from a dislocation of the brain, consequently he does not expectorate in this week's paper.

All persons interested in the building of a grist mill in St. Joe, are requested to meet in Leighty's Hall, next Monday evening, February 11th, 1884.

"Roastbeflambmuttonandham," said the girl who waits on the table at the Isle of Shoals. "Well," said the old gentleman, "I never tasted it but you may bring me some, and I'll see what it is like."

It was quite a difficult matter to keep the school rooms at this place warm during the cold snap last week. Trustee Brown came down and put up another stove, and done all in his power to make the scholars comfortable.

If any one would have asked us how long Mr. Keator lectured the other night, we should have answered, not over three quarters of an hour. It didn't seem possible that he had spoken over two hours, and yet such was the case.

Dr. Bowman is now a resident of St. Joe.

John Davis was at Defiance last Wednesday.

Com. O. H. Widney went to Garrett Wednesday.

St. Joe is one of the most lively towns in the county.

Never run in debt if you can find something else to run into.

John Widney will commence work on his new house as soon as spring opens.

Dan Baker and his family have moved back from Iowa. He will farm the old homestead.

Mr. Merica, principal of the Garrett schools, and brother of our Merica, was in town recently.

The hunters, who were down to the big woods last week, were very successful, bringing home with them seven deer.

We sold thirty-eight silk handkerchiefs during the holidays, and still there are people who wont keep their nose clean.

It is reported that Mr. Griner is anxious to build a grist mill here, if he can secure a good man to go in partnership with him.

Wall Fales has moved into the building formerly occupied by Joe Slaughter. We understand that Dr. Bowman will use the front room for an office.

We noticed Joe Hull going home the other day with a cradle in his sled. Now we don't mean to insinuate that he was taking it home for his own use, but we just merely mention it as an item of news.

TOWN BOARD COMPLETES APPOINTMENTS

Up until Monday night, the roll of town officials has been incomplete, but now the appointments have been made and the complete official roll is as follows:

C. R. Price, president.
Harry Kees, trustee ward one.
Chas. Koch, trustee ward two.
D. B. Ridgway, clerk.
D. W. Yeiser, treasurer.
H. C. Springer, attorney.
F. B. Leighty, health officer.
Chas. Cochran, marshall.

The board will meet Monday evening in a special meeting.

PURELY PERSONAL

The less one sees of church the more he knocks it.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Haverstock were last week guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bishop. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ordway were Saturday evening guests.

The Lutheran Home Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. Frank Curie on Thursday afternoon. The hour has been changed to one thirty o'clock. Please come promptly and bring a friend.

Ralph Gates, Columbia City attorney, was chosen as republican chairman of the fourth district republican central committee, succeeding John Yeager of Wolcottville, at a Fort Wayne meeting Friday evening at the Keenan hotel. Because of poor health Mr. Yeager was compelled to resign.

The garage men of DeKalb county have organized to administer the code of fair practice by electing Claude McLaughlin of Garrett, president; Ed Graf of Butler, vice president; John Bishop of Auburn, secretary-treasurer, and Homer Wise of Waterloo and Mr. Hankey of St. Joe, directors. The code will become operative soon.

The farmers are busy signing up on the hog and corn reduction contracts and in one and a half days in Concord township, 19 contracts were completed with a probable 30 more. In Spencer township in 3 days 25 contracts were completed with possibly 20 more for this week. The committees are enjoying their work and the farmers are seeing the need for closer tabulation of their affairs.

Washington at Valley Forge

THERE is no finer example in American history of faith and pluck than that which was made at Valley Forge by the Continental army under its commander in chief, George Washington, in the winter of 1777-1778.

It is doubtful whether the sacrifice of the Continental army has ever been adequately realized, Arthur Weller writes in the National Republic Magazine. Half-starved, ill-clad, poorly sheltered, and in great peril, not only from the pangs of hunger and cold, but also from enemy attacks, they huddled about their campfires while the British under Lord Howe, at the "rebel" capital of Philadelphia, celebrated the taking of it with dances and other gala events.

Tracked March of Troops by Bloodstains of Feet on Ground.

In Marshall's Washington we find this: "At no period of the war had the American army been reduced to a situation of greater peril than during the winter at Valley Forge. More than once they were absolutely without food." What hardships were undergone can be deduced from the fact that only 5,000 out of the 17,000 who encamped there in December for that winter were fit for active duty. Clothing, no less than food, was scarce. Men wore each other's uniforms in order that the naked could be clad and take their turn at active duties.

One account tells of Washington, one cold morning, meeting his sentinel as the commander left headquarters, the Potts house. The sentinel was making vigorous movements with his hands and legs in order to keep warm. Noting this, Washington asked him if he had had his breakfast. Upon receiving a negative reply, Washington hurried the sentinel inside the house, and while he was being served a breakfast by Mrs. Washington, George Washington, with the sentinel's gun, stood guard outside his own house until the soldier's return.

Illustrative also of the conditions in the camp at beautiful, yet tragic, Valley Forge, so close to Philadelphia, so near the British, is the account of Washington's visit to a detachment of his own men. He had been keeping his eyes on the ground, apparently noting something interesting there on the snowy slopes. Upon drawing near to the chief officer of the detachment, Washington quietly returned the salute, then abruptly asked:

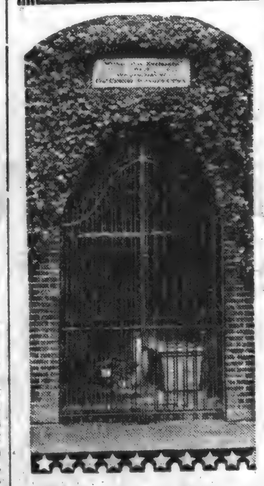
"How comes it, sir, that I have tracked the march of your troops by the bloodstains of their feet upon the frozen ground? Were there no shoes in the commissary's stores?"

To this the officer replied that his detachment was one of the last to receive shoes, also that the supply shortly after his detachment was reached had been exhausted.

Washington listened in silence, but his deep sighs showed with what emotion he heard this report. Turning to his men he said, his voice trembling, "Poor fellows!" Then he gave rein to his charger and rode rapidly away.

Valley Forge is more than a beautiful state park today. It is symbolic of something more than forced privations. It is a shrine that instills in all true Americans a deeper appreciation of the manhood and the sacrifice of those who were quartered there during the darkest hour of the Revolution. It is symbolic of a never-dying devotion to a cause and to a great commander that kept hope alive.

Tomb of WASHINGTON



THE tomb of George Washington at beautiful Mount Vernon is a national shrine. It is more, even, than that. It is a shrine of the whole world. Ships from every country in the world, when they sail up the Potomac past the tomb, dip their flags and toll their bells solemnly. And many of the biggest men on earth, kings, princes, Presidents, warriors, statesmen, make pilgrimages to this shrine of all humanity and lay no many wreaths at the tomb of Washington that often the barred iron doors of it are hidden under them.

Inaugural Ride Precedent Originated by Washington

IT WAS George Washington himself who set the courteous precedent whereby the retiring President rides with the incoming one to his inauguration, says a writer in the Saturday Evening Post.

Since 1797 this precedent has been broken only by the Adamses, both great, but cantankerous.

"The President of the United States comes in through the iron gates and goes out by the weeping willows," said Dolly Madison.

Since the fair Dolly's time, the side entrance by the willow trees has been closed. But only the route is altered. The sentiment remains.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Defeat Waterloo H. S. Teams

Last Saturday evening proved the best night in the year's schedule for our girls and boys basketball teams. The Waterloo teams arrived early with outspoken assurance that they would annex victories but at the start of each game the local "basketeers" took the lead and never let Waterloo get ahead although the score was tied one or more times in each game.

The local girls won by a score of 13 to 12. Our boys lead at the half by a score of 7 to 4. At the end of the third quarter the score stood 13 to 9 in our favor. In the final quarter Waterloo rallied and tied the score at 14 but in the final minute Keith Dailey made a free throw which gave us the game. Final score 15 to 14.

Play Hamilton Friday Eve

The last basketball game on the regular schedule will be played in Hamilton on Friday evening of this week. Our boys team defeated the Hamilton boys on the local floor earlier in the season. The girls teams also play on that night.

Basketball Team Entertained This Week

Assured in the "pep session" held last Friday noon that it would bring a great degree of satisfaction to the local principal if either or both of the local teams won their games on Saturday evening and promising to make such winners his dinner guests this promise will be kept on Thursday evening of this week. Miss Ditmars and girls from one of the advanced Food classes of the Home Economics Department will prepare and serve this "Washington's Birthday Dinner" for the members of last Saturday nights victorious girls and boys squads and coaches.

Public Dinner

The Athletic Association is planning to serve a special dinner on Wednesday, February 28, at 11:45 to 1:00 for the purpose of raising a sum of money to pay for new sweat jackets to match those new basketball suits which they wish to wear to the Sectional Tourney to be held in Garrett on Friday and Saturday, March 2 and 3. The patronage of the public to this dinner will be much appreciated. Come to the Home Economics room for this luncheon. Price will be twenty-five cents.

Home Economics Supervisor Visits

Mrs. Ringle, itinerant Home Economic supervisor, of the State Department of Education visited the local school on last Friday. Miss Ringle states that if the local vocational home economics department receives state aid after this school year a number of improvements in both rooms and equipment must be made. In previous years one-third the salary of home economics instruction has been provided from the vocational aid fund of the state government.

Ruth Curie, Joyce Fuusselman, and Berneice Madden have returned to school after long absences due to sickness.

Elizabeth and Bonnie Weikel entered the sophomore class on Monday of this week. They had previously attended the Lafayette Central High School in Allen County.

Assembly Programs

The upper grades were delighted by the radio-television program of the Freshman Class given at the weekly assembly held on last Thursday morning. Mr. Cox, class sponsor, borrowed an audition set for the occasion and Devere Woodcox served as radio announcer. Members of the class were introduced over the radio hookup and they made short speeches proclaiming the excellencies and achievements of their class. The television was much appreciated by the audience. After a radio "bedtime story" for children recited by Erea Reidenbach pupils turned to classroom work in a good frame of mind. The seventh grade will give the assembly program on Thursday morning of this week. Several of the patrons attended the assembly program on last Thursday morning.

Grades One and Two

The primary grades enjoyed a valentine box on last Wednesday afternoon. Two stories were read which tell about St. Valentine and why this day is observed.

Twelve pupils from our room are in the grade school chorus which Mr. Woodcox is organizing.

On last Friday afternoon Ned Keller read a story to the children of the fifth and sixth grades.

The first grade are having a circus project. Posters are being made and stories about circus animals are being read.

Grades Three and Four

Valentine Day was duly observed in Grades Three and Four.

The fourth grade having completed this year's work in health is now giving more time to Arithmetic.

We appreciate the efforts of Mr. Woodcox in behalf of our musical education, especially in the Junior Chorus.

Franklyn Sechler is still absent from school on account of sickness.

Grades Five and Six

Headmarks in history were given last week to Jack Goodwin, Howard Rickett, Paul Keller, Frank Curie, James Hamilton, Barbara Stroh, Evelyn George, and Harold Inlow.

The Valentine exchange on last Wednesday afternoon was enjoyed by all. Pupils remembered their teacher with a fine box of candy.

Howard Rickett, Paul Keller, Rose Ayers, Harold Inlow, Ruth Keesler, Helen Goodwin, Grant Strong, Burl Rude, James Harris, Maxine Woodcox, and Melvin Zimmerman gained places on the spelling honor roll last week.

Dr. Shook gave the second and final toxoid injection to several pupils on Friday afternoon of last week. This makes them immune against diphtheria.

A dental survey of all pupils in grades one to six will be made on Wednesday forenoon of this week. The Red Cross nurse and her assistant for the month of February will assist Dr. Ralph Fox of Auburn in this survey.

REVIVAL SERVICES NOW IN PROGRESS AT THE METHODIST CHURCH

The special evangelistic services which began Sunday night, under the leadership of the evangelist, Wm. L. Heitz, of Winona Lake, Indiana, have started off nicely at the Methodist Church. The evangelist is also an experienced song leader and has a real act in getting people to sing. Special music will be one feature of the meetings.

REV. W. L. HEITZ

The services will begin at seven o'clock and a stirring gospel message will be given at the close of the song service.

Everybody is invited to attend. Come!

BROODERS

Buckeye Coal-Burning Brooder. Made in four sizes—for 350, 500, 1,000 or 1,500 chicks.

One of the most costly things you can do is to trust the lives of your baby chicks with an unreliable brooder. And today there's no need to gamble. Today, you can have the genuine, reliable, time-tested and proven Buckeye Coal-Burning Brooder at the lowest prices ever offered.

Buckeye has a bigger stove, a bigger fuel capacity, a bigger grate. It can be depended upon to provide a tremendous amount of heat —automatically regulated. It doesn't get too hot nor too low. And Buckeye holds the fire all night.

Come to our store and examine the Buckeye.

1. Better Springer Prices.
2. Earlier Eggs are Better Prices.
3. Less mortality because of better temperature control.
4. Better care, more time to "FUSS" with them.

Each fall a lot of folks regret the fact of having started their CHIX too late and miss those late fall and early winter eggs.

You have more time NOW to care for Chix than you will when the Spring Work Begins. We will start your Chix for two weeks at an additional cost of 4 Cents Per.

Think of receiving 500 CHIX 2 weeks old, less those 2 weeks of worry in getting them started right.

THE NINETY-SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE COBURN'S CORNERS CHURCH

The Coburn's Corners Church of Christ, eldest of all in the county, celebrated its 97th anniversary Sunday, February 18th.

In the morning the regular services were held with Mr. Evans Dermott and Elder J. N. Scholes presiding at the Lord's Table. Mr. Dermott is a grandson of Asher W. Coburn, a charter member of the church and its first deacon. Mr. Dermott formerly lived here and served as Elder for many years. Mr. Scholes was reared in the neighborhood before serving as pastor in Ohio and Pennsylvania. He is at present Elder Emeritus.

At noon a bountiful dinner was served in Cafeteria style. The birthday cake, prepared by Mrs. Louis Washler was cut and served at the close of the dinner.

Mrs. Eva Sheffer and Mr. Wilmot Coburn, the only living children of charter members, were each presented with a pink carnation and seated upon the platform during part of the service.

The afternoon services were opened by singing America and invocation by Elder J. O. Rose, a former pastor.

Special numbers were given by the following, vocal duet, Miss Virginia Poper and Miss Alice Hart; violin duet, Merle Coburn and Charles Washler; vocal duet, Loren Laub and Virginia Poper; instrumental and vocal music, Howard Dermott and Leoral Hart; reading, Donna Mae Washler; playlet, Martha and Barbara Coburn; male quartette, Messrs Baker, Woodcox, Hull, Coburn, and Cox, pianist. Miss Martha Frank sang a contralto solo.

Mr. Evans Dermott gave some reminiscenses of his early life and of the charter members. Elder Scholes paid tribute to the early work of the church and of its ministry, in particular Elder J. F. Coburn who gave almost forty years of his life to the community as preacher and elder.

One feature of the program was the representation of the charter members by various persons now living here. The representation was as follows:

John F. Coburn—Walter H. Coburn.

Minerva (Mrs. J. F.) Coburn—Mrs. Walter H. Coburn.

Asher W. Coburn—Kenneth Coburn.

Hannah (Mrs. A. W.) Coburn—Mrs. Elwood Hart.

Benjamin Alton—Elwood Hart.

Fanny (Mrs. B.) Alton—Mrs. Lehr Wilder.

Dow Alton—Roy Shilling.

Benjamin Alton Jr.,—Roy Laub.

James Hadsell—Lehr Wilder.

Mary (Mrs. J.) Hadsell—Virginia Poper—Mrs. Hadsell was not a charter member.

Samuel Headley—Loren Laub.

Mrs. Babcock — Mrs. Louis Washler.

Walter H. Coburn, the present pastor, who as much as possible was dressed in the clothes of his grandfather, John F. Coburn, read a paper by the latter written in 1876. The paper was marked 'Centennial' but the circumstances of the writing are forgotten. The pastor read the scripure lesson from his grandfather's Bible. The pastor made a short talk and closed with an invitation with the hymn "Just As I Am." Oscar Keller, pastor of the Auburn Church of Christ pronounced the benediction.

TRIPLE THREAT, TRIPLE WIN

Last Saturday night in the year of our Lord, 1934, there occurred at our local gym (which was packed) an event that will go down in the basket ball history of this community, Three teams, the St. Joe Merchants, the High School boys and girls won their games. The Merchants beating the Boston Store 34-32. The boys and girls winning from Waterloo by one point in each game.

There were no outstanding stars of any of the games. Each team displayed a fighting spirit that has seldom been seen here for years. They fought and battled their way to victories they well deserved.

The Merchants team is pulling for the boys and girls to win at Hamilton, and that the boys do their "derndest" when they compete in the coming tourney.

REPORT OF THE DEKALB COUNTY RED CROSS NURSE FOR THE MONTH OF JANUARY

The Red Cross Nurse made 61 visits to the schools and 41 to the school rooms in DeKalb County during the month of January. She assisted Dr. Ish and Dr. John Schowalter in the schools of Waterloo for 6 days. Six hundred temperatures were taken and pupils sent or taken home when necessary. One hundred homes were visited for the physicians, superintendents and principals of schools.

In one home 8 children and the parents had scarlet fever. In another home, the baby was the first member of the family to contract this disease, then, one by one, others, ifcluding the parents fell ill. Then the last child waited until all were recovering, then he decided "to follow suit."

The Nurse secured Miss Elam, a graduate nurse from Garrett, thru the CWA to assist her in her work. They inspected 1163 pupils in the schools, made many home calls, and visits to the High and Grade Schools in Waterloo, and some in Butler, Moores, Ashley, Keyser, Jackson, Fairfield and Richland townships.

The National Red Cross made arrangements through their worker, Mr. Kendall to have our Chapter organize a Course in First Aid for the CWA Workers. The Nurse arranged with Dr. Bonelle Souder, of Auburn, Dr. Charles Weiricke, of Butler, and Dr. John Schowalter, of Waterloo to volunteer their services to instruct the men.

DeKalb Co. Red Cross.

MORTUARY

TERMAN

Mary J. Crawford, daughter of John and Mary Stevenson Crawford, was born near Shiloh, Richland County, Ohio, May 9, 1846. On November 9, 1871 she was united in marriage to Benjamin F. Terman at Shiloh, Richland County, Ohio. In 1874 they moved near Sherwood, Defiance County, Ohio, where they resided about 37 years, after which they moved to Orangeville, Indiana. Living there nine years. Then they moved to St. Joe, Indiana, where they lived until the death of her husband. Mrs. Terman was an invalid, her husband cared for her one year when he passed away. Her brother, Stewart and wife, cared for her 9 months then she moved to Kunkle, Ohio, where her two half brothers and wives cared for her.

The past year she has been cared for by Mrs. Mary Garrison of near West Unity, Ohio, and where she passed away, Feburary 14, 1934, at the age of 87 years, 9 months and 5 days. Her husband preceded her in death August 5, 1927, and also by one sister and there brothers. She leaves to mourn their loss one sister, Mrs. Huldah Cronenwett of Galion, Ohio, and two half brothers, Asa and Delbert Crawford of Kunkle, Ohio, and other relatives and friends.

The funeral services were conducted Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the Kinsey funeral home, Rev. A. H. Fabianske officiating. Burial was made in the K. of P. Cemetery.

TIMMERMAN

Mary Alberta Timmerman, daughter of Wm. and Elizabeth Krise, was born near St. Joe on January 25, 1869. She passad away at her home near Spencerville on February 13, 1934, having reached the age of 65 years, and 19 days. Her life was mostly spent in the community in which she lived.

She was united in marriage to John H. Timmerman on September 6, 1890. To this union were born three children, namely, Lois Camile, who preceded her in death, Mrs. Forrest Gerig of Auburn and Chas. Timmerman of Spencerville. Besides the bereaved husband and children, she is survived by five grandchildren and three sisters, Miss Isa Krise, Mrs. Margaret May and Mrs. Cora Markins, all residing near St. Joe. She was one of a family of six girls, two of them, Mrs. Laura Kosht and Mrs. Della Brandon both deceased. She leaves several nieces and nephews along with a host of friends and neighbors to mourn our loss and while we miss her we feel our loss will be Heaven's gain as she often prayed for Jesus to come to take her. She suffered intensely but bore it patiently.

Years ago she was converted under the pastorate of Rev. Langley at Concord. Her membership was transferred to the Spencerville M. E. Church. She was also a member of the Eastern Star Chapter at Spencerville.

Her life was one of usefulness and she was always thinking of the welfare and happiness of others.

Funeral services were conducted Friday, February 16, from the M. E. Church at Spencerville conducted by Rev. Howard Brown. Burial at Auburn.

WAS HOME AGAIN.

Harry Randall, of Chicago, was the guest of his mother Saturday and Sunday. Saturday they went to Wolf Lake to see her brother, who is in the hospital there. He has undergone three operations since December. They drove to Ligonier for supper, as guests of her sister, Mrs. Iva Tyler. Miss Marion accompanied Harry as far as Waterloo and visited friends.

COUNTY SEALER IS APPOINTED

Producers desiring cribs of corn to be inspected and sealed for government loans are asked to either notify County Agent, T. E. Myers, or the county sealer, Frederick Gengnagel, Butler

Mr. Gengnagel was appointed by Martin L. Lang, State Commissioner of Weights and Measures, as inspector of weights and measures in DeKalb County for the purpose of inspecting and measuring corn produced in the State of Indiana, to seal the cribs wherein corn is stored and execute the form of Federal Inspector's Certificate, in order that producers may obtain the benefits of the government corn local plan.

The forms may be procured from the County Agent's office and the County Sealer will assist the farmer in filling them out.

"The producer is to pay all costs incidental to the inspection, measuring and sealing of the corn. He must also pay the cost of the recording of the mortgage," Mr. Lang has advised the local sealer.

Before making inspection, the sealer has been asked to advise the producer relative to the cost of the inspection and sealing as provided in the Federal regulations.

All borrowers must sign the corn-hog reduction contract.

ENROLL FOR C. M. T. C.

Citizens Military Training Camps will be held during the summer of 1934 according to information sent to county chairmen from Corps area headquarters in Columbus, Ohio. DeKalb County's quota is 15 young men of ages 17 to 29 who will be trained in Fort Harrison, Indianapolis, and Fort Knox, Kentucky.

Young men who have previously attended C. M. T. Camps are being solicited this month, beginning February 1st. This is done from C. M. T. C. Headquarters, Columbus, Ohio. In addition to those candidates, others who were accepted last year but who could not be received due to elimination of training will be given opportunity this month to re-enroll.

March 1st begins the general campaign. New applications sent in before that date will not be acted upon until that date. Furthermore, candidates will be accepted for camp in the order in which they become fully qualified thru vaccination against smallpox and typhoid fever.

Application forms and other information are in the hands of the high schools of the several towns in DeKalb County. C. M. T. C. has no connection with the schools; the conuty chairman has sent the application forms to the school principals as a convenient means of reaching the young men candidates of the county. However, each high school is permitted to count a summer's C. M. T. Camp as a fourth unit of credit toward high school graduation, two summer's attendance being necessary to establish an amount sufficient to be recognized for graduation.

Doctors Dorsey Hines, A. V. Hines, L. N. Geisinger, Chas. S. Steward have been named C. M. T. C. headquarters as examining physicians for C. M. T. C. applicants. Other physicians of the county named are D. Monroe Reynolds, W. K. Templeton, J. A. Clevenger of Garrett, and E A. Ish of Waterloo.

Young men in attendance last summer from DeKalb county and who have been recommended to return are: Don Lash, Robert Fraunfelter, and William S. Graham, of Auburn; Geo. Childers and Jack Owens of Garrett. Don Lash is recommended for the blue course which is the highest course offered.

All first year candidates are trained in Fort Harrison, near Indianapolis. Advanced candidates who elect artillery or cavalry are trained in Fort Knox, Ky. All infantry training is done in Fort Harrison.

Earl F. Fribley, Capt. 325 Field Artillery, is DeKalb county chairman. Auburn young men may obtain application forms and information through him.

No grist mill in town yet.

Charlie Meek is on the sick list.

Sugar making season is fast approaching.

Dr. Ward of Newville was in town last week.

Wid Patterson was at Hicksville one day last week.

Ask Alex. Donaldson how much he got for old iron.

Literary at Coburn's Corners every Saturday evening.

Filley & Lounsberry have their mill yard pretty well filled up with logs.

Chas. Merica, principal of our schools, went to Garrett yesterday.

O. M. Meek occupies rooms with his brother Charlie, in the Widney house.

Several of our citizens are getting ladders made for use in case of fire. A good idea.

Prof. Merica has been quite sick part of this week, and unable to be at the school room.

The doctors all live at this end of town, consequently it is the healthiest part of the village.

Miss Sarah Boyle is canvassing the town for a book called "Among the Poets." It is a splendid book.

Prof. Merica and several of our young people assisted in the entertainment given at Coburntown last Saturday evening.

George Bleeks' dog pitched into the wrong dog the other day, and got badly whipped. Good! we will set up the cigars to that dog if he will call around at our office.

It is reported that Henry Fales will build a large room on the corner west of the hotel, this summer, to be occupied by him in the furniture and undertaking business. We hope the report may prove true.

The following is the way a juvenile dictionary defines words:

"Dust—Mud with the juice squeezed out."

"Fan—A thing to brush the warm off with."

Ice—Water that stayed out in the cold and went to sleep.

Monkey— Avery small boy with a tail."

"Pig—A hog's little boy."

"Salt—What makes your potatoes taste bad when you don't put any on."

"Snoring—Letting off sleep."

"Wakefulness — Eyes all the time coming unbuttoned."

The following is the programme for Temperance Meeting, to be held at the church in St. Joe, on Wednesday evening, February 27, 1884:

1 Song by Congregation.
2 Responsive Readings.
3 Prayer by J. A. Reed.
4 Song by Young Folk's Choir.
5 Adress by C. H. Brown
6 Declamation by Vick Conrad.
7 Quartette by Mattie White, Faith Hull, Frank Boyle, and Frank Hart.
8 Essay by Miss Ida Scholes.
9 Exercise by the children.
10 Select reading by Mrs. B. S. Sheffer.
11 Declamation by Cora White.
12 Miscellaneous Exercises.
13 Closing Song.

It is intended to make this meeting one of the most interesting ever yet held. All are invited. Reserved seats for the children.

Misses Sidie and Dora Leighty returned to their home in Michigan, last Wednesday.

Mahlon Baker steps around as fatherly as you please, all because he has another voter at his house.

John Davis had the misfortune to cut his foot severely a few days ago and not being satisfied with that, last week he tried to cut off the end of one of his fingers.

The other morning Uncle George Wilmot drove by the store with a saw log, and Billy Leighty was riding on a hand sled hitched behind. As they went by, we, boy fashion, ran out and jumped on to the sled with Billy. Then Uncle George thought he would have some fun and he began to whip up the old horses. Away we went, around the corner, and over the railroad, and as we turned the corner by Bleek's' house Uncle George in his anxiety to see us tumble off, leaned a little too far back and away he went, head over heals into the very identical snow bank he had expected to dump us off into. Moral: don't fool with boys.

John Henderson, Esq., tells a good story bout the Butler Review man, who was through the county a couple of weeks ago writing up the farmers. John invited him to call at his place, which invitation he promptly accepted. Now any one that has even met Mr. Henderson in his home, knows that he always makes people welcome. So it was with this newspaper man, John took great pains to show him over his farm, and the various things of interest connected therewith, until finally they came to the stock, and while in the barnyard, making an examination of the different kinds that Mr. Henderson prides himself upon, a sheep of the male persuasion, probably in a playful way, brought his head forcibly to bear against the rear end of the Review man, landing him on the opposite side of the fence, the worst case of printer's pi you could imagine. He picked himself up and went into the house, and stood up while he wrote a description of Mr. Henderson's farm and his stock, especially his fine quality of sheep.

OPEN HOUSE ON NEXT SUNDAY

With Sunday, J. R. Shilling and wife will have been married 55 years, and it has been planned to observe the event with open house for their friends all day. This is a record that but few people ever break, and while they are both well, we hope they will live to observe many more.

Married 50 Years

J. C. Hull and wife Honored by Complete Surprise at their home Tuesday.

Many Guests Extend Congratulations

Surprise Service at Methodist Church Completes the Days Celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hull celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary Tuesday of this week. They were married fifty years ago and have resided all of that time, excepting one year and seven months in St. Joe, and for the past forty-six years have lived where they do now.

The feature of the day was a surprise, and at the supper hour, which had been planned by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Leighty and Mrs. Margaret Hull, relatives and friends making thirty-four, came in on them, bringing food to make up a bounteous dinner. Among the many good things to eat were fried chicken, mashed potatoes, noodles, baked beans, vegetable salads, furit salads, cakes, coffee and rolls.

Following the supper the entire party attended the service at the M. P. Church, where an evangelistic meeting is in progress. There, as the group entered, headed by Mr. and Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Roy Koch was playing softly, that popular wedding march, "Here comes the bride."

The evangelist, Rev. Wm. L. Heitz must have been counseled because the first numbers on his program were "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me," sung by Mrs. Fred Quance of Auburn. Then he made a few brief remarks regarding the Golden Wedding Anniversary and extended his congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Hull.

The couple was asked to come forward. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Shilling, who have passed their Golden Wedding mark by nearly five years. Rev. Heitz then read the wedding ceremony as it had been read to these couples so many years ago. This little scene was very impressive and proved to be a renewal of the vow taken when the real marriage was performed.

Following this scene the couples were asked to face the audience and the entire congregation filed past and gave their congratulations. The couples were seated and the regular church service proceeded. The congregation sang appropriate religious songs, "When They Ring Those Golden Bells for You and Me," and Rev. Heitz sang, "The Church by the Side of the Road." The subject of the sermon was "God's Love."

After church the party returned to the Hull home where more good food was enjoyed and visiting of a reminiscent nature finished a most enjoyable day. An old fashioned belling had its place in the evening's fun, which preceded the passing of candy and cigars.

Some useful gifts and beautiful flowers were received by the celebrating couple.

Those who were present besides Mr. and Mrs. Hull were: Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Shilling, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Koch, Mr. and Mrs. Frank May and daughter, Violet, Mrs. Willis Cox and son, Dean, Mrs. DaLora Curie, Mrs. Lela Northrup and son, Curtice, Mrs. Margaret Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Leighty, Rev. Wm. L. Heitz, of Winona Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Long Mrs. Melvina Quance and son, Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Quance, Mr. and Mrs. Mrs. W. S. Quance, sons, Robert and Raymond and daughter, Mary Ann, and Donald Riddle, all of Auburn.

Mr. Hull tells a funny story about their getting married. It has always been characteristic for him to be particular and thorough about any action. Some few days before the day they had decided for the wedding he says he told the minister to expect callers at a stated time on a stated day at his home without telling him what for. On the set day, time and place, Mr. Hull, accompanied by the young lady he wished to make his wife, were on hand. He then unnecessarily told the preacher what they wanted. The minister asked if they had a license. Mr. Hull produced from his pocket a neatly sealed envelope into which he had placed the license and the minister's compensation. The funny point Mr. Hull says is that the preacher put the sealed envelope into his pocket, saying that he would take their word for the contents and performed the ceremony without looking at the license.

The bride had been Miss Loretta Quance, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Walter, of Spencerville and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Hull, living on the farm just south of St. Joe, now known as the Goodwin farm.

They were married at the M. P. Parsonage in Spencerville by Rev. Hussey on Feb. 27, 1884. The ceremony was witnessed by Mrs. Sarah M. Hussey and Mrs. D. S. Wyatt of Spencerville.

They lived in the home of Mr. Hull's parents until July, 1884 when they began housekeeping in a house which stood where the Buckingham home now is. In August the same year Mr. Hull began barbering with Joe Baker in St. Joe. After a month he went to Payne Ohio, where he engaged in barbering. Here he only remained until October, of the same year. He returned to St. Joe and run a shop in the front of the home for a while. They moved to Auburn Junction to remain one year and seven months and came back to St. Joe in March 1886. In July, 1886 he bought the building which is now the Betz Restaurant, where he run his shop for a number of years. Finally he sold that and bought the building he now occupies and has there since conducted his barber shop and insurance agency.

Mr. and Mrs. Hull built the home where they have lived since 1888. First building only the main part of the house and added more to it several years later.

There were two children born to the couple, a daughter, Mrs. Fred B. Leighty and a son, Merritt, who met a tragic death a year and a half ago.

According to information at hand Mr. and Mrs. Hull and Mr. and Mrs. Shilling, next door neighbors, are the only two couples in the community, who have passed the 50 years of married life.

Mr. and Mrs. Hull have for thirty-five years been active members in the work of the local M. P. Church and Sunday School. They have both shared the work of the local lodges and clubs and public life of the community.

The News wishes to join their friends in hearty congratulations and wish for many more years of happy married life.

Between the hours of one and three, the members of the Ladies' Literary Club had planned to make short calls at the home and extend congratultions, wholly as a surprise feature of the day and it worked perfectly, finding Mrs. Hull very busy about the home. Guests came at the appointed time and a jolly time was had together. Light refreshments were served.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Sectional Tourney This Week

High Schools of Whitley and DeKalb Counties will meet in the first round of the I. H. S. A. A. tournament on Friday and Saturday of this week. The local boys have drawn Spencerville for the opening game of Garrett Sectional Tourney. This game is scheduled for nine o'clock on Friday morning. The winner of this game is paired to oppose the Columbia City H. S. team in the eighth game of the tourney at 7:30 on Friday evening. Season tickets for the tourney are now on sale. These tickets cost $1.50. Single admissinos are 35 cents.

Intelligence Test Given

Following out a recommendation made by the local principal in the January meeting of DeKalb County High School teachers section of the county institute intelligence tests are being given t eighth grade pupils this year in the county schools. It is felt that such tests will enable high school teachers to better advise girls and boys what courses to choose in high school. Also an educational guidance test prepared by the same party is being used in the township high schools.

Immunization Reports Filed

Those who have had complete immunization for diphtheria and have filed reports signed by the physician who administered the toxoid are: Leola Sechler, Virginia Campbell, Calvin Hull, Gloria Zonker, Frank Curie, Myra Keesler, Ruth Keesler, Harold Inlow, Iris Jackson, Richard Davis, Lewis Walter, Maxine Woodcox, Minta Davis, Christine Zonker, Bernadine Wade, Patricia Maxwell, Paul Milliman, Russell Walter, Marilyn Zonker, Loren Inlow, Roscoe Moore, Arthur Davis, Billy Monroe, James Monroe, Junior Zonker, DeVere Woodcox, Leonard Curie, and Charles Thornton. Several others have had the first injection and are waiting for the necessary time period to elapse before the second injection is given.

Perfect Teeth Reports

In the dental survey conducted last week by Dr. Ralph Fox, of Auburn and assisted by the two CWA nurses the following pupils in the lower six grades were found to have all teeth in perfect condition: April Bowser, Donald Baughman, Ina Lee Wade, Lillian Medley, Harriett Laux, Billy Monroe, Jack Goodwin, James Hamilton, Ruth Keesler, Christine Zonker, Lewis Walter, and Melvin Zimmerman. In addition there were eight others with perfect teeth from the third and fourth grades whose names we did not have at the time this article was written.

Seventh Grade Assembly Program

Under the supervision of the class sponsor of the Seventh Grade presented a short historical play for their semester assembly program. Parts in the play were taken by Carma Jean Wilcox, Gwenevere Jenkins, Garnet Cook, Annabel Stewart, Hilma Bleeks, James Draggoo, James Maxwell, Richard Freeburn, Herman Collins. Mrs. Simanton is the class sponsor. Class and sponsor are to be congratulated upon the success of their program. This week the Junior Class is to provide the assembly program.

The John Medley family removed to a farm in Allen County on Friday of last week. Martha Medley plans to complete the school year here but the other children will enter the Allen County schools.

The second grade pupils were much interested when they read the story "The Birds of Killingworth." A discussion of the value, care and protection of our birds resulted.

Miss Moor's room reports three pupils on the spelling honor roll for last week: Helen Goodwin, Grant Strong, and Burl Rude.

Illness has reduced the number of pupils with perfect attendance records for the year greatly during the past month. There are now nine with perfect attendance records in grades three and four. In grades seven to twelve there are yet thirty with perfect attendance records.

CWA Workers

CWA work on school buildings and grounds was started on last Friday. Whitewashing of basement walls, painting of certain rooms, the construction of cabinets are some of the first tasks outlined.

THE METHODIST CHURCH, ST. JOE

The special revival services at the Methodist Church continue each night this week at seven o'clock. On Thursday night the Rev. F. W. Battenberg of The Faith Tabernacle, Fort Wayne, will deliver the message. Special music by Harold and Violet Battenberg, the son and daughter of the evangelist. We are expecting some young people here from The Faith Tabernacle. The song service will be in charge of the Rev. Wm. L. Heitz.

Sunday School at 9:30 in charge of Frank May, superintendent. Classes for all. Preaching at 10:30. Communion service following. We trust every member will be present in this communion service as it is commanded of our Lord.

So far as we know now these special meetings will close next Sunday night. We therefore ask that you lay aside other things as for as possible and assist in these services by your presence and prayers. Special music each night. Everybody invited, both young and old. Come and help us sing, hear the message and get right with God.

Wm. L. Heitz, Evangelist.

REPRODUCTION OF OLD PAPER FOR BUILDING OF LUTHERAN CHURCH IN ST. JOE

As we stated some weeks ago, that a number of old papers were found in the belongings of J. D. Leighty, by his son, J. R. Leighty, and that we would reproduce them in due season. Today we reproduce the original subscription paper circulated for the erection of the Lutheran Church in St. Joe. The caption of this paper and names subscribing to it, are as follows:

The executive committee of the twelfth district of the Indiana Congress of Parents and Teachers met Friday afternoon at the Young Women's Christian Association Building to plan the twelfth district convention, which will be held this year on April 11 in Fort Wayne at the Wayne St. Methodist Episcopal Church.

The convention will open with the registration of delegates at 1:30 o'clock, continuing throughout the afternoon and evening. A banquet will be held at 6 o'clock in the church dining room.

Mrs. M. E. Regedanz, twelfth district chairman, announces the various committees in charge of the affair. They are: Registration, Mrs. Charles Goeriz, of Fort Wayne; Mrs. L. R. Miner, of Auburn; Mrs. E. E. Harper, of New Haven; reservation, the Mesdames C. C. Bogard and Albert Mason, both of Fort Wayne; decorating, Mrs. Ray Geyer, of Fort Wayne; resolutions, the Mesdames H. L. McKenne, Richard Robinson, and Walter Knauer, of Fort Wayne; hospitality, the Mesdames G. W. Bowen and Lawrence Goble, of Fort Wayne, and publicity, Mrs. Carl Hettmansperger, of Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Everett Mavis, of Auburn.

WEED ERADICATION MEETING SOON

Now is the time to lay plans for the eradication of such dangerous weeds as Canada thistle and quack grass in DeKalb County. Farmers that have and plan to reduce their crop acreage will find this an excellent opportunity to lay a plan suitable for the eradication of weeds, particularly perennial weeds that are serious. The acres taken out of production can be summer fallowed and cleaned up of Canada thistle and quack grass. Arrangement can be made to clean up certain fields or parts of fields each year. They can be eradicated by cultivation or by spraying. It is essential, however ,that every farmer knows these plants, how they live and when and how to apply control measures in order to get results.

County Agent T. E. Myers has scheduled a weed meeting on March 6 to be held at the Court House in Auburn for the purpose of discussing weeds and their control. O. C. Lee, Purdue Weed Specialist will lead the discussion and outline methods of weed control. He will also show new plants of the county and give pointers on how to prevent their spread. The meeting will be called at 2 P. M.

BROODERS

Buckeye Coal-Burning Brooder. Made in four sizes—for 350, 500, 1,000 or 1,200 chicks.

One of the most costly things you can do is to trust the lives of your baby chicks with an unreliable brooder. And today there's no need to gamble. Today, you can have the genuine, reliable, time-tested and proven Buckeye Coal-Burning Brooder at the lowest prices ever offered.

Buckeye has a bigger stove, a bigger fuel capacity, a bigger grate. It can be depended upon to provide a tremendous amount of heat—automatically regulated. It doesn't get too hot nor too low. And Buckeye holds the fire all night.

Come to our store and examine the Buckeye.

1. Better Springer Prices.
2. Earlier Eggs are Better Prices.
3. Less mortality because of better temperature control.
4. Better care, more time to "FUSS" with them.

Each fall a lot of folks regret the fact of having started their CHIX too late and miss those late fall and early winter eggs.

You have more time NOW to care for Chix than you will when the Spring Work Begins. We will start your Chix for two weeks at an additional cost of 4 Cents Per.

Think of receiving 500 CHIX 2 weeks old, less those 2 weeks of worry in getting them started right.

The first moving picture show was presented to the high school Monday morning, Feb. 5. It was divided into two parts, each discussing the history of sulphur. (We are looking forward to the next one.)

Jess Dau won the Free Throw Tourney, which ended Monday, Feb. 5.

Congratulations, Jess!

The other boys still remaining in the tournament Monday were, Junior Bohen, Jess Gerig, Hubert Hudson, Irvin Menchy, Richard Felger, and William Bender.

The total number of pupils taking the treatment for diphtheria at the Leo School Thursday morning was three hundred and two.

The Boys' Quartet entertained the high school Friday morning, Feb. 16.

Monday morning, Feb. 12, a moving picture, "The Life of a Storage Battery" was presented to the school.

The students that were on the "All A Club" for the month of January were:

Seniors—Lorraine Benter, Ila Coen, Ann Heath, Peggy Parsons, Regena Warner and Harlyn Schott.

Sophomores — Cleo Roth and Esther Pfister.

Freshmen — Janet Moss, Raymond Brooks and Woodrow Hursh.

The other pupils on the Honor Roll were:

Seniors—Florence Griswold and Garnet Deventer.

Sophomores — Virginia Beard, Hilda Chester, Phyllis Coen, Eloise Klopfenstein, Freida Maroff, Georgianna Maxfield and Loraine Neuhouser.

Freshmen—Esther Myers, Elsie Shannon, Adah Schott, Vera Stuckey and Irvin Menshy.

Senior News

The Seniors won the contest which was held last week. They sold the largest per cent of tickets to the Central game. The per cent was figured according to the enrollment of the classes. The Freshmen held next place.

Absences this week were: Robert Snyder, Mary Jane Chapman, Lorene Stuckey, Ila Coen and Peggy Parsons.

Mary Jane Chapman and Peggy Parsons aided the doctor and nurses, who were busy with the diphtheria treatment.

Junior News

The Junior Class has been studying the Idylls of Tennyson. The average grades of a test over this study was eighty-eight per cent.

Stop! Look! Listen! The Juniors of Leo High School are going to begin practicing for their play next week.

Sophomore News

The Sophomores have entered the LaSalle as their automobile in the ticket selling contest.

The Sophomore girls played their first game of basket ball on Thursday, Feb. 15. The game was played with the Freshmen girls. The Sophomores were on the big end of the score 31 to 12.

Freshman News

We have welcomed several visitors during the past week, namely Evelyn Lederman, Velma Leichty, and Mary Leichty.

We are proud of Ervin Menshy's record in the free throw tournament. He had the highest records in the preliminary, but he was very unfortunate and was defeated in the finals by a Senior boy. We are wishing him much success in the future years.

Room One

The Valentine House was filled to the roof with valentines. It kept seven carriers busy for nearly a half hour delivering the valentines to their respective owners.

Little heart shaped cookies decorated with colored valentine candy were enjoyed as refreshments.

Nearly thirty children were immunized against diphtheria last Thursday morning. The children proved better patients than many other older children.

Upon asking the children how their arms were the following morning, Max Bender winked and smiled and said, "Heh! I got out of chores last nite."

Room Two

The children enjoyed building a miniature section of city in the sand table. The buildings are an apartment, dress shop, post office, and service station. The many valentines mailed in the post office were delivered on Valentine Day. Every child received cookie valentines besides paper ones.

Twenty-two children were immunized against diphtheria Thursday. We can boast of the fact that everyone came through smiling; no tears shed.

Room Three

Jay Conrad has been absent all week, he has the flu. We hope he will be back with us Monday.

We had brave little boys and girls that were immunized.

We have enjoyed the stories of Lincoln and Washington and their booklet they are making for February.

Room Four

Attendance for this month has been poor, due to illness.

Richard Schwartz has been absent for the past week due to a bad case of flu.

A valentine party was enjoyed by all with pop corn and apples for refreshments.

Thirty pupils were immunized from our room. Some proved good patients while five about "passed out." Some decided someone else could have their second shot for nothing.

Grade Five

The fifth grade will have their elimination in spelling Friday afternoon. Our winner spelled over WGL Wednesday evening.

A number from our room have been absent due to sickness. Mildren Rediger and Eva Joy Beller were absent this week. This being their first for this term.

Room Six

All but ten of the boys and girls received the diphtheria serum Thursday.

Absences due to colds are still very numerous.

A Valentine Party and exchange was enjoyed Wednesday afternoon.

Basket Ball Schedule

Feb. 23, Harlan, There.

Feb. 24, LaOtto, Here.

The return game with Concordia will be arranged later.

Room Seven

Joseph Higgins has been absent from classes the past week.

We had an exchange of valentines Wednesday afternoon.

Mary Eash is absent with a cold.

Several Boy Scouts in our room went to the Lincoln program at the Lincoln Life Building Monday afternoon.

Room Eight

We are glad to see many pupils back after absences caused by "flu." Ellis Roth, Elmer Nofzinger, Luella Romine, and Bessie Arnold were among those who were absent several days.

The Common Cold

"A hot-house existence is the surest path to the common cold." This statement is contained in an appeal against overheating of homes, offices and public buildings made by the Bureau of Publicity of the Indiana State Medical Association in a bulletin issued on "The Common Cold."

One of the principals of prevention of a cold aims at doing away with coddling and overprotecting the body against the common cold and "although many warnings have been issued against the common cold and although many cold remedies have been broadcast both from the reliable and unreliable sources concerning this most frequent cause of illness no great decline in the number of colds will occur until one of the fundamental causes, the overheating of so many American homes and buildings at this time of the year, is eliminated."

The bulletin quotes the following concerning the dangers of an over-heated house from a statement recently issued by the United State Public Health Service:

"For the average man, woman and child probably no better insurance against colds exists than a sedulous avoidance of over heated dwellings or workrooms in winter. The too sudden exposure of the overly warm body to a cooler atmosphere is undoubtedly one of the most common excitants of colds in winter. The demands of the colder temperature without, can best be met with overcoats of a weight to fit the occasion. Within doors and out the chances of perspiring upon ordinary activity should be out to a minimum.

"Yet more important than anything else is habituating ourselves to temperatures of not over 70 degrees when indoors. It is about this level of the thermometer that the healthy body functions best and it can readily adjust itself to transitions to cooler atmospheres.

An unusual susceptibility to colds is frequently due to defects or abnormalities of the upper air passages and disappears when these defects are removed or corrected. The person who has more than his share of colds should always undergo a special examination by a reputable physician of the nose and throat with this possibility in mind, and have all possible sources of trouble eradicated.

"It is said that once, upon being asker for a prescription for a common cold, the great physician Osler reached for a blank and wrote as follows: 'I give you four days.' No better general prescription for the abatement of the average cold has been discovered than this advice which means careful attention to a cold for a few days. This is true despite the myriads of short cuts and nostrums to the contrary."

Neighbor—"Where's your brother, Freddie?"

Freddie—"Aw, he's in the house playing a duet. I finished my part first."

FISH AND GAME MEETING

Town Hall, Thursday evening at 7 p. m. Would like to have all members and also prospective members present.

Ed Storer, Pres.

WITH OUR CLUB LADIES

HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Home Bureau met at the home of Anna Rickett. Meeting called to order by the president, Mary Krise. Opening songs led by Gertrude Borthwick Secretary report read and approved. In response to roll call some quotation from Washington or Lincoln was given. The president gave a report of the meeting of township presidents. A scrap book was suggested to the report of each meeting and anything of interest to each club. The girls 4H Club was disclussed. Two short plays were read by Emily Hollabaugh. "The Flag Goes By" was read by Marie Draggoo and "My Way" by Frank Nelson was read by Harriett Draggoo. Several funny jokes were told. The committee, Anna Rickett, Marie Draggoo, Ida Herrick, Ross Watt and Beulah Gibford served bread and graham cracker sandwiches, jello with whipped cream and nuts and coffee.—Press Reporter.

CULTURE CLUB CELEBRATES 25th ANNIVERSARY

The Culture Club celebrated its twenty-fifth birthday on last Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Nora Blue. Because of the fact that the birthday of the club came near the yearly guest night, commonly known as gentlemen's night, the president of the club thought that she would spring a little surprise on the club by having a birthday party in connection with the gentlemen's night annual event. Mrs. Pluma Hamilton, who is the present acting president, gave the welcome address. In the resume of her address, she pointed out "that the quarter century of literary achievements and social beneficence which the club had bestowed upon its membership and the town of St. Joe, had earned for the organization a distinction well worthy of its name. The Culture Club is the second oldest literary organization in town, having been organized in the winter of 1908. During these twenty-five years, a large field of research has been covered by the reading and studying of books and magazines, giving opportunity for wholesome recreation and intellectual development. The most striking thing about all literary societies, is, that the real benefits of their educational advantages are not always plainly visible to the public eye. In other words, the literary good has become a part of the membership and is not easily noticeable, because a picture of what we would have been without literary training is not possible. Hence what we are is easier seen than what we might have been. But the benefits of public speaking and home reading, are traceable in the membership of all literary organizations."

The response was given by H. G. Hursh, who spoke on the value of education and the inconvenience of ignorance. Earl and DuWayne Kinsey appeared on the program for a saxophone and piano duet. The program committee introduced several new features of entertainment, indoor golf, final letter, spelling bee, etc.

At a late hour, the men committee served a well rounded two course supper, in which the men and women chose their partners by shaking hands blindfolded. The guests thought that the committee was trying to symbolize or react the blindness of matrimonial selections of their life's partners. Favors, composed of exploding caps, Washington military paper hats, fortune telling, and souvenir's, were all done up in a neat roll, were given in honor of Washington and Lincoln.

The following are the original chartered members of the club twenty-five years ago:

Deecased

Emily Widney, Mary Bowman, Mary Buchanan, Cora Herrick, Dora L. Krabill, Hazel Krise, Kate A. Leighty, Elizabeth Leighty, Maggie Thomas, Rose Widney.

Living

Daisy Delong, Edna Provines, Laura Baker, Alice Copp, Flossie Widney, Deama Curie, Pluma Hamilton, Etta Hull, Harriet Johnson, Blanch Leighty, Ethel Cheek, Lora Leighty, Eva Chandler, Belle Ridgeway, Eva S. Sheffer, Jennie White, Maude Woodcox.

Mrs. Pluma Hamilton, Mrs. Alice Copp, and Mrs. Eva S. Sheffer and Mrs. Blanch Leighty were four chartered members who were in attendance at this meting. As usual, a good time was had by all.

—A Guest.

BUTLER TO HAVE AIRPORT BUILT

Through the efforts of Dr. Earl E. Frisbie, D. A. Hunsicker and Harold Bracy, the Butler airport is now an assured fact. K. E. Hairgais, aeronautic ground engineer of Indianapolis, met with the above committee and gave his approval of the Bert Kline field, which has been leased for a period of five years, by the city council and the Young Men's Business Association. The plat of ground includes 35 acres and "L" shaped—being 2,500 feet east and west, by 400 feet wide and 2,500 feet north and south. It is a $110,000 project under the PWA and should start within a period of two weeks.

PLAY WENT OVER GOOD

A three-act comedy "Can You Beat It" was presented at the gym Saturday evening. This was sponsored by the Tri Mu Sunday School class and their teacher, Mrs. Hollis Dilley and was directed by Miss Eloise Bowman. Members of the cast included Geraldine Thornton, John Dilley, Ethelmae Freeburn, Earl Kinsey, Violet Pflaumer, Joe Woodcox and Mary Curie.

The play cleverly portrayed those "in society' 'and those who wanted "in;" hence some strange and laughable situations arose. The performers were appropriately costumed according to the wealth and aristocracy they represented. Thus the formal evening gowns and the tuxedo suits had a definite place in the moonlight scene. Seldom if ever has the stage at the gym been transformed into such a bower of beauty. The audience forgot the depression and with the players enjoyed the spacious and beautiful garden by the water's edge. These young people and their assistants are to be commended for the wholesome entertainment afforded their patrons. The specialties between acts consisted of guitar and banjo music by the Pulver brothers of Auburn. They were well received.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE FOR MRS. KEES

Sunday being the 75th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Sam Kees, all the children and grandchildren within driving distance came with well filled baskets, as a surprise, and enjoyed the day together.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Hart Sr. and two daughtes, Kathryn and Marie, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hart and four children, Jimmy, Patsy, Naomi and Russel, Mr. and Mrs. John Hart Jr. and baby, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Davenport, Mr. and Mrs. Dane Walden, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Beard and children, Beverly and Dennis, all of Fort Wayne, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Myers and Jean Myers of Hicksville, and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kees and children, and the host and hostess. All enjoyed the visit together very much.

CARL CARPENTER SAW DELPHOS WRECK

Carl Carpenter was at Delphos, Ohio, Monday forenoon and viewed the wreck on the Pennsylvania railroad in which several were killed, when the flyer crashed into a large freight truck from Chicago, loaded with dressed beef, poultry and a portion of the load was a shipment of magazines. The estimated damage to the railroad was placed at $100,000 Monday, by officials on the scene of the accident, in addition to the cost of lives lost. The large engine was completely ruined as it plowed through the road bed for a distance of 50 feet and at a depth of 4 or 5 feet before it stopped. The steel coaches were of course derailed but held their upright position, and passengers who occupied berths, were not aroused from their slumbers.

The truck was of the dual wheel type make, an 8-wheel affair under each end of the trailer, which gives one an idea of the extreme heavy load capable of being hauled.

Carl made the trip to Paulding and the men he called upon were ready to go to the accident, and he went along.

SEVENTY FIVE YEARS OLD

The Waterloo Press has just celebrated its 75th anniversary, and for 88 years has been in charge of H. C. Willis. The Press has always stood for the best in its field and in DeKalb county, and is known over the state as an influential republican organ. May it continue to serve the cause as sponsored by the Senior Frank Willis for so many years. Congratulations.

VOL. XLIX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MARCH 8, 1934 NUMBER 10

50 Years Ago

Taken from the files of the St. Joe News, 50 years ago—
M. E. Olds, Editor

Days are getting longer.

Frank Hart dug a well for Wm. Staman last week.

David Grill is making a fine office desk for Conrad.

Fremont Nelson of Hicksville was in town last week.

Hard Tack social at Leighty's Hall on next Tuesday evening.

Quite a number of our citizens had business at Auburn last week.

Willie Erick of Middleberry, has been in town this week the guest of Merritt Barney.

There was a party at Mr. Conrad's last Thursday evening, in honor of Miss Bitha Baughman.

Henry Maxwell was made happy last week over the event of a girl baby, which came to his house to stay.

Wes Hart is now sole proprietor of the St. Joe Brick Works, having recently purchased Mr. Curie's interest.

Mary Maxwell, sister of Mrs. O. H. Widney, died last Saturday evening, and was buried in the Newville cemetery on Monday.

Rev. M. L. Blaney, of Kendallville, will preach at the church next Monday evening, in the interests of the General Christian Missionary Convention.

Dr. Bowman has a skeleton hanging up in his office, and the other day Art Woodcox was in looking at it, and then went out on the street and calling to some boys he said: "Say, you fellers come down here, they have got a man in here that a'int got any meat on him."

Last week Thursday was the birthday anniversary of Miss Violet Barney, and also of Miss Bessie Tustison, both occurring on the same day. They, with a few of their intimate friends were entertained by Mrs. Patterson. We hope that Violet and Bessie may live to enjoy many happy returns of the day.

The temperance meeting on Wednesday evening was one of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings ever yet held. John W. Baxter of Auburn was present and delivered an interesting address, showing some statistics in regard to the liquor traffic in this country, and closing his remarks with an earnest appeal to the people to be temperance men every day in the year. Mr. Green also of Auburn, being present made a few appropriate and well chosen remarks. Nina Filley in her usual good manner, spoke an excellent declamation. The singing was good and the exercises by the children were of a very enjoyable and pleasing character.

John Saltsgaver is able to be out again.

Billy Curie's moustache is beginning to sprout.

Wm. DeMaranville will make cheese this season.

Charlie Meek is confined to his room with sickness.

Ben Leighty will work for Clide Woodcox this summer.

Wm. Leighty sold a new wagon last week to Lewis Lake.

Mrs. Henry Jenkins is slowly recovering from her late illness.

Large quantities of wheat have been marketed in St. Joe this week.

Rich Culbertson will sell machinery for Wm. Shutt this season.

T. S. Merica, of Garrett, is in town visiting his brother, C. O.

O. H. Widney will enlarge and remodel his farm house this summer.

Mrs. George Wilmot has been quite sick, but is some better today.

The debate at Jenkins' school house on Friday evening was quite interesting.

The school house at Widney's corners has been declared unsafe, and the school dismissed.

Over one hundred persons from this place attended Keator's lecture at Spencerville last week.

Mr. Davis, the new agent at this place, has moved his family into the upper rooms at the Case home.

Conrad made some of the biggest milk pails last week we have ever seen. They were probably intended for a cow shed and milk pail combined.

Wallace Abel was coming over to St. Joe one of those icy days last week, carrying a basket of eggs. Well, what of it? Why nothing, only he fell down and broke the eggs.

Several of the young men of our town were subpoenaed to appear before the Grand Jury last week. The boys were considerable frightened when the Sheriff came for them, and we hope that this will learn them, as well as many others a lesson that they will profit by.

Survive Florida Fishing Trip of 12 Days

The St. Joe Valley transportation bus line made a successful journey to Florida, returning last Friday morning with its five passengers, Roy Keller, Frank Stutz, Orla Baker, J. H. Messenger and Mr. Shultz, besides its cargo of fruits, vegetables and fish. The trip proved to be a most pleasant one with Mr. Messenger as conductor.

The bus was arranged for sleeping and observation windows in the rear and a small stove to check the chills of the north.

They started at 8 o'clock on Monday, Feb. 19, and the first night was spent at Cumberland, Ky., arriving at 10:30, and the boys set out to find the Lost River at once and their conductor had quite a time to get them to bed but finally succeeded by midnight. By four in the morning they were ready to start on their second day's, journey, after a breakfast of ham, eggs, and toast at the hotel. Orla Baker was somewhat peeved at Keller's snoring as they were tired and wanted to rest.

The second night was spent at Atlanta, Georgia. By four the next day they arrived at St. Petersburg and being tired and hungry, Roy Keller ate a 3-pound steak; Messenger ordered chicken and got two pieces of fat and a neck; Orla Baker, being on a fishing trip, ordered mackerel. He complained to the blonde waitress about the bones, and she became angered until Mesenger had to quiet the two; Stutz of Auburn said he couldn't eat, but when he saw Messenger's helping of chicken, he too commenced to complain to the waitress. Thinking it not safe for the gang to stay there over night, they decided to drive all night, reaching the Everglades by morning.

They stopped to refuel for the long drive through this section. Here Baker, Shultz and Keller were determined they wanted rattlesnakes for pets, but the conductor ruled against them and they started on arriving at Miami at 6 o'clock.

Baker proceeded to go paddling at once in the ocean, and Messenger assisted him, because he was trusted to his care, while the other members of the party gathered shells about the beach.

Here they met a native from Indiana, so he said, wearing a bathing suit, who made a business of gathering shells. He said he would give the boys a fish breakfast for 25c so they all decided to try it. Four sat down before their conductor arrived, and the fish were so strong they couldn't eat, Shultz even found eggs in his fish and of course passed it up, remarking that he wished he had brought his own cook.

The party went to the barber shop to get cleaned up and were taken for hold up men. They went back to the beach where their truck was parked and Baker and Keller seeing some lady bathers asked for permission to get suits for bathing, but Messenger persuaded them that they should go on, after some argument, started on and landed at Palm Beach in the afternoon.

After lunch they went swimming. Keller said he could float better than he could swim, and was the first one in the water, looking up he saw a young lady coming toward him, being frightened, he took in a quantity of the salt water and had quite a time getting out to the bank, where he was compelled to bask in the sun on the sand to recuperate. Messenger had quite a time getting the rest out. They had arranged to be in Orlando by Saturday evening so they were compelled to start.

By 4:30 they arrived. They all cleaned up and went to a restaurant for supper. The thoughts of the fish breakfast were still in their minds. Messenger took order five—chicken. All out. Order two—three vegetables and beef, and all wanted pie. Messenger and Keller wanted lemon; Baker, apple; Stutz and Shultz, peach. Only one piece of lemon in the house, and that went to Keller Messengen then ordered sweet potatoes, and they were out, so he decided on a bowl of soup, and this brot an uproar of laughter. In order to get on the good side of the waitress, Messenger gave her a liberal tip—a smile.

After supper the boys went to a movie, Carolina being shown, and all enjoyed the comedy. Then they returned to their traveling hotel, sleeping until 3, Sunday morning. Starting for Coco Bay, where they expected to fish, 70 miles from Orlando, they arrived at six o'clock Sunday morning.

Captain Messenger advised the boys not to eat, being an old sailor himself, having crossed the sea twice. They were delayed an hour however in starting, because the boys took to gathering fancy shells.

They landed on board with plenty of provisions for the day, consisting of choice foods, 3 kinds of meat, 3 kinds of bread, pork and beans, candy and milk, and not one thing was used. A strong wind came up. Orla Baker wanted to know about the bait, so the crew put out their nets and drew in 20 bushels of the finest shrimp bait they had ever caught. Baker became excited over this catch and got right down in the bottom of the boat and began to sort out what he wanted. Roy Keller sat on the cabin fishing over the side and was busy pulling in 3 pound "weat fish," the boat tossing about, but he did not care.

Stutz, 75, the oldest one of the party was losing all he had eaten on the trip. Messenger began to sympathize with him and so he was reaching for the flag staff, when suddenly he fell to the floor, and the crew was without a captain, 65 miles at sea and Baker and Keller proved themselves to be the best fishermen from St. Joe and able to withstand the roughness of the sea.

When Messenger came to himself he persuaded them to pull for shore, landing at 5 o'clock. After eating supper all were feeling fine again.

They started for Orlanda at 6 and arrived at 10 and began to prepare for return home by way of Kissamee. Baker insisted on taking pictures of a buffalo bull, so three cameras were focused on him and he started to run. The boys chased him for an hour and finally all got a shot at him. A wild boar came into a culvert where Baker was hiding from the bull, and they both became frightened.

Baker and Keller bought a crocidile and placed it in Messenger's bed that night, and Stutz was delegated as nurse for the pet, getting up during the night and warming it over the small stove in the bus.

Out at 3 o'clock Monday morning for Shelby, where they took on 10 cases of celery, but the oranges were not ready for them so had to wait until Monday evening.

Messenger and Keller went to a barber shop. As soon as Keller got into the chair he went to sleep and began to snore, and the barber had to quit work on him. Messenger took another chair and was taken care of, and when Keller came out of it he was only partly shaved. Messenger attempted to go to the bus alone and got lost, and then had to go back to the orange sheds. By midnight the boys had their supper and then wanted to get a bed at the hotel. The lady keeper became frightened at the 5 big men, thinking them to be hold-up guys, but she finally came to the door and said she had two beds. Of course the conductor had to surrender all rights to his crowd, but was finally given a lady's room. For fear of intruders he barricaded the door with a chair and lay there in fear for hours. Soon a light snapped on in an adjoining room and Mr. Messenger was sure something was about to happen to him. He arose at 3, and got the boys all out.

CELEBRATE 55th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY SUNDAY

On Sunday, March 4th with the aid of many interested friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Shilling celebrated their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary. Dinner guests were Mrs. Lela Northrup and son, Curtice, Cecil Shilling and son, DeWayne and Merritt Sechler. During the afternoon and evening about forty callers greeted the "bride and groom."

Mrs. Northrup served tea and wafers and a friendly, pleasant day was spent. Cordial messages were received by mail from Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Patterson and from the Rev. G. D. and Miss Olive Stoll of Evans City, Pa. Those from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Otis Fitch and three children, of Garrett. Mrs. Fitch is a niece of Mr. Shilling.

It was recalled that five years ago, "on their golden wedding day" the Shillings had for their guests the Rev. Stoll and M. C. Sechler.

Mr. and Mrs. Shilling are in good health and participate in the activities of the community and the church with much interest, rarely missing Sunday School or church. In fact, Mr. Shilling has missed Sunday School but once in three years.

They appreciated the congratulations extended to them by so many of their friends and will welcome them again on each succeeding anniversary.

FILE MORTGAGE EXEMPTIONS NOW; $1000 CREDIT

The annual period of the filing of mortgage exemptions began Thursday and will continue until Monday, May 7. Soldiers' exemptions may be filed only during March and April.

The law provides that an owner of real estate having a mortgage upon his property may by filing a certified statement with the county auditor obtain a credit not to exceed one-half the assessed valuation, or more than $1,000, if the indebtedness existed prior to March 1 of the present year.

Hundreds of DeKalb county people take advantage of this law and in most cases the exemption is the maximum allowed. The description of the property, the name of the holder of the mortgage and its amount must be set out in the maximum allowed. The description of the property, the name of the holder of the mortgage and its amount must be set out in the blank and the instrument must be sworn to before a notary public.

The law also provides that any soldier or sailor who served three months or more in the army or navy during the Mexican or Civil War, and who shall have reached the age of seventy years or more, may have $1,000 deducted from his taxable property where the assessed value of his taxables does not exceed $5,000 as shown by the tax duplicates for that year, and the balance constitutes the basis of taxation.

The widow of any soldier or sailor who shall have reached the age of sixty years or more is entitled to a like exemption. Soldiers and sailors of other wars have the same rights, but must have like qualifications as to age, etc.

C. W. A. WORK TO START FRIDAY

The town project No. 3751 will get under way Friday in St. Joe. The town board, trustee O. K. Shull and F. B. Leighty met with the county headquarters and made satisfactory arrangements for the work.

Seven men will be employed as hand laborers, one team and one truck to start with, namely George Kees and Donald Hart.

A supplemental project was made to include some work about the school grounds, due to a number of projects being lopped off the list in DeKalb county recently.

Harry Kees agreed with the headquarters to superintend the project, together with the other members of the board.

The original project did not include any expenditure of funds for team or truck hire, but now it has become possible for this expense to be paid out of the money allotted by the government.

The board will do everything in their power to get as much work done as possible for this money and will exercise their best judgment in how this work should be done.

YOUNG COUPLE MARRIED AT INDIANAPOLIS

Announcement has just been made of the marriage of Miss Virgilia Moran, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Moran, of the new Garrett hotel, and DuWayne Kinsey, son of Mrs. Mayola Kinsey, of St. Joe. The ceremony was performed Friday evening, Feb. 23, in the rectory of the Joan of Arc Catholic Church at Indianapolis with the Rev. Matthew Herold officiating. The couple were unattended.

After the ceremony they proceeded to Bloomington, Ind., and spent the week-end attending the annual Phi Kappa Psi fraternity dance on Saturday night. The young couple are at the present time at the home of the groom's mother at St. Joe, where he is in the undertaking and furniture business. He spent the past two years at Indiana University at Bloomington.

Mrs. Kinsey was graduated from St. Mary's Academy in Los Angeles in June, 1933.

DuWayne is also a graduate of the St. Joe High School and is a very highly respected young man in our community. The young couple have the best wishes of all who know them.

FARM BARN WAS COMPLETELY BURNED

Friday night, about 11 o'clock, fire was discovered in the barn of J. H. Messenger, 2 miles west of town, by Rev. Fabianske, who was passing. He called the fire department from the Carl Perkins home and by this time the folks had discovered the fire and were out, getting the horses and cows from the basement of the barn.

Just how the barn caught fire is unknown. The upper floor was all on fire when discovered. The basement was wired, but was not on fire when the stock was driven out.

The loss was partly covered by insurance.

The hog house, granary and poultry house, which were close up, were saved, due to the efficient services of the local fire department, and the Messengers feel very grateful for the prompt response.

The family was awakened by Mrs. Messenger, who saw the reflection in her sleeping room.

Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee, Mrs. Wm. Randall, Mrs. Roy Koch and Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Gee and son, Eugene were Sunday afternoon callers in the Flora Gee home.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Roger and Forest Stemen withdrew from the local school on last Friday afternoon. The Stemen family are removing to a farm near Rome City. The Stemen boys will enter the Rome City High School this week.

Mr. Woodcox, music teacher, is preparing a group of pupils to represent the local school in a county musical program to be given in Garrett the latter part of this month.

Since the high school basketball season has closed the Junior Class will start rehearsals for their class play which carries the title "Under Southern Skies." The tentative date set for this play is Saturday evening, March 24th.

A. A. Dinner Big Success

Members of the Athletic Association are much pleased with the co-operation given by the local public in the patronage of the special dinner given on Wednesday of last week. Gross receipts were $17.95. Net receipts were $16.08. The latter balance has been applied on the account for the new corduroy sweat jackets.

Notables Visit Local High School

Thursday morning at the regular convocation hour, the Junior class sponsored a program in which they presented radio artists, opera stars, and great masters of musical composition, song and dramatics. The radio artists, "Salt and Peanuts," sent their understudies Sylvia Washler and Rose Ayers; Zez Confrey and Little Jack Little were impersonated in a piano duet ("The Glow-Worm") by Eileen Gaff and Helen Washler. Geraldine Thornton appeared in a vocal solo as Madame Schumann-Heink, for years a famous star of opera. Through the strains of the violin Jean Goodwin and Roger Stemen reminded us of those two famous masters of violin, Fritz Kreisler and Jascha Hiefetz; Norma Rickerd read for us as one inspired by Katherine Hepburn. Two of the Boswell sisters could come. Upon arriving they were really Louise Sechler and Helen Tustison; Earl William Kinsey as Paderewski, the Polish pianist, was a success. We are grateful to the Juniors for giving us the opportunity to hear these truly great masters. Miss Ditmars is Junior Class sponsor.

The Eighth Grade will have charge of the assembly program on Thursday of this week.

This week ends the fifth grading period of the school year for the upper six grades. One more grading period of six weeks and the school year of 1933-1934 will be at an end.

Grades One and Two

We have 15 new Elson Basic Primers for our library. The stories, pictures, and type are of such superior quality that we feel the books are a valuable addition to our supplementary reading material.

Jimmy Kees is the only one in our room who has been neither tardy nor absent to date.

February honor roll pupils in our room were April Bowser, June Strong, Leora Wilmot, Mary Louise Woodcox, Gloria Zonker and Jimmie Kees.

Grades Three and Four

James Hatch has returned to school after two weeks of absence due to illness.

Mary Close is reported as improving and will soon return to school after two weeks of illness.

Grades Five and Six

Honor roll pupils last week were Richard Freeburn, Helen Goodwin, Betty Kees, Burl Rude, Maxine Woodcox, Christine Zonker, Melvin Zimmerman, Frank Curie, Ruth Donley, Evelyn George, James Hamilton, Harold Inlow, Ruth Keesler, Myra Keesler, Barbara Stroh, and Marcel Pugsley.

SPORTING NEWS

The Merchants defeated Hamilton A's in both games of a double header, the Reserves winning the preliminary in an overtime tilt of 25-24, and the main game by the score of 23-16. In both of the games the Merchant's diminitive forward, Bruce Koch, starred. In the main game Fritz Quance led his team in scoring, while Kinsey and Wade were hot on the defense. The Merchants play the New Haven Ramblers here Thursday evening. Bernard Dickey, a former South Side High and I. U. star, will be with the Merchants in this game.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER

Turning from city newspapers to small town press exchanges that come to the editor's desk is like stepping from the slums, full of vice, into a old-fashioned garden sweet with lavender and thyme and the scent of perennial flowers. The pages of big dailies are so full of murder, thievery, immorality and selfishness that the better news is obscured by these glaring shatterings of the Decalogue. One puts the papers aside with a feeling of depression and heartache that the world is so full of terrible and unhappy things.

Then picking up the papers that record the happenings of the little towns around us, one gains renewed faith in life. Here are set forth only that which uplifts a community—the activities of the business men, the church items, the happy social gatherings of the people, the marriages, births and deaths, farmers' items, and all the thousand and one daily occurrences that make up the simple annals of the great common people, who are really the foundation of this broad country of ours.

Sometimes people speak lightly of the country newspaper, but it is one of the most potent and uplifting factors in our national existence.—Christian Science Monitor.

LUTHERAN CHURCH

At our Lenten Devotions for this week Thursday, March 8, at 7 o'clock we will have with us the young peoples choir of St. Mark's Lutheran Church of Auburn. A sacred concert was very capably presented by these young people in the Lutheran Church here a few months ago.

The sermon by the pastor will be on the fourth word from the cross: "My God, My God, Why hast Thou forsaken Me?"

We ask everyone to come reverently and silently without whispering and upon entering the pew to pause at least for a moment in prayer. This will be a benediction to all.

A. H. Fabianske, Pastor.

When some people have a serious problem which they know needs much thought they fix themselves so comfortably that they fall asleep.

After interviewing a thousand women in regard to their most disagreeable household task it is found that dish washing wins these uncomplimentary hours.

Approximately one out of every twenty Americans is on the federal pay roll.

There is just so much (or so little) prosperity in the United States. Without increasing our foreign markets we can have but little more prosperity. About all the government can do is to redistribute what wealth we have. In helping create a job for one man, we set another man back.

CONCORD

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bone spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Ulm.

Well March came in like a lamb, supposed to go out like a lion. Let's see.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Draggoo and family spent Sunday in the Roy Keller home.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Warstler were Sunday visitors in the Jay Fetters home. In the afternoon they called on Mrs. John Fetters.

Farewell parties were given the Stemen family last week at their home, before leaving for Kendallville, and two classes of the Sunday School had a party for them also.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Jackson and daughter, Iris, and Mrs. C. Jackson and daughter, Mable, spent a short time Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Holl Jackson, who are about sick with bad colds.

Friendship

Friendship is one of the most important things in one's life. In order to have friends, you must prove yourself friendly.

"There is a friend who is only a friend in name." Not so encouraging? But sadly true. Our friends are mirrors of ourselves. Life is just teaching us a lesson we all learn, that we are judged by the company we keep. It is necessary to see and stand for the fine, towering, beautiful things it holds.

If you had a chance to live on the high hills, where the white spires and gleaming towers of the city of lovely things lift to the blue, you wouldn't choose to dwell on the mud flats, would you? There are vicious little bits of bad influences and acquired tastes. It is so important to be our finest, gayest, and "goodest" for our friends sake. Decide at once to be done with false friends.

Maxims Concerning Law

Ignorance of the law excuses no one.

Acts indicate the intention.

One wrong does not justify another.

Gathered fruits are not a part of the farm.

A right cannot arise from a wrong.

Good faith does not allow us twice to demand payment for the same thing.

The law helps those who are deceived, not those deceiving.

A point judicially decided is taken to be correct.

Sunday is not a day for judicial proceedings

Twixt the Optimist and the Pessimist:

A pessimist is a man who won't live in clover for fear of catching hay fever.

An optimist is a man who takes all the lemons handed him and makes lemonade of them.

An inmate of an asylum imagined himself to be an artist, and he was busily engaged in dabbling at an empty canvas with a dry brush. A visitor asked what the picture represented.

"That," said the patient, "is a picture of the Israelites being pursued through the Red Sea."

"Where is the sea?"

Why, that's rolled back to allow the Israelites to pass."

"Where are the Israelites?"

"They've just gone by."

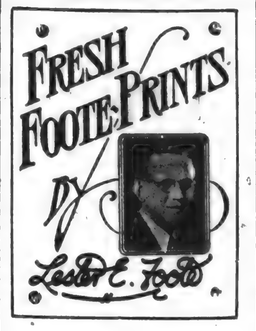
"Then where are the pursuers?"

"Oh, they'll be along in a minute."

Englishman — "What's that bloomin' noise I 'ear outside this time of night?"

American—"Why, that's an owl."

Englishman—"Of course it is, but 'o's 'owling?"



"Happiness sneaks through a door you didn't know was open."

"If a man's mind is filled with memories and reminiscences," says William Lyon Phelps, "instead of anticipation, then he is growing old."

At the present rate our national debt will pass the peak of 1919 about July fourth, this year. Our present national financial condition is not alarming; it is only prospective future conditions that can cause prediction of national bankruptcy.

The Federal Emergency Relief Administration is planning to use from five to seven million dollars of government money to furnish part time employment for needy college students.

The Indian death rate is about twice as high as that of the white race.

"Started right at birth, fed right continuously, the average life could and would be lengthened to approximately 150 years," according to Dr. MacKenzie, of the University of Scotland, who added, "and, with full possession of all powers until death, which usually would come peacefully and painlessly during sleep."

When Abraham Lincoln was elected President, there were five living ex-presidents. They were VanBuren, Tyler, Fillmore, Pierce and Buchanan.

The population of Japan could not all exist there if it were not for the fact that the ocean in the vicinity of Japan is unusually rich in sea food.

When is the promised stimulant to American trade from the effects of recognizing Soviet Russia supposed to reach us?

At the present rate it will take only about twelve years for income tax, suicide, and kidnappers to eliminate all American millionaires.

The one farm product that does not need "federal reducing" is the horses and mules. Statistics show that there were only 57 per cent as many horses and mules in the United States as there were in 1918. Due to the hard times many of the farmers are planning to desert the tractors this spring in favor of the horses and mules. By the time spring work opens up on the farm it is predicted that good horses and mules will be selling twenty to twenty-five per cent higher.

Louis W. Gruber is charged with embezzling $650,000 from the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company while being employed by the A. & P. as purchasing agent.

The Ford Motor Company will probably have the most elaborate and expensive exhibit at the 1934 Century of Progress Exhibition.

Does a sharp pain in your appendix make you think of Sunday School and church?

"Of what shall a man be proud, if he is not proud of his friends?"

The parties are known that stole our prosperity but if said prosperity is returned to us at once in good condition no questions will be asked.

Carl Dickman went swimming in a lake in New York state while the thermometer was standing 14 degrees below zero. He was in the water seven minutes.

There are three new regulations for football next year. They are as follows:

1. There will be no penalty for sucessive incompleted forward passes.

2. The attacking team may throw passes into the opponent's end zone without possession of the ball on a touchback unless it is fourth down or two of these passes are consecutive.

3. A player may punt the ball from the hands of one of his teammates.

Our physician was angry when a statement of his professional services was returned with a penciled notation as follows: "Please itemize my account more fully. Due to present conditions I wish to pay for only the medicine in return of visits."

The Civilian Conservation Corps (government tree planters,) which started last April, will continue its work until October 15th, at least, acording to an annoudncement from the War Department.

"Dear Sir," says a written complaint to the manufacturer of corn syrup, "I have already used two cans of your corn syrup, and still my feet are no better."

After being charged five cents extra for a sandwich because it was made of raisin bread, Justice Harlan Fiske Stone of the United States Supreme Court examined the sandwich carefully and then remarked:

"I find only three and a half raisins and I don"t think they're worth a nickle."

Ninety per cent of all farm fires are the result of carelessness. Albert Herring, fire chief at Murphysboro, Illinois, says: "Matches have heads but no brains; when you use their heads, use your brains."

According to the present navy building program which is to be completed in 1936, Great Britian will have the greatest strength in small cruisers; Farnce and Japan will lead in destroyers, and the United States will lead with large cruisers.

Postmaster General Farley canceled all existing domestic air mail contracts (everything but to foreign countries.) Col Chas. Lindbergh sent a telegram of his objecting views to President Roosevelt. Then editors and politicians throughout the United States started speculation which one of the two was the foolish one. The twelve companies carrying the mail on 34 routes were affected by the order. The Supreme Court of the United States will undoubtedly be called on to decide the legality of Mr. Farley's action. In the meantime the government army planes will carry the mail.

Certainly Greta Garbo will not set the style in 1934 hair coiffures.

Signers of the corn-hog reduction contracts hope to get their first payment checks about April first.

At St. Louis an unmarried woman is being held in jail charged with the murder of newly born twins, a boy and a girl. The twins had been strangled and left in an ashpit.

SURVIVE FLORIDA FISHING TRIP

They traveled into Alabama on Tuesday a distance of about 600 miles, through the path of the recent tornado.

Frequetly Baker would remind the party that he was the recognized champion and that he had never been away from home before and should they take a second fishing trip, he should be advanced to conductor.

When they reached Cumberland, Ky., again they put up at the Lost River Hotel, and the gang proceeded to locate the river.

Next day they stopped at Louisville, Ky., where they took more pictures and landed at Fort Wayne at midnight on Thursday.

Keller paid all toll charges on the trip.

They brought 75 pounds of fish and donated to the Concord Church for the supper last Friday night.

Most of the boys brought presents to their families consisting of aprons, bags, cocoanuts, lemons, grape fruit, bed spreads, cushions, and alligators but no rattlers.

The boys say thanks for the wonderful time.

Small town hotels of the "bowl and pitcher" type have been objects of criticism, ridicule and sneers on the part of their guests from time immemorial. But probably most of them are furnishing the best accomodations they can under the circumstances.

Travelers who are accustomed to modern conveniences and comforts in larger hotels probably expect to much when they strike a village hostelry!

As a reminder of this fact, one country town hotel keeper placed signs in rooms, which read as follows:

"This ain't the Waldorf Astoria —If is was it wouldn't be here.— You ain't J. P. Morgan—If you was you wouldn't be here—We know the hotel is on the bum— Well, how about yourself?"

The typographical error is a slippery thing and sly,
You can hunt till you are dizzy,
but it somehow will get by.
Till the forms are off the presses
it is strange how still it keeps;
It shrinks down into a corner and it never stirs or peeps,
That typographical error, too
small for human eyes,
Till the ink is on the paper, when it grows to mountain size.
The boss he stares with horror,
then he grabs his hair and groans;
The remainder of the issue may be clean as clean can be,
But that typographical error is the only thing you see.—Knoxville (Ia) Express.

With Germany and Japan out of the disarmament agreements many advocates of peace in the United States feel that preparedness for war is our best guarantee of peace. As Teddy Roosevelt once said, "Speak quietly but use a big stick."

A kitchen as bright and cheerful as a SUNROOM

WOULDN'T you like to have your kitchen so light and free from shadows that work seems to hurry itself along? You can quickly have such a kitchen. Securing it is neither difficult nor expensive. Simply put a new 150-watt Edison MAZDA Daylight lamp in the central ceiling fixture (which should be of the totally enclosing type) and a 60-watt Edison MAZDA lamp in the shaded fixture above the sink* and in the one above the range.*

*If you haven't these fixtures, ask us to tell you how little it will cost to have them installed.

Now even washing dishes will be easier and less tiresome. For now you can see clearly, quickly and easily. What's that? You'd like to try it? Well, we're ready.

James May has been promoted to the position of foreman of the fence gang on the B. & O., working between Garrett and Deshler.

O. H. Widney has discovered a new use for cross cut saws, that of stopping up hog holes in a fence. The more the hog roots the more he don't want to.

John Bowman, of Butler, who formerly lived at Spencerville, and is well known by some of our citizens, had his head nearly severed from his body last Wednesday by falling onto a saw in a saw mill. His death was instantaneous.

We never knew why it was that Frank Draggoo liked to sell the Deering Binder until we saw one of their advertisements the other day, and that explained the matter. From the illustration on the advertisement we inferred that the man who buys a Deering Binder is usually so well pleased with it that when the agent calls to settle, he sends his wife out to hug and kiss him, (the agent.) No wonder Frank brags up the Deering. The more machines he sells the more settlements he makes—don't you see?

Joe Baker, our own Joe the barber, he thought business was picking up some and he needed help in the shop, so he got a little "shaver" last week. The boy is doing well, but his papa was so nervous he couldn't have shaved the head of an oil barrel. The second day after the baby was born Joe went over to Nels Tuttison's and got a whole wagon load of potatoes, smoked meat, cabbage, etc., to feed the baby with. Its a wonder he hadn't killed the poor child. Joe was out of head considerable, but he's better now.

"THE GHOST CHASES"

Is the name of a play given by members of the Spencerville M. E. Church some days ago, and will be given at the St. Joe M. P. Church, Tuesday evening, March 20, at a price of 10 and 15 cents. The play is under the direction of the pastor of the visiting church, Rev. Howard Brown. The public is asked to attend this evening's entertainment and help a good cause along. 11tl.

FIRE COMPANY MAKES RURAL CALL TUESDAY

Tuesday forenoon a fire call was sent in from the Harry Smith home, north-west of town and the firemen responded quickly.

Knowing that the lane to the farm home would be bad, the boys unloaded at the creek bridge and with their pails, made their way across fields to the house and had the fire under full control before the truck was able to appear on the scene.

The good work of saving the home was due to the thoughtfulness of the men.

The fire was in the attic or the east part of the house, and was possibly caused by a defective flue.

MRS. JOHN HEFTY PASSES

Barbara Crooks was born September 9, 1856, and closed her pilgrimage here on February 28, 1934, at the age of 77 years, 4 months and 19 days. On November 25, 1879, she was united in marriage to John Hefty, who preceded her in death seven years ago. To this union was born four children, only three of whom survive. They are Fred and Harry Hefty of Union township, and Mrs. Myrtle Wiler of Garrett. Two brothers, Sheldon and George Crooks of Waterloo, sixteen grandchildren and three great grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Hollopeter, her pastor, at the Norris Chapel Church of which she had been for years a faithful member and the body was laid to rest on the White City cemetery at Spencerville.

STURGIS HELD UP

Held up by a lone bandit as he stopped for a through street at Alexendria, Ind., J. E. Sturgis of Cincinnati, O., was forced to drive to near Fort Wayne Monday night before being robbed and forced from his automobile at the point of a gun. The victim reported the robbery to police after reaching Fort Wayne Monday night about 7:30 o'clock. Sturgis told officers that the bandit approached his car as he stopped for a through street. Opening the door of the car, he drew a gun and got inside. He ordered Sturgis to drive out of town and directed him through Marion and Huntington to the junction near Fort Wayne.

TOWN BOARD MAKES SETTLEMENT OF SUIT

The damage suit of LeRoy Zimmerman against the town of St. Joe has been settled in the DeKalb circuit court of an agreement on a judgment in the amount of $350.

The plaintiff slipped on the ice and fell into a hole beside the sidewalk on Fifth Street in St. Joe the night of Dec. 22, 1932. He said that ligaments were torn from his shoulder, that a rib was broken and that he was otherwise hurt. He filed a complaint for $10,000 damages.

The complaint was dismissed as to Marion C. Blue and M. Elnora Blue, in front of whose property the accident took place. Russel R Ridenour represented the plaintiff, Capt. H. C. Springer the town and Atkinson & Husselman the defendants Blue.

The old board, under whose administration this claim was filed, refused to make any settlement of the claim, due to the fact that they were not a party in the case, the excavation being made on a private drain. Towns are often joined in the action for damages under such cases, and if judgment is obtained against the town for personal injuries by reason of such condition, then the town has a right of action, upon the adjoining property owner.

The instrument as executed by the town board is as follows:

For and in consideration of the sum of $350.00 the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, I hereby forever release and discharge the town of St. Joe, DeKalb County, Indiana, from any and all liability by reason of any and all injuries and damages sustained by reason of a fall sustained by me on or near the west sidewalk on Fifth Street, north of Washington Street and south of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad right of way on the 22nd day of December, 1933, and for which said injures and damages a cause of action is now pending in the circuit court of DeKalb County, Indiana and which said cause of action, in consideration of said sum so paid shall be dismissed.

Dated this 8th day of March, 1934.

L. R. Zimmerman.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE PARTY

Mrs. C. R. Price was the victim of a carefully planned surprise on Friday afternoon, March 9, when a bunch of her friends and neighbors walked in to remind her of birthday. The afternoon was spent playing games after which fudge and apples were served. Mrs. Price was then presented a beautiful linen luncheon set, with "best wishes" for many more happy birthdays.

GREETINGS FROM MRS. MARY BAILEY

To her many friends in St. Joe and vicinity. She is at present being cared for in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Geo. Watson, and family, west of Spencerville. Mother Bailey is very feeble, being bedfast most of the time.

She was happy indeed to hear from the old home town through Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham, who visited in the Watson home Tuesday afternoon.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

P. T. A. Meets Next Tuesday Evening

The sixth and last regular meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association will be held on Tuesday evening, March 20th. Dr. Louis A. Warren, Director of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation of Fort Wayne, will give an illustrated address on "A Typical American Migration." This address will be of special interest to all ages. Come.

Activities of Music Department

Rehearsals are being held under the direction of Mr. C. A. Woodcox for those pupils who will represent the local school in the annual DeKalb County Musical Program which is scheduled for Friday evening, April 6th at the Garrett High School Auditorium.

Plans are being made for a school music recital in the near future. Pupils from the first to the twelfth grade will appear in this recital. Mr. Woodcox has a very full schedule in the music work for the three days each week that he teaches

The next county teachers institute will be held on Saturday, March 24th.

Rehearsal started Monday evening for the Junior class play, "Under Southern Skies." This play will be given on Saturday evening, March 31st. Mr. Gerdes is conducting the rehearsals.

County Superintendent Stallman called at the school on Monday afternoon.

The Eighth Grade under the direction of the class sponsor, Mrs. Simanton, conducted the assembly program last Thursday morning. Their program opened with a musical selection following which a pantomime was ably presented. Assembly exercises this week will be sponsored by the Sophomores. A combination program will be given. Opening numbers will be presented by the class and then an address will be given by Prof. J. O. Winger of Manchester College.

Absentees on Monday of this week were Beulah Madden, Josephine Bachtel, and Arthur Davis.

Grades One and Two

Mrs. Parlia Hull visited the primary room on Monday afternoon of last week.

Children have brought many books from home to add to the collection on our new reading table.

The primary girls and boys were much interested in an alligator exhibited in the room on last Friday. Prior to seeing the alligator we had a diacussion on the life and habits of alligators. The queer way alligtors build nests created a marked impression. Alternate layers of mud and grass and eggs to a thickness of eight inches is the alligator custom.

Grades Three and Four

Spring booklets are being planned by third and fourth grade pupils.

We have two more names on our list of diphtheria immunizations.

The third grade will coordinate Arithmetic and English in a "keeping store" project next week. The shelves are already well stocked and new goods arrive daily.

Grades Five and Six

Sylvie Washler missed school last week because of a severe cold.

Honor roll pupils in spelling last week were: Rose Ayers, Frank Curie, Ruth Donley, Evelyn George, Jack Goodwin, James Hamilton, Harold Inlow, Ruth Keesler, Myra Keesler, Richard Davis, Wayne Fetters, Helen Goodwin, James Harris, Betty Kees, Walter Loucks, Dorothy Littlefield, Burl Rude, Grant Strong, Maxine Wodcox and Christine Zonker.

PLOW DEMONSTRATION HERE NEXT WEDNESDAY A. M.

A series of seven plow adjustment and attachment meetings for DeKalb County has just been announced by County Agent T. E. Myers. The purpose of these meetings is to better acquaint the farmers with the adjustments of plows and to show attachments which will aid materially in better trash coverage and in better plowing generally. Clean plowing is recognized as an effective method of Corn Borer Control and is also beneficial in controlling other insects and weeds. Although the plow appears to be a comparatively simple tool proper adjustment is very essential in order that it will do its best work. The draft of a plow is also greatly increased by improper adjustment.

These adjustments will be explained and discussed by Mr. R. H. Wiltman of the Agricultural Engineering Department, Purdue University and simple attachments will be shown which will materially aid in the better coverage of trash.

A walking plow, a horse sulky and a tractor plow will be provided at each meeting and the various adjustments for each type of plow will be discussed and the proper adjustments shown on the plow itself. These plows will also be equipped with attachments for aiding in the coverage of corn stalks and other crop residues. Those attending the meetings will be given an opportunity to ask questions regarding remedies for plow troubles which they have experienced.

The schedule for these meetings is as follows:

Tuesday morning, March 20 at 10 A. M., Corn Borer Farm at Auburn.

Tuesday at 1 P. M., March 20, in front Ford Garage on Keyser St., Garrett.

Wednesday 10 A. M., March 21, St. Joe on Main Street.

Wednesday, 1 P. M., March 21, in International Harvester Co. Garage, Butler.

Thursday, 10 A. M., March 22, Wolf Garage, Hamilton.

Thursday, 1 P. M., Hall & Stingle Drying Shed, Ashley.

Friday, 1 P. M., Harp Pankop's farm, 4 miles north of Corunna.

Farmers and others who are interested are requested to take advantage of this opportunity of securing information which will aid them in securing better plow coverage and better plowing generally.

SETTLES FOR ACCIDENTAL DEATH OF BOY

The claim of Clarence Baron against Philip G. Kemp and the Auburn Automobile Co., for the death of Mrs. Baron's young son, Harry, was settled Wednesday in the DeKalb circuit court by the payment of $1,050.

The plaintiff is a resident of Newville township. His son was killed last July 5 when he was struck by a motor car driven by Mr. Kemp on the Auburn-Newville road. Mr. Kemp said that as he approached the boy a rear tire of his car blew out and that his car swerved to the opposite side of the highway, striking the child.

Mr. Kemp resides in Chicago and he is connected with the Cord Corporation.

BOWSER BARN BURNS IN ALLEN COUNTY

The large feed barn owned by R. U. Bowser, located on his farm 2 miles south of town in Allen colunty, was destroyed by fire started by an explosion of the tank heater. The building and the entire contents were destroyed. The building was partly covered by insurance by the Allen County Mutual Fire Insurance Co. The fire department from Grabill was summoned to the fire.

The first republican rally of the campaign was opened Monday night, when H. H. Evans, of Newcastle, spoke to 300 people at the dinner held at 6:30 from the Commercial Club dining room. Mr. Evans is representative in the state legislature from Henry county. All the county candidates that had filed for office were introduced at this meeting, besides those running on municipal tickets. The Wilcox orchestra furnished music while the dinner was being served. Evans proved to be an interesting and entertaining speaker and his denunciation of the state administration was made without reservation.

THE PRICE OF BUSINESS SPEED

Banking Institute Speaker Says That Bank Failures Followed Business Failures

CHICAGO, Ill.—Many appear to think that failures occur only to banks, but the complete story of business shows that failures of American banks have followed the failure of business enterprises, and have not been a cause of those failures, Dr. Harold Stonier, National Educational Director of the American Bankers Association, declared in a recent address here before the American Institute of Banking.

"It is true that we have had more failures in our banks than in the banks of a number of other countries," he said. "It is also true that we have had more failures in drug stores, grocery stores, railroads, and in every other type of business enterprise. At the same time, it must be said that we still have left after all our failures, more drug stores, more grocery stores, more railroads, and more banks than any other country.

People do not realize, he said, that we have in excess of 108 banks which have been in existence over a century and we have more than 2,000 banks which have been in existence over 50 years.

"In other words, we have more banks over 100 years of age than any other country—we have more banks over 50 years of age than any country in the world," he declared. "The American banking system has not fallen down—it is not in danger of decay. Such failures as it has experienced are due to the price we pay for too rapid development of business enterprises, but that is the American spirit."

A kitchen as bright and cheerful as a SUNROOM

WOULDN'T you like to have your kitchen so light and free from shadows that work seems to hurry itself along? You can quickly have such a kitchen. Securing it is neither difficult nor expensive. Simply put a new 150-watt Edison MAZDA Daylight lamp in the central ceiling fixture (which should be of the totally enclosing type) and a 60-watt Edison MAZDA lamp in the shaded fixture above the sink* and in the one above the range.*

*If you haven't these fixtures, ask us to tell you how little it will cost to have them installed.

Now even washing dishes will be easier and less tiresome. For now you can see clearly, quickly and easily. What's that? You'd like to try it? Well, we're ready.

COOK ELECTRICALLY in Wonderland

EVEN if it were always tea-time, as the Mad Hatter protested, the modern Alice could cook in Wonderland while she was far from home. . . . At a Tea Party, perhaps, while on her Electric Range "beautiful soup, so rich and green" waited to be served, and tarts were baked so deliciously that the Knave of Hearts stole them away.

It is like Wonderland to cook with a modern Electric Range. Just turn on a switch, set a clock, and forget! At the proper time, you may appear, a refreshed and charming hostess, ready to serve a perfectly cooked meal.

VOL. XLIX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MARCH 22, 1934 NUMBER 12

50 Years Ago

Taken from the files of the St. Joe News, 50 years ago—
M. E. Olds, Editor

August Kinsey is selling lots of furniture.

Frank Meek was in town yesterday.

Lots of people had business in Auburn this week.

Hanford Tiffany left for his new home in Missouri yesterday.

Several of the newly elected officers were sworn in last week.

Will Koch and Miss Anna Timmerman were married last Sunday.

M. T. Bishop sold a bill of lumber to parties in Hicksville this week.

Don't forget to go to Auburn next Saturday. Train leaves at 1:05 P. M.

Harvey Ackley and wife of Hicksville, were in town last week, visiting friends.

P. A. Shirts has got the Michigan fever and offers his property for sale at a bargain.

Shade trees have been set out around the depot at this place. Quite an improvement.

Mr. Z. Hathaway of Newville, died last Wednesday morning and was buried on Thursday.

Gil Barbeau was in town last week. He deposited money to have The News sent to him every week.

Quite a number of the G. A. R's from this place attended the Hard Tack Social at Garrett last Saturday evening.

Workmen have been engaged during the past few days in painting the new iron bridge over the river at this place.

Charlie Bartlett, brother of Mrs. Alex Filley, who has been in the west for the last four years, returned home last week.

Vester Widney has bought a lot next to the one his father is building upon, and will devote his attention to raising chickens. Vester will also furnish eggs at all times of the year.

Mrs. Wes Hart read an excellent essay at temperance meeting last Wednesday evening. It was right to the point and ought to have made moderate drinkers and tobacco users feel sick.

All members of the Sunday School and church, as well as all others who are interested in organizing a Mite Society, are requested to meet at the residence of Robert Davis on next Friday evening, May 9th, 1884.

The gravel put upon the streets of St. Joe last fall was a big improvement. We hardly know what bad roads are now until we get out of town. Why wouldn't it be a good idea to gravel the road between here and Spencerville?

In the spring time gentel Anni,
Wen the frogs begin tu hum,
Then's the tyme wen thay tare up
Carpets an clean hous an scrubb
An a feller has tu eat a cold bite
On a flower barrell.

I think that potry is emmence; the latter end ov it dont rime eggactly, but there's lots of centiment in it espeshily to a man who is unfortunate enuf to be married. Hous cleaning tyme is the most deliteful seson ov the year; it is then that your ears ar greated with the musickal voic ov your wife as she yells "Jake you hurry yourself around an shack that ar carpet." Its stacks ov fun i tel you. If I wus cauled upon to tu chuse betwean hous cleaning tyme an a Picknick i druther go tu the Picknick.

Yours Most Trooly,
Barcus O. Hippenhammer.

SAM BETZ KILLED ON ROAD FOURTEEN

Samuel W. Betz, aged 73, Rural Route No. 2, Grabill, a farmer living on the Ruppert Road two miles east of Harlan, died enroute to the Lutheran Hospital at 11:50 A. M. Tuesday after his car was in a collision with an ice truck on State Road No. 14 two miles east of Harlan about 11 o'clock.

Betz's light car collided with a Zero Ice Corporation truck operated by M. J. Andrews, Detroit, at the intersection of State Road No. 14 and the Ruppert Road. The car turned over. Betz was taken to a physician's office in Harlan and then was ordered taken to the hospital in the Oetting & Sons' ambulance of Harlan.

Betz was driving south on the Ruppert Road and, according to Andrews, who was going west on the state road, pulled directly on to the state road without stopping. The Betz car struck the truck, running the latter vehicle into the ditch and causing the light car to turn over.

Betz suffered a fractured skull, crushed chest, a fracture of the right leg and internal injuries.

His body was removed to the Oetting & Sons' Funeral Home at Harlan.

Mr. Betz was the brother of the late John Betz of St. Joe and Joel Betz of Spencerville.

MUST REGISTER TO VOTE

County Clerk Carl Walter and the two county chairmen are urging that all voters register before April 9, which is the last day for registration before the primary to be held May 8.

Deputy registration officers are taking the registration throughout the county without cost to the voter, but voters also may register at the office of the county clerk.

A second registration period will start May 15 when voters who failed to register in time for the primary may register in order to qualify for the general election in November.

HIS BUSINESS-LIKE RECORD RECOGNIZED

BURRELL WRIGHT

Miss Dorothy Cunningham, of Martinsville, and George A. Ball, of Muncie, G. O. P. national committeemen from Indiana, today announced the appointment of Burrell Wright, of Indianapolis, to the post of assistant-treasurer of the Republican National Committee. The appointment was made by George F. Getz, of Chicago, national committee treasurer.

"Mr. Wright earned this appointment because of the business-like manner in which he has conducted the financial affairs of the Indiana Republican State Committee since becoming its treasurer in 1932," the national committeeman said in making the announcement.

Mr. Wright will still retain the treasurership of the Indiana state committee.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

F. R. Neff of the Extension Division of Indiana University visited the local high school on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Neff explained the advantages which I. U. offers to high school graduates through residence study at Bloomington and Extension Division work which may be taken in Fort Wayne.

Sophomore Assembly Program

The Sophomores had charge of the assembly program on Thursday morning of last week. The opening number was a vocal solo by Eileen Gaff with piano accompaniment by Helen Washler. A dialogue was given by Norma Rickerd and Vivian Richmond. Then Prof. J. O. Winger, of Manchester College gave the assembly address which was very much appreciated by pupils, teachers and a few patron visitors. The Seniors will have charge of the assembly program this week.

February Test Results

Results attained in the February Eighth Grade Arithmetic Test used throughout the county were made available last week. The local school had the pupil with the highest score. Only four of the local eighth grade had scores lower than the county median. Mrs. Simanton teaches the arithmetic. Similar uniform tests given in Eighth Grade English and Seventh Grade History. The local history median was five points higher than the county median.

Twenty-three pupils from the local high schol attended a matinee performance of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar given in the Angola H. S. Auditorium Monday afternoon. Mr. Gerdes, English teacher, accompanied the group.

DuWayne Kinsey placed a radio in the school auditorium on last Friday which enabled many of the pupils desiring to hear state basketball tourney games the opportunity of doing so. Thanks very much DuWayne.

Keep the Junior Class play "Under Southern Skies" in mind. It is scheduled for next week.

On one of the warm days of last week the eighth grade arithmetic class went outside to practice the method of measuring across fields or lakes by the use of similar triangles which they had been studying in class. The girls proved to be more accurate in their measurements than the boys.

Pupils who have been absent recently due to illness are Dale Collins, Joyce Fusselman, Vivian Richmond, and Arthur Davis.

First and Second Grades

The children are keenly interested in an Easter Rabbit exhibit displayed on the sand table.

Helen Faye Wiers had the painful experience of nursing two black eyes last week.

We have put up a collection of spring pictures. Among them are several life size pictures of birds. Both grades have been reading stories about birds and have also learned songs and poems about birds.

Third and Fourth Grades

Glen and Betty Keesler are new pupils in the Fourth Grade.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Helen Goodwin received the first prize on the "February's Great Men" booklet.

MILLER STILL ILL

Further continuance in the trial of Frank H. Miller, aged 54, former cashier of the Harlan State Bank, who is charged with embezzlement, is expected. It is reported that the poor health of the defendant which caused postponement of the trial several weeks ago, continues. Physicians have stated that Miller is suffering from "myocarditis with associated fatigue, angina, dyspnea and probably some involvement of the coronary arteries of the heart."

BANK REORGANIZATION AT BUTLER IS DELAYED

Progress in the organization of the new National bank in Butler has reached the point where the organizers have requested the national banking department to make a re-check examination of the Knisely Bros. bank for the purpose of establishing the new set-up. After this examination is completed, which is expected momentarily, it should require out a short time before the new bank is ready to function, perhaps three or four days. Considerable more time has been required to effect the organization of the new bank than was originally contemplated by the officers and directors, due to the fact that the national banking department is requiring that sixty-five percent of the assets of the new bank shall consist of cash of its equivalent. The requiring of this high degree of liquidity has necessitated the elimination of large amounts of real estate mortgages through federal loan agencies and has occasioned much delay.

ALUMNI MEETING

Members of the St. Joe High School Alumni Association are requested to meet at the old school building, Friday evening at 7:30, to make plans for the coming activities of the association. Please arrange to be present.

DEKALB COUNTY'S QUOTA FOR CCC CAMPS FIXED AT 25

County quotas for enrollment of men in CCC camps for the third six months period were announced today by the governor's commission on unemployment relief.

The state's probable quota will be 3,250 men, Marion county getting the largest enrollment with 558. Lake county has the second largest quota with 178.

County relief chairmen throughout the state again will direct the enrollment. Chairmen have been ordered to accept only applications of young men with families or actual dependents who need support.

Each recruit will receive $30 a month, the major portion of which is sent back home to dependents.

The county quotas include:

Adams, 14; Allen, 178; DeKalb, 25; Huntington, 19; Wells, 19; Whitley, 8, and Steuben, 11.

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR TRUSTEE

Ernest W. Johnson, makes his official announcement to Concord Township Democratic voters, that he will be a candidate for the nomination of Township Trustee, subject to the voters at the primary on May 8, 1934.

DAVID HOGG IN CONGRESSIONAL RACE

Former Congressman, David Hogg, of Fort Wayne, Monday made his official announcement that he was again in the race for republican nomination for Congress and this comes to the fourth district as good news.

Hogg served four terms in Congress, representing the old Twelfth District, and for the last year has practiced law as a partner of Former Judge George H. Leonard.

During his Congressional term, Hogg served as a member of the committee of post offices and post roads. He will probably make his appeal again this time to ex-service men, for whom he handled many pension and compensation cases, and also to dry forces, of which he has always been a member.

His record as Congressman is far better known, than that of any other man ever representing this people, and he has the best wishes of both parties, by those who believe that men should be firm and not cast about for the sake of votes.

The fourth district is one of the best in the state, and David Hogg should be chosen as the republican candidate on May 8.

HOME BUREAU

The Concord Township Home Bureau met at the home of Mrs. Anna Tustison, March 16. Meeting called to order by the president, Mary Krise. Two songs were sung after which the Club Creed was read by all and followed by the Lord's Prayer. Secretary's report was read and approved. Twenty-five responded to roll call by telling what city they would like to visit. A short talk was given by Mrs. Armstrong on how a certain cleaner would clean rugs and woodwork. "Silver Threads Among the Gold," was sung by Helen Ulm. Each lady brought her baby photo and it wasn't so easy to tell who was who.

Two contests were conducted by Mary Ridgway and Doris Yeiser. The April meeting is to be an all day meeting at the home of Kathryn Jump, south of Hicksville. The hostess and her committee served fruit salad with whipped cream on lettuce leaves, graham wafers and tea. One visitor was present.

SUGAR CAMPS ARE OPEN ALL ABOUT US

Yep! Sap's flowing! And as a result many farmers with a wood lot filled with sugar trees are busy making that good old "All-American" delicacy, maple syrup. The mere thought of it makes one feel hungry for "———and———."

Those having their camps opened report a good flow of "sugar water." It seems that a great many more camps have been open the past few years than formerly.

The price is starting out at $1.50 per gallon and this will net the farmer a few dollars, when he cannot do much else.

OBERHOLTZER

Amanda Florence Merrill, eldest daughter of Stephen A. and Zilpha Merrill, was born January 26, 1875, in Belmont County, Ohio, and departed this life at her home near Springfield Center March 15, 1934, aged 59 years, 1 month and 18 days.

On February 25, 1892 she was united in marriage to James W. Oberholtzer. She united with the Salem Lutheran Church when quite young and remained a member until death.

Besides the husband she leaves to mourn her departure a son, Ross, and three grandchildren, Ralph, Clifton, and Richard Oberholtzer, of Fort Wayne, Ind., and a sister, Minnie Beery of Springfield Center, besides other relatives and friends. She was a good wife and mother, taking special delight in the company of her grandsons. And always ready to help those in need as long as her health permitted. We will miss her greatly but our loss is her gain. For we feel that she is now at rest.

The funeral services were conducted in the Springfield Center Church by the Rev. A. K. Mumma and burial in North Scipio Cemetery. Mrs. E. R. Kinsey and Son, funeral directors.

CARD OF THANKS

Our sincere thanks for the kindness of our neighbors and friends, is hereby publicly extended, during the extended illness of our wife and mother.

BANKING RETURNS TOWARD NORMAL

Reconstruction Finance Corporation Loan Repayments Show Banks Lead Procession in Recovery Movement

Indicating a rapid return on the part of the banks to a normal self-sustaining basis, 54 per cent of the loans which they made from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to tide them over the difficulties of the past two years have been repaid by them, it is shown in a recent official report.

The R. F. C. report, issued on March 6, says that the Corporation since it began operations in February, 1932, had made aggregate cash advances to railroads, agricultural and home loan agencies, insurance companies and various other institutions in the amount of $4,786,410,000. Of this sum banks and trust companies, to the number of 6,783, received actual cash advances of $1,530,540,000, but have already paid back $820,260,000, or 54 per cent. These figures are exclusive of $376,390,000 in loans authorised but withdrawn or not availed of by the banks.

Non-banking borrowers received R. F. C. advances in the amount of $3,265,870,000, and made repayments of $377,330,000, or less than 12 per cent. Among other classes of financial institutions reported as making high ratios of repayments are building and loan associations which had received $114,020,000 and have repaid $53,380,000, or over 47 per cent, and insurance companies, whose borrowings totalled $88,590,000 and repayments $34,340,000, or nearly 39 per cent. None of the major non-governmental financial groups showed so high a ratio of repayments as the banks and trust companies as a group.

BANK LOANS AND BUSINESS RECOVERY

Official Describes Efforts of Reserve Banks to Bring Out Deserving Borrowers—Present Situation Typical

Apropos of the part that an expansion of business loans by banks occupies in the early stages of the business recovery which is now gaining headway, a Federal Reserve Bank official recently gave an interesting review of the experiences of his institution in this connection. In 1932 the Federal Reserve Banks were empowered by law to make direct loans to individuals in unusual circumstances when they had been unable to obtain loans from a commercial bank, he pointed out.

From the middle of 1932 to the end of 1933 there were 1,286 applicants for loans at the New York Federal Reserve Bank under this law. The great majority of these applications proved on examination to be for funds for capital purposes, which are properly supplied as an investment in the business, or else were mortgage loans or others unclassifiable as commercial.

Only Fourteen Qualify

Only 250, or less than 20 per cent, were of the type which merited detailed investigation. The amount involved was $9,525,000. After further study of these, the Federal Reserve Bank was forced to turn down the applications of 236, finally offering credit in the sum of $1,417,000 to 14 prospective borrowers. Of this amount, only $806,000 was actually loaned, more than one-half of which was still outstanding many months later. Two of the borrowers went into receivership.

"Since it was the special endeavor of the Federal Reserve Bank to make every possible loan under the emergency provisions of the amendment, and since their best efforts resulted in the extension of so small a sum as to have no effect on the total volume of commercial loans, it is a reasonable assumption that eligible borrowers entitled to bank credit are being provided for by the commercial banks," says the American Bankers Association Journal in commenting on this episode.

It is characteristic, as shown by studies of past business cycles, for changes in the volume of commercial bank credit to follow behind either contraction or expansion of business activity, says a financial writer in the New York Times. This was manifest recently in England's recent recovery where there was a lag between increased business and increased commercial loans.

County Key Bankers

Describing the activities of the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association, the Director, D. H. Otis, says: "With 2,500 agriculturally minded bankers designated as county key bankers, there is enlisted a tremendous force for the improvement of agriculture. These key bankers bring organized assistance to progressive bankers, who are led to see the possibility of agricultural work in their communities. Banker-farmer tours are emphasized as a means of acquainting bankers, farmers and other business men with first-hand knowledge of how agricultural improvement methods are working out in practice. These give an opportunity for the key bankers to contact country bankers and work out new ideas."

DEFINES BANKERS' PART IN RECOVERY

Head of American Bankers Association Assures the President of Confidence and Desire to Cooperate Among Bankers

WASHINGTON, D. C. — President Roosevelt in his address before the NRA conference here on March 5 announced that he had received the following telegram from Francis M. Law, President of the American Bankers Association:

"On this your first anniversary please allow me in behalf of the country's banks to express our full confidence and our sincere desire to cooperate in your courageous efforts to bring about recovery. The banking structure of the country is sound and liquid and banks have never been in stronger position to function effectively. Conditions have improved to the point where it is no longer necessary for banks to be super-liquid. There is a definite call now for banks, not to extend loose credits or to make improper loans, but for a most sympathetic attitude toward legitimate credit needs and for a recognition of responsibility for their proper and vital part in the program of recovery."

The Soundness of Banking

In an address before a recent trust conference of the association's Trust Division in New York, Mr. Law said:

"A depression cannot long survive a sound banking structure if the banking structure is responsive to legitimate needs and functions in a way that is virile and alive. The most cheering fact of the present situation is the knowledge that banks are in strong position.

"Recovery, even to the most pessimistic, is no longer a myth or a rumor, nor is it merely psychological. Abundant evidence and proof lie on every hand—tangible proof. With a return of confidence the wheels have begun to go round and a great many well managed businesses may look for a profit during this calendar year with fair assurance at least. For what has been achieved let us thank the President, who has labored with courage and patience and vision. Let us thank the Congress, whose members during the emergency have put the public welfare above partisanship. Let us thank one hundred twenty-five million of our own citizens who have refused to be stampeded, but rather who have kept alive the divine spark of faith and hope.

Cause for Confidence

"We may reasonably expect that the recent action of the government in stabilizing the dollar will have a marked tendency to encourage industrial and other business commitments. Business men need not be so exclusively engaged in taking counsel of their fears now that uncertainty does not haunt them.

"Much has been said about the loosing of credit by banks. During the acute period of the depression banks for the most part have not been lending normally, nor should they be blamed. With public confidence shattered the banker was properly concerned in liquidity, having in mind his primary obligation to pay off deposits. The situation has improved to the point where superliquidity no longer seems necessary. Conditions have materially changed. Banks will desire, for every reason, to return to a more normal lending policy. This means a sympathetic attitude and a recognition of responsibility for his proper part in the program of recovery by the banker as he passes upon and meets sound credit requirements of business as it swings into and continues on the upward turn."

Public Confidence Returns

Direct information indicates conclusively that the banking situation is showing definite and steady improvement, J. F. T. O'Connor, Comptroller of the Currency of the United States, said in a recent address. He pointed out that the decided drop which has occurred in money in circulation shows the public has largely ceased hoarding.

On March 1, 1934, the Federal Reserve Board reported that the volume of money in circulation amounted to $5,255,000,000, which was a decline of $1,077,000,000 since March 1, 1933. It was a drop of $2,326,000,000, or over 29 per cent, from the all-time peak of $7,581,000,000 reached on March 13, 1933. About one-half the decrease, it was pointed out, reflected the return of currency from the public.

Money in circulation declined rapidly after the reopening of the banks in March, 1933, and has continued since to decline from week to week, "notwithstanding the increase in the demand for currency arising from enlargement of pay rolls and increase in the volume of retail trade," the Comptroller said, which, he added, "indicates a continued return of money from hoards as banking facilities were reestablished."

About Bank Loans

"As for the charge that the banks will not extend credit, the first and obvious reply is that the banks themselves are made up of the very bone and sinew of the industrial, commercial and agricultural interests of the country. Bank directors, and, to a large extent, bank officers, are drawn from the business and farming population. If they do not feel at any given moment that it is wise to make a particular loan, it is more than probable that there are sound reasons for not making it," says an editorial in the Saturday Evening Post.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By ANN PAGE

LET'S enjoy our favorite egg dishes during the next few weeks for this food is at its best, plentiful, fresh and cheap. Omelets, souffles, angel and sponge cakes, custards and meringues are usually made only under these favorable conditions.

An asparagus omelet or souffle is a treat and an omelet souffle served with strawberry sauce is a dessert fit for a king, and we are in the heart of the asparagus and strawberry seasons. New rhubarb, too, is here with its refreshing tartness. The apple season is waning but new-crop oranges and seedless grapefruit are coming to market. Bananas are fine in quality and cheap. The fresh pineapple season is beginning.

Green vegetables are plentiful and moderately priced.

The Quaker Maid suggests the following menus:

Low Cost Dinner

Beef Loaf — Baked Potatoes
Creamed Carrots
Bread and Butter
Sliced Oranges — Custard Sauce
Tea or Coffee — Milk

Medium Cost Dinner

Baked Pork Chops with Pineapple
Mashed Potatoes — New Asparagus
Bread and Butter
Floating Island
Coffee — Milk

Very Special Dinner

Fruit Cup
Ham Slice Baked in Milk
Baked Stuffed Potatoes New Spinach
Tomato and Lettuce Salad
Rolls and Butter

Former Pastor Writes

Because of the wide acquaintance of Rev. L. W. Spayd, a former pastor here, we gladly print a letter addressed to Fred Hart, as follows:

Roseville, Ohio.
March 15, 1934.

Dear Fred:

"Your card of Feb. 8 inviting to 97th Anniversary of the Church at Coburn's Corners, some how got mislaid. Just now coming to hand again, I hasten to reply, too late for the Anniversary.

"November 9, four months ago, wife had her fourth hard apoplectic stroke, which landed her in bed for keeps. She is still helpless in bed, not able to sit up in it. Her mind has been so damaged that she can no longer talk thoughtfully and intelligently on any subject. She is not totally insane, all of the time; but she is so, for hours at a time, and then is very. very hard to care for, yet, I alone care for her night and day. I am considerably worn in nerve power and from loss of sleep, but am hoping to see her through to the end,

"I regret I forgot all about your invitation, but I cook, bake, nurse, and do all our housekeeping without any outside help and so some things get too little attention, my correspondents, especially.

"Hope your Anniversary was all you expected in interest, and more, too; and that the church still goes on strong for God and Christ. I'm afraid few now would know me, or be known by me, should I happen among you in a full assemblage, after so long absent. The Lord be with you all to prosper and encourage you in the work of the church."

Verily, verily yours in Christ,

L. W. Spayd, Roseville, Ohio.

A kitchen as bright and cheerful as a SUNROOM

WOULDN'T you like to have your kitchen so light and free from shadows that work seems to hurry itself along? You can quickly have such a kitchen. Securing it is neither difficult nor expensive. Simply put a new 150-watt Edison MAZDA Daylight lamp in the central ceiling fixture (which should be of the totally enclosing type) and a 60-watt Edison MAZDA lamp in the shaded fixture above the sink* and in the one above the range.*

*If you haven't these fixtures, ask us to tell you how little it will cost to have them installed.

Now even washing dishes will be easier and less tiresome. For now you can see clearly, quickly and easily. What's that? You'd like to try it? Well, we're ready.

VOL. XLIX ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MARCH 29, 1934 NUMBER 13

50 Years Ago

Taken from the files of the St. Joe News, 50 years ago—M. E. Olds, Editor

Frank Dills was in town last Monday.

Wm. Hollabaugh is building a new barn.

Charlie Shephard was in town last week.

Dr. Bowman drove to Ft. Wayne one day last week.

John Widney will move to town in a couple of weeks.

John Hamilton of Butler was on our streets last Monday.

Ves Wise of Spencerville is working for Wm. Leighty.

Wm. Leighty is having a new fence built around the hotel.

Howard Northrup and B. F. Hoyt went to Kansas this week.

Several fine strings of fish have been caught in the river this week.

Prof. Holmes of Spencerville is conducting a writing school at this place.

Fusselman & Moody shipped a car load of sheep to Buffalo this week.

After the first of July the St. Joe post office will be a money order office.

Wm Hollabaugh has purchased an interest in the saw mill at Spencerville.

Dr. Bowman went to Philadelphia this week to attend a course of medical lectures.

The young people had a party at the residence of Henry Jenkins on last Thursday evening.

August Kinsey has finished plastering his house and will move his family here in a few days.

Sol Barney talks of digging a cave so that in case a cyclone passes this way he will have a hole to crawl into.

Filley & Lounsberry are manufacturing a new wrinkle in house siding, which is certainly an improvement over the old style.

Twenty-five persons from this place attended the temperance rally at Auburn last Saturday, and they all had a good time, too.

While Quince Fusselman's horse was hitched in front of the store one day last week some one tied a large placard to it which read, "Oats wanted, inquire within."

The other evening at temperance meeting some of the ladies happened to see a mouse running across the church toward them and it was real amusing to see how frightened they became. They acted as though they wanted to stand up on the seats. It's strange, isn't it, how one poor little mouse can frighten a half a dozen women.

This world is ful ov changes. Spring changes intu summar, summar into autum, autum into winter an so on. Every thing changes moor or less, but purhaps ther is nothin changes so reggularla as the stile ov ladies' hats. Last year if yu remeamber the stile was a grate wide sun-shade, big enuf fur a cirkus tent; this year the stile makers nocked the old fashoned last year's sun-shade intu a four story hat, wich tha call the lateast an handsomest stile fur the seson ov 1884. Tha range all the way from 18 to 24 inches high, an tha usually trim them with preserved sun-flowers, with now an then a band ov black dress brade. A butifool effect can also be maid by puttin a bunch ov live chicken fethers on the top ov the hat. This is certainly the purtiest stile tha hav had out fur years.

All Yours Fur Stile,
Barcus Q. Hippenhammer.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

School Calendar for April

April 6, county music program at Garrett; April 7, Junior class play "Old Days in Dixie"; April 12, our last P. T. A. meeting with a musical recital by pupils under direction of C. A. Woodcox; April 14, Junior-Senior banquet; April 18, semester examinations for elementary grades; April 19-20, semester exams for the high school pupils; April 22, baccalaureate services for class of 1934; April 26, Commencement.

Sixteen Expect to Graduate

If the following sixteen girls and boys "survive" the last grading period and semester exams they will receive high school diplomas: Josephine Bachtel, Ruth Baker, Walter Boger, Orville Coburn, Dale Collins, Keith Daily, John Dilley, Ethelmae Freeburn, Flossie Inlow, Helen Like, Glen Likes, Beulah Madden, Robert Musser, Geraldine Thornton, Virginia Shull and Virgil Culbertson. Class honors in scholarship are as follows: Salutatory, Virginia Shull; Valedictorian, Ethelmae Freeburn. The average grades over the past 3 and a fraction years (grading periods of this year to date) for Virginia and Ethelmae differ by less than ½%. Only pupils who had done all of their high school work here considered in the awarding of the honors.

Seniors Give Assembly Program

Thursday morning the program was opened with a piano solo by Mr. Gerdes. Virginia Shull gave a reading, Geraldine Thornton followed with a vocal solo with Earl Kinsey at the piano. The seniors then presented a pantomime "And then the lights went out." These numbers were well received by the pupil audience. A musical assembly program will be furnished by Mr. Woodcox, this Thursday morning.

First and Second Grades

March 30 the Primary room will have an Easter party for the children who will enter the first grade next fall. All children who will enroll next September as first grade pupils are all invited to be guests from 12:30 to 3:00.

The 2nd grade arithmetic class have been learning to tell time.

Third and Fourth Grades

Two more names have been added to the Honor Roll of pupils with teeth in perfect condition.

The fourth grade arithmetic class is now studying common fractions.

Three 3rd grade pupils made straight hundreds last month: Alice Strong, Hubert Bleeks and Robert Ridgway.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

The spelling honor roll last week included Frank Curie, Ruth Donley, Howard Rickett, Sylvia Washler, Marcel Pugsley, Wayne Fetters, Helen Goodwin, Burl Rude, Grant Strong, Marcia Wade, Maxine Woodcox, Christine Zonker, and Melvin Zimmerman.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Baltz, son, Frank and Mr. and Mrs. John Coburn, attended a birthday dinner at the William Henley home in Hicksville, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Curie and baby of Fort Wayne, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Morris Curie, Sunday. They also called on other relatives and friends while here.

Judge Harry W. Muller in Superior Court No. 2, Allen county, has appointed Robert E. Betz administrator of the estate of his father, Samuel W. Betz, who died March 20. The estate has an estimated value of $2,000 in real estate and $1,500 in personal property.

ROBERT WIERS WRITES OF HIS CAMP LIFE

Henryville, Indiana.
March 21, 1934.

Mr. Fred Leighty,
ST. JOE NEWS,
St. Joe, Indiana.

Dear Fred:

Here is a long overdue letter that I promised to write to you, but I just neglected it until now and it is such a beautiful day down here that I have nothing to do except write letters.

I am working in the E. C. W. office here as a stenographer. It is nice work but I do not think that it will last long for I have a hunch that we are going to move to Missouri. I would like to go for the trip to parts of the United States that I have not been in, and this is the opportunity that I have been looking for; therefore I am going to re-enlist for a period of six months, after that I wont be allowed to stay for there is a rule against signing up for more than two terms.

There will be plenty of mistakes in spelling, punctuation, etc., but I am in such a hurry that I want to just give you an imaginary picture of this camp so that you can use for publication. That is if you correct all the mistakes. Ha! Ha!

There are about thirty buildings including the mess halls, recreation halls, orderly rooms, etc., and there are about 600 CCC boys who are working in the nursery, on erosion work and doing all kinds of work that's conected with a forest. There are about 10,000,000 trees in the nursery and about 6000 acres of forest. We are about 1½ miles from the town of Henryville, Indiana and about 24 miles from Louisville, Kentucky.

Up to date there has been about one-half million board feet of lumber sawed in the saw mill for different projects that are going on in the different camps through the state. Purdue University has a contract for the making of sixteen buildings to be built in this forest for the conducting of experiments.

I have to keep records of the trucks and everything connected with the garage. There are 23 trucks which are busy all the time, and there could be about ten or fifteen more in use just as well, if they had them. Our barracks are made portable and are bout 115 feet long. There is room for about forty boys to sleep in these barracks with plenty of room left. Also we have room for all kinds of sports; this winter we usd the Henryville High School gym for our basket ball and to remind you we had the best team in the state although we did not enter the tourney.

I can't think of anything else to say right now but I will write to you later and give you more details.

Your friend,
Bob.

William Robert Wiers,
CCC Co. 586, Camp S-68

RUSSELL BORTHWICK WRITES FROM CALIFORNIA

Underway for Long Beach
From San Francisco
March 15, 1934.

Dear Mother:

Here you are talking of below zero weather, while I'm about burning up. It has been up around 80 and 90 degrees F., the last few days, which is some more of "California's unusual weather." San Francisco is usually cold and windy and rough or foggy, but when we came yesterday it was real nice, and it was rather warm last night. It probbly can't last. I went ashore yesterday and was out to the Golden Gate Park, saw some of those Great North American bison that you read about. The Tennessee came up here to take off some unused ammunition and take on some more before we start east.

You see its quite a job to move pieces of steel 14 inches thick, about 3½ feet long, and weighing 1400 pounds. We've moved about 2400 rounds with the powder bags, so you can guess what it is like. Another advantage of being fireman is I don't have anything to do with gunnery, and therefore, don't have to help handle ammunition.

We wont go any farther north before we start east. I guess that fog that hit you started out here, because we had about a week or so of it. We usually have fog in the morning, but generally it lifts at noon or before.

I suppose you know they have started the enormous project of building a bridge across the bay from Frisco to Oakland. They are just now setting the foundations. We anchored not far from a couple of them.

It surely surprises me to hear that DuWayne got married, I just can't picture him married. I am about the only one left, I guess I am getting to be an old bachelor, or maybe being a sailor, I'm not supposed to get married.

With Love, Russell..

ASSETS OF BANK SHOWN IN REPORT

The assets of the St. Joe Valley Bank, according to the appraisal filed in the DeKalb Circuit Court, show a market value of $53,776.57, and the Ashley State Bank's assets have been placed at $33,916.12.

The banks were closed some time ago and Frank M. Brandon, of Auburn, was appointed special representative to liquidate them.

Warren Lige, of Auburn, Merritt Sechler, of St. Joe, and L. C. Harding, of Butler, made the appraisals.

The details of the St. Joe Bank's appraisement follow: Bills receivable, $15,142.45; mortgage loans, $27,386; bonds and securities, $970; bank building, $1,500; other real estate, $2,100; cash in Auburn State Bank, $6,116.50; cash on hand, $221.62; furniture and fixtures, $350. The book value of the notes, mortgages and bonds was marked down somewhat by the appraisers. The bonds had a book value of $5,050.

The court set May 28 as the date when creditors, shareholders or other persons interested may appear and file objections to the appraisals. The legal notice to this effect will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Sam Dailey is working at East Chicago.

Wellington Blalock and family, of Hicksville moved to St. Joe Friday, and are occupying the Grover Curie home.

Mrs. Ada Berry, grandson, Jimmy and Mrs. Mary Betz spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Hazel Steward of Spencerville.

Byron Woodcox is under quarantine at the John Woodcox home, but is much better at this time. The sign says scarlet fever.

Clayton Baker and family moved Tuesday to the John Koch farm north of town. He will exchange work with his father who lives on the Curie farm nearby, and will not have to make an investment of machinery in starting.

Too Poor to Propose

IF DORIS WHITE had not fallen into his arms, Bob Richards would never have given her another thought.

He was clumping up the last flight of dark, oilcloth covered stairs, when he heard a little gasp and then something soft and yielding was flung head first into his arms. He caught her as easily as he had caught the ball when he was fielder, and having set her on her feet gently asked in his big voice with the trace of huskiness in it, "Hurt any?"

She breathed quickly, and answered, "I—I guess you saved my life!" There was just the suggestion of a laugh in that voice that went straight to Bob's heart.

"You see, I must have caught my toe in the oilcloth," she explained.

Bob thought she had the softest, sweetest voice he had heard for a long time.

"I think my dinner is forever lost!" Doris said sadly, stooping to feel about the stairs.

They found at last the head of lettuce, the two rolls still in their bag and the lemon that was to help make up the dinner. In the process they said several things to each other, altogether trite and yet somehow most illuminating.

So it was not strange that the second time Bob ran into the occupant of the hall bedroom he lifted his hat and stopped to talk.

The third time they met, Bob asked directly, "Would you take a walk with me this afternoon?"

The faintest tinge of color showed through Doris' white skin and she said—for it was Saturday—"I'd love to!"

They walked along Fifth avenue, stopping before the shop windows to peer in and feeling a part of all the thrill and stir of an afternoon on the avenue.

Doris' eyes were shining and she was actually prettier each time Bob Richards looked down at her.

The next Saturday it rained and Doris hesitated and then knocked at the door on the second floor that bore the card: "Robert Richards."

"I thought you might have tea with me, it's such a cold, dismal kind of afternoon," Doris offered shyly.

At the answering gleam of pleasure in his eyes Doris hurried up the flight of stairs. She knew it would mean that she must lunch meagerly all the following week, but she bought crumpets—toasted them over her gas burner—and a tiny jar of marmalade, and a spray of narcissus to put in the bowl by the window.

At his loud rap she opened her door and smiled up at him.

Bob laid down a box of candy as he said, "I bought it for the party," and looked about him curiously.

For it was the oddest hall bedroom he had ever seen. He had imagined a room with a bureau and an iron bed, and enough room just to sit on the one chair. What he saw was a room with two windows and an alcove, a room that looked sunny in spite of the fact that it was raining, because the walls were yellow and charming sunny colored chints hung at the windows and covered the cushions of the two brown tinted wicker chairs.

Gleaming brass candlesticks were on a table in the corner, a brilliant color print of blue mountain and an icy mountain brook hung over the gray-painted table. A couch under a tumble of cushions—and a black luster bowl held the frail narcissus in the window.

Doris sitting down at the table pouring tea into clear yellow cups, he suddenly saw as another girl. A girl removed from his own hard struggles by all the beauty of this charming room. Why, she must earn more in a week than he did to have a place like this!

For a month Doris scarcely saw the owner of the room on the second floor. When she did meet him by chance, he hurried past her with an abrupt "Good evening!"

But once when she climbed the two flights of stairs and saw that Bob's door was open and a strange girl was standing by the black marble mantelpiece, her heart seemed like a piece of lead. She could scarcely drag herself away.

"Oh, do you live on the floor above?" the strange girl asked eagerly. "I've seen your room and it is so pretty—"

Doris answered, wondering how she could go on talking when the bottom of her little world had dropped out.

"I bought the hangings on Sixth avenue at a sale, and the candlesticks in Allen street for $1.25; you can find some second-hand furniture and paint it yourself; oh, yes, I'll show you how." She smiled wistfully and went on up the stairs.

But the blood thrummed in her ears madly when she heard clumping steps behind her. Doris turned to see Bob Richards coming toward her with a bewildered, dawning happiness in his eyes.

"I heard what you said," he began, "I had to come back. I thought I'd go away and try to forget you—for I knew I couldn't ask a girl with all you had to marry a poor fellow like me. You mean it, Doris, you fixed up that room out of nothing?"

He caught her hands and looked down into her eyes.

"Don't you know I love you?"

"But—" she whispered.

"I was ashamed to ask a rich girl to marry me," he said as he took her in his arms.

FARMING IN CHINA

Chinese Foot-Power Irrigation Wheel.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

CHINA has its lean years and fat, its serious famines in some sections, but on the whole it performs pretty well its stupendous job of feeding a quarter of the human race. And it has carried on successfully for thousands of years, although it has had none of the advantages of scientific bureaus for the study of soils, crops, and weather conditions.

This enviable position China owes to the note of permanent agriculture struck by its husbandmen when our ancestors were skin-clad nomads. In no other country on earth is it so true that "all trade, as all life, rests upon the farmer's primitive activity."

In China this is all the more significant, for its soil has been cultivated since the days of Noah, and has supported the densest population in the world through milleniums of history longer and more checkered than our own.

It is difficult to determine at exactly what period the Chinese settled in the "Middle Kingdom," but the latest archeological discoveries seem to prove that their first home on the Great Plain of northern China, near the Yellow river, was made so early that they may, perhaps, be counted as the aborigines of the northwest China provinces.

The Chinese themselves attribute to the Emperor Shen Nung, who is supposed to have lived about 2700 B. C., the arts of husbandry and the invention of the plow. This mythical personage still remains the patron of farmers and was, until the abolition of the monarchy, in 1911, worshiped yearly at the season of the spring sowing by the emperor in Peiping, and by his delegates in every province.

To this sovereign are also credited the original arrangements with regard to landed property in China. As a matter of fact, it seems probable that the early settlers separated into clans or family groups, that these clans came naturally to vest authority in elders, and that the latter in the course of ages became the rulers and, finally, the owners of the land.

Vast Areas Not Cultivated.

Despite the density of the rural population in China, where, in some provinces, there are sections having 3,800 people, 884 donkeys, and 884 pigs to the square mile, or 240 people, 24 donkeys, and 24 pigs to one of our 40-acre farms, there remain vast areas of uncultivated, because uncultivatable, mountain land in China proper.

The Chinese are able to live on their small holdings only by reason of favorable climatic conditions, the fertility of the soil, effective agricultural methods, extreme personal economy, and the small taxes taken by the state.

That wise old Emperor K'ang Hsi, in honor of the fifty years' jubilee of his reign, in 1711 A. D., issued a decree saying that "as the population of the empire increased, the amount of arable land did not increase," and that the land tax should, therefore, be estimated on the census of that year and should never be increased. It never was.

In 1753 the total revenue from the land tax stood at taels 29,000,000, or about $22,000,000 in gold, and in 1900 taels 27,000,000 were collected from the same source, the decrease being accounted for by the calamities of the preceding years.

If the week-end traveler in China gets the idea from looking out of train windows that he is in a land of continuous farms and vegetable gardens; his impressions are largely due to the fact that wherever cultivation is possible it is highly intensive, and that not an inch which might be used is wasted.

One Family to the Farm.

The working of a Chinese farm depends entirely upon personal human labor and generally upon that of one family.

Tradition, custom, and economic conditions do not encourage the investment of capital for large-scale farming.

The fields of China, as already pointed out, have been cultivated for several thousand years by the same method without overtaxing their resources. This remarkable fact is due to certain peculiarities of the soil itself, plus very careful working, guided by the experience of centuries.

"When we reflect upon the depleted fertility of our own older farm lands," as Prof. F. H. King remarks, "comparatively few of which have seen a century's service, and upon the enormous quantity of mineral fertilisers which are being annually applied to them in order to secure paying yields, we cannot but admire how the Chinese have managed to maintain so well the first condition of farming—soil fertility—and to solve the problem of soil exhaustion, one of the most fundamental, difficult, and vital problems of all civilized people."

Perhaps the greatest agricultural triumph of the Chinese farmer is his knowledge and use of natural fertilizers. He cannot afford—nor, in many places, could he obtain them, even were he able to pay the price—expensive phosphates and nitrates commercially prepared. The chief aids he can enlist in his everlasting battle against soil exhaustion are human and animal manure.

In the West, and more especially in the United States, "man," to quote Professor King again, "is the most extravagant accelerator of waste the world has ever endured. His withering blight has fallen upon every living thing within his reach, himself not excepted, and his besom of destruction in the uncontrolled hands of a generation has swept into the sea soil fertility which only centuries of life could accumulate. . . .

Fertilizer Carefully Saved.

"On the basis of the data of Wolff, Kellner, and of Carpenter, or of Hall, the people of the United States and of Europe are (yearly) pouring into the sea, lakes, and rivers, and into the underground waters, from 5,794,300 to 12,000,000 pounds of nitrogen, 1,881,900 to 4,151,000 pounds of potassium, and 777,200 to 3,057,600 pounds of phosphorus per million of adult population, and this waste we esteem one of the great achievements of our civilization. Whereas in China all this is saved and returned to the fields."

Near every farmhouse, and often in a proximity to the living rooms that shock our olfactory nerves, stand potter jars for storing this precious fertilizer, later to be diluted with water before it is "fed to the crops."

Household waste, stubble, roughage from the fields, ashes, and the droppings from passing caravans, carefully collected by small boys with baskets and scoops, are all made into compost by being mixed with earth.

Agriculture in China falls naturally into two great divisions—the "wet farming" of the canal, or rice-growing, country, and the "dry farming" of the northern plains, or grain-growing section.

The outstanding feature of Chinese agriculture is the amount of human labor expended upon it. Fields are prepared by hand, often watered by hand. Seeds are sown and crops fertilized and reaped by hand.

From dawn to dusk the farmer's family and animals work on the land, often cooking the midday meal—a mess of millet—on an improvised mud stove and using as a manger for their beasts the cart that has carried out compost and will bring home the ripe crop.

Though groups of villagers sometimes work together, hired help is rare. Consequently, the Chinese farmer and his family work their own lands unaided. This means, of course, phenomenal energy on the part of all.

How Rice Is Grown.

Nowhere is the industry of the Chinese farmer better illustrated than in the southern, or rice-growing, provinces, where climatic conditions permit of several (sometimes as many as four) crops a year from the same soil.

Since rice is not only the staple, but the favorite food of the people, from the highest to the lowest, it is not surprising that paddy fields form an eighth of the total area of cultivated land in China.

Yet, notwithstanding the enormous acreage of rice planted each year since 3000 B. C., this crop is all set out in clumps and every spear transplanted by hand. The double operation allows the farmers to economize their land and save in many ways except in labor, the one thing they have in superabundance.

Each rice field is surrounded by its own little dam a foot high. Some of these fields are no larger than a small room, and one observer says he saw "some in the interior of China no larger than a dining table, even one bearing its crop, surrounded by its rim and holding water, yet scarcely larger than a good-sized napkin."

In a corner of his field the thrifty husbandman prepares his nursery for raising seedlings sufficient to plant his whole land. The soil is churned up by the plow until it becomes a mixture of wet mud and manure about the consistency of porridge. Seeds, which are then thickly sown, sprout in a very few days, turning the nursery into a carpet of young green plants.

The rest of the land has, meanwhile, been prepared for their reception, embankments made water-tight, etc.

Enough water is admitted, by artificial means if the rainfall cannot be depended upon, to a depth of several inches, a rake-harrow used to remove grass and weeds uprooted by the plow, and the soil again worked over to a well-smoothed surface.

Following Old Custom, Venetian Girls Parade

Twelve weddings will be the result of a score of girls, bent on finding husbands, riding the canals of Venice in heavily beflowered gondolas, reviving a traditional Venetian marriage custom.

In days of old, the doges of the city believed in matrimony and "more babies," just as Mussolini does today. To encourage marriages, the doges used to assign a dowry to 12 girls chosen from among many candidates. The fortunate young women were then paraded in a richly decorated boat through the city canals to attract the attention of all eligible young men. The ceremony unfailingly occurred on the feast of the Purification of the Virgin.

The marriage hunt was commemorated every year uninterruptedly from 944 A. D. until the Fourteenth century, when Venetian girls became self-conscious and shy and refused to submit to the "humiliating" public search for a husband. It was then thought to replace the girls by dummies, but the attempt proved a failure.

Whose Fault?

The Boy or Girl Who Refuses to Eat

"What have I ever done to deserve a child who refuses to eat, and is just skin and bones?" The mother who asks that question might be surprised to learn that she alone is to blame. She knows a lack of appetite is the sign of a clogged system, but does the wrong thing to remedy the condition. A violent cathartic that upsets the stomach pulls down a child like a spell of sickness. It often forms the laxative habit. A more sensible way of regulating children is explained in the column to the right:

It's a lucky girl whose mother knows how to regulate her children's bowels without some strong, evil-tasting cathartic that upsets the system and ruins their appetite! Whenever sluggishness coats the little tongue, makes the whites of the eyes a bilious yellow, or a child is headachy and fretful, just try pure California Syrup of Figs. The senna in this fruity laxative is so agreeable to take, so natural in action! Get real California Syrup of Figs at any drug store. The bottle should say 'California'.

TIME NOT WASTED

The irate parent stormed up and down the room before the nervous-looking young man.

"What, sir!" he shouted. "You have the nerve to come to my office to ask for my daughter?. Well, I might as well tell you that you could have saved yourself the journey."

The suitor sighed wearily.

"Well, that's all right, sir," he said. "You see, I had another message to deliver in the same building."

Old Nick Was Spry

A man caught a boy in his garden stealing apples and handed him to the police.

As it was the boy's first offense, the judge let him off, but told him never to yield to such temptation again, adding: "Ye should have flown from the evil one."

"So I did, sir," replied the boy, "but he caught me before I got over the fence!"—Border Cities Star.

THE FLAVOR L-A-S-T-S

Coats on the Spring Style Program

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

THE calendar declaring advent of spring, the thermometer contradicting the glad news by registering winter's lingering touch, and in the meantime the spring style parade schedules for an early date—what to wear, aye, that's the question! With what tantalizing persistence does the clothes problem disturb our peace of mind at this time of the year.

Howsoever, here's to take cheer, for we believe you will agree with us that in the perfectly stunning cape-coats in the picture we find the answer. It is not only that the soft, downy light-as-a-feather rabbit worsteds which fashion these coats assure protection against almost anything which is apt to happen in the way of weather, but when it comes to "looks" it would be difficult to conceive of a new spring outfit which could surpass either of these distinctive models.

Both are developed in reversible fabric of soft rabbit woolen, with one side pastel monotone and the other side plaided in harmonizing shades. This type of material is well suited to the draped lines favored for spring, being especially adaptable to the styling of the hood or monk collars, which so smartly detail many of the newer coats. The fabric feels very soft against the flesh, having only the finest rabbit fur woven into it. In its modernized version it has no resemblance to the so-called hairy fabrics introduced last fall, which were ofttimes rough in surface and inclined to feel scratchy. Combining as it does, light weight with warmth, weaves of rabbit woolen are acceptable for wear from now into late spring and then some.

Nor has the half been told of the charm of this material since mere black and white print fails to convey the message of beguiling color which these reversible weaves carry. The very spirit of spring breathes through the lovely pastel monotones reversed as they are with large plaids in harmonizing shades. All you have to do is to know your colors and the salespeople will do the rest, placing before your eager eyes either the materials to be bought by the yard or the very garments themselves, styled as in the illustration, of rabbit worsteds in exquisitely springlike grayed greens such as stand foremost on fashion's color card, or in the misty pastel blues which are of wide appeal or mayhap in a voguish dusky pink, or if you prefer in one of the new yellowish tones which spell chic with emphasis, the color symphony ever enhanced with a blended reverse plaiding.

In the model to the left the coat and long cape are made all in one. It is interesting to note, too, that the coat part is backless to the waist, so that the cape clings closely at the shoulders. The wrap-around effect is characteristic of this season's slenderized silhouettes.

The shorter caped ensemble to the right is styled along unusual lines. The unique side closing with buttons which look like shells from the seashore, and the standup collar which fences the throat are smart features. The plaid-lined cape is made with long belt-ends which pull through a slit at the back, tieing at the front casually and adjustably, so that the garment can be fitted exactly to the wearer's figure. A one-piece dress with elbow-length sleeves is worn under this cape. It has a high neck closing with a narrow tie of the reversible fabric swatches of the plaid appearing on the tops of two little pockets.

FOR HER TROUSSEAU

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

This lovely nightdress, you'd almost think it a summer evening gown, was one shown at the spring fashion openings in Paris. It is exquisitely made and would bring joy to the heart of any debutante. For the spring bride's trousseau it is ideal. It is fashioned of pale blue georgette. The same choice lace which makes the shoulder ruffles and yoke, is cut out to form the double band incrustations and the cunning bow tie.

Spring Fabrics

New fabrics include "feathered" organdies barred and dotted with cotton chenille, and organdies embroidered in big chenille dots for summer evening frocks.

FEMININE STYLES LOSE MASCULINITY

Dresses are finally appearing without mannish cut. A whole parade of little beauties wear sports outfits that are soft and breezy with ruffles.

The tie silks, which a year ago would simply have shrieked masculine attire, are this year's feminine delights. Whether soft or stiff tie silk, the collars are ruffled or pleated. This frilly touch takes care of all the trimming touches on the dresses.

It's a positive fact now that spring is to be lively, and very hot tamale. The Mexican style and coloring have caught on in a bright way.

In the sports department the two-piece dress is being shown in a tuck-in style with the top and the skirt in different colors. It's a nice idea as it offers an alternative blouse. If you don't like this idea, you can trim the blouse with the skirt fabric, giving it a nice ensemble touch.

Bows at Heels Are Fad in Spring Footwear Styles

The back of the shoe will have no reason to feel slighted this spring. In keeping with the extensive use of bows at the back of dresses, new footwear styles include dainty little bows at the heels.

In some of the styles this new heel bow is of ribbon matching the dress in color and carried through loops at the side of the shoe.

Shankless kid opera pumps, with no sole under the arch, are another innovation in footwear fashions—one on which a designer is said to have spent five years of experimentation. Instead of a sole the upper of the shoe is brought down under the arch and seamed.

Spring Note in Scarfs

Scarfs of crinkled taffeta ribbon, of fluffy chenille wound around the throat or of shining cravat silk sound a springtime note contrasting with winter styles.

"Career" Never of First Importance to Women

"Try it—it's important for you to know for the rest of your life that you haven't really missed anything."

The idea contained in this short paragraph called forth the following comment from a widely read woman writer:

"That thought on the things we miss looming so much larger and more important and more pleasurable just because we have missed them! It brought to my mind the thought of the married women who bemoan the careers they have missed, or think they might have had.

"The most happily married woman I know is one who previously had a 'career,' that is, she had an opportunity to work for a living at a profession. She achieved success at it, and then gave it up to marry and settle down in a suburb. She now gives her entire time to her two children and her attractive, one-maid home.

"Wherever that woman goes, she is approached by others, admiring, envious, puzzled, who exclaim, 'Oh—were you a decorator—really—with your own studio? And don't tell me you gave it all up when you married!' Then 'Oh—if I could do the sort of thing you did, nothing would make me give it up! But I never had the chance!'

"But the woman who could do it—who did do it—differed from them in her sense of values. You see, she had not missed anything.

"To the woman who has missed it, a 'career' is very likely to seem all pleasurable excitement. The grinding work necessary to attain and then keep one's place; the strain of competition, the subordinating of all pleasures or interests that might in any way interfere with one's work, the constant and unceasing necessity for concentrating on that one aim, the heartbreak of failures and setbacks—all these are unknown to her. But they are every-day experiences of every man and woman faced with the responsibility of earning a living, of obtaining the wherewithal to keep the wheels of mere existence going 'round in the face of relentlessly recurring firsts of the month!

"The woman who has tried that is not likely to exaggerate its advantages or to feel imposed upon because some one else has taken on that job for her. Also it will not be difficult for her to appreciate the compensating factors in just keeping house. It is too bad for many discontented wives that they 'never had the chance.'"

SURPRISE PARTY

What a jolly time when old friends get together! That's what happened last Wednesday in Spencerville. Mrs. Walter Baker had often remarked that no group of friends ever surprised her, and so, knowing she was ill, a group of girlhood friends got together and planned a party which was a complete surprise. The ladies gathered early in the forenoon bringing baskets well filled for a pot luck dinner. The ladies also presented Mrs. Baker with a very beautiful hyacinth.

Those present were: Agnes Monroe and Emma Freeburn, of St. Joe; Marie Draggoo, of Concord; Flossie Mavis, of Auburn; Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Perry and daughter, Betsy Ann, of Kalamazoo; Helen Benninghoff and De-Veta Reed, of Fort Wayne; Pauline Baumgartner, Vernie Rhodes, Zelpha Steward and daughter, Gloria Ann, of Spencerville.

Other guests this past week in the Baker home were Wilbur Perry and wife; Albert Perry and wife, and Newton Perry.

Assessors in 927 townships in Indiana will be abolished after this year, and the work taken care of by the trustee at no salary increase. DeKalb will only have two elected.

Mrs. Charles Bishop, daughters, Frances and Zella, Mrs. Weikle and daughter, Elizabeth, Mrs. McCann and granddaughter and Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick, spent an afternoon recently with Mrs. Glen Warstler, north of town.

Mr. Adam Shilling died Sunday morning after several weeks illness at his home here. Funeral was held Wednesday afternoon from the M. P. Church, with burial in the K. of P. Cemetery.. Obituary will appear in next issue.

Even The News can assist you in getting work. Last week Foster Gee run a 10c ad in the classified column asking for work, and by Friday, he was employed, otherwise he would have been idle. Why not try these little ads for to help you.

A chicken dinner was served Thursday evening at the Mrs. Lela Northrup home to Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Gerdes, Mrs. Mabelle Thornton and children and ye editor and wife. The table was laden with all the extras that make a chicken dinner attractive. When you say chicken, we go immediately, if it is meal time. Thank you.

The St. Joe Merchants were defeated in the final game of the Gold Medal tournament by the Hicksville Merchants 25-19. The local Merchants had defeated, Woodburn, Grover Hill and the Lianos Brothers of Defiance to go to the finals. St. Joe was well represented, and the team wants to thank all of you fans who sat there in that gym and "pulled" for us. Watch for our announcement of the grand finale. We are going to have our entire tourney team in action against some fast team.

VOL. XLIX — ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1934 — NUMBER 14

50 Years Ago

Taken from the files of the St. Joe News, 50 years ago—M. E. Olds, Editor

Charlie Meek went to Avilla last Wednesday.

Dr. Sheffer will have a fine office when completed.

M. T. Bishop received another car load of lime this week.

Commissioner B. D. Thomas of Garrett was in town last week.

John McHugh will sell his household goods at auction next Monday.

Charlie Meek and wife will leave for their new home in Avilla next week.

Quite a heavy frost occurred through this section of country last Wednesday night.

John P. Widney and wife of Bellville, Ohio, were in this vicinity last week visiting relatives.

The railroad bridge over Bear Creek near Concord came near burning down yesterday morning.

We received a letter from Prof. Gordon last week. He is well and sends his regards to all his friends here.

Quite a number attended the social at Mrs. Engle's last Friday evening, and they report having a splendid time.

Mueller, the brewer of Tiffin, Ohio, failed last week. He used to ship lots of beer into this part of the country, but we hope he is so badly smashed up that he will never do it again.

Morris Widney is married. Morris is a splendid singer, and is acquainted with a great many different songs, but he will probably sing something new in the musical way, now.

The DeKalb County Sunday School Convention will be held at Corunna this year, on the 10th and 11th of June. An interesting programme has been arranged, and it is hoped as many as possible will attend.

The drink bill of this country last year is estimated at $75,000,000, and the number of criminals caused by the whiskey traffic is 500,000. The money squandered in drink and its consequences in Ohio alone in one year would buy lots and build comfortable houses for over 25,000 families. Just please, Mr. Beerdrinker, set down and think about these stratling facts.

The Immortal J. N. was in town today.

Wm. Stauffer, formerly agent at this place was in town Thursday.

Wool is beginning to come into market and low prices prevail.

Another republican voter arrived at Vince Dilley's last Wednesday.

T. S. Merica, trustee of Keyser township, was in town a few hours one day last week.

Joe Baker went to Hicksville yesterday to assist one of the barbers of that place.

George M. Williams and wife of Zanesville, Ohio, were visiting in town last week, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Davis.

John Widney moved into town last week and thereby increased the population of St. Joe by an addition of seven inhabitants.

H. K. Reynolds is now agent at this place, J. S. Davis having been transferred to Milford Junction. J. H. Trippe is back working at night again.

Remember the next social will be held in Leighty's Orchard, and the Jackson Center Cornet Band will be present. Strawberries and Ice Cream will be the bill of fare. Don't forget it.

The Decoration Day exercises were well carried out and due honor was paid to the memory of those who died in their country's defense. Rev. Stewart of Garrett was the speaker of the day.

John Leighty received a postal card from Fort Wayne the other day, with the following written upon it:

"Cousin John, I've received the St. Joe News,
And heard it read from beginning to end;
Can only say it beats the Jews,
What customers get when so little they spend.

Your town is growing, I see very plain,
And already has the airs of a city:
Although not as large as Fort Wayne,
It is very sprightly and pretty.
Your Cousin, Walter Filley."

LOWER BACTERIA COUNT
with Electric Milk Coolers

An Electric Milk Cooler will keep the bacteria count below the danger point better than any other method. It is common experience to reduce the bacteria count with an Electric Cooler to one third of the count with other types of coolers. Temperatures are kept well below 50 degrees even in the hottest weather and there is no labor of cutting, storing and handling ice. Properly cooled milk means profits to the dairy farmer. Once again, Electricity solves a farm problem and puts money in the bank while eliminating old-fashioned drudgery.

INDIANA & MICHIGAN ELECTRIC COMPANY

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

Junior Class Play

On Saturday evening of this week the Junior class will present their play entitled "Old Days in Dixie."

Last P. T A. Meeting

Thursday evening, April 12, is the date set for the final P. T. A. meeting for this school year. The program will be presented by musical talent from the school under the direction of C. A. Woodcox. Officers of the P. T. A. will be elected on this night for the next school year. Come!

Last Assembly Program

The music department, under the direction of Mr. Woodcox, provided the eveienth and last assembly program for the school year on Thursday morning of last week. The first part of this program was furnished by the boys chorus from the upper four grades of high school. The latter part of the program was given by the girls chorus.

Several are planning on attending the high school music program which will be given in Garrett on next Friday evening. All the high schools of the county will furnish pupils for a combined chorus. An additional number on this program will be furnished by individual schools.

There have been several visitors in both grades and high school during the past week. Those who wish to visit school should remember that the school year will soon end.

A volley ball tourney is being played during the noon hour intermission this week.

Mrs. Bruce Gerdes has been teaching this week due to Miss Ditmars illness.

New paint has brightened the appearance of several rooms. A new cabinet for the home economics room is under construction. Soon an order will be placed for additional library books and we will be better prepared for reference and supplementary reading.

First and Second Grades

April Bowser, Calvin Hull, June Strong, Leora Wilmot, Mary Louise Woodcox, Gloria Zonker and Jimmie Kees were on the Honor Roll last month.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

The spelling honor roll last week included Ruth Donley, Evelyn George, Jack Goodwin, Ruth Keesler, Helen Goodwin, Betty Kees, Burr Rude, Marian Wade, Maxine Woodcox and Melvin Zimmerman.

Those who have received head marks in the fifth grade history are Ruth Keesler, Frank Curie, Jack Goodwin, Myra Keesler, Howard Rickett, Evelyn George, Marcel Pugsley, Leila Hurni, Ruth Donley and Barbara Strok.

BISHOP—HENDERSON

The English custom of open church was observed at the wedding of Miss Kathryn Bishop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bishop, 10408 Marlowe Avenue, Celveland, and Mr. Myron Henderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Henderson, 505 East 108th Street, Cleveland, which took place Saturday evening, March 10th, at eight o'clock at the Glenville Christian Church. Miss Maxine Henderson, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Lilah Barker were bridesmaids. L. J. Henderson and William Dennis were best men and Frank Bishop, Ted O'koski and John Rodie served as ushers

The wedding service was read by the Rev. Franklin D. Butchart, pastor of the church before an altar of palms and candelabra. The solos were beautifully sung by Mrs. Thelma Rowe Milliken, accompanied by Mrs. Sidney Mong at the organ.

The bride's gown was made of heavy ivory brocaded satan. It was a gift and an heirloom having been worn by her aunt, Mrs. H. C. Hathaway, Auburn, Ind., thirty-five yers ago. The cream net veil which was worn with the gown was designed by the Halle Co.

After the ceremony a wedding reception was held in the social rooms of the church to one hundred and thirty invited guests. The color scheme was yellow and white. The tables were decorated by the Halle Co. with yellow cathedral candles surrounded by daffodils and white fuchsias.

Mr. and Mrs. Henderson will be at home at 13902 Idarose, Cleveland.

The out of town guests were Mrs. Mahlon Baker and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway, Auburn, Ind.; Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Hathaway, Butler, Ind.; Mrs. F. G. Baker, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Barns and daughter, of Toledo, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Birney, of Akron, Ohio.

LEAVE IT TO THE BOY

Morgan County, which lists among her native sons both John Dillinger and Governor McNutt who paroled him, still buzzes with talk on what they term the "Clown Point affair."

Boys in the streets call each other "Whittlin' John," oldsters shake their heads one moment and "wisecrack" the next, but it has remained for a tow-headed youngster of 15 to dramatize the whole situation.

This boy is doing a big business selling "pictures" of Dillinger all done up in envelopes for a dime. When customers open the envelopes and find them empty, they usually shout:

"Hey, boy. There's nothing here."

"Well, I'll be darned," says the youngster, "has the Governor let him out again?"

P. S.—That gets the dime.

THE TALE OF A SHIRT

Rhame Worler Sends His Laundry Home to be Washed.

A youngCCC lost his BVD,
So the PTA sent an SOS
To the CWA who was CTQ,
As the FRA had out the CAN
To the PWA with a near KO.
And the NRA was all FOB
So the AAA sent it COD,
But the USA wired PDQ
To the RFC for its IOU.
Now its all OK at the MTC,
For the CCC got his BVD.

MEN TO BE GIVEN WORK NEXT WEEK

Only Persons on Relief Rolls Will Get Employment Under New Set-up in DeKalb County

Glenn Talbert, certifying officer for the CWA and Robert Little, assistant director of work who were at Indianapolis Saturday to learn the status of the local administrative office, said Monday that some men will be put to work between April 9 and 12. The exact number to be given employment or the allocation of work was not learned. All CWA projects have been abandoned and under the new plan only those who are on relief rolls will be employed.

A case worker trained by the state will be sent here to investigate applicants for the new work and only those who have been approved by that official will be accepted.

A total of $1,781,000 was spent in Indiana during the past week with 104,000 persons employed but there has now been set aside only $1,300,000 for the entire month of April, covering all classes of work. The work will be carried out in sixty counties with approximately 24,000 workers employed in the state, compared to 43,500 employed at the end of last week on CWA projects.

No trucks, teams or equipment will be used under the new set-up and only those on relief rolls will be taken on. Educational projects will not be included under the new plan. Those now in progress will be discontinued May 15th.

During the time the CWA has operated in DeKalb county with a peak employment of 620 persons, $124,099.78 was paid to workers.

Those who worked up until last Saturday in DeKalb county will receive their final pay this week of $1,432.25 for 2,494 hours on eighteen projects.

Vision

If you look at a pile of lumber what do you see? One man sees boards. Another sees that they have a clear grain, free from knots. Still another sees in those boards furniture factories, furniture stores, and finally tastefully furnished homes with beautifully polished table tops, buffets, and chairs.

When you look at a text on grammar, what do you see? Do you see hours, weeks, and months of drudgery grinding through its pages? Or do you see opportunity smiling forth? Can you see walking from its pages, listening senates, masters of oratory, authors of literary masterpieces? Can you see great audiences swayed from tears to laughter and applause?

Every one of us have defective eyes. Some are more defective than others. Some see only the external features of the things at which they gaze. Some see the possibilities of tomorrow, next year, and for future years.

Try another test. Look in the mirror. What do you see? Do you see th waves in your hair? Do you see a pug nose, a frank honest face, or one showing weakness, weakness, lack of ambition and failure? Do you see traces of rugged honesty, a kindly sympathy, and a strong positive character? Do you see a successful man, or a successful woman struggling for place and expression in the years to come? Do you see low ideals written in your features, or high and noble ones? Do you see there a great musician, nurse, teacher, minister, lawyer, physician, dentist, engineer, or some other leader in his profession? If you do, then you have vision.

Is vision sufficient? By all means, no! Dreams are not visions, and visions are not success. Visions must become definite plans, and plans must be carried out. The results are our successes. Thousands have dreamed and their dreams have died with them. Thousands have had visions, and they have passed with their authors. Many have made plans, and procrastinated until it was too late to execute their plans. When shall we begin? Now! Get your vision, then plan, and then act! Not tomorrow! Can it be done in a day? No, it takes years, but you must begin to day. Tomorrow is no better than today, and may be worse. Satan's half brother is named 'Procrastination.'

MORTUARY

BETZ

Samuel W. Betz, son of Samuel and Rebecca Betz, was born September 16, 1860 in Springfield Township, Allen County, Indiana, and departed this life March 20, 1934, at the age of 73 years, 6 months and 4 days.

His death was very sudden and was a great shock to his many relatives and friends. He was on his way to Harlan, going south on the Ruppert Road, and as he left the Ruppert Road turning on State Road 14, a truck struck his car demolishing the car and throwing him clear of the wreckage. The ambulance took him to Ft. Wayne to the Lutheran Hospital, but he passed away just before reaching the hospital without regaining consciousness. He was brought to the home of his son, Robert E. Betz.

His home has always been in Springfield Township. In the year of 1891 he was united in marriage to Minnie Helter, daughter of Peter and Caroline Helter. To this union two sons were born, Walter and Robert. Walter being a soldier of the World War. He died at Camp Wheeler, Macon, Georgia, December 6, 1917. His wife, Minnie, passed away March 5, 1923. He leaves to mourn his departure one son and wife, two grandsons, residing in Springfield Towship, two sisters, Sadie Reichelderfer, of Quincy, Mich., and Nettie Helf, of Defiance, Ohio, many nieces and nephews and a host of other relatives and friends.

It was the will of the Heavenly Father who is too wise to err and too loving to be unkind, to call him away from his earthly home.

Funeral services were held at Springfield Center, with Rev. A. K. Mumma, officiating. Interment at North Scipio Cemetery, Thursday. Oetting & Son funeral directors.

SHILLING

Adam Shilling was born on September 29, 1855 at the place where Howard Shilling now lives and departed this life on March 25, 1934 in his home in St. Joe, Indiana, aged 78 years, 5 months and 27 days. On May 20, 1891 he united in marriage with Malinda Sowers. To this union was born one son Howard, who lives on the farm near St. Joe.

He united with the Methodist Protestant Church at Concord on February 14, 1888 but transferred to St. Joe on November 25, 1915. He was active in the church until his health failed him when he became of necessity less active.

His illness was long although he was bedfast only a short time. He fell into his last sleep easily.

He leaves to mourn their loss his widow, his son, Howard, a foster daughter, Lucile Wiler, two grandchildren, Richard Allen and James Howard, four brothers, Daniel, of Concord, Josephus, of St. Joe, John, of Spencerville and William, of Richmond, and a sister, Mrs. Viena Doll, of Spencerville.

Funeral services were held from the Methodist Church Wednesday afternoon, March 28, conducted by Rev. Waler Coburn. Burial in the K. of P. Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends who so kindly assisted us in the sickness, death and burial, also their kind words of sympathy, of our husband and father.

Mrs. Adam Shilling.
Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shilling.
Miss Lucille Wiler.

WOMAN TAKES OWN LIFE SATURDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Minnie Rhodes, 59, living with her husband on the Simmons farm on the Indiana-Ohio State Line, north of Georgetown, took her own life, Saturday night, March 24, due to despondency over continued ill health.

The husband, Berton Rhodes, and a son, Merwood Rhodes, left the home about 7 o'clock Saturday evening, and went to Hicksville, Ohio, to execute some business, returning to the home about 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Rhodes was missed about the house, and in consequence a search was started, the husband and son being much alarmed.

A search about the house and barn failed to find her, when attention was drawn to an open door in a double corn crib with a feeding floor or enclosed driveway between two cribs.

There the body of Mrs. Rhodes was found, hanging from a rope between the two cribs, the rope having been used in weighing with stillards, and left hanging.

She had used a garden rake to pull the rope to her, then fastened it about her neck and jumped off the deck. She was found dead when taken down, having been dead all of a couple of hours.

It was discovered that she had first cut her left wrist, but missed the artery, and had then carefully wrapped it up, and went out of the house to the scene of her death.

Surviving are the husband and the son, Merwood, at home, a son Cecil at Bryan, O., a son, Charles at Friendship, O., and a daughter, Mrs. Mabel Beams of Sherwood.

There is also a brother, William Holzworth, and sister, Miss Anna Holzworth, living together near Harlan, and a sister, Mrs. Susie Cover, of near Logan, Ohio.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday at 2 P. M., at the Scipio M. E. Church, Rev. Mumma, of Harlan, officiating.

Burial was made in North Scipio Cemetery, in charge of Perkins & Reeb, funeral directors.

The family came to the Hicksville neighborhood from the Spencerville neighborhood.

Arch-Enemies of Happiness Hurry and Worry

Chief among the enemies of happiness is the habit of worry. Affirming that mer are happier than ever before, let us also affirm that men are also imperiling that happiness by cultivating the habit of being everlastingly busy. Indeed it sometimes seems as if our generation has permanently lost the sense of having time. Even children have caught the movement, and waken anxious to get at their lessons, bolting breakfasts to hurry to school, hurrying through lessons to hurry home again and begin the old round. The night time too is crowded now. In the large cities entertainments begin at midnight and last until early morning.

In part, our hurry is a thing of blood and temperament. The American is swift in his intellectual processes, quick in his steps, and acts not slowly but with decisive energy. A word recently coined grew out of the necessity of describing that which had become a national characteristic, a word that fits us as a hand fits a glove—the word "hustle."

We have so developed the habit of being everlastingly busy that we have lost the sense of leisure and repose that marks the patrician gentleman. There is no greatness without leisure. Constructive work, as associated with life asks for time. Character is a growth. Like all living things it enlarges slowly. It will not be hurried. There is no hot house method of developing a beautiful disposition. Leaf by leaf the great oak is built. Thought by thought and prayer by prayer the soul assembles habits, expands and grows strong.

Worry is nother enemy of happiness. The feverish desire to get on has overtaken all our people.

NOTICE OF INSOLVENCY

In the Matter of the Estate of Henry W. Krabill, Deceased

In the DeKalb Circuit Court No. 3847

Notice is hereby given that upon petition filed in said Court by Princess K. Zonker, Administratrix of said estate, setting up the insufficiency of the estate of said decedent to pay the debts and liabilities thereof, the Judge of said Court did, on the 24th day of March, 1934, find said estate to be probably insolvent, and orders the same to be settled accordingly. The creditors of said estate are therefore hereby notified of such insolvency, and required to file their claims against said estate for allowance.

WITNESS, the Clerk of said Court, at Auburn, Indiana, this 24th day of March, 1934.

CARL WALTER, Clerk.

C. E. McClintock, Atty. 13t2.

50 Years Ago

Taken from the files of the St. Joe News, 50 years ago—M. E. Olds, Editor

Low rates to Chicago this week.

Wilson Lawhead is the daddy of a boy.

David Murray of Newville was in town last week.

John McHugh his moved his family into the Bohls house.

When you need printing done remember the poor—thats us.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dills of Auburn were in town last Sunday.

Ves Wise has moved his family up to St. Joe and occupies the Walker house.

Miss Libbie Erick of Middleberry, Ind., was in town visiting friends last week.

William Seely, trustee of Newville township was on our streets one day last week.

Arch Ellison formerly barber of this place was in town last week shaking hands with his many friends.

Alex. Donaldson is building a fine new dwelling house for Geo. Webster on his farm north of Newville.

O. H. Widney carried around a black eye last week. He got it in a legitimate way however, a calf having kicked him.

Will a mule kick? We are not able to answer that question from personal experience, but we really think he would if he could find anything to kick at.

The town was full of people Wednesday evening, to hear Mrs. Wilson lecture on the subject of temperance, but for some unknown cause the lady failed to put in an appearance.

There was a remarkble sudden chnge in the weather last Monday afternoon. One minute people were wiping the sweat of their brows and the next minute they were hunting a hot stove.

The trees that were set out along our streets only a few years ago are growing nicely and are alredy beginning to add to the beauty of our town. There ought to be some trees set out upon the school grounds.

Alex. Filley has made a prescription case for W. C. Patterson which is hard to beat in point of design and beauty of finish. Alex. is a first class workman and when he undertakes to do anything he does it right.

THE "HOODOOS OF 1934" AT GARRETT GYM

The "Hoodoos of 1934" that is the name of the annual home talent show to be staged by the Boy Scouts of troop 161, Garrett, Ind. The show to be staged on that Hoodoo day of the year, Friday the 13th day of April.

It will be a variety program lasting for two hours with the talent drawn mainly from the younger generation of Garrett. Practically all of the 70 boys in troop 161 will have a part in the progarm.

One of the features of the "Hoodoos of 1934" will be a minstrel to be given under the direction of Mrs. J. W. Thomas.

James Kennedy has under his direction a dramatic sketch of Death Valley Days. He will use six boys in this melodrama of the underworld of the wild west. The audience will be taken from the modern middlewestern present to the wild and wooly days of a primitive west. All this will be done at the swish of a curtain. These two features alone promise to be well worth the price of admission. James Alban will direct a skit whereby the doctors and surgeons of the community will have to look to their laurels. The most astounding piece of surgery yet performed will be done on the stage before the eyes of the entire audience. Special features will appear on the program throughout. Persons interested in this work are asked to attend this performance.

HEART ATTACK PROVES FATAL TO MARTIN HULL

Martin Hull, aged 74 years, a farmer residing a short distance north of Spencerville, died suddenly about 5:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon in his barn on the farm. He had lived alone since the death of his wife three years ago.

Coroner B. O. Shook of Spencerville, held an inquest and pronounced death due to a dilated heart. Mr. Hull had been troubled with heart disease for some time.

Mr. Hull had been doing his chores. John Peppler, 6-year-old son of Henry Peppler, a neighbor, stopped at the Hull farm after school and was with the aged man when he sat down on a pail which was on the barn floor and remarked that he was going to die and would not live until morning. The boy notified his father but when the latter reached the barn, Mr. Hull was dead.

HULL

Martin L. Hull, son of Joseph and Carolyn Hull, was born in DeKalb County, November 25, 1859, and departed this life April 5, 1934, at his home north of Spencerville, at the age of 74 years, 4 months and 11 days. In March, 1888 he was married to LoDema Draggoo, who preceded him in death in December, 1929.

He leaves to mourn his departure three children, Mr. Edward Hull, of Palm Springs, Calif.; Mrs. J. P. Shutt, of Plainview, Texas, and Mrs. R. E. Palmer, of Monroeville, and one grandchild, Beverly Jean Palmer.

The funeral was held from the Kinsey Funeral Home Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. N. Scholes. Burial in Riverside Cemetery.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NOTES

There was a good attendance at the Junior Class play given on last Saturday evening. Directors and cast deserve favorable comment. Costumes and stage furnishings were in keeping with the time of the play.

P. T. A. Thursday Eve

The program of the last P. T. A. meeting will be provided by music students in the school under the direction of Mr. C. A. Woodcox. This recital will be given on Thursday evening of this week. The school band, girls and boys choruses, grade school chorus, and other special numbers will please you. Come.

Pupils from the local high school took part in the county high schol musical program given at Garrett on last Friday evening. Eight of the high school girls were in the county chorus. The local girls chorus furnished a number on the program. Another number was a vocal solo by Frances Reidenbach of our third grade.

Pupils in English 10 composed and real original poems for their lesson on last Wednesday.

The volley ball tournament is now under way. Winners will be announced in this column next week.

The Indiana State Commercial Contest is being given on Wednesday of this week. Local classes in Typing, Bookkeeping, and Shorthand are participating.

Grades One and Two

There were seventeen guests at the Easter party given by the Primary room for the children who will enter the first grade next fall. A playlet, "The Coming of the King" was given. After playing many games and singing Easter songs the children all enjoyed ice cream and wafers served to them in the Hot Lunch room. Each guest received an Easter basket.

We made a scrap book for Mary Louise Woodcox who has been unable to attend school.

Donald Hankey has been absent several days because of illness.

In language Tuesday the second grade wrote some original stories. The one written by June Jump received first prize.

Grades Three and Four

Three more pupils of the third grade have had their teeth put in perfect condition, bringing the room total to thirteen.

The attendance list last week in our room was the best that it has been this year.

Mrs. Ralph Sechler was a visitor in our room on Friday afternoon.

Grades Five and Six

Frank Curie was absent three days last week on account of illness.

Spelling honor pupils for last week were, Evelyn George, Jack Goodwin, Harold Inlow, Sylvia Washler,, Marcel Pugsley, Helen Goodwin, Betty Kees, Burl Rude, Marcia Wade, Maxine Woodcox, and Christine Zonker.

RUSSELL BORTHWICK WRITES NEWS FROM CALIFORNIA.

Long Beach, Cal.
April 4, 1934.

Dear Editor,

In June, 1932, when I was home on leave you ask me to drop you a few lines. I believe I have been out here long enough to be fairly well acquainted with conditions.

This is called "Sunny California" but I believe I've seen less sun since I've been here than in Indiana. The chief reason for that is probably because the ships are in one sea port or another and all ports are foggy. Many mornings this harbor is foggy until noon and then a breeze comes in off the ocean and raises it. Another very noticable feature of this lower portion of the coast is the evenness of the temperature. It never gets really hot nor really cold. While your temperature ranges from below zero to 100 degrees F. The temperature here usually stays between 50 and 100 degrees—very seldom reaching 100 degrees. The season has very little to do with the weather either. For instance thousands have been swimming at the beaches in the last few weeks while next summer when the middle states are enjoying heat maybe a cold wave will hit here and it will be too cold to be on the beach for days at a time.

What impresses me as being rather funny, or rather, peculiar, is that so few people realize they have a Navy. When I get inland any distance at all, in uniform, people ask, "What organization do you belong to?" Some ask, "To what college or university do you belong?" Yet these same people—the American public—spend millions and millions annually for our up-keep and their protection. They don't realize they have thousands of tons of cold steel laying in their harbors ready for instant use—defensive or offensive. They don't realize they are paying over 70,000 trained and skillful men to man and operate these ships. The people turn their hard earned money over for these governmental departments to use yet they don't bother to see what they get in return!

I believe that if more literature were published concerning protection the public would see the necessity of these military organizations where, at present, they think they are "throwing their money away."

Every port on both coasts could be filled over night with foreign battle ships. How many people stop to think about that?

Within the next week over one hundred naval ships start for the east coast via the Panama Canal. There is to be a fleet review at New York City on June 1st. After that the ships will scatter out up and down the coast ports, some of them firing Short Range Battle Practice or holding gunnery school then while some of the ships have orders to return to the west coast during the summer months.

I have enclosed a copy of the weekly paper sent out by this ship.

Sincerely yours,
Russell Borthwick.

U. S. S. Tennessee,
Box A. San Pedro, Calif.

CHILDREN'S ACTIVITIES ARE SHAPING FOR LEADERS

The projects and activities of the Children's Division of the Council of Christian Education is being gotten under way by the county children's division superintendent, Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick. The Bible memory work is being used this year as a project rather than a contest. The Bible verses to be used at church services, or any place where a devotional reading is desired. A Junior Choir is being organized which it is hoped will be composed of at least fifty junior voices. The choir will memorize the songs, and will make their first appearance at the County Council, May 6th, which will be held in the Lutheran Church in Auburn. Mrs. F. B. Leighty of St. Joe will be the choir accompanist.

A workers conference will be held in the Presbyterian Church in Auburn, April 25th at 1:30 P. M. Miss Nellie C. Young, State Children's Division Superintendent, will be the speaker at this meeting. All township children's division superintendents, teachers of children in the Bible School, and all who are interested in children's work are expected to attend this meeting.

County Council

Last minute report is that J. Raymond Schutz, of North Manchester, will address the County Council on Sunday afternoon, May 6, at Auburn Lutheran Church at 2 o'clock Standard Time. In reading this see that your Sunday School gets these announcements, please.

RUPTURE
E. J. MEINHARDI
OF CHICAGO HERE AGAIN

He will demonstrate the "Meinhardi Rupture Shield" privately in his rooms at the Anthony Hotel, Fort Wayne, Ind., on Saturday only, April 21st, from 1:00 P. M. to 7:00 P. M.

Ask the Hotel Clerk for the numbers of Mr. Meinhardi's rooms. Only men are invited.

Mr. Meinhardi says: "The Meinhardi Rupture Shield contracts the Opening in 10 days on the average case regardless of the size or location of the Rupture—no matter how much you exercise, lift, or strain." The Meinhardi Rupture Shield is skillfully molded to each individual as a Dentist makes false teeth. (No leg straps and no cumbersome arrangements.)

It is waterproof, sanitary, practically indestructible, and may be worn while bathing or sleeping (continuously day and night) until no longer necessary.

After twenty years of experience—seeing thousands of cases—Mr. Meinhardi will be glad to answer questions regarding all methods for Rupture.

Do not neglect to see him on the above date. There is no charge for demonstration. This visit is for white people only.

LOWER BACTERIA COUNT
with Electric Milk Coolers

An Electric Milk Cooler will keep the bacteria count below the danger point better than any other method. It is common experience to reduce the bacteria count with an Electric Cooler to one third of the count with other types of coolers. Temperatures are kept well below 50 degrees even in the hottest weather and there is no labor of cutting, storing and handling ice. Properly cooled milk means profits to the dairy farmer. Once again, Electricity solves a farm problem and puts money in the bank while eliminating old-fashioned drudgery.

A Little Bit Humorous

ONE FOR S. P. C. A.

"My husband is a brute, and I've reached the place where I just can't stand him any longer!" said Mrs. Nosey.

"Now what's he done?" asked her dearest friend.

"Well, you know we were on a 4-party line, and he's gone and had it replaced with a private one, so I can't listen in any more," she groaned.

Matches

The physician was giving an informal talk on physiology. "Also," he remarked, "it has recently been found that the human body contains sulphur."

"Sulphur!" exclaimed the girl in the blue-and-white blazer. "And how much sulphur is there, then, in a girl's body?"

"Oh, the amount varies," said the doctor, smiling.

"Ah!" returned the girl. "And is that why some of us make better matches than others?"—Vancouver Province.

BUSINESSLIKE

Not the Same Thing

"Darling," she murmured, and her voice was shaky, "how do I know that you really and truly love me?"

"My pet, I can prove it," he said. "Why, I can't sleep at nights for thinking of you."

"H'm," she muttered doubtfully, "that's no proof. Pa can't sleep at nights for thinking of you, but I hardly think it's love."

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

FARMER BROWN'S BOY AND NIMBLE AS FRIENDS

OF ALL the timid people I know of, none is more timid than Nimble Heels, the Jumping Mouse. But a funny thing about very timid people is that often they get over fear easier and more quickly than some who are supposed to be very much braver. It was so with Nimble Heels. Now, wouldn't you suppose that after being almost killed by a great giant who he never had seen before, Nimble Heels would have been frightened almost to death, and remained so? At first he was frightened. Of course. He would have been a funny fellow if he hadn't been.

But it didn't take Nimble Heels long to find out that those hands of Farmer Brown's boy were very gentle hands. Somehow, after a little he liked to be stroked by them. Then he was wrapped in something soft. It was the handkerchief of Farmer Brown's boy. In this he made the longest journey he had ever dreamed of. Clear across the Green Meadows, up the Long Lane, across the farm yard to Farmer Brown's house. There Farmer Brown's boy placed him in the snuggest of snug little cages with soft moss for a bed, and left him to himself.

Nimble Heels still felt a little weak, so he buried himself in the soft moss and went to sleep. It was night and quite dark when finally he awoke. At first he couldn't imagine where he was. Then he remembered, and all of a sudden he was all shivery with fear. It was still, very, very still, so at last he found courage to creep out and examine the place where he was. It didn't take him long to discover that he was a prisoner, and a perfect panic of fear swept over him.

The next day, when Farmer Brown's boy came to look at him and see how he was getting along, Nimble Heels wouldn't poke so much as the tip of his nose out from under the moss. Very carefully Farmer Brown's boy uncovered him. When he saw that Nimble Heels was all right he covered him over as he was before and left him. After a while Nimble Heels poked his head out to see what had become of Farmer Brown's boy. No one was to be seen, but there was the most tempting pile of seeds and grain. Nimble Heels suddenly felt hungry.

After that he understood that Farmer Brown's boy would not harm him, but was his protector, and at once they became the best of friends. Always Nimble Heels was sure of finding something especially nice to eat in one of Farmer Brown's boy's pockets.

He was safe. He was safer, perhaps, than ever before in all his life. But he was a prisoner. Not even safety could make up for loss of freedom. Nimble Heels began to pine and lose his appetite. Then it was that Farmer Brown's boy showed that he had an understanding heart and was in truth a friend worth having. He took Nimble Heels in his pocket and started down the Long Lane. Out on the Green Meadows he went straight to the very place where Nimble Heels had jumped up his trousers-leg. There he took Nimble Heels from his pocket. Making sure that no enemies were near, he set Nimble Heels down in the grass. From sheer joy in being free once more, Nimble Heels jumped once, twice, three times. And if only he had looked back to see he would have seen the most surprised boy ever.

"Whew! That little chap is some jumper!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's boy, admiringly. It was the first time he had ever seen Nimble Heels jump.

SERVE BANANAS

BANANAS make delightful salads, fruit cocktails, desserts, ices, and may be served as a vegetable. Bananas should be thoroughly ripe if used fresh. Those a bit green will cook nicely and be wholesome.

Baked Bananas.

Strip the skin from the firm yellow fruit, scrape the banana to remove the strings which give an acrid flavor to the fruit. Cut into halves lengthwise, place in a buttered dish and sprinkle with sugar. Pour over six tablespoonfuls of water and bake in a moderate oven until transiucent. For six bananas, use six teaspoonfuls of sugar (brown is best), with a pinch of salt.

Bananas Baked in Lemon Juice.

Cut four large bananas into halves lengthwise and put into a baking dish. Peel two large oranges and divide into sections. Add the sections to the top of the bananas. Sift one-half cupful of sugar over the oranges and add one-half cupful of lemon juice with any of the juice left from the oranges. Bake 20 minutes. Serve hot or cold. Very nice with cold meats.

Banana Fritters.

Remove the skins from eight bananas and cut into halves lengthwise, then into quarters. Sprinkle with powdered sugar, one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice and one-half tablespoonful of grated orange rind. Cover and let stand half an hour. Then dip into the following batter and fry in deep fat. Drain on brown paper. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve.

For the batter—mix and sift one cupful of flour, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of baking powder, add one-half cupful of milk and one beaten egg. Add a tablespoonful of melted butter and beat thoroughly before using.

Bananas fried in butter make a fine garnish for broiled steak. Served with cooked chops they are especially good.

LORD, when I stand in that first moment, blinded
From being nearer the rising sun,
I will be wonder-struck and unreminded

But with thine all-embracing charity
Judge me by what I truly meant to be!

Largest Lump of Gold

The bureau of mines says that so far as it knows the largest piece of gold ever found was a chunk from a deep mine in Chile, weighing 4,900 troy ounces, or 336 avoirdupois pounds. The largest loose piece was a Beyer & Holterman nugget found at Hill End, New South Wales, in 1872, weighing 630 avoirdupois pounds gross, and contained 193 pounds net of gold.

Nature Has Qualified Butterfly as Chemist

In a report to the Smithsonian institution Dr. Austin H. Clark marvels, and with reason, at the curious adaptability of the cabbage butterfly, a small chalky insect with white wings. In Europe the caterpillars feed on the leaves of cabbages and closely related plants. Why these? Because they contain food of the proper chemical composition for the young, and the young are bred from eggs laid on the leaves.

About the middle of the last century the cabbage butterfly was brought to this country. It began to lay eggs not only on cabbage but also on the leaves of the garden nasturtium, which originally came from Central and South America. How did the butterfly know that the nasturtium is chemically of the right composition, although it is not even remotely related to the cabbage? The European ancestors of the cabbage butterfly knew nothing of the nasturtium for thousands of generations.

The wonder grows when Doctor Clark points out uncanny powers in other insects. Two varieties of fritillaries live entirely on the hackberry tree. If they make a mistake in the tree the young starve to death. —New York Times.

STARS OUT IN SPACE

If all the stars and planets which are visible through the largest telescopes were broken up into pieces the size of ordinary marbles and scattered evenly throughout the same area, each little piece of matter would be 62,500 miles apart. McMillan, of Chicago university, after Dr. Edwin Hubble, of Mount Wilson observatory, estimated that there are about 75,000,000 galaxies in the visible universe.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the right dose of a properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It gently helps the average person's bowels back to regularity.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store, ready for use. Member N. R. A.

Broken Engagements

By FRANCES SMITH

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service

CAMILLE came running into the house where her fragile little aunt sat alone in a sunny window, her fingers busy with some dainty needlework. Agatha Andrews lifted her quiet gray eyes and saw the dark sparkling beauty of the girl, the rich coloring of youth and perfect health—and radiant joy.

"Auntie, I've had a darling time!" cried Camilla breathlessly whirling into a chair. "Guess who was there—and I met him!" she ended ecstatically.

Agatha Andrews turned her fair face and looked out into the flower garden which seemed to waver uncertainly before her hurt eyes; all the blossom seemed to nod their heads and say, "I told you so—I told you so—some day—"

"You are not listening!" reproached the girl, for this aunt was mother and father to her and had been for many years since a fatal accident had deprived the child of both parents. "You haven't heard a word—I met Luch an important person at the garden party—we made heaps of money for the hospital—and he looked and looked at me until he seemed to realize that he was being rude; then Andy introduced him to me! Auntie, I have made a real conquest!"

"Goose," smiled Agatha.

"Behold — the governor's future lady—"

"Camilla!" Miss Andrews had risen and was staring at her niece with wide, startled eyes in her white face. "What do you mean?"

"Nothing but my foolishness, dear," explained Camilla contritely. "I really did meet the governor himself and he was charming to me. He is coming to call tomorrow afternoon and we must have tea in the garden."

"Of course—" faltered Agatha.

"He asked after you, auntie, said he knew you years ago, when you were my age; he said there was a resemblance. Andy was frightfully jealous of him. Isn't he distinguished looking, and so calm and reserved with the twinkly look in his blue eyes? I adore him!" Camilla suddenly subsided in her changeable way, and looked dreamily into the gathering twilight.

"You mustn't hurt Andy's feelings, Camilla," advised Agatha in a troubled voice; "you know how devoted he is."

"He seems so young and immature beside Governor Frayne. I told him so," she ended frankly.

"Told—Andy?"

"Yes," carelessly "on the way home. He was quite like a bear about it—so we are no longer engaged!"

"Oh!" cried the older woman sharply; then, as if collecting her scattered forces, she added quietly, "I am sorry, dear. Andy is young, but that is a fault we all get over some day!"

Camilla laughed and kissed her warmly, but the slim finger where Andy's diamond had proudly gleamed was quite bare.

The next afternoon Camilla made preparations for serving tea in the rose-bowered veranda. Miss Andrews had silently helped her, making a loaf of very special pound cake that her mother used to bake. She gave the girl carte blanche where the china closet was concerned, and the consequence was that many bits of old china saw the light for the first time in many years. Agatha, dressed in a soft gray silk, with her graying hair pinned in a knot at her neck, looked like some pompadour figurine as she wandered restlessly about the garden. It was not until she heard voices at the house that she slowly went back to face the past.

There was Andy McDonald, stubbornly faithful in spite of his broken engagement, playing with Camilla's cat; and there was Camilla, radiating glorious youth, her dark bobbed hair blowing in the sweet evening breezes, her awed eyes lifted to Gilbert Frayne's face.

"Here she is at last!" cried Camilla, and the governor whirled around to stare for a moment at the slim figure coming slowly across the grass. The tea kettle bubbled furiously just then, and Andy and Camilla flew to subdue it, the governor went to meet Agatha, his blue eyes keen like a boy's.

"Agatha," he said simply as he took her hand in his, "you told me once upon a time to go away—you never wanted to see me again—"

"Yes," gasped Agatha faintly, her eyes seeking her refuge, the garden. "But one says so many foolish things—"

"Yes—and they hurt all through the years. What a young fool I was in those days not to come back to you."

"Yes," agreed Agatha softly.

"There is such a lot to explain—when I saw the child yesterday I was fascinated; I told myself it was either your daughter or a near relative—so—I—came."

"I am—glad—you have been so successful," said Agatha, regaining her poise somewhat.

"Yes—in a measure," he said patiently, "but I came to find out today whether I shall be the only bachelor governor the state has ever known or—"

* * * * * * *

"They have gone into the rose garden," said Camilla indignantly.

"Why not? They were engaged to be married and quarreled twenty years ago—great scott, he's kissing your Aunt Agatha!" Andy turned his head away from the rose garden and encountered Camilla's brimming eyes.

"Where's—my ring?" she asked.

Idioms Used to Build Up English Language

A savage tribe in Tierra del Fuego has a vocabulary of 30,000 words and are the only savages in the world so richly supplied. We might borrow a few and they'd never be missed. We thus appropriated "hooch" from the Alaska Indians and have much enjoyed using it; that is, using the word. Hooch is a phonetic joy. It has that wild and slightly vulgar sound that seems to fit a crude intoxicant. English-speaking peoples are quick to pick up words odd to the ears from their neighbors, giving them a twist that may make their utterance more or less comic. "Hoosegow," made over from the Spanish "huskado," provokes a laugh. The English in India soon appropriated "loot"; and "bulldoze" arose out of the swamps of Louisiana, where it was for long a neglected verb derived from the French. Other terms that spring into being in the underworld in time get fairly into good society by succeeding gradations and there are now in good standing some from the patois of the pirates of the Spanish Main.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It Never Has Paid

Crime is caused by ignorance—ignorance of common sense.

THE OLDEST PROFESSION

Three professional men, a doctor, an engineer, and a financier, were debating which of them belonged to the most honorable and ancient profession.

The doctor said: "Mine is easily the oldest. Don't you remember that in the beginning Eve was made out of a rib in Adam's side? Well, there's a surgical operation for you."

The engineer said: "Yes, but before that happened don't you know the whole world was made out of chaos in six days? Now, there's an engineering feat for you."

"Ah," said the financier, "but who made chaos?"—Public Opinion.

"Two things I wanted—"

"...and it was all so simple when I found out my trouble. My physician said I had no organic disease, but I did have what is so commonly and truthfully called a low percentage of hemo-glo-bin in the blood.

"The reasonableness of one of the S.S.S. ads caused me to think that S.S.S. Tonic was just what I needed for my let-down feeling, pimply skin and low resistance. I wanted more strength and a clear skin.

"It didn't take S.S.S. very long to get my blood back up to normal—and as my strength and energy returned my skin cleared up."

If your condition suggests a tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. It is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in rebuilding the oxygen-carrying hemo-glo-bin of the blood.

S.S.S. value has been proven by generations of use, as well as by modern scientific appraisal. Sold by all drug stores...in two convenient sizes...the larger is more economical.

Whose Fault?

When a Child Won't Study

"Kept after school!" And it isn't the child's fault, or the teacher's. His mother is to blame. How can a boy get his lessons when his senses are dulled day after day by dosing with sickening purgatives? When a child's bowels are stagnant they need help, of course. But not some drastic drug to upset the stomach, perhaps weaken the entire system; or form the laxative habit. On the right, parents will find a happy solution of this problem: Here's a boy who gets good marks, has time and energy for play. He is never ill, hardly ever has so much as a cold. When he does show any symptoms of being sluggish, his mother knows just what to do. She gives him a little California Syrup of Figs—and that is all. It's a natural, fruity laxative that is agreeable to take, and its gentle laxative action comes from senna. Parents are urged to use just pure California Syrup of Figs. You, and each of you, are hereby notified that there is now on file in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of DeKalb County, Indiana, in the City of Auburn, Indiana, a verified petition of The Department of Financial Institutions of the State of Indiana in the matter of the liquidation of St. Joe Valley Bank, a financial institution of St. Joe, Indiana, praying the authority of the Court to obtain a loan from and to pledge and or mortgage certain assets of the said financial institution to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and (subject to the administration thereof in accordance with law, to the expenses of such administration and to existing liens and encumbrances) to create a first charge against all of the assets of the said trust in favor of said Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the purpose of paying liquidating dividends to the depositors and creditors of such financial institution upon the terms and conditions contained in the tentative application for said loan heretofore made, as qualified by a resolution of the Executive Committee of said Reconstruction Finance Corporation approving the granting of said loan, a copy of which application and approving resolution are attached to said petition.

You, and each of you, are further notified that said application, together with all exhibits filed therewith and referred to therein, and said approving resolution, are available at the office of the Clerk of said DeKalb Circuit Court for your examination to the end that you may be fully informed.

You are further notified that a hearing will be held by said DeKalb Circuit Court of DeKalb County, Indiana, at the court house in the said City of Auburn, Indiana, on the 30th day of April, 1934, at the hour of 9 o'clock, A. M., at which time the Court will consider said petition and any objections filed thereto, and will proceed to consider and pass upon the merits of said application as qualified by said approving resolution and may approve the same with any modifications the Court may determine should be made therein.

Dated at St. Joe, Indiana, this 7th day of April, 1934.

The Department of Financial Institutions of the State of Indiana.

By Frank M. Brandon,
Special Representative.

W. D. Stump, Atty. 15t1.

VOL. XLIX | ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, APRIL 19, 1934 | NUMBER 16

50 Years Ago

Taken from the files of the St. Joe News, 50 years ago—
M. E. Olds, Editor

Hugh Culbertson, of Auburn, was in the city last week.

The high bridge over the railroad at the west end of town has at last been removed.

Chris Curie will have one of the best houses in this part of the country when completed.

Jacob Walborn, of Auburn, was in town one day last week, looking up his interests as a candidate for treasurer before the Democratic county convention.

J. S. Davis was hurriedly called home from Milford Junction one night last week on the account of the arrival of a young telegraph operator at his house.

The social held at Leighty's orchard was like every thing else the St. Joe people undertake to do, a decided success. There was a whole town full of people here, and although it was a cool evening they gobbled down the ice cream and strawberries as though they never had seen any before. The net proceeds was about $17.

The thermometer was up among the nineties most of the time last week.

Frank Barney has been at Indianapolis attending the state convention.

Mrs. Mort Milliman presented us with some of the largest strawberries this week, that we have ever seen.

W. H. Calkins of Laporte received the nomination for governor at the Republican convention held at Indianapolis last week.

In order to give us time and opportunity to get our harvesting done we shall discontinue publication of this paper until the first of August.

The following notice is posted over the door of the freight room at this place: "An onest man dise in de poo hous." Trippe probably done the spelling.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren of Illinois were visiting with their sister Mrs. Reed last week. Mr. Byerly, of Pennsylvania, a brother of Mrs. Reed's also made her a brief visit.

Two of our citizens while walking along the river bank the other day were somewhat frightened upon seeing just before them in the path a snake. They dodged back, and hastily picked up a large club apiece and advanced to meet their deadly foe. It was a fierce battle, but our two brave citizens came out victorious and the venomous reptile lay dead at their feet. It was found upon measuring it to be thirteen and a half inches long.

Mrs. Dr. Bowman spent last Sunday in Avilla.

MR. MILLER CELEBRATES NINETIETH BIRTHDAY

"Friday the thirteenth" may have looked like a hard luck day to some persons, but it just marked another milestone in a long and interesting life for "Uncle Curl" Miller of Harlan, who celebrated his ninetieth birthday that day.

Mr. Miller is one of the few remaining "Boys in Blue." He served in the Civil War two years and ten months. He enlisted under Captain Briant in Co. D, 88th Indiana regiment, and went thru the Atlanta campaign, "marching to the sea" with Gen. Sherman. His last battle was at Bentonville, N. C. He took part in the grand review at Washington and was discharged there.

He was brought from Ohio at the age of six months, and has resided at Harlan since then. He is a widely known and highly respected citizen of the community. Mr. Miller says he is going to live to be 110.

CELEBRATES HIS 93rd BIRTHDAY

In fairly good health despite his extreme age, George Hamm, believed to be the oldest resident of DeKalb county, celebrated his ninety-third birthday Friday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Grover C. Sapp at Garrett.

Mr. Hamm was born in Alsace-Lorraine of German parentage April 6, 1841. In 1855 his father, Adam Hamm, left the mother country and emigrated to the United States. The family settled near Leo in Allen county and lived in a log house in a clearing.

George Hamm pursued the trade of carpeter in Allen county for twenty-five years and then moved to a farm at St. Joe. He resided there until 1901, when he located at the east edge of Garrett. For more than a quarter of a century he engaged in truck gardening and he and his horse and wagon were a familiar ad welcome sight on the streets. His jovial nature made him popular and he disposed of his vegetables readily.

Advancing age took its toll of his strength, however, and five years ago Mr. Hamm was forced to give up working in his garden. He is physically weak and is unable to walk but a few feet at a time, but he is mentally alert and keeps posted on current affairs by reading the newspapers. He has never had a serious sickenss and Mrs. Sapp predicts he will live to be 100 years old.

Mrs. Hamm died eleven years ago. Ten of their children are living, together with twelve grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.—Clipper.

DEKALB COUNTY BOYS PASS EXAMINATION FOR CCC

Twenty-five DeKalb County young men passed the CCC camp physical examination last Friday morning at Fort Wayne and left for Indianapolis where a more rigid examination will be given. If successful they were to be sent to Camp Knox, Ky., and from there they will be sent to CCC camps.

C. O. Krise, Auburn postmaster and head of all relief measures under the federal government in DeKalb county, accompanied the boys to Fort Wayne. They were:

Corunna—Hugh Farrington and Robert Bard.
Ashley — Bayard Whittig and Arthur Wolfe.
Hamilton—Marshall Musser and Milton Hamman.
Butler—Robert Preston, Ford Doan and Daniel McCann.
St. Joe—Malcolm Woodcox.
Spencerville—Virgil Kimes.
Waerloo—Ross Shults and Paul Bricker.
Garrett — Germain McGuire, Victor Walter, Earl Krick, Rowell Wilert and George Childers.
Auburn—Albert Souder, Erward Shilling, Robert Deetz, Cecil Wagner and Wilbur Earnest.
Newville — Woodrow Kline and Karl Kaellner.

Walter Gee was chosen as the eligible one with Malcolm Woodcox as alternate, Gee was unable to pass examination due to hernia.

BIG INCREASE IN TOTAL POOR RELIEF

Townships Owe $62,023 for Funds Advanced from DeKalb County Treasury During 1933

A reference to records in the office of County Auditor Frank E. Lyon reveals that the townships owe the poor relief fund of the county $62,023.73 at this time, an increase of $27,2551.83, or 80 per cent, over a year ago.

The law provides for the county to finance poor relief, then to be reimbursed by the townships. Keyser township heads the list in the county's debt, with a deficit of $41,503.53. A year ago it was $24,145.60.

Next in line is Union township, with a deficit of $7,772.68, increased from the $2,485.33 of a year ago. Wilmington township owes $3,750.20, increased from $3,197.64; Smithfield $2,029.54, increased from $1,354.16; Fairfield $1,274.41, increased from $620.46; Franklin $539.28, with none a year ago; Concord, $720.39, a reduction from $835.31; Jackson, $184.68, a reduction from $303.91; Grant, $1,511.69, an increase from $871.26; Spencer $659.33, an increase from $366.32; Richland, $728.72, with none a year ago; Newville, $110.39, with no deficit a year ago; Butler, $868.11, an increase from $591.91; and Stafford $506.70, with none a year ago.

Troy still has a credit of $135.82 and stands alone in this respect. All the townships will receive credits when the distribution of the spring taxes is made in June.

Outlay for poor relief was less in the first quarter of 1934 than in the like period of last year, the figures being $17,892.26 and $19,671.38. Keyser reduced its payments from $11,638.76 to $8,503.97; Union, from $2,679.28 to $2,239.67; Friafield, from $363.02 to $284.35; Concord, from $375.21 to $340.97; Jackson, from $427.23 to $316.51; and Troy, from $22.86 to $15.00.

The following townships made increases in poor relief during the first quarter of 1934: Franklin, from $114.96 to $298.64; Smithfield, from $719.24 to $922.33; Grant, from $823.37 to $1,322.19; Spencer, from $165.47 to $327.76; Richland, from $378.21 to $470.49; Newville, from none to $147.37; Butler, from $370.71 to $670.93; Stafford, from $17.56 to $289.43; Wilmington, from $1,445.50 to $1,742.65.

One person out of each one hundred of population for Indiana, is a candidate for nomination to some office at the primary next month. The most that has ever been known.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham were Sunday dinner guests in the C. A. Patterson home at Fort Wayne, attending the Billy Sunday services at the Gospel Temple both forenoon and afternoon.

Frank Bowman and daughter, Eloise spent Sunday in the Ed Miser home at Garrett. Eloise remained over night with Martha, and returned Monday morning. They attended the Methodist Sunday School and Frank enjoyed the mens class very much.

294 miles of state highway and areet improvement have been contracted by the state highway department this year at an outlay of $2,750,000. Work will reach practically every county in the state. Road One in Allen county is being repaired with guard rails which indicates that possibly an oil mat may be applied but nothing more substantial, or else this expense would not be made at this particular time.

Contracts for the purchase of a total of 8,000 cubic yards of gravel for use on Allen county highways were awarded by the county board of commissioners. Five thousand cubic yards were ordered from Ben Shook of Spencerville at a figure of 32 cents per cubic yard; 2,000 yards from Charles Stuck at 50 cents per yard and 1,000 yards from A. Schnelker of New Haven at 48 cents per yard.

Roller Skaters say the only thing wrong with Bell's rink is "Super" Joe Koch, dynamic auto salesman. Regarded as the white menace on wheels, his antics are forgiven for the entertainment he affords. He has yet to receive the applause, however, given the girl who skated out of her whatnots a few nights ago.—"Around the Town column, Tuesday's Journal-Gazette.

Hundreds of people drove to the St. Joe River, Sunday to watch searchers who were trying to locate the body of Claude Clark of Auburn, a World War veteran who was drowned on April 6th while digging for clams. Mr. Clark fell or was jerked out of his boat while dragging the river with clam hooks. A half dozen boats were on hte river Sunday with men searching for the body. The river is still high, making it difficult forthe volunteer rescuers.

The menu was delightful and the program following was one which members of both classes will long remember. Earl Kinsey acted as toastmaster and introduced in a very fitting manner each number on the program. The welcome address was made by the Junior Class president, Merlin Simanton; Ethelmae Freeburn made the response for the Seniors. Geraldine Thornton gave a solo. Virginia Shull read the Senior Class will and Eloist Draggoo responded with a prophecy.

MORTUARY

COY

Mrs. Jacob Coy, mother of Miss Sadie Coy, of Auburn, died Monday noon after a lingering illness, lasting the greater part of the winter, and the immediate cause of her death was a heart ailment. Mrs. Coy was 83 years, 6 months and 15 days old, was born in Ashland County, Ohio, on September 21, 1850, and was the youngest of a family of eleven children and the last to pass away. She came to DeKalb County eighty years ago. On December 23, 1875 she was married to Jacob Coy of Jackson Township, and thirteen years ago moved to Auburn.

To Mr. and Mrs. Coy were born two daughters, Miss Sadie Coy at home and Mrs. E. H. E. Thieroff of Preston, Md., who besides the husband survive.

MALONE

After several weeks suffering, Myrtle Bell Malone, daughter of William and Sarah Bowman, on April 10th, succumbed to the ravages of her affliction and using her burden for a pillow, fell into the dreamless sleep until resurrection day, at the age of 59 years and 5 months.

She was born November 10, 1874 in Mark Township, Defiance County, Ohio. In the near vicinity she spent her youth and the remainder of her life in and near St. Joe, Indiana. December 28, 1904 she became the wife of Sam Malone.

Patient in her suffering she awaited the call home. Left to mourn her departure is the husband, a sister, Iva Grover, of Hicksville, Ohio, other relatives and a host of friends who will greatly miss her.

Funeral services conducted in the Lutheran Church, Rev. Mumma of Harlan ocffiiating. Burial in the K. of P. Cemetery.

ELECT ESTA J. HIRE FOR SHERIEF

One of the most important offices to be filled this year is that of County Sheriff of Allen County. The Sheriff of any county must be a substantial man, and therefore requires a man who is fearless and at the same time conscientious to the extent of performing his duty and showing no partiality.

We heard an expression from one of our prominent citizens, someone made the remark to him, "Who will be our next Sheriff," he said, "Oh, let Esta Hire do it and it will be done right." There is no doubt that many of his republican friends think the same way. Mr. Hire is one of the good substantial men of Allen county.

He is a man who has had many friends throughout the County. A man whose personality is most pleasing and character beyond reproach, and if nominated and elected Sheriff of Allen County, will have an honest and efficient officer. He realizes that an orderly community, the security of State, home and life, lie within the strict enforcement of the law.

We know Mr. Hire to be a man whose reputation as being honorable and trustworthy, everybody knows him for the same traits, consequently he will receive the support of many voters at the Primary on May 8th.

Elect Esta J. Hire for Sheriff is the proper slogan throughout Allen County.

A HEART TO HEART TALK

The writer feels that we should have a Heart to Heart Talk with our readers in regard to the selection of a candidate for County Clerk of Allen County on the Republican ticket.

While experience counts, experince is not only required Personality, Courteous Treatment and Accommodating Service are required in the office of County Clerk.

The office of County Clerk is one of the most important of County Offices and should be filled by a man who is possessed with the above traits. The writer knows no man who is better qualified along these lines than H. C. Granneman.

Mr. H. C. Granneman has a pleasing personality which is a great asset to a County Clerk, meeting all classes of people in a business way.

Now, then, Mr. and Mrs. Voter, you know as well as we that there is no office more important than that of County Clerk, where all the business is handled and every voter should take personal pride in putting in a man of experience and fully capable to execute its details as is Mr. Granneman.

Mr. and Mrs. Voter Protect Your Home

When you vote for a man for Sheriff of Allen County in the May 88th primary, you want to be sure that he will enforce the laws of your county, state and nation, irrespective of sympathy and threats.

The Sheriff of any county is its strong arm of the law, and therefore it requires a man who is fearless and at the same time conscientious to the full extent of performing the duties showing no partiality.

This political edition would not be complete unless we made special mention of Charles Lentz, who is seeking the nomination on the Democrat ticket for Sheriff. Mr. Lentz will handle this office in an efficient manner and will always be faithful to the interests of the people. The writer believes that Allen County will never have a more efficient, courteous and fearless man to seek this office. He knows Mr. Lentz and knows that if he is nominated and elected, he will always keep in mind the needs of the people and serve them to the best of his ability.

Actions speak louder than words and Mr. Lentz is asking for nomination on what he has done if the past and not upon the flowery words for the occasion.

Charles Lentz asks your support toward his nomination, and will certainly appreciate what you may do for him and the good words you may speak in his behalf.

"All Yolks Alike, Each Cushioned by Thick White"

Poultry Experts Find That Ration Controls Egg Quality.

Egg quality today means more than selection for size, freshness and shell coloring, states Paul Bartz of the Purina Research Laboratories. The consumer also wants eggs that have uniform lemon yellow yolks and firm, thick whites. These are things the housewife looks for because they signify an attractive appearance when the eggs are served on the breakfast egg platter.

That the interior quality of an egg was controlled by the feed was brought out in an experiment in the Purina Research Laboratories. Into a two-gallon glass jar, the investigators broke 12 dozen fresh select eggs, the highest quality sold by a store specializing in quality foods. The yolks of these eggs varied in color from light lemon to deep orange. The yolks and the thick portion of the whites rose toward the top and about four inches of thin white settled to the bottom,—evidence of either low vitality in the hens or a faulty ration. See jar on right.

In a second jar, these research workers broke another 12 dozen eggs of the same external appearance and evidence of freshness as the first 12 but laid by hens on a special ration developed at their Experimental Farm to produce quality eggs. To make the test comparable, all of the second lot of eggs were at least 10 days old.

Surrounding each yolk in the second jar was a generous coating of thick, viscous white. Cushioned from each other by these whites, the yolks extended practically to the bottom of the jar. Only a small proportion of thin white settled to the bottom. (See illustration). Each and every yolk was of the same bright lemon yellow that is the consumer's preference in all select markets. Note jar on left, above.

This test has been repeated in every section of the United States and shows how interior egg quality is subject to control through feeding of rations designed for that purpose. Most housewives accept wide variation in yolk color and watery whites as almost inevitable but none the less unsatisfactory. Poultrymen who will try to produce eggs with perfect interior quality by proper feeding and management of their flocks have an opportunity to build a trade at premium prices with discriminating consumers, either in individual homes or with hotels, clubs, restaurants and hospitals.

CHILDREN'S ACTIVITIES ARE SHAPING FOR LEADERS

The projects and activities of the Children's Division of the Council of Christian Education is being gotten under way by the county children's division superintendent, Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick. The Bible memory work is being used this year as a project rather than a contest. The Bible verses to be used at church services, or any place where a devotional reading is desired. A Junior Choir is being organized which it is hoped will be composed of at least fifty junior voices. The choir will memorize the songs, and will make their first appearance at the County Council, May 6th, which will be held in the Lutheran Church in Auburn. Mrs. F. B. Leighty of St. Joe will be the choir accompanist.

A workers conference will be held in the Presbyterian Church in Auburn, April 25th at 1:30 P. M. Miss Nellie C. Young, State Children's Division Superintendent, will be the speaker at this meeting. All township children's division superintendents, teachers of children in the Bible School, and all who are interested in children's work are expected to attend this meeting.

County Council

Last minute report is that J. Raymond Schutz, of North Manchester, will address the County Council on Sunday afternoon, May 6, at Auburn Lutheran Church at 2 o'clock Standard Time. In reading this see that your Sunday School gets these announcements, please.

Evary town has sum particklier inductments tu offer tu thos who want tu find a plesent place tu lokate in, and while purhaps sum ov our naboring vilages ma boast ov the wunderful size an biting qualeties ov her bed bugs, St. Joe can walk rite awa frum them in the way ov big muskeeteers. An ordinary muskeeters is quite an invenchun but in order tu fully appresheate a St. Joe burd ov the muskeeteer kind, one must here him sing an feel him bite. The lo an wet land laying south-west ov St. Joe is pecurleriarla adapted to the productshun ov large helthy blood thirsty muskeeteers, and on a summar eavning, as the sun is sinking tu rest beneath the west-earn horizone, you will hear in the dim distance a band ov musick as it were, an as tha approch nearer you are so charmed that you forget evary thing else, until you feal a queer sensashun, as if sum one had stuck a pin intu you clear up tu the head; then perhaps if not befour you wood realize that a muskeeteer had bit you. St. Joe muskeeteers grow tu an enormus size: in fact we hurd a man say the other day that he saw two muskeeteers carrying off a young heifer, so you ma kno that the muskeeteers must be purty large or the heifer must hav been awfool small.

Yours Quite Tenderly,
Barcus Q. Hippenhammer.

A girl is sweet.
But oh how bitter
The same girl is
Wen hur clothes dont fit hur.

In mi last letter, if you remember I told ov a girl wat was mashed on me, but lo an beehold you things hav tuk a change, an now I am mashed. I hed promised miself not tu hav eny thing moor tu du with the femail sect but I coodn't help it; and as the poet says "luv concored mt an I wus a goner." I met her on the street an hur exquisit buty an luvliness at once captivated mi young an tendar hart I purposed, wus accepted, an in the stilly autum, wen the muskeeteers are all ded, we will bea maid one. It wus truly a case ov luv at first site. Mi happanes is compleat, mi cup ov joy is ful an running ovar. No moor sewing on pance buttons fur me.

With the distribution last week of $2,016.43 to DeKalb county from the state intangibles tax, the county's share in general distributions under Indiana's new tax laws reached a total of $49,578.48. The first distribution was made October 15, 1933, from the intangibles tax, and DeKalb county received $4,654.61. On November 1, funds collected through beer or excise tax were distributed by the state to schools, and the schools of the county got $7,139.44. The distribution of funds from collections of gross income tax was the largest of all, receiving $35,783.60 early in January.

COUNTY COUNCIL TO HEAR J. RAYMOND SCHUTZ

Beyond all doubt, the spring council meeting of the Sunday Schools of DeKalb County, to be held in Auburn Sunday afternoon, May 6, at St. Mark's Lutheran Church at 2 P. M., Central Standard Time, will be the greatest religious gathering for the summer months.

Publicity is being made early so that all pastors and school officials can get the word to their people to take the afternoon and spend it in a meeting where they will receive some new spiritual awakening.

As everyone knows Dr. Schutz is a student of world problems, a traveler and lecturer and is able to deliver his message in a convincing and gripping manner.

A junior choir is expected to appear for the first time and furnish music for this meeting.

Plans for the summer program will probably be in shape to announce to the workers at this time by the president, Stanley Means.

It is hoped that between three and four hundred people will attend this session, and that a special effort will be made for record township attendance.

COUNTY WIDE MEETING OF CHURCHES OF CHRIST

Plans are being perfected for the county wide meeting of all the Churches of Christ Lord's Day evening, April 29, at Auburn. The meetings occur once each quarter, at which time special music and out side talent is made use of.

The Auburn congregation, whose turn it is to act as host, is preparing for a large representation from over the county. George Sherwood, of Smithfield township, whose boys and girls that have delighted other meetings in Auburn with their orchestral numbers will be on hand to aid with the musical part of the program.

Coburntown the oldest of the church organizations, dating from 1837 will lbe present to call your attention to their centennial which will be celebrated in 1937.

These meetings are open to the public and everyone cordially invited to attend and share the music, preaching, and fellowship.

ST. JOE LADY SUES SPRINGFIELD TRUSTEE

Alleging that although as a tenure teacher she was entitled to teach in Springfield township so long as there was a vacancy for a tenure teacher in the township, her services were refused, Frieda Guilford of St. Joe has filed suit for $2,500 damages against the Springfield township school corporation and Jacob Amstutz, the township trustee.

The plaintiff declares that she was a tenure teacher in the public schools of Springfield township for seven years prior to 1932. In the fall of 1932, she states, she offered her services to the trustee, but he refused to permit her to continue to perform her duties as a tenure teacher.

She avers that he has continued to refuse to permit her to serve as a teacher, regardless of the fact that her services were satisfactory, and although during the past two years he has employed, and is still employing non-tenure teachers in the position formerly occupied by the plaintiff.

CO-AID BANQUET

A delightful meeting of the Co-Aid Class of the M. P. Sunday School was held Tuesday evening, when they entertained their Mothers. At 6:30 a delicious two-course dinner was served in the domestic science room at the school building. Miss Violet May welcomed the Mothers in a few well chosen remarks and read a poem entitled, "Our Mothers." Miss Erna Huffman also gave a reading.

Following the rich repast the class with their guests went to the home of their teacher, Mrs. F. B. Leighty, where a program, composed of musical and lierary numbers and a social hour, was enjoyed.

The out of town guests were Mrs. T. E. Moran, of Garrett, and Mrs. Carrie Warford, of Auburn.

POP CORN SUPPLIES EXCEED DEMAND

Little more than half as much pop corn was produced in 1933 as in 1932 but current supplies are burdensome, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reports, because there is much less demand than a few years ago. The Bureau estimates that approximately 23,500,000 pounds of pop corn was produced last year in Iowa, Kansas, and Nebraska, compared with about 42,500,000 pounds in 1932 and 36,000,000 pounds in 1931.

The decrease in the 1933 crop is attributtd mainly to the greatly reduced acreage, but the hot, dry weather of midsummer cut down yields considerably.

Sales of pop corn by packers and distributors have been disappointing—the smallest apparentiv in many years—and no marked improvement in the demand is expected in the immediate future by the larger distributors.

Until there is clearer evidence that the demand for pop corn next fall and winter is likely to show a big improvement, farmers may well proceed cautiously in the planting of this crop, says the Bureau, especially if they do not have a local market or cannot contract in advance of planting with a reliable dealer at distant market.

All state parks will be open ready to receive visitors May 1st.

Mrs. Carrie Warford returned to her home in Auburn Wednesday morning after visiting a few days in the Frank May home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kinsey and granddaughter, April Bowser, were guests from Saturday until Monday of A. W. Mohney and family at Mansfield, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Hascall Grothers and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nowels, of Ligonier, Ind., were Sunday guests in the George Weaver home. On Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Weaver left for Marcellus, Mich., to be guests of his sister, Mrs. J. M. Winans until Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wineland moved home last week from Auburn, where Mrs. Wineland was called by the illness of her mother some months ago. Later her mother died and she was compelled to remain and look after her father. A housekeeper has been engaged to keep house for him.

SPRING TAX PAYMENTS COMING IN SLOW

With the end of the spring tax-paying period rapidly approaching, visitors are becoming more numerous at the office of County Treasurer, Merritt M. Maxwell.

Only a little more than one-fifth of the current tax due this spring has been paid to date and only one-sixth of the delinquent, but Mr. Maxwell notes an improvement in comparison with previous years and expects to make a more satisfactory report of callections.

The amount of 1933 taxes charged on the duplicates for collection this spring is approximately $350,000 and up to Friday $75,825 had been paid. At the end of 1933 there was $151,270 delinquent on the books and this has been reduced so far this year in the amount of $26,156.

The last day for payment this spring without penalty is Monday, May 7. Mr. Maxwell advises that he cannot accept checks in excess of the tax to be paid.

ITEMS ABOUT ST. JOE

W. B. Cox and family will leave Saturday for the summer, to make their home in the Simon Mutchler home east of Brighton.

Wm. Miller, who has been laid up all winter with rheumatism, is quite improved and is endeavoring to do some of his spring work.

Miss Freida Wyatt, of Auburn, spent Sunday in the Charles Morr home. Miss Helen Ditmars, of Garrett also spent Sunday night with Miss Cleota Morr.

Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Moffet and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rhodefer of Auburn and Susan Sechler spent Sunday in the Paul Adams home at Fort Wayne. Susan will spend two weeks at Auburn.

Wm. Goldsmith and wife will move to here from the Goldsmith farm at Hurshtown and occupy the Curie cottage house. Clarence Goings and family will move to the Goldsmith farm and look after the growing of melons for Roy Keller.

Robert Wiers and James Stewart were home from CCC camp a few days ago, and the boys look like they were treated fine and had plenty to eat. Robert said that his camp expected to move, but due to an epidemic of measles, they were detained.

Arthur B. Conklin of Lewisburg, Tennessee and O. N. Toner, of Evansville, Ind, arrived last week and are employed in the Flour Mill. Both the men are high class millers and Mr. Gauntt expects to operate the mill night and day, in order to keep up with the demand for Burco flour.

THREE ACCIDENTS LAST WEEK ARE REPORTED

Mrs. Ella Gill fell last week at the Chas. Woodcox home and broke her left arm just above the wrist. It was thought she sprained it but when it began to swell the doctor reported a bone broken.

John Smith, another of our aged citizens fell in the back yard at the Leon Kees home one evening last week and broke his thumb. The bone punctured the skin. He is unable to do anything.

Eloise Draggoo is the third accident of the week, resulting in a broken left arm. She fell on the pavement when roller skating.

MEMORIAL MEETING

A Memorial Day meeting will be held at the K. of P. hall Monday evening at 7:30, and all persons interested are asked to meet with the officers of the association, and make plans for the coming observance.

Found: A Republican wit who says that Governor Paul V. McNutt has "saved" the state a few dollars.

James M. Knapp, former Republican floor leader in the Indiana House known for his dry humor, has it all figured out. Said he at a rally at Hagerstown:

"I see by the papers that the Governor told Columbus (O.) school teachers that it cost Indiana $300 to maintain a priscner for one year.

"Although the Governor has made many unsubstantiated claims that he has 'saved' the taxpayers money, he has overlooked one claim he could prove. When those 10 prisoners walked through a row of green guards and out the front door to freedom at the state prison last September, the Governor should have promptly claimed he had 'saved' the state $3,000."

Arden McClure of Versailles may have forfeited his chance to be poet laureate of Indiana, at least until Governor McNutt's term expires, but he has released to the press the following poem entitled "After Hearing the Governor:"

I went to hear thee, Governor,
For I had never seen thee,
Whom many men call naughty names:
King Nutt, McNuttolini.

I like your handsome face, your hair,
Your manly figure too;
If Washington were of our times,
I think he'd look like you.

But you said taxes are reduced,
And I liked your convincing way;
Yet state expenditures have been
Ten thousand dollars more a day.

I know you're honest as can be,
Perhaps, though, not a saint.
And Indiana's liquor law
Made Tammany Tigers faint.

You once said, "Fellow citizens,
I will keep faith with you."
You're something more than governor,
Because it is not true.

Some recent prison escapades
Made all Chicago grin;
Yet Dillinger would not be out,
If you had not been in.

I like you for myself, dear sir,
More than for what you do.
It seems to me that you agree,
Dear Governor, don't you?

So, Governor, I would thou might
These lines of Coleridge see:
"Didst thou think less of thy dear self,
Far more would others think of thee."

HOME BUREAU

Fourteen members of the Concord Township Home Bureau motored to the home of Mrs. Kathryn Jump, south-east of Hicksville in Paulding county, for an all day meeting April 20th. A bountiful pot luck dinner was enjoyed at the noon hour. The hostess, assisted by her committee served hot rolls, mashed poatoes, chicken, noodles and coffee.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Mary Krise. Songs were led by the chorister, Mrs. Gertrude Borthwick. After taking part in an exercise song all were ready to enjoy the afternoon program. Our creed was read after which fourteen members responded to roll call with quotations from Nature Poems.

A very comprehensive report of the first project meeting was given by the project leader, Mrs. Emily Hallabaugh. A round table discussion was conducted by Mrs. Arline Koch on "Does It Pay to Own Your Own Home." Many good thoughts being given by the members. "A little nonsense now and then" in charge of Mrs. Minnie Ulm caused much merriment. Conests were conducted by Mrs. Beulah Coburn and Mrs. Kathryn Jump. Meeting was closed with the singing of "The More We Get Together." All voting it a very happy occasion and a day long to be remembered.

Members present were: Cora Curie, Beulah Coburn, Jennie Keller, Ethel Wineland, Hazel Baltz, Gertrude Borthwick, Cora Fetters, Emily Hallabaugh, Maude Jenkins, Kathryn Jump, Daisy Keeler, Arline Koch, Mary Krise, Helen Ulm, Minnie Ulm; also two guests, Elva Zuber and Clara Sible.

EGGS' WHITES ARE NOW CONTROLLED

77,000 Eggs Are Broken to Make Possible a Better Feed.

The feed that goes into the hen largely determines the quality of the egg produced. Every poultry raiser knows this and if you are on good enough terms with him he will demonstrate to you why certain feeds produce deep colored yolks and others light colored yolks. At the same time he will admit that it is hard to control the exact shade of the yolks the year around.

Feed manufacturers have long ago discovered that the success of a poultryman depends upon pleasing his market, so they have tried to provide a feed mixture which will produce the kind of eggs that will bring poultrymen top prices. The problem of shading the yolk is only one part of the secret.

More difficult is the selection of feeds that will produce the ideal white for each egg. Thin watery whites are not ideal. The white must be thick and firm and stay close to the yolk in the poaching pan or on the straight "up" orders.

To solve this problem Purina Experimental Farm of Gray Summit, Mo., several years ago began a record egg breaking and testing experiment. Many combinations of feed were fed to specially selected flocks. Eggs from these hens were numbered for easy identification and then the eggs were broken and compared to the specifications that had been set up by egg market experts.

In all of these feeding experiments the first objective of the feed was not overlooked. Feed is meant to produce first of all, eggs in quantity. Only after this requirement is satisfied can the quality part follow.

More than 77,000 eggs were individually handled and broken in this exhaustive search for the ideal combination. One dozen or one hundred dozen eggs broken from hens fed on the egg quality formula finally adopted look as alike as peas in a pod. The full meaning of such a feed can only be fully appreciated by poultrymen who have had the ingenuity to work up a special market for their product and who know the advantages of an increased income that American preference for quality makes possible.

Changing birds over to this new feed is simple. Pullets on the range are changed over at eighteen weeks of age. Scratch grains are decreased gradually in proportion as the new feed replaces the other feed. Laying hens can be changed to the new feed at any time of the year according to the poultry experts at the Purina Experiment Farm. As is the usual practice in changing a flock's ration, two weeks should be allowed for making the change and no change should be made during extremely cold weather or when birds are in peak production.

City Buyers Test Selected Eggs in Many Ways

Methods of determining quality are constantly adding to the many troubles of the poultry raiser. If you are a producer for the fancy markets it is no longer enough that your eggs be fresh, that they be of uniform size, spotlessly clean or even that the yolks be of the same shade. Hotel chefs and discriminating housewives have added still another and by far a most difficult test designed particularly to show up inferior quality.

Courtesy-Purina Mills

Watery-Running Whites---Inferior

Poached eggs are a breakfast or a luncheon favorite with millions of city customers. The next time you poach look at the water in which your eggs have been cooking. If it is full of shreds of white floating around, your resulting product will have lost much of its valuable egg white. The yolk will not be covered with cooked white and a watery taste will be most noticeable. You will be fortunate if the eggs do not break in removing them from the water.

By using the right quality of feed with healthy birds poultrymen can overcome this objection. At the Purina

Courtesy-Purina Mills

Firm, Thick Whites---Superior

Experimental Laboratories, exhaustive tests were made on the eggs produced by different experimental rations.

Different feeds it was found influenced directly the firmness and poaching qualities of eggs. From these tests, it was possible to develop a laying mash that makes firm, thick whites—the kind that poach best.

The way to prove, of course, is to do. Poaching in the old fashioned way will demonstrate immediately the superior qualities of scientifically produced eggs. It is a showmanship test that many producers are now using to demonstrate to egg buyers, to housewives, and to hotel chefs why their selected eggs are entitled to a premium price.

FINDING WHICH COW MAKES MONEY

In practically every dairy herd are cows which are money makers and others which are money eaters. Finding out in which class each cow belongs is one of the first steps toward making the herd pay. Otherwise the poor cows will steal from the owner what the good cows make.

Studies by the Dairy Department of Purina Mills have developed a measurement test which provides an easy way for figuring whether a cow is above or below the money making line. It is partly illustrated in the accompanying chart.

First, it is necessary to find out how much milk at your selling price is required to pay the cost of the cow's keep for one year.

When the amount of milk required to pay a cow's keep has been determined, the average amount she must produce daily during each month of her lactation period can be calculated. This has been figured out in chart form, partially illustrated here, and copyrighted by Purina Mills for the use of their dealers and customers. From this chart it is possible to tell quickly whether a cow is in the money making or the money eating class.

For example, suppose that it has been found that it takes 6,000 pounds of milk to pay the yearly cost of a cow's keep in a given herd. That is the money making line. Suppose that the daily milk production is weighed and one cow in the seventh month of lactation is found to be giving 20 pounds. She is a profit maker because the daily milk needed to start making money in her case, as indicated on the chart, would be only 18.4 pounds. Suppose that another cow in the same herd is giving 21 pounds, but she is in her third month of lactation. She is in the money losing class since the chart calls for a daily production in her case of 22.8 pounds.

Cows whose daily production is less than 5 pounds per day below the profit line can usually be raised above it by the 8-4-40 program of feeding. Cows whose production has been reduced by trouble at calving time, by accidents, or which are temporarily out of condition should be given another chance. Heifers in their first lactation period will usually give 20 per cent less than at maturity and should be credited accordingly.

Farmers who wish to make an analysis of the production of their herds can obtain the necessary forms and help from their local Checkerboard feed dealer, announces the Purina Educational Division. He will also gladly explain the 8-4-40 feeding program, developed through research by which farmers can put above the money making line many cows which are just below it.

Beauty Starts With A Clean Skin

Melba Cleansing Cream goes to the depths of tiny pores. It gently and thoroughly removes cosmetics and dust, never reached by soap. To use this light, penetrating cream night and morning is the indispensable first rule for a skin of alluring satin-smooth beauty.

So gentle, it seems to caress the skin—it is so light it cannot stretch even the tiniest pore. Use for face, throat and shoulders.

Just A Smile

Someone has said, "There is no difficulty in this world that cannot be overcome." Wonder if he has ever tried putting the tooth paste back in the tube?

Teacher: "Wouldn't you like to see wealth more equall distributed?"

Student: "Certainly—as soon as I've spent this five dollars."

He was studying the menu as the waitress approached to take his order.

"Have you frogs' legs?" he asked.

"No, sir," she replied, "it's just my rheumatism that makes me walk this way."

High School Commencement This Eve

Eight girls and eight boys will be graduated this evening (Thursday, April 26) from the local high school. The exercises will be held in the gymnasium-auditorium beginning at 8 o'clock. There will be no admission charge and the public is cordially invited. The program will consist of short talks by the class salutatorian, Virginia Shull, and valedictorian, Ethelmae Freeburn; vocal solo by Geraldine Thornton; musical selections by a special high school chorus; class address by Prof. J. O. Winger, of Manchester College and the diplomas will be presented by Superintendent C. F. Stallman.

In spelling matches held in the fifth and sixth grades on Monday afternoon of last week Helen Goodwin and Sylvia Washler carried off first honors in their grades. Mrs. Ruth Davis presented each winner with a very nice gift and all others with a large stick of candy.

Pupils of the third and fourth grades posed for a picture on last Tuesday. They are hoping for good results.

The Seniors are pleased with the large framed class picture which the Rice Studio has completed for them. It will be placed in the assembly room of the Norh Building. Each senior also received a composite class picture.

The commercial classes of the St. Joe High School entered the Thirteenth Annual Indiana State Commercial Contest. The typing class of our school won the seventeenth place among over 200 schools that reported. This would entitle the five highest of the class to compete in the final state contest at Muncie. It is interesting to note that our rank is much higher than that of many larger schools that competed, such as Elkhart, Gary, Columbia City, Logansport, Martinsville, South Bend, Lafayette and Lebanon

There were 2,437 divorces granted in Reno, Nevada, in 1933.

There are still seven men in Congress who voted against the United States entering the World War. After seventeen years these men have expressed themselves as believing they voted correctly.

Over half of the states reduced the 1934 fees on auto license tags.

At Oklahoma City a young man was found who had a mania for collecting automobile radiator caps. He had collected dozens of them just for a hobby.

For those wishing a divorce and finding themselves without any legal grounds we suggest the Hollywood term: "Incompatibility."

Renato Donati, Italian aviator, recently piloted his plane nearly nine miles into the air. His thermometer (in the cockpit) recorded the coldest temperature at 67.8 degrees below zero.

Many stockholders in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation objected at the company's recent annual meeting to the $25,000 a year salary of Chairman Charles M. Schwab but were satisfied when it was explained that in the company's early days Mr. Schwab worked unceasingly without salary or dividends and had always been willing to personally indorse the notes of the company.

The largest public library in New York City is visited daily by about ten thousand people.

One of the few profitable purchases that we find recorded to the United States Government was the purchase of Alaska for $7,200,000 (about two cents per acre.) Alaska has yielded back to the United States more than fifty times its original cost in gold alone.

Borrowers from the Home Loan Association and from the Federal Land Banks should not get any encouragement from the fact that the old Dawes bank in Chicago has let about $62,000,000 of the principal and accrued interest of its RFC loan go unpaid for over a year. The chances are that you will have to pay your interest and principal promptly when due.

If the present government plans are carried out, depositors in closed banks will not be guaranteed a full payment of their portion of the assets of their bank by a Federal plan to buy all the closed banks at a fair appraisal value.

Perhaps muzzles should be provided for all those who continually complain about the government but take no interest in the general election.

The moral support and best wishes of the majority of the American people seem to be with John Dillinger, the Hoosier bandit. Unless public sentiment changes Dillinger will continue as a bank menace.

"An editor is a man," says the Rarian Reporter (Illinois,) "who prints rosie stories of big increases in business and wage upping, and then has a heck of a time to raise enough to meet the weekly payroll of his office force."

After May tenth, according to the Treasury Department, plenty of pressure will be put to bear upon the manufacture and the sale of illicit liquor.

The requirements for actresses, chorus girls, models and other stylish figured women this year may all be summed up under one heading: "Athletic Thinness."

Bachelors of Italy, who have already been heavily taxed, must now pay to their government one-half of their incomes.

"A rose to the living is more
Than sumptuous wreaths to the dead;
In filling love's infinite store,
A rose to the living is more
If graciously given before
The hungering spirit is fled—
A rose to the living is more,
Than sumptuous wreaths to the dead,
Than sumptuous wreaths to the dead."

VOL. XLIX | ST. JOE, DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MAY 3, 1934 | NUMBER 18

50 Years Ago

Taken from the files of the St. Joe News, 50 years ago—
M. E. Olds, Editor

Politics are getting hot.

Miss Lizzie Evans is quite sick.

Mad Meek has his house nearly completed.

Dr. Bowman is getting material on the ground for an up ground cellar.

Several ladies from Spencerville were entertained by Mrs. Dr. Bowman yesterday.

Daniel Cowhick a prominent citizen of Hicksville, shot himself in the head last Wednesday morning, causing almost instant death.

Robert Culbertson, W. C. Patterson and Samuel Widney are delegates to the Senatorial Convention to be held at Pleasant Lake on Friday, August 29th.

The St. Joe Blaine & Logan Club will meet Saturday evening in Leighty's Hall. Members as well as all those who expect to join are requested to be present, as business of importance is to be transacted.

Charlie Grubb attended a wedding on Thursday evening. Whether it was his own or not we are not able to say, but we have heard it whispered that he was talking quite seriously of entering the state of matrimony.

O. S. Blood of Newville township received the nomination for Commissioner of this district by a majority of one vote. John L. Davis of Auburn was nominated treasurer. We were unable to learn the other nominations before going to press.

George Bleeks has a hen that has a brood of 30 chickens.

Mrs. Dr. Mitchell of Ligonier was in town this week visiting friends.

H. K. Reynolds the present agent at this place is a republican. Rather strange, isn't it.

D. D. Moody will speak here Saturday evening, and organize a Cleveland and Hendricks Club.

We printed some circulars for August Kinsey last week, advertising his large stock of furniture.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowen of Attica, Ohio, spent part of last week in town visiting their daughter, Mrs. H. K. Reynolds.

Vester Widney sold 250 cigars at the Coburntown picnic. Vester is working up quite a trade in the cigar business.

Lyman Knight returned home from Valparaiso last week, where he has been during the past three months attending school.

Frank Boyles went to Edgerton last week to work in a barber shop. He got home-sick however, and came back the same day he went.

A camel will work seven or eight days without drinking. In this he differs from some men, who will drink seven or eight days without working.

Will Curie is now proprietor of the upper meat market, having purchased it last week of Clide Woodcox. Billy is one of our own home boys, and is deserving of patronage.

Several couples from this place attended the birthday surprise party given in honor of Mrs. Henry Coburn of Newville, on Thursday afternoon of last week. It was a complete surprise to Mrs. Coburn, and a very pleasant and enjoyable occasion to those who were present.

PRIMARY BALLOTS YELLOW AND WHITE

The printing of the 20,405 official primary ballots is now in progress. Of this number 11,345 for Democrat voters and 9,060 are for Republicans. The ballots will be printed on yellow paper for the Democrats and White for Republican voters.

The number for use in this end of the county is as follows:

	D.	R.
Concord	375	325
Spencer	275	300
Newville	205	140
Jackson, north	220	150
Jackson, south	215	165

The other townships run in about the same proportion.

AVERAGE ST. JOE CITIZEN SPENDS $375 A YEAR IN LOCAL SHOPS

Residents of St. Joe and vicinity spend approximately $375 a year in the retail stores and shops here each year, according to an estimate made by the Chicago Wholesale Market Council.

The State of Indiana's total retail trade of more than a billion dollars is equal to almost one-third the volume of wholesale trade of Chicago, whose Wholesale Market District, lying just west of the famous "Loop," is considered one of the greatest in the world.

The study which revealed the figures was made by the newly formed Wholesale Council to determine how best to meet the needs of retail merchants who depend largely upon Chicago wholesalers for goods to stock their shelves for Indiana purchasers. An expansion and improvement program, including numerous additional buyers' services, has been launched, to accommodate the throng of merchants who are expected to combine a visit to the Century of Progress with their annual or semi-annual buying trip.

The estimate is based on the total retail trade of the state and the population, both reported in the latest United States census.

The $375 per person, or about $1,400 per family, spent with Indiana retailers includes all purchases, except for personal services, such as laundry and barbering.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. McCormack, of Carey, Ohio, were guests in the J. P. Buckingham home Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee, Mrs S D. Gee, Lucille Gee, and Mrs Mildred Curie and children were at Fort Wayne Tuesday.

Harold Yeiser spent several days with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Yeiser, north-east of St. Joe. Harold likes the farm.

Mrs. Pearl Simanton is at Auburn for a couple weeks taking treatments for her hip. She is staying with her son, Coral and family.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Foltz visited Mrs. Foltz's parents near Miller City last Sunday, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham, who spent the day with C. J. Foltz and family.

Mr. Hugh Newland, of Auburn, husband of Mrs. Matie Gee-Newland, is quite poorly. Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee, Mrs. Jennie Abel and Mrs. Mildred Curie were Sunday afternoon callers.

Your Kodak films can be purchased at News office and you can also leave your order for prints here. Our customers are pleased and a trial will convince you. An enlargement free on first order.

Mrs. Amos Gamble, Mr. and Mrs. Doran Gamble and Mrs. Norma Irven and two daughters, of Lima, Ohio, spent the week-end with Harry Smith and family, also visited among old neighbors and friends of former years.

The next Farm Bureau meeting will be held in the St. Joe Gym Tuesday evening, May 8th. A play "Greener Grass" will be given by a group from Jackson township. Every one is invited. Farm Bureau members are especially urged to attend.

Another customer is more than pleased with the results obtained from a small 10 cent ad in our classified column. Willis Cox obtained 6 direct orders to tune pianos from an ad run two weeks in The News. And what more could anyone wish?

There were only ten deaths in DeKalb county during February, the monthly bulletin of the state board of health just issued at Indianapolis shows. Of the number seven were 65 years and over of age. One death was from scarlet fever, another from pneumonia, one accidental and one from cancer.

Great preparations are being made for entertaining the May meeting of the Wittenberg Brotherhood in the Angola Christian Church on Wednesday evening, May 9th. Vieing with the previous meetings held by this organization in the several churches of DeKalb and Seuben county, it is proposed that this occasion surpass all previous records. At the April meeting more than two hundred men gathered at Ashley, and over sixty joined the organization. A higher mark has been set by the committee for the coming meeting.

G. D. Dill, of Pierceton, Indiana, was a guest of his sister, Mrs. C. R. Price on Tuesday.

Remember Mother by sending her a beautiful card—You can see them at News office.

Dean Kees was taken ill Sunday afternoon and an examination by Dr. Hathaway revealed appendicitis. He was taken to Souder's Hospital and operated on Sunday night. Today he is reported as getting along fine.

A total of 1028 miles of state roads will receive a surface treatment this spring and summer. Possibly road one will figure in the allotment of the Fort Wayne district of 111.27 miles. The work contemplated will require approximately three and a half million gallons of tar of liquid asphalt and about two hundred thousand tons of crushed aggregate, gravel or slag.

A. B. Conklin, of Lewisburg, who came here as a miller for the St. Joe Mills, returned to his home Sunday morning. Mr. Conklin liked the North very much in spite of the information given him before coming here, "that the northern people were not sociable." His verdict was that there is no difference. The old saying again proves true, that, "If you expect to have friends, you must be one," and Mr. Conklin met every requirement of this rule.

Renominate OTTO L. WATERMAN for second term on past record as County Recorder. 17t2.

Activities under the P. W. A. promise to take a new turn, since the President will seek permission from Congress to divert about 35 million dollars at once from the funds of that organization for the building of a score of warships, program calling for an ultimate outlay of approximately 135 millions. The first extensive construction of naval war machines since the world conflict, will of course mean that many idle plants will go into production, with a corresponding demand for labor and materials. Whether or not there is anything else back of the ship building program is not known, and is not likely to be published. The fact however remains that the world is just a little disturbed over Japan's announcement that she regards herself as the best judge of what ought to be done in China. Possibly the United States may participate in the general uneasiness over the stand which Japan has taken. If that is true, a few more war craft may come in handy.

TO OPEN NEW FAIR MAY 26

Lower Cost to Visitors; 84 Miles of Free Exhibits.

Chicago.—A new World's Fair will open here May 26.

It is not simply an encore of the 1933 Century of Progress Exposition. In addition to many startling new features it retains all those of last year's Fair that were too important and popular to leave out—but even they have been enlarged, changed and improved.

This summer's Fair will cost little to see and little to get to. There are 84 miles of interesting free exhibits. The Exposition will look after the visitor's comfort hospitably, efficiently and inexpensively. Last year the average visitor spent only $1.17 a day inside the grounds.

World's Greatest Fountain.

Workmen have torn down more than 100 of the old buildings. New ones have replaced them. The entire physical appearance is different, with new color and new landscaping everywhere. New lighting effects at night, even more daring than those of the 1933 Fair, surpass anything of the kind ever attempted anywhere. Scores of new exhibits have been added, one of them the largest ever built. Virtually every exhibit hall over has undergone considerable change.

Comparable to the ferris wheel of the 1893 Fair and the sky ride of 1933, the outstanding single feature is the largest fountain ever built. It has a flow of water sufficient to serve a city of 1,000,000 population, and its spectacular lighting, in five colors, draws as much current as an average city of 150,000.

Visitors "Tour World."

Fifteen "foreign villages," twelve of them new, all of them patterned after the lovely Belgian village of the 1933 Fair, make the Exposition more truly worthy of the name "World's" Fair than any predecessor ever was. They offer the visitor the unique opportunity of making, in effect, a tour of the world in a single day.

Eleven of the villages are on a street of their own, where the Midway stood last year. The old Midway has disappeared and a new and more thrilling one has been built on the Northerly Island beach.

On the street of foreign villages are reproductions of life and scenes in North Africa, England, the German Black Forest, Colonial America, Ireland, Italy, Tunis, Belgium Paris and Spain; there is also a village peopled entirely by midgets. Elsewhere on the Fair grounds are a Dutch village, a Swiss village, a Mexican village and the Streets of Shanghai.

Ford, Packers New.

New to the Fair is the exhibit of the Ford Motor company, with its $1,500,000 exposition of the drama and progress of transportation, spread over eleven acres. Not the least important among its exhibits will be that of Henry Ford's own solution to the farmer's problem; he will show the farmer exactly how he can bring relief to himself by raising and processing soybeans.

The great packing companies, represented jointly last year, have come in separately, and in a big way. Swift and Company has the entire 23rd street bridge for exhibits, and has built a huge band shell and amphitheater for free concerts. For ten weeks, beginning July 1, the Chicago Symphony orchestra will play there twice a day. Armour and Company tells the story of the progress of the industry in its large new building in the lagoon. Wilson and company has part of a packing plant actually in operation.

Standard Oil (Indiana) will present daily, in a new arena, a daring animal act with thirty-three lions and tigers performing in the same cage at the same time. Science will be made to perform seeming miracles every day in a scientific revue in the court of the Hall of Science. There will be plenty of free entertainment elsewhere on the grounds.

Railroad Rates Lower.

The new Fair has more restaurants, better equipped to serve tremendous crowds. Meals will be lower in price; in fact it will be possible to buy a meal on the Fair grounds for as little as fifteen cents.

Rates for buses, lagoon boats, rickshas and roller chairs have been reduced; in some cases they have been cut in half. Eighty per cent of all the toilets will be free.

Eastern, western and central railroad lines have announced that rates, in general, are even lower this year than last, in many cases with special-rate tickets, honored in Pullmans as well as in day coaches. Bus lines have announced special low rates and so have air lines.

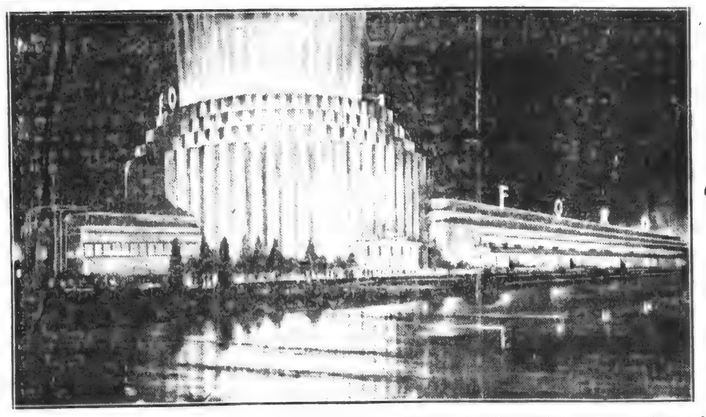
Aid Auto Travel.

Hotel accommodations can be had in Chicago for as little as one dollar a day. Auto camps and private homes will accommodate visitors at correspondingly low rates.

Fourteen major highways lead to Chicago. Eight thousand Ford dealers throughout the United States have been organized into a giant travelers' aid organization to assist people in planning trips to the Fair. Oil companies have turned their gasoline stations into World's Fair information booths.

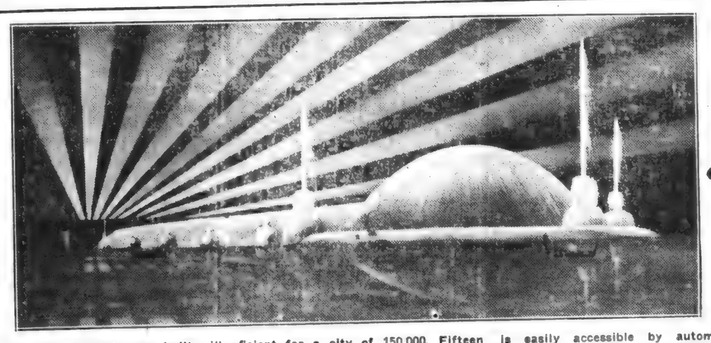
Everything possible has been done to make it easy and inexpensive for the throngs who will visit the new 1934 edition of A Century of Progress.

Ford's Drama of Transportation at New Fair



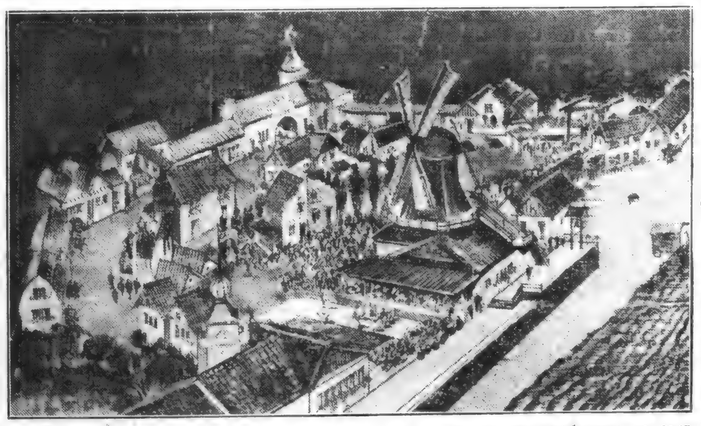
In the largest exhibit ever built for an exposition, the Ford Motor Company will tell the complete story of transportation from the beginning of time, in the new World's Fair which opens in Chicago May 26. A special part of the exhibit will demonstrate Henry Ford's own solution to the farmer's problem. With 84 miles of free exhibits, the new Fair will again be a spectacular international attraction. Special attention will be paid to the comfort and convenience of visitors. Low railroad and bus rates, and low rates in Chicago hotels will cut the cost of a World's Fair vacation even as compared with the low costs of last year.

World's Largest Fountain New Fair Feature



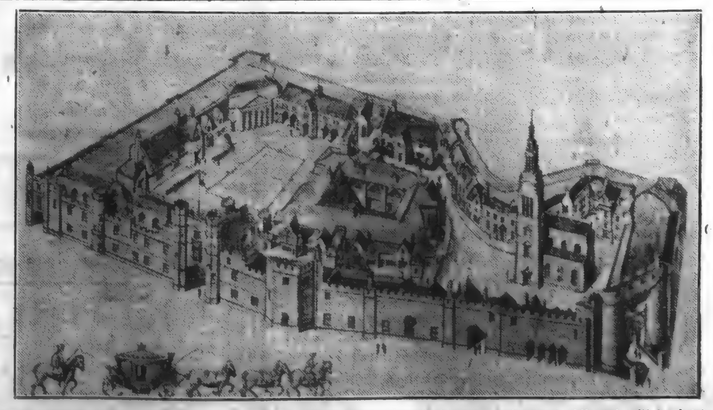
The largest fountain ever built will be the outstanding single feature of the new World's Fair which opens in Chicago May 26. Its flow of water will be enough to supply a city of 1,000,000, and its spectacular lighting, in five colors, will use an electrical load sufficient for a city of 150,000. Fifteen foreign villages, music, fireworks and free entertainment will be among the major attractions of the Fair. There are 84 miles of free exhibits. Cost to visitors will be low. Reduced rail and hotel rates are in effect. Chicago is easily accessible by automobile through fourteen major highways. A program of especial interest with music, parades, fireworks and special features has been arranged for opening day. That will be an interesting time for a first visit.

Land of Wooden Shoes at New Fair



Windmills, dikes and canals of the Netherlands will be reproduced in this Dutch village of the new World's Fair which opens in Chicago May 26. It is one of fifteen "foreign villages" which will offer the visitor a "tour of the world" in a single day. The new Fair will have 84 miles of free exhibits. Music, fireworks, free public spectacles and free entertainment will be attractive features. Cost to visitors will be less than last year, when the average visitor spent only $1.17 a day inside the grounds. Chicago's beautiful June weather makes that month an opportune time to visit the entirely completed Fair and see it while it is fresh.

Merrie England Lives Again in New Fair



Merrie England of the sixteenth century will come to life on the "Street of Foreign Villages," a new feature of the new Chicago World's Fair which opens May 26. Many buildings famous in poetry and prose will be reproduced in this and the fourteen other foreign villages now under construction. Visitors to the new Fair may accomplish a world tour by strolling through these charming and authentic reproductions of old Europe. There will be 84 miles of free exhibits, all new and startling. Music, dancing and fireworks will be daily features in addition to exhibits of new scientific development. All cost will be kept very low. The average visitor last summer spent only $1.17 per day, inside the grounds. Week-end trips offer inexpensive and enjoyable excursions for people living within a few hundred miles of Chicago to be made by train or auto.

DAVID HOGG

IN AGGRESSIVE CAMPAIGN FOR CONGRESS HAS GOOD RECORD

(Special to St. Joe News)

Fort Wayne, Indiana, May 2, 1934.—When David Hogg was a member of Congress he made every possible effort to serve his district. Now he is engaged in a strenuous campaign for renomination.

His experience in Washington, his earnest and capable attention to legislative problems, his practical understanding of the needs of his constituents has made him countless friends and supporters.

During his term he held frequent office days in every town and community in the district. Few persons are better known. In Congress he assisted in the enactment of three major tax reduction programs. He secured a high tariff on all industrial and agricultural products of his district. He did numerous things for his constituents in Washington. His record won the endorsement of agriculture, labor, veterans and local tax reduction organizations.

Mr. Hogg is a steadfast Republican. He never engaged in factional strife within his party and is not the candidate of any faction. Few members of Congress have ever achieved in a comparative time so enviable a legislative record. It is generally predicted in Fort Wayne that he will be renominated by a large majority.

COUNTY COUNCIL TO HEAR J. RAYMOND SCHUTZ

Beyond all doubt, the spring council meeting of the Sunday Schools of DeKalb County, to be held in Auburn Sunday afternoon, May 6, at St. Mark's Lutheran Church at 2 P. M., Central Standard Time, will be the greatest religious gathering for the summer months.

Publicity is being made early so that all pastors and school officials can get the word to their people to take the afternoon and spend it in a meeting where they will receive some new spiritual awakening.

As everyone knows Dr. Schutz is a student of world problems, a traveler and lecturer and is able to deliver his message in a convincing and gripping manner.

A junior choir is expected to appear for the first time and furnish music for this meeting.

Plans for the summer program will probably be in shape to announce to the workers at this time by the president, Stanley Means.

It is hoped that between three and four hundred people will attend this session, and that a special effort will be made for record township attendance.

MORTUARY

REHM

Pearl Maude, daughter of Johnathan E. and Ellen Nora (Hart) Abel, was born February 25, 1884, on a farm in Spencer Township, south of Coburn's Corners, passed away March 31st at Lansing, Michigan, after a sickness of nearly two weeks. At the age of three years, she moved with her parents to a farm one mile from Auburn, where she resided until her marriage September 2, 1903 to Edward Rehm, of Holt, Michigan. They lived in the vicinity of Holt until 1917 when they moved to Lansing. To this union were born two children, Mrs. Hazel M. Irwin, of Chicago, and LaVere at home.

For eighteen years Mrs. Rehm has been a patient sufferer from leakage of the heart. She was a faithful wife and loving mother, and a true friend and will be missed greatly by all who knew her.

Besides the husband and two children she leaves a father, three brothers, Floyd, of Liberal, Kansas, Ralph, of St. John, Kansas, and Kenneth, of Green Springs, Ohio, two sisters, Mrs. Hazel Meiser and Mrs. Marguerite Woodward, of Auburn, and a great number of other relatives and friends. The mother preceded her in death five years ago.

The funeral was held at Holt, Michigan, April 3, with burial at Holt.
